SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties.—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

Money in the Laundry.

Three little heaps of silver and copper coin lay on the laundryman's counter.

"That is money that I have just found tied in the corners of customers' handkerchiefs," he said. "It is strange that with all the purses and hand bags manufactured for the accommodation of women so many of them will still tie their money up in a handkerchief. Sending it to the laundry is funnier still. Every day we dig out a little pile of unsuspected wealth, and many a careless customer gets her laundry back with nearly enough money in the package to pay the bill."—New York Sun.

FOR THE COMMON GOOD

It is the aim of The Times:

To exploit and advance the best interests of the people of the fair and fertile land wherein it is published, and to which it steadily devotes its efforts;

To stand for liberty and law, equal rights and good government, the greatest boon to a free people;

To foster and encourage private and public enterprise, and hold up the hands of every honest toiler, either with brawn or brain, in every field of activity;

To stand independently for the true interests of the city, the Dominion and the Empire, and for those policies only which make for the common good;

It aims to be excellent and not cheap.

SECTION 2, SEVERN DIVISION
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Section No. 2, Severn Division, Trent Canal," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon on Monday, March 23rd, 1914.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on or after this date at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa; at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont.; and at the office of the District Engineer, Public Works Department, Midland, Ont.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered bank of Canada for the sum of $36,000.00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railway and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES,
Asst. Deputy Minister and Secretary.

WOMEN IN SERVIA

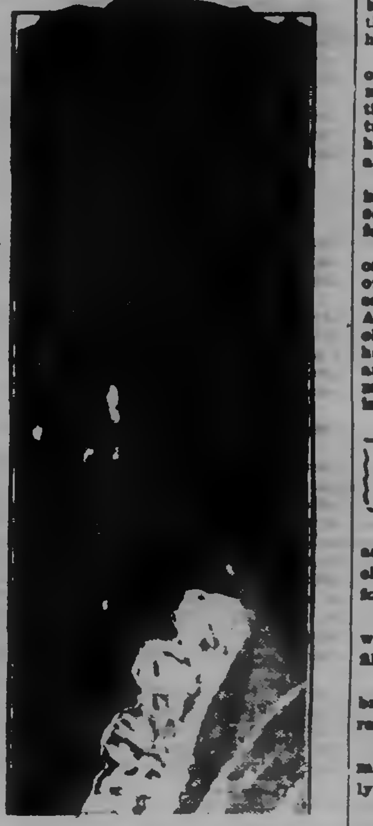
They Are Both Accomplished and Domesticated

There is no country in the world where women occupy a more dignified position in the home than Servia. The Servian idea is quite different from that of the Turk, who keeps his women behind shut doors, or the German whose ideal woman is a hausfrau. In Servia the woman is the companion of the man.

A man is responsible for his unmarried sisters, and throughout the Balkan States it is considered rather a breach of etiquette for him to marry before his older sister.

No Servian girl would feel she could hold up her head in society unless she could speak four languages. There is hardly a Servian woman who cannot play some musical instrument. Embroidery, painting, drawing and sculpture are all studied. Politics is a popular feature among women. Servian women are very domesticated and the highest ladies pay personal attention to trivial matters of housekeeping.

There are two women doctors practising at Belgrade, and women teachers galore. But public opinion, on the whole, is rather against the women entering the labor arena.



FORTUNE FOUND IN FILM

This is Mary Pickford, a girl not quite twenty years old, whose earnings as an actress for moving picture concerns are said to aggregate $30,000 a year. She thought it a misfortune when through sickness she had to give up stage work, but while recuperating in California she found that the "movie" business was far more profitable.

USING A CASSEROLE

These Dishes Are a Boon to Many Housewives

Casseroles come in many styles and prices but like patent leather shoes and taffetas, none are guaranteed. If the brown ware with its creamy lining is not thought sufficiently attractive, silver filigree casseroles are obtainable, to say nothing of those in solid silver and nickel plate.

A casserole of any make or description must be heated before using. Let hot water stand in it a few minutes before filling with the meat or vegetables to be cooked, cover closely and place in a moderately hot oven. The long slow cooking necessary for good results spells freedom for an afternoon at least to the woman who would rest, do her shopping, or attend a bridge party or matinee.

From an economic standpoint there is also an advantage: This method of slow cooking not only makes meats more tender, but makes it possible to use many of the cheaper cuts by drawing out their juices and flavor. Finally, the casserole permits of the cooking of fish, onions, and other odoriferous foods in the oven—a boon to sensitive nostrils.

While chicken and vegetables, with necessary water, should be put immediately into the casserole, it is best, as a preliminary step, to sear meat on both sides in a frying pan, in order that all juices may be conserved. All dishes may come on the table "piping hot," and, furthermore, will remain so throughout the meal.

ORANGES IN SPAIN

Fruit Has Been Cultivated in Seville For Centuries

The orange has been cultivated for centuries in Seville and the surrounding country. From this region comes the famous variety known as "the Seville." The Spanish orange traces its stock back to the so-called China orange, which was brought into the country many years ago by the Moors. Trees were transplanted from the groves then flourishing in Africa. The orange crop is gathered in November, December and January, and the yield, which is fairly regular, is always greater than the demand. The oranges that are exported for marmalade manufacture are often allowed to go to waste. Sometimes, however, the fruit is peeled, the pulp is thrown away, and the peel itself is left in the sun to dry. The dried peels are then exported for use in the manufacture of confectionery, flavoring extracts and medicinal preparations. It is also said that the volatile oil found in the peel is used in some places in the manufacture of gunpowder. The leaves of the Spanish orange tree are said to be valuable when put among garments for keeping away moths and other destructive insects. The orange blossoms are used in Seville to manufacture an orange flower water, used as a beverage and as a medicine. They are gathered fresh, and before withering or drying are boiled and distilled. Orange wood is used in Seville for fine cabinet work.

FISHWORMS IN WEST

Not Known For Years But Not Now a Rarity

An old-timer passing along a Regina street noticed an earthworm on the pavement. Proceeding a short distance, it all suddenly dawned on him that it was something out of the ordinary and seized with the happy thought that it might be one of a few of the only survivors of the species in the West he returned and transferred it to a nearby lawn. Passing up the street a little further, however, he noticed several earthworms, and their presence in the district struck him as a very remarkable thing.

This gentleman had been a resident of Saskatchewan for fifteen years or more. During a large part of that time he had been engaged in agricultural pursuits, and in all that time he did not remember having seen such a worm in any part of the Province.

Several other residents reported having seen a few fishworms lately, something which they never saw before.

Earthworms inhabit nearly all parts of the earth except the frozen regions of high latitudes and altitudes, dry sandy soils, and portions of the North American prairies. It is recognised by old-timers that up to the present they have been a scarcity in Saskatchewan, and why they should be getting common is not known. One reason given is that the climate is becoming milder.

Sandwich Paragraphs

Rye bread seems to call for a cheese as a filler, and if one will grate the cheese instead of slicing it, it will be found to work very much better.

Both Swiss and American cheese with a little mustard are also fine as fillers for rye bread sandwiches.

A sweet sandwich made with rye bread is delicious with a filling of raisins and marshmallows.

Creamed cheese and current jelly mixed makes a nice filling, particularly if put between salted wafers.

Bread and butter sandwiches are very delicate if made properly. The bread must be forty-eight hours old, the butter spread evenly on a loaf before the slices are cut and put together, after which the crusts are all cut off with a sharp knife.

A tablespoonful of canned salmon which perhaps the mother is going to make into a loaf can be picked fine and to it added three drops of Worcestershire sauce and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of chopped sweet pepper. This will make two sandwiches, size of an ordinary loaf of white bread.

White bread can be spread with any cold fish mixed with either salad dressing or a little lemon juice.

Sardines give white bread sandwiches a relish and prove a pleasant change.

Sandwiches can be made with almost any filling, provided a little common sense is used; for instance, if you have some baked beans put them through the food chopper or collander. Mix with a little tomato catsup or chili sauce and place between thin slices of brown bread upon which is placed a little grated cheese.

Never put baked beans between white bread. The beans can be combined with cucumber, pickle or a little salad dressing, and the bread spread lightly with butter. This gives you three different kinds of sandwiches made from brown bread and baked beans.

Remember that all bread should be forty-eight hours old from which you make sandwiches. When you spread it, be sure that the butter is not hard. Spread the end of the loaf before cutting the slice. Cut very thin and after folding the slices together, trim off all crust.

These crusts need not be wasted if they are dried in the oven and put through a chopper or rolled, they can be used to bread veal or other croquettes. Brown bread crumbs are especially nice for ham croquettes.

Never mix the white and dark meat of chicken if you are making sandwiches. They are much nicer if made separately.

A bacon sandwich is very palatable, and if one is fond of it, a piece of calf's liver chopped with the bacon makes a delectable filling for white bread sandwiches.

Soup meat with the addition of salad dressing and oftentimes a bit of carrot that has been boiled in the soup is very tasty with white bread.

All kinds of jams and jellies can be used for the sweet sandwiches with white bread.

A fried egg sandwich is looked upon by some children as a veritable goody.

If you must use hard boiled eggs, cut them in slices, sprinkle them with chopped parsley, a little lemon juice and paprika; or add a little chopped pimento. This filling should only be used with white bread.

UMPIRES AND GRIT

Courageous Acts of the Men in the Iron Masks.

A FINE DISPLAY OF NERVE.

When Billy Evans Braved the Onslaught of a Chicago Mob and Won Out—A Notable Decision by O'Day. An Umpire Who Saved Baseball.

"Umpires are brave men—at least the great majority of them. One of the bravest things I ever saw was the act of Billy Evans on the old White Sox grounds in Chicago," writes Hugh Fullerton in the American Magazine. "On that park there was a tier of seats known as the 'stockyards,' in which gathered one of the most dangerous crowds (for umpires) in the country. They were regulars who occupied the same seats almost every day and who fought for them. The seats, of course, were not reserved, but hundreds claimed a title to certain places. They paid th[illegible]rters, and if any one was in [illegible] and refused to move he was [illegible] and thrown over the heads [illegible] crowd to the bottom. That [illegible] started after Evans, who had [illegible] close decision at third base [illegible] Chicago. Evans walked over on to foul ground back of first base, and a shower of bottles fell around him. It looked as if a hundred men were throwing bottles at the umpire. One bottle touched his cap, several bounded and struck him, one hit him on the arm. During this bombardment Evans did not turn his head. He stood watching the batter. For at least three minutes the bottles whistled around his head. The people in the grand stand shouted for him to run, fearing he would be killed. The players begged him to move into the diamond out of range. He stood still with back to his foes until the batter made a base hit, then trotted down near second base to watch for a play there. As the opposing team took the field a few moments later Evans walked to the same position back of first base, and the crowd that had tried to kill him stood up and cheered him. They recognized a brave man. One fellow threw a bottle, and the crowd pitched him down the steep steps, passing him along until he hit the fence.

"The nerviest decision and one of the most important ever made was that of Umpire O'Day in the world's championship game between Chicago and Detroit on Oct. 8, 1907, the first game of the series which finally ended in a tie in twelve innings. In the eleventh inning Chicago actually scored the winning run only to lose it through the decision of O'Day, a Chicago man and a National leaguer. Slagle was on third base and started home with the ball back of third in left field. The ball was thrown home and arrived after Slagle had crossed the plate and was nearly to the bench. Steinfeldt, who had been batting, was excited, and when the ball was thrown to the plate, wild and wide, he jumped and let it hit his shoulder and prevented Schmidt from catching it. O'Day, in spite of the fact that Slagle had crossed the plate and that there wasn't a chance to put him out, called him out because of Steinfeldt's interference.

"There was a close decision at Cleveland one day when Tim Hurst, widely known as the 'scrappy ump,' was officiating. Burkett was trying to score from second on a hit. The catcher failed to touch his foot, but touched his knee, and Cleveland claimed the foot reached the rubber before the ball reached the knee. Hurst called him out, and in the wrangle that followed expelled Pat Tebeau, O'Connor and Burkett from the game. Then he put them off the grounds. They left the playing inclosure, but all three had their heads over a gate shouting at Hurst and urging the other players to avenge them. Tebeau shouted to good old Deacon Maguire, who was catching, 'Get after him, Jim!' Hurst heard, but was not in position to reply. Maguire heard and waited until he thought Hurst miscalled a strike. Then he rushed at the umpire at top speed. Hurst stood still. When Maguire came near enough Hurst kicked him on the shins and poked his mask into his face. Maguire fell back astonished. 'If you don't like it, Jim,' said Hurst softly, 'give it to Pat. I merely punched you vicariously.'

"They are 'square men,' these umpires, forced to be a bit gruff and to fight, but their devotion to their work and their honest effort to discharge their duties mark them as men of high integrity. And they are 'game.' I saw Bob Emslie once when a foul ball struck him over the heart. The pain was excruciating. His face grew white, and he set his teeth together and resumed work. Three balls were pitched after he was hit. He called them all clearly. Then he collapsed, falling as if dead, and was carried off the field unconscious.

"One night I saw politicians, wealthy men, club owners, argue for hours with an umpire. All they wanted him to say was 'I didn't see it.' Upon those words hung the fate of a championship, the future of a major league and the honesty of baseball. The umpire replied, 'But, —— it, I did see it!' And he saved baseball."

Spontini's Decorations.

Casparo Spontini, the composer, regarded himself in the light of a demigod, and when inspirations crowded upon him he donned a wide, togalike gown of white silk with a border of gold and a fez of white silk embroidered in gold from which a heavy tassel hung down. With great dignity he sat down before his desk, and if a grain of dust was visible on the paper on which he penned his music he rang the bell impatiently for his servant to remove the obstacle. Spontini owned so many medals and decorations that they could no longer be accommodated on his breast. At a grand musical reunion at Halle an old musician remarked to a comrade, "See how many decorations Spontini has, while Mozart has not one." Spontini, who overheard it, replied quickly, "Mozart, my dear friend, does not need them."

What Crete Would Cost.

Present trouble in the east has brought out the sardonic humor of at least one Turkish gentleman.

"Would your highness," said an enterprising Italian journalist to the grand vizier of the time, "consent to the sale of Crete?"

"Certainly," replied the Turk. "Any one can have it for the price we paid—twenty years' war."

THE SHORT BOLERO-LIKE COAT ONE OF THE NEWEST WHIMS

All the beauty of the gracefully draped peg-top would be lost if a long coat were worn, therefore we have the short coat. The favored model is cutaway in front and forms a rounded point in back. Some are cut with kimono sleeves; others have the set-in sleeve.

The coat shown in 8137 has a set-in, three-quarter sleeve and is slightly draped in front. The material is matelassé in a dull green; the skirt is of duvetyn in the same shade of green. A narrow edge of fur outlining the collar, cuffs and bottom of the coat give a smart touch.

The skirt is a design that may be made in one or two pieces. The fullness is arranged in soft plaits at the waist.

This coat, 8137, may be copied in size 36 with 3¼ yards of 42 inch material. The skirt, 8164, requires 2⅝ yards of 42 inch material for size 24.

An extremely smart design in serge for a young lady is shown in 7843. While it is comparatively simple it is saved from plainness by the yoke on the skirt and the unusual collar. These draped collars are becoming very popular, and one of the newest materials to make them of is white organdie. Although this material never looks as well after being laundered, it is extremely dainty while fresh, and several chemisettes and collars may be had with each frock.

The long ribbon sash is a pretty touch to a dress of this description. This one is of brocaded velvet ribbon showing several bright colors.

In size 18 this dress may be copied with 4½ yards of 36 inch material with 1¾ yards of ribbon for the sash.

No 8137—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8164—sizes 22 to 32.
No. 7843—sizes 16, 17 and 18.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper

A GENEROUS USE OF FUR MARKS THE MODISH SUIT

It is quite in keeping that the Russian blouse should be trimmed with fur. The popularity of fur for trimming has reached a point where its appropriateness to the season and its comfort are no longer considered, but it is favored for its becomingness alone. We find it outlining the throat and wrists on the flimiest blouse and edging the tunic of the chiffon dancing frock as well as trimming the suit for out of doors and the evening mantle.

In 7907 dull green velveteen is effectively trimmed with fitch, which is one of the most favored pelts this winter. The fur buttons are novel and extremely chic. A girdle of dull bronze satin is another effective touch.

This model may be copied in size 16 with 4 yards of 42 inch materiel.

For many seasons we have had nothing more becoming and more practical than the sports coat. These are made of the softest and woollest of the new coating materials and, as a rule, are very light weight, which is an added virtue, as a heavy coat is a thing to be avoided by the woman or girl who indulges in out of door, winter sports.

In 8130 we note the effectiveness of the raglan sleeve, a smart stitched belt and the large patch pockets. This design was made up in a waffle check in black and white.

The skirt is a three piece model in white serge.

It requires 3⅝ yards of 42 inch coating to make this coat in size 36.

The skirt (7942) may be made in size 18 with 2⅝ yards of 42 inch material.

Got Himself in Trouble

On Wednesday a man with face cut and bleeding called at the Lindsay Police station and complained he had been assaulted on Kent street, Chief Chilton ascertained that the injured man had been found in a hotel room where he had no right. Hence the assault. The young man was locked up.

Asphodel is Prosperous

Norwood Register: Mr. H. R. Elmhirst, assessor for Asphodel, is busy making his official calls. Mr. Elmhirst says he is pleased to find the residents of the townships apparently well satisfied with the way the township's business affairs have been executed during the past year,—and there is very little complaining.

A Blaze Cut Off.

Yesterday morning a phone message acquainted the brigade with the fact that a small fire had originated in the basement of Yootes cigar store. It appears that a lighted cigarette had been dropped through the grating and set fire to some waste materials which were strewn on the basement floor. The incipient fire was extinguished by chemicals.

Slit Skirt Made in Short Order.

A local young lady found herself in a very embarrassing position while enjoying a skate on Jackson Park rink last night. She was wearing a new tight skirt and had been skating around for some time when she accidentally fell. When she arose it was seen that the beautiful tight skirt had been converted into a most up-to-date slit skirt with two long slits on either side.

Bell Telephone Co. Banquet.

Last night a big banquet was held at the Oriental Hotel when some 70 guests of the local Bell Telephone Co. staff were entertained at dinner. A splendid menu was served. Among those present were Mr. O. E. Stanton of Toronto, the chief speaker of the evening; Mr. W. H. Winter, of Montreal, chief plant superintendent; Mayor Buller, several of the local Aldermen, Chief Howard and others. The chair was filled by Mr. A. A. Smith.

S.A. Band Score a Success.

Last night the local Salvation Army Temple Band was greeted with a crowded house at Orange Hall, North Monaghan. Adjt. McElheney very ably filled the chair. The object of this function was to organize a new corps for the South end of the city, and, judging by last night the aim of the local Army will be crowned by signal success. The Band gave a splendid selection of vocal and instrumental music.

Niagara Falls Y.W.C.A.

Miss McCalla, formerly secretary of the Y.W.C.A. here has been engaged in a similar position for the new Y.W.C.A. building recently opened at Niagara Falls. Miss McCalla was one of the most popular and successful officers that ever filled the position of secretary. There is no one better qualified to organize and create a strong society than she. Her many friends here will be pleased to learn that she has again resumed her duties

Bad Accident in Ennismore

A serious accident occurred on Tuesday afternoon at the farm of Mr. Murphy, lot 5, con. 8, in the township of Ennismore. Fred Murphy was operating a steam driven circular saw. As he was cutting a small pole at the saw, a man accidentally jarred his elbow. Murphy's hand met the rapidly revolving saw and had his hand cut open from where the thumb joins the fingers right to the wirst. He was at once brought to St. Joseph's Hospital, where Dr. McNulty dressed the wound. It is hoped that the thumb may be saved.

May Be Escaped Murderer.

On Monday last Detectives Newhall and Meagher arrested two men, who the following morning were remanded as vagrants. On Monday evening, the men aroused the officers' suspicion. The following morning the men gave their names as Maloney and Bridefield respectively. Some time ago a circular was received by the local Police Department intimating the fact that a man by the name of Armstrong, had escaped from the Indiana State Prison at Michigan City, Indiana, where he had been confined since June 3rd., 1907, after being convicted of murder. It is thought that Maloney may be the missing convict, whose right name is Armstrong. On Monday evening Detective Newhall went to the door of the cell where Armstrong was lying down. He called out "Armstrong, come here, I want you," whereupon the man who gave his name as Maloney, got up and walked to the door. Meanwhile the man will be held as a suspect.

A FIREMAN'S PERIL

How Zam-Buk Delivered Him

At 215 Fraser Ave., Edmonton, Alta., lives W. P. Mahy, a former member of the local fire brigade, who has wonderful cause to be thankful for the curative powers of Zam-Buk. He says: "A serious skin disease broke out on my face, and spread until I was in a terrible state. The spots and little ulcers were frightfully irritating, and yet when scratched or rubbed they bled and smarted. Shaving caused me agony, and sometimes I would have to go two weeks without a shave. I tried home-made remedies, herb salves, and various other preparations, but the sores got 'no better. When Zam-Buk was mentioned I had little faith that it would be able to do me any good. My case seemed such an obstinate one. I gave it a fair trial, however, and the first box made such a wonderful change for the better that it gave me encouragement to continue. I did so, and to cut a long story short, Zam-Buk in the end, quite cured me. My face is now clear of all traces of the terrible disease, which troubled me for so long."

Thousands of sufferers from eczema blood poison, ulcers, chronic sores, piles, ringworm, cold sores, cuts, burns and skin injuries, have been relieved and cured, as was Mr. Mahy, by Zam-Buk. As a balm for all skin injuries and diseases it is without equal. All druggists and stores at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

WEDDING BELLS

Powell—Taylor.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Taylor, 580 Bolivar street, Peterborough, was the scene of a quiet, but pretty wedding on the evening of March 11th, when their youngest daughter, Alida, was united in marriage to Mr. Harry T. Powell, of Caron, Sask.

The bride was beautifully gowned in silk broque crepe with ivory satin and seed-pearl trimmings, and carried a bouquet of white roses and ferns.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. J. Keith, pastor of Knox church, in the presence of only the immediate friends and relatives.

The bride entered the drawing room to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, rendered by Miss E. Wilson, of Toronto.

The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome cabinet of silver and the pianist, a necklace of pearls.

The happy couple left on the evening train for their home in Saskatchewan, accompanied by the best wishes of a host of friends for their future happiness.

Pleurisy Pains Vanish! Chest Colds Cured!

NERVILINE HAS NEVER FAILED TO CURE

Don't suffer.
Nerviline is your relief.

Nerviline just rubbed on, lots of it, will ease that drawn, tight feeling over your ribs, will destroy the pain, will have you smiling and happy in no time

"I caught cold last week while motoring," writes P. T. Mallery, from Linden. "My chest was full of congestion, my throat was mighty sore, and I had the fiercest stitch in my side you could imagine. As a boy I was accustomed to have my mother use Nerviline for all our minor ailments, and remembering what confidence she had in Nerviline, I sent out for a bottle at once. Between noon and eight o'clock I had a whole bottle rubbed on, and then got into a perspiration under the blankets. This drove the Nerviline in good and deep, and I woke up next morning fresh as a dollar and absolutely cured. Nerviline is now always part of my traveling kit, and I will never be without it."

The large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical, or you can easily get the 25c. trial size from any dealer.

DON'T HAWK, SPIT, SNEEZE, CURE YOURSELF! BREATHE "CATARRHOZONE"

GIVES INSTANT RELIEF, CLEARS OUT NOSE, THROAT AND ALL BREATHING ORGANS

In this fickle climate, repeated colds very easily drift into Catarrh.

The natural tendency of Catarrh is to extend through the system in every direction.

Exposure to cold or dampness intensifies the trouble and nasal catarrh is the result.

Unless a complete cure is effected, inflammation passes rapidly to the throat, bronchial tubes and then to the lungs.

You can't make new lungs — hence Consumption in practically incurable.

But Catarrh can be cured, except in its final and always fatal stage.

Catarrh sufferers, meaning those with colds, sore throat, bronchial trouble, etc., can all be cured right at home by inhaling "Catarrhozone."

In using Catarrhozone you don't take medicine into the stomach — you just breathe a healing piney vapor direct to the lungs and air passages.

The purest balsams and the greatest antiseptics are thus sent to every spot where catarrhal trouble exists, germs are killed, foul secretions are destroyed nature is given a chance and cure comes quickly.

Colds and throat troubles can't last if the pure healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed,—sneezing and coughing cease at once, because irritation is removed.

Use Catarrhozone to prevent—use it to cure your winter ills. It's pleasant safe and guaranteed in every case. Complete outfit $1.00. Smaller size, 50c., at all dealers.

MOLASSES IN MARCH ISN'T ANY TOO FAST

Boston, March 10.—"Slower than molasses in January" it has been, lo! these many generations when an elder has wished to describe a tired boy.

But why January? Cannot molasses be slow in March?

Ask the crew of the tramp steamer Ixia.

This tramp craft came to port two weeks ago with a cargo of 800,000 gallons of the liquid sweetness. She is a tanker equipped to pump out such a cargo in two days.

But she struck a cold snap as she came to port, and when her pumps were started they wouldn't work, because the molasses had thickened. After a fortnight of sweaty endeavor by the crew there is still 'lasses in the tanks, and it shows no willingness to come out!

HUDSON Six Upkeep Less Than a Four

At one time all Sixes were big, powerful, extravagant. Now we build them in smaller sizes, and by a different method. Thus we have secured all the wonderful advantage of six cylinders, yet have not increased the gasoline consumption. A HUDSON Six will cost you less for gasoline, oil, tires and general upkeep than will a Four of equal power. In a score of contests we have proved this under average road conditions.

Until you drive a HUDSON Six you cannot realize its great advantage. Its smoothness and flexibility are an insurance as well as a delight. HUDSON Sixes are preferred because of high quality combined with moderate price. The Six-54 has four forward speeds, 135-inch wheel-base, motor 4½ x 5¼, developing 55 horse-power. Made in Phaeton at $2950 and Sedan at $4050. The Six-40 has 123-inch wheel-base, motor 3½ x 5, developing 47 horse-power, gives 13 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and is, we think, the easiest riding car on the market. The Six-40 in Phaeton and Roadster at $2300, and in Cabriolet at $2675. All cars, of course, are electrically started and lighted, left side drive, center control, gasoline tank in cowled dash. Catalog on request. Demonstrations as arranged. Prices f. o. b. Detroit, Michigan, duty paid.

SEVENTY MILLIONS NECESSARY BEFORE C. N. R. IS COMPLETE

Half That May be Raised From Bond Guarantee From Ottawa---Rest in London

Ottawa, March 13.—Despite stories in the Liberal press to the effect that the Government has decided to extend aid to the C.N.R. and the whole matter is settled, the question of assistance to that railroad is still far from decided. The sub-committee of the Cabinet appointed to consider the question, had a long conference with the C,N,R, magnates last night, and at the close, Premier Borden said, "There is nothing settled."

The question has yet to be discussed by the whole Cabinet, and if it is decided to lend any assistance there will be a caucus of the party when the whole question will be thrashed out.

Perhaps Interchange With I. C. R.

Whatever is done and whatever assistance is given by the Government, if any, will be wholly in the form of a bond guarantee, and arrangements for interchange of traffic of the C. N.R. with the Intercolonial Railway. The whole question is receiving the most serious consideration, but to say that the matter is settled it is absolutely incorrect. Adequate security to the Government for a bond guarantee is the difficulty confronting the C.N.R., in securing aid requested, and until that security is forthcoming nothing will be done in this matter. It is understood that the Government has made this very plain to Mackenzie and Mann, and that the security must be such as to be above suspicion.

PROSECUTIONS WILL FOLLOW

Special to The Times.

Ottawa, March 13.—Hon. Dr. Reid, acting Minister of Railways and Canals, states that the report of Mr. G. Howard Ferguson, K.C., will be followed by prosecutions by the Government. These prosecutions will be based on the facts brought out by Mr. Ferguson in his recent investigation, as well as for the improper use of certain names.

PRES. WILSON SIGNS ALASKA BILL

Expenditure of $35,000,000 On Railroad is Authorized

Washington, Mar. 13.—President Wilson to-day extended what he termed "the hand of real helpfulness and brotherhood to Alaska," when he signed the bill authorizing the expenditure of $35,000,000 for the first Government-owned railway constructed by the United States.

Secretary Lane, a group of Senators and Representatives and members of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce stood beside the President as he affixed his signature. The President was in a happy mood as he signed, and in laying one souvenir pen aside to se another, smilingly remarked. "I'll change engines."

When the bill had been signed the President made a brief speech.

A Leasing Bill to Come.

Secretary Lane immediately afterward had a long talk with the President about the selection of engineers for the work. Though Col. Goethals had been mentioned, it is unlikely that he will be through with the Panama Canal in time for the present undertaking, which Mr. Lane intends to get into operation at once.

The President said the enactment of the railway bill would be followed by the passage of the Alaska leasing bill which would mean the carrying out of the Administration program for the development of Alaska in an incredibly short time.

The beginning of the project will signalize a new method of Government stimulus for the opening of virgin territory, a contrast to the Government bounties and guarantee of bonds which in the pioneer days of the west were used by the Federal Government to encourage railway building.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Fair and a little warmer.

Forget
Your Stomach

Anyone in perfect health never "feels" at the stomach. It's forgotten, like any other part of a perfect running machine. No jar, no shock, no sensations at all; just easy, pleasant, restful work—duty well done.

The Way

lies in the proper selection of food and drink, getting down to Nature's principles—plenty of fresh air, good water, and particularly plenty of good food that will easily digest, and nourish and rebuild—not clog up.

Understanding how the body works upon food and what elements it requires to rebuild itself, this knowledge was used to produce the perfect food—

Grape-Nuts

It contains the natural Phosphate of Potash which the life forces especially require for rebuilding bone, muscle, brain and nerves.

Then again, in Grape-Nuts a part of the starch of the wheat and barley has been changed into sugar by the baking at the factory. That is exactly the condition which starchy food—bread, oatmeal, potatoes, etc., assumes in the act of natural digestion. So we find Grape-Nuts has passed through this process outside the body, and is therefore partially digested—a tremendous help for those who are a bit weak in digestive power. And so of health, with its glow, vigor and energy, will come back. The years are forgotten, and so is the stomach, but you'll know

BULLOCK WAIVES EXTRADITION

Maintains He Is Not Briddle, Although Bearing Some Resemblance.

Montreal, Mar. 13. The colored man arrested here giving the name of John Jones Bullock, but thought by White Plains, N.Y. police to be Walter L. Bullock bears some resemblance to the photos of Briddle and has a crushed thumb such as the wanted man is said to have had. Bullock contends that he is not Briddle.

MAY USE X-RAY ON WOMAN ACCUSED OF SWALLOWING RING

Case Bristles With Difficulties for the Police Force--Have They Right to Photograph?

Toronto, Mar. 13.—Wireless telegraphy has been used to secure the arrest of desperate criminals, without any protest coming from the public or the people arrested. The question now disturbing Inspector Kennedy of the Detective Department is whether he would be justified in using the equally important discovery of Roentgen to prove that a theft had been committed. Did Catharine Lepchin make a light lunch off a diamond ring? The story is simple, but the denouement may depend on the latitude accorded the police photographers.

Mrs. Blanche Leith, 325 Perth avenue, was washing her hands at Eaton's store. She took a valuable diamond ring from her finger and laid it down on the ledge beside the basin. The ring vanished, and Mrs. Leith accused Catherine Leochin of stealing it. Catherine Pepchin, who lives at 65 Augusta avenue, was arrested and searched. The ring was not to be found. But witnesses declare they saw her swallow it. Now comes the problem.

Inside Evidence.

The key to the restoration of property to Mrs. Leith or of her good name to Catherine Lepchin is buried deep in the interior of the latter. Roentgen lived that this might be solved, but may the police photograph an accused person inside, as well as out? A prisoner may be photographed. Tattoo marks may be observed and recorded. But public opinion would never stand for accused persons being used as models for classical art photographs. If the complete and uncovered inside of a prisoner may not be photographed, is the force justified in uncovering the mysteries of nature and revealing the interior economy of a person accused of theft?

Possible Applications.

Here is a case in point. Supposing a small boy went into a confectionery store, bought a bun and was then accused of having stolen and eaten a cake, would he be subjected to X-ray to prove the charge?

There is another point. A diamond ring cannot be identified by means of an X-ray photograph. Supposing Catherine Lepchin was posed and photographed under Roentgen rays and the shadow of a ring was seen, would there be any way of proving that the woman had not started a new fashion by wearing her jewelry inside? Provided the shadow of a ring was found, would Catherine Lepchin have to undergo an operation to prove that her interior adornments were her own property. The case would seem to bristle with difficulties.

MAGISTRATE DUMBLE'S DECISION IS QUESTIONED

Herbert Clayton, manager of the Royal Theatre, was charged in police court yesterday morning with permitting Robert Batley, a minor under the age of 15 years, unaccompanied by an adult, to attend the moving picture show at the Royal Theatre at which exhibition an admission fee was charged, contrary to section 10 of the Theatres and Cinematographs Act. He was fined $100. Mr. D.Connell, acting for Mr. Clayton, yesterday afternoon entered an appeal against the magistrate's ruling.

REV. ALFRED BRIGHT ACCEPTS TORONTO CHARGE

Rev. Alfred Bright, of Ingersoll and formerly Assistant-Pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church in this city has accepted the position of assistant to Dr. Geggie of Parkdale Presbyterian church, Toronto.

At the meeting of the Presbytery of Paris, Mr. Bright's resignation was presented, and notwithstanding the strong opposition on the part of his present charge, it was reluctantly accepted.

Mr. Bright has many friends in Peterborough, who will be greatly pleased to learn that he has been selected for so important a charge.

AWFUL CONDITIONS IN NORTH LUMBER CAMP

Last night a local man returned after putting in some eight weeks work in a lumber camp some 40 miles north of the city. In conversation with The Times, this man, who is highly intelligent, said that life in the camp where he worked is a close imitation of H——. He was not working for any of the Peterborough Lumber companies. (This explanation is only given in justice to local concerns). Every night the wolves are heard howling.

The shanty where he slept was about 14 x 20 feet. Here some 42 men slept in tiers of bunks. The air was foul in the bunk house whilst "B-flat" or bed bugs were as common as mosquitos in a Florida swamp. Other kinds of human parasites abounded. To keep clean he had to take his underclothes off daily and rub them off in the snow. He asked 'What is the County or Province doing, that they don't protect the workers in the woods?''

BABY BORN IN RAILWAY YARD FOUND COVERED IN SKIRT ONE HOUR LATER

North Bay, March 13.—A newborn babe as found wrapped in an old skirt under a freight car in the Canadian Pacific Railway yard. A workman heard a peculiar noise, which seemed to come from a bundle of clothes; investigation revealed a baby alive and kicking, and not more than an hour old.

The child was taken to an hospital and is doing well.

Police investigation revealed the astounding fact that the baby had been born out in the open freight yard during the noon hour, when employes were at dinner. The mother a slip of a girl of eighteen, wrapped her offspring in her underskirt, placed it under a car on the repair track where workmen would find it on their return from dinner, and then walked half a mile to her parents house.

TWO TURKISH AVIATORS HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Jaffa, Palestine, Mar. 13.—Two Turkish army aviators, Muri Bey and Ismael Bey fell into the sea to-day while flying to the south of this port. Their aeroplane had broken down and they made a rapid glide to the water, where they were able to disentangle themselves from the machine and managed to swim ashore.

ONLY CRITICISM OF BUDGET IS COST OF GOVERNMENT HOUSE

Hon. I. B. Lucas Analyzes Long Speeches of the Liberals Mr. Lucas is Told He Was Insolent

Toronto, Mar. 13.—The long drawn out debate on the Provincial Budget was concluded in the Legislature yesterday by Hon. I. B. Lucas and Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C.

Mr. Rowell in his speech that occupied the attention of the House for a good hour and a half, severely criticized the Provincial Treasurer and his budget. He accused the Provincial Treasurer of being insolent in his refusal to tell the Opposition what the statutory expenditure for this year would be. This aroused the ire of Mr. Lucas, who, when his turn came, did not neglect to [illegible] the charge.

Expenditures Criticized.

Ability to spend money was the outstanding feature of the Government's record according to the Liberal leader. Apparently the gentleman to the right of the speaker considered that good financing consisted in spending money as fast as one could get it, but, in the average mind, such a propensity was generally connected with spendthrifts, which term, he thought fittingly characterized the Department of the Provincial Treasurer.

The revenues of the Province has increased during the nine years of Conservative rule, but the expenditures had increased even more rapidly, until to-day, according to Mr. Rowell's figures the Government had a deficit for the present year of $2,245,000. This was in strange contrast to the record of the Liberals during their last three years in the Treasury benches. They had returned a surplus for the period between 1902 and 1904. To demonstrate how the expenditure had jumped up since 1904, Mr. Rowell gave figures which showed that the expenditure per head of the population had increased from a little over $2.50 to well over $6.

Further Taxation.

The Government had admitted he said, by the announcement that it would this year introduce new methods of taxation to increase the revenues that it was expending the money of the Province in a reckless fashion. Mr. Rowell estimated that the revenues would have to be augmented by increased taxation to the extent of four or five millions of dollars if the Government was to present a surplus this year.

SMITH TOWNSHIP COUNCIL

The members of the Municipal Council of the Township of Smith met in the County Council Chamber, Peterborough, on Monday, March the 9th, at ten o'clock. All the members were present with Reeve Garbutt in the chair. Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. Thos. Chapman addressed the Council with reference to a culvert on the road at the north east corner of Jackton Park, which did not properly carry off the water. The Reeve instructed Councillor Jobe to make a note of the matter.

Mr. Jno. Rowe requested the Council to open up Lee street at the rear of his property. The Reeve promised to look over the matter in the spring.

Messrs. Reid and Hockiday, of Young's Point, addressed the Council with reference to sidewalks. Reeve Garbutt stated that the Council were in hearty sympathy with the movement for permanent walks, but nothing could be done until all the ratepayers in that division were unanimous as to what they required.

By-law No. 726 was passed enacting as follows:

1. Guns or other firearms may be carried and discharged for any lawful purpose by bona fide residents of the Township of Smith upon lands owned or occupied by them respectively, and by other persons with the express permission of the owners or occupants of the lands upon which the same are carried or discharged.
2. Save as above set forth the discharge of guns or other firearms in the said Township of Smith is hereby prohibited.
3. Any person violating the provisions of this By-law shall on conviction therefore before a justice of the peace incur a penalty of not less than one dollar or more than twenty dollars, such penalty to be recoverable and enforced in accordance with the provisions of Section 498 of the Municipal Act, 1913.

Moved by Mr. Northey and Mr. Telford, that the following accounts be paid:

Ernest McManus, rebate dog tax	$3.00
Herb. Rosborough, cutting brush	3.00
Municipal World, office supplies	3.39
Dr. Morgan, M.H.O. ac.	7.75

—Carried.

The Council adjourned to meet on April 6th.

FIRST EXPROPRIATION FOR CANAL IN WELLAND

Government Offers $1,650 for Five and a Half Acres to J. E. Barrick.

Welland, Marc 13.—Papers were filed to-day in the first expropriation proceedings in Welland county to acquire right-of-way for the new Welland Canal. The property expropriated is five and a half acres, partly in the village of Humberstone and partly in the township, and is owned by J. E. Barrick. The price offered by the Government is $1,650.

EASY WAY TO REMOVE FRECKLES AND ERUPTIONS

Some women have skin of such texture they occasionally are annoyed by the sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines. March winds usually play havoc with skins of that kind. In such cases if one will procure an ounce of common mercolized wax at any drug store, apply a little of it before retiring, like cold cream she can easily overcome the trouble. When the wax is washed off next morning, flaky skin particles come with it. The entire outside cuticle is removed in this way in a week or so, with all its defects. No blemish could so effectively remove freckles or blemishes. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking. No pain or inconvenience accompanies this simple treatment. In case of wrinkles which sink beneath the outer skin, a solution of saxolite, 1 oz. dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel, makes a face bath which is wonderfully effective.

ORIENTAL RUGS.

Made to Resemble the Antiques by Chemical Washings.

The United States buys annually many thousand dollars' worth of what are known to the profession as washed rugs. Brightly colored oriental rugs sometimes are washed with a solution of chloride of lime, a treatment which partly bleaches the colors and imparts a soft appearance to the rug.

This chemical treatment is a process of washing which produces the effect of age and a peculiar sheen to the surface, which is pointed out by the unscrupulous dealer as a proof of superior quality. The fact is that the process of washing as described invariably weakens and in some instances destroys the materials of the rug.

The progressive effect of the chemicals on the materials in the rug is this: The chlorine gas contained in the chloride of lime attracts oxygen and moisture from the air, by which muriatic acid is formed. This eats away the vitals of the rug. Sooner or later the wool and cotton in the rug become brittle and thus weaken the warp and deteriorate the wool.

When this deterioration is complete the pile of the rug may be swept away by the ordinary process of sweeping, and the warp, which is the foundation of the rug, becomes so weak that holes appear here and there, and soon the rug is worthless.

It not seldom happens that a Persian rug is too staring in some bright hue, perhaps red, and is not salable. The unscrupulous dealer will subject the rug to a series of washings in chemically prepared water. In this way he turns out a rug possessing a soft antique sheen that is truly captivating and finds a ready purchaser at an advanced price.

It Really Happens.

The Woman—Here's a wonderful thing. I've just been reading of a man who reached the age of forty without learning how to read or write. He met a woman, and for her sake he made a scholar of himself in two years. The Man—That's nothing. I know a man who was a profound scholar at forty. Then he met a woman and for her sake made a fool of himself in two days.—Cleveland Leader.

Nothing More to Say.

"Sir," said the candidate, "you promised to vote for me!"

"Vell," said his Dutch friend, "and vat if I did?"

"Well, sir, you voted against me!"

"Vell, vat if I did?"

"Then, sir, you lied!"

"Vell, vat if I did?"

THE WHITE WASH.

Its Presence on the Hudson Bay Company's Boat Explained.

It is or was a rule of the Hudson Bay company that no woman be allowed passage on its boats. One day some years ago as a steamer of the company neared one of the northernmost ports a string of white garments was seen stretched across the deck. The watchers were amazed, for to them the wash line suggested only the presence of a woman aboard the boat.

Comment was freely made of the scandal that would ensue and the shakeup that would follow. When the boat docked the line of washing had disappeared—still another proof of the scandal.

Later one of the landsmen said to the captain:

"Why, how did it happen that you carried a woman passenger this trip?"

"There was never a woman along the whole voyage," was the indignant answer. "What do you mean?"

"If there was no woman aboard where did all that white wash come from?" was the triumphant reply.

The captain looked puzzled for a moment, and then he laughed.

"Oh," he said, "and didn't we have Lord Strathcona, the governor himself, along with us on this trip? And every day doesn't he insist on having his clean white shirt, no matter how far north we are? That's the white wash you saw strung along deck. And, what's more, doesn't his lordship insist upon having his London paper laid beside his plate every morning, no matter if it is a year old?"—Pearson's.

The Firstborn.

Young Father—I am amazed, shocked, my dear, to hear you say you intend to give the baby some paregoric. Don't you know paregoric is opium, and opium stunts the growth, enfeebles the constitution, weakens the brain, destroys the nerves and produces rickets, marasmus, consumption, insanity and death?

Young Mother — Horrors! I never heard a word about that. I won't give the little ducky darling a drop, no indeedy. But something must be done to stop his yelling. You carry him awhile.

Father (after an hour's steady stamping with the squalling infant)—Where in thunder is that paregoric?—New York Weekly.

Glances.

He would have been glad to exchange glances with her.

But a fair exchange were no robbery.

And she chose rather to steal a glance, when she thought he wasn't looking.

"Oh, woman, woman!" he murmured, but dared not reproach her openly.—Puck.

SOME IMPORTANT FACTS ABOUT THE SILVER BLACK FOX INDUSTRY

The first Island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $4,000.00; in 1911 the price went up to $6,000 a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000 was considered high but not unusual, and at the time of writing (January 20th, 1914), live breeders can bring any price from $15,000 to $35,000, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000 a pair.

About $10,000,000 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $3,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the island contain 899 silver breeding foxes, (441 males and 458 females.) The total number of silver offsprings for 1913 was 703, and the average assessed value was $4,892.53 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $3,349,449. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1602.

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,628.00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company have TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND Silver Black Foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option are all eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These Foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor, and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which, in 1913, paid from 45 p.c. to 900 p.c.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a per centage of the production will be retained, placing the Company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211 acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business.

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

From the above it will surely be seen that the

R. J. McNEILL BLACK AND SILVER FOX COMPANY, LIMITED, are engaged in business at a most opportune time and under most favorable circumstances. Take into serious consideration that our company is established and that we have the FOXES AND RANCH, and not prospective. YOU ARE ENTITLED TO SEPTEMBER, 1914, DIVIDENDS: you don't have to wait for your dividends until 1915. In 1915 another dividend will be awaiting you

REMEMBER the average cash dividend of the above companies is 175 per cent, and there is absolutely no excuse why we cannot repeat the same.

We offered for public subscription the remaining allotment of $70,000. $30,000 has already been subscribed. $40,000 remains to be sold.

NOTICE.—Should the shares of stock not be allotted, the money paid by you will be refunded by return mail.

SOME PRESS COMMENTS

"Widows" Fox Company Declares a 900 Per Cent. Dividend.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair & Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1910. This Company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent. was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I., who were employed in the States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $15,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $900 three years ago, and is now worth $45,000 directly from this source.

The Rosemount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1000 per cent. this year.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's Limited, received $25,000 from an investment of $900 made in this business three years ago.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $800 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $5,600. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair a year. The first litter consisted seven pups. The seven owners have received $36,000 each dividends since and the pair bought for $5,600 could be sold for $35,000 to-day. Mr. Austin Scales, of St. Eleanors, is a member of this Association —Boston Sunday American, August 31, 1913.

WORMS! YES. THAT'S IT WORMS IS THE TROUBLE—

Many Suffer From Them and Do Not Know It.

Many go to an early grave on account of them and have been pronounced to have had brain fever or some other complaint.

Prof. Mulveney Comes to the Rescue

His Wonderful Remedies are saving thousands of lives.

Why not try his remedies, they are sure, certain and harmless.

Stomach worms are round like earth worms, and measure from 8 to 16 inches in length, the large ones being about the size of a lead pencil in thickness. They are white and sometimes pink in color; they infest the stomach and small intestines and sometimes great numbers are found to exist. One of my customers claim one of his children passed thirty from the use of my remedy. It does not require much thought to come to the conclusion that the worms are very dangerous, as they cause fever, convulsions, fits, etc. Many persons have died from worms and they have been known to crawl out of their mouth and nose after death. Just imagine the suffering and terrible agony a child or adult must experience with these disgusting and loathsome creatures crawling about in the stomach and bowels. There is no doubt that they are constantly taking the nourishment that should go to make a strong, healthy person. Is it any wonder that your child is cross, irritable and sickly? Adults are also restless, melancholy and miserable from the same cause and are sometimes treated for dyspepsia, nervous prostration and other complaints. My remedy is in liquid form and is an excellent remedy to build up the system, and can be taken for some time after the worms have been expelled to build up the system, which generally requires it as the stomach and bowels are generally in a weak and debilitated condition, caused by the ravages of these undesirable pests. My remedy known as Mother's Friend, is pleasant and agreeable to take and is a life-saver for children, as it not only destroys worms but strengthens and builds up the child, cures wetting of the bed, convulsions and fits; destroys pin worms. The price is $1.00. My remedy known as B'Well is much better for adults, and is the greatest nerve remedy on earth. Cures all nerve troubles, cleanses the system, restores lost energy and is a life saver. B'Well is a microbe killer, also a worm killer; microbes and worms cause all kinds of disease. B'Well kills the cause, also kills blood poison. Sold only by Prof. Mulveney. Write for further information free.

Our Sermon for the week

BY REV. BYRON H. STAUFFER

Pastor Bond Street Congregational Church, Toronto

The Delusion of "Nowadays"

Text: "There be many servants nowadays that break away every man from his master."

• • •

That word "Nowadays" has a familiar ring. We really hadn't thought it to be in the Bible. Somebody said it when you were a child: "Nowadays you don't know whom to trust," and you rather believed it and felt that the speaker's youth must have been spent in a golden age.

Behind the hopelessness in looking forward, which we call pessimism, there is always a reason in the character of the speaker. He may be wicked, he may be ignorant, or of an erroneous doctrinal outlook, but the gloom is ever within his own soul.

In this Biblical instance the speaker was a wicked man. The chapter is entitled "Nabal, the churlish man." It is an angry-looking word, that adjective, churlish, and Nabal at once looms up in your imagination with a forbidding scowl and a clenched fist. The outlawed David needed provisions for his followers, and, hearing of Millionaire Nabal, who lived at Carmel and had three thousand sheep and one thousand goats in his pasture, he sent to ask for a supply of food.

Nabal's answer was short. You can almost hear him blare it through his nose, or hiss it through his teeth: "Who is David? Many apprentices leave their masters nowadays. Shall I then take the food from my own workmen to feed a ragged regiment of adventurers?" And he turned away to superintend his sheep-shearing. He declined the subscription with a fine display of angry scorn.

So here is one type of the pessimist in a wicked rich man. A man who has made money honestly is invariably an optimist. But a usurer, a miser, a crusher of men, is usually morally and socially a croaker.

Nabal was impatient with the aspiration of common folks. He called the patriot David a runaway. He was as the Earl of Luxmore was towards John Halifax, gentleman. The old aristocrat grumbled: "Nowadays every beggar wants to rule; nowadays every shopkeeper wants to go to Parliament; nowadays every apprentice wants to wear a silk hat." So Nabal was against reform. A new king? Well, Saul, has done well enough for me. A better king? Would that make my sheep give more wool? We want no unrest. This David agitation is unsettling business, I tell you. The upstart should be put down."

The Nabals all have great respect for the existing order of things. Those of King James' day were loath to give up the doctrine of the divine right of kings. Those of King George's reign have fought very stubbornly for the divine right of lords. To them these are evil times when a Welsh lawyer can be Chancellor of the Exchequer. "Nowadays anybody can get to the highest office in the land."

Nabal's own churlish soul gave him his view of the world. He found a certain comfort in believing the whole nation to be retrograding. There is no nobility in a crotchet. He cannot believe that amiability and sincerity exist. Tact, to him, is nothing but hypocrisy. "Who is David? An adventurer, I tell you. Advise him to go back to his master and keep his place in which he was born."

Ignorance is often the parent of pessimism Nabal had insufficient data. He was so busy looking after the sheep that he had no idea of popular movements. He had not felt the nation's pulse. Some people are pessimists because they never go away from home Why, the Philistines knew more of Israelitish affairs than Nabal did. They were already calling David the king of the land. They knew the song. "David hath killed his tens of thousands!" But Nabal, a neighbor and a fellow-tribesman, did not know of the reforms that were leaping up about him. He saw David's famished and ill-clad followers, and judged them by their ragged uniforms. They must have looked like Washington's barefooted men at Valley Forge, or like Garibaldi's halfstarved men in the Alps. So the growth of Carmel made Nabal look progress by retrograde.

Some ignorant folk mistake improvement for retrogression in the training of children, for instance. They look upon present methods in school and at home as an awful step backwards. "Nowadays boys and girls are not trained and disciplined at all," these dear old souls exclaim. "It was different when I was a girl." (The last word is generally spoken in about three syllables, ge-e-girl.) Now the fact is that this same remark has been made of every generation since the flood. A volume of sermons printed in 1550 bewails the "lack of parental discipline in these latter days." Dear old Jonathan Edwards' greatest lament was that children behaved so rudely and were not chastised as he had been. Hugh Latimer's sermons declare that during his fifty years of observation the manners of boys, their deportment at church, and their obedience to parents had undergone a woeful declension. After tracing the jeremiads of the pulpit of each generation back to Henry VIII., one would imagine that the lads of the much-married monarch's day must have been angels, even though the palace failed to set them a good example.

But the truth is that we have taken as many leaps towards common sense in child training as there have been denunciations in books of sermons. We no longer try to beat righteousness nor education into the children. The vicious schools of the four Georges have disappeared. We do not now send boys of six years into the mines. Neither are half-grown youths hanged for poaching. The pendulum may have swung towards an error on the side of leniency, but our schools and our homes testify to our progress.

REVEREND BYRON H. STAUFFER

The same may be said of our books and our plays. The fiction of a hundred years ago was vile. Dickens, Thackeray, Wallace, Hawthorne, Roe, Caine, Stevenson and a host of others had not yet brought us a new and purer kind of story.

A dear woman sighed as she said: "Nowadays you don't know whom to trust in business." She forgot that her poor old father, travelling from New York to Toronto seventy years ago, was cheated out of half his little capital in two or three exchanges of money. Unscrupulous money-changers had charged exorbitant rates for transforming his pounds, shillings and pence into several different kinds of good, bad and indifferent currency.

So I want to make the point that the Nabals usually suffer from ignorance of past and present conditions. They do not step back far enough to get a perspective of the bends in the highway of progress.

With all our whining, when was there a better year than this of grace nineteen hundred fourteen?

A hundred years ago the working man's home was a hovel, built in awkward rows, in unlighted, sewerless streets. Heaps of garbage were before the door, scattering fever and plague. Father earned $1.50 per week. Mother was a beast of burden too. Children eight years old worked sixteen hours per day. A little meat was a luxury; meat was only for the squire's family.

A hundred years ago England consumed six times the amount of liquor per capita as now. Gambling and drinking were well-nigh universal. Saloons offered people a fair drunk for a penny, a dead drunk, for twopence, a dead drunk with straw on which to sober up for threepence.

A hundred years ago the streets of the cities were so unsafe that even the greatest had no security from thieves. King George III. lost his purse, watch and buckles on a dark London street.

A hundred years ago sports were vicious. Bull-fighting, prize-fighting, dog-fighting, bear-baiting were the chief amusements, with drunkenness and profanity, characterizing the performance. Our enthusiastic baseball matches, under perfect control and patronized by the best people, are eloquent testimonials of our advancement. We complain about our summer resorts, but they are heaven compared with Brighton and Bath in the days of Beau Nash

A hundred years ago a Bible in a workingman's home was a curiosity. Books were nearly all obscene, excepting a few volumes of sermons—dry as dust. The public school was in its infancy. The newspapers paid a tax of eight cents per copy, and a daily paper cost $50.00 a year. Only 40,000 copies of newspapers were printed per week on the entire continent of America.

A hundred years ago English convicts were sold to work on Colonial plantations, sometimes for a limited period and sometimes for life. The remains of criminals were left hanging in rows to rot; grinning skulls of executed offenders lined the top of Temple Bar. Men and women were flogged through the London streets. Prisons in England were the worst in Europe.

A hundred years ago Europe was just recovering from fifty years of wild speculation. Our twentieth century get-rich-quick methods are child's play compared to the wildest investments of the years following the South Sea Bubble. A company was organized to fish up shipwrecks on the Irish coast, and stock in it went above par before one week had been ended. Another company, well capitalized, expected to make salt water fresh. Another proposed to extract silver from lead and iron from coal.

A great success in selling stock was made by speculators organizing a company to discover perpetual motion. Another corporation was formed to melt down sawdust chips, "casting them into real boards, without one flaw or crack." But perhaps the summit was reached when a company organized "for an undertaking which in due time was to be revealed" sold 2,000 shares of stock at two guineas each before noon on the first subscription day. Cheer up!

Sometimes the "Nowadays" lamentation is a doctrinal necessity. An erroneous theory compels a gloomy view of the world's future. There are circles in which it is accounted treason to suggest that the world is growing better. It must needs grow worse and worse, these men protest, that the Son's final coming may catch men unawares. If I am not mistaken, even Spurgeon held some such view. Now I maintain that there is no more terrible blasphemy than to assert that Jesus' mission to earth has been a dismal failure. He has been reigning for nineteen centuries. It is time we saw some signs of His world-conquest. And we do. Slavery is abolished. The most vicious forms of gambling, such as lotteries and policy-playing, have been outlawed. The liquor traffic is going Arbitration is extending the sphere of amicable settlement of international disputes. Light is penetrating the nations of darkness. Nowadays our printing presses are working overtime recording our struggles for reforms.

A cheerful attitude of mind towards the world's future is a real religious asset. A man who is conscious of his own moral progress is usually hopeful of his race. And respect for the human race is one of the first requisites of religion. He who is conceited enough to imagine that he is climbing off alone to a very restricted and exclusive salvation, while the vast majority of his fellow-men are being lost, does not possess that love for mankind which God plants in the hearts of His leaders. Losing faith in men is losing faith in God. The Great Father's constant work is to produce a better world, and though His processes are subtle, it is healthy to believe that He is succeeding.

Nabal did not know that God's hand was in this David Movement, that the Almighty had chosen this young man to be Israel's king. So the reactionary turned away from the Lord's anointed. The pessimist millionaire, the narrative goes on to say, died of fright next day. But a few chapters further on we read that the rebel mounts the throne.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY PAVILION

PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., 1915.

The Grand Trunk Pavilion, which will occupy a prominent position in the railway plaza at the northeast corner of the grounds of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, will be directly opposite the mammoth machinery palace, adjacent to the passenger ferry slips, and overlooking San Francisco Bay. As will be observed the design is simple in outline and Spanish renaissance in character, making a handsome and ornate structure. The walls will be of stucco, rough finish and tinted a soft cream shade, relieved with an ornamental enriched band carried around the building under the eaves. Shields and fountains have been effectively placed to enhance the decorative effect of the building. The roof will be covered with a rich red Spanish tile. The design for this building was the one accepted by the Exposition Authorities as the standard for all the other buildings which will be erected on the railway plaza. This pavilion will house the exhibits of both the Grand Trunk Railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Messrs, Ross and Macdonald of Montreal, are the Architects.

BRITISH RULE IN INDIA

The English in India are facing a situation that is about as difficult and dangerous as any they have encountered during their hundred and fifty odd years of dominion in that part of Asia. It was not long after the Russo-Japanese war that the world had its attention called to a few murders of English officials and English military men in India, and it was soon discovered that these murders had a political significance. They have since turned out to be the first efforts of an organized campaign of assassination aimed against the British rulers of India.

This campaign has continued until to-day it is admitted by the London press that the whole British organization in India is on the defensive, and no Englishman, from Viceroy to private soldier is safe from attack. While in a political sense the great mass of the native population remains inert, the fact that the government has been forced into a defensive attitude can not have escaped its notice. It is obvious, therefore, that when a handful of white men are controlling a great dark-skinned population by armed force, it is extremely dangerous for the natives to get the idea that the foreign masters are afraid.

When the Viceroy of India visited Calcutta a few days ago he was surrounded by troops, as the Czar used to be protected some years ago in the days of the greatest activity of the Red Terror in Russia. Three hundred millions of human beings in India, many of them of warlike races, are ruled over by about a hundred thousand white men, and it is said that the usual proportion is one British soldier to three thousand natives. The English have been able to get alonge safely thus far, partly because of the religious differences of the native population, but more because of the prestige of the British name in India, but let that prestige be shattered and England's Empire in India will be doomed.

FIVE MINUTE CURE IF STOMACH IS BAD

When "Pape's Diapepsin" reache stomach all Indigestion, Gas and Sourness Disappears

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness, its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

NO PIG IN A BAG

(Editor Morning Times)

Sir,—I have read a great deal about the Examiner's Dollar Day, and I have taken particular notice of the inducements and bargains offered in shop windows, but I think the most common sense bargain offered throughout the city I notice over in Ashburnham at Mr. Maniece's store. When a person takes into consideration the hard winter we are coming through and the hard times we have endured, I think he is to be congratulated in offering no pig in a bag to the public.

THE DOG NUISANCE

(Editor Morning Times)

Dear Sir,—I read with a very great deal of pleasure and satisfaction the most excellent by law passed a short time ago by our worthy Aldermen — that is, the Dog By-law.

I am also very much pleased to see that it is being very much appreciated by the bow-wows. In passing the General Electric on Thursday, 12th inst., I saw eight of the canine species just arrived from Monaghan in one bunch. No doubt we can thank the new By-law for their visit. Guess they wanted to look it over and see how their friends of the City were enjoying their prospects. The reason I know that these dogs were from the country is, there was not one of them decorated with a tag.

I saw a statement in your valuable paper the other day, saying the official dog catcher in Lindsay had captured only four dogs during the past month. If the worthy official would move his base of operations to our City, at Lindsay prices, he would make his fortune in a short time.

"THE RED ROSE"

A Sparkling Musical Comedy

When John C. Fisher determined to send forth again his successful and sensational musical comedy, "The Red Rose," he was urged by a well meaning friend to trim down the production in order to save expense. The argument in favor of this way that Mr. Fisher has already won over his public and that it would not mean less receipts were a few hundred dollars deducted from the weekly expenditures. But this friend failed to understand that Mr Fisher has a vast pride in achievement, as well as business interest, and that he would not under any circumstances abuse the confidence of the public, especially after having spent years in making his productions worthy the highest favor and thousands of dollars in the same effort.

What Mr. Fisher has done is to take many of the able players from the original New York cast and put them in one company, instead of two or three groups and have an inferior number two and three company which is the policy of so many producers. Then he had a complete new scenic production built at his New York studios and workrooms, on the same splendid scale as the original, with such new decorative features as experience might have suggested. To this investment of many thousand dollars must be added almost as much for a complete new set of costumes. These have been made by leading modistes, milliners and costumers of Paris and represent the very latest modes.

It would have been quite possible to have merely repaired and repainted the scenery and to have patched the original costumes and other accessories; but Mr. Fisher preferred to get rid entirely of the worn things and to start his organization absolutely fresh. It may also be stated that in no wise is the quality or number of the interpreters lessened. Where original players were not obtainable, newcomers of as good if not better standards have been secured.

"The Red Rose" will be seen at the Grand next Thursday, March 19th for one night only and it will surely prove the theatrical event of the season.

"Nerviline" Cures Cramps End Misery Instantly

NO REMEDY SO SPEEDY OR EFFICIENT.

A real cramp cure?

Yes, a real one—in a twinkling the cramp is a dead one, and the last squirm is over, once you get a stiff dose of Nerviline on the inside.

This isn't mere talk—it's a solid, truthful fact. No other remedy —not a single one—will cure cramps so quickly and harmlessly as Nerviline. It bites the spot in a jiffy and saves a heap of misery.

"Last Saturday night my stomach felt like an infernal machine," writes T. P. Granger from Hartford. "I was awakened from a sound sleep and found myself suffering the worst kind of torture. I was so doubled up I could hardly cross my room. I had used Nerviline before for the same thing and took a real good dose. Once I felt the warm, soothing sensation of Nerviline in my stomach I knew I was all right. It finished the cramps — just one single dose."

Sickness at night is rendered a nightmare of the past if Neviline is handy. It may be earache, toothache or cramps. Nerviline in every case will cure at once and save calling the doctor. Nerviline is a family physician in itself. The large 50c. family size bottle, of course, is most economical. Small trial size costs a quarter. All dealers sell Nerviline.

HELD AS THE SLAYER OF WM. S. BENTON AND GUS BAUCH

El Paso, Tex., Mar. 13.—Unconfirmed reports received here from Americans arriving from Chihuahua that the commission appointed by General Carranza, head of the Constitutionalists, had caused the arrest of Major Rufolfo Fierro, one of Gen. Villa's subordinate officers, as the slayer of William S. Benton, a British subject, were given credence to-day by those interested in the case.

General Carranza's commission is said to have gathered convincing evidence that Col. Fidel Avila, commander of the rebel garrison in Juarez, ordered the execution of Gustav Bauch, a German-American, who was tried as a spy, but in whose case no verdict was rendered. Denials that Bauch was killed have been made repeatedly by rebel officers at Juarez and at Chihuahua. Bauch was not executed until two days after Gen. Villa had left Juarez, it is said.

Spring Styles Meet Need of Every Type

By Madge Marvel

NEW YORK, March 13.

AFTER viewing gowns for spring and summer till my head reeled with ruffles and tunics and flowered stuffs, I tried to conjure up the mental image of the woman who might reasonably complain she had been left out of the reckoning when the styles of the season were created. The effort was fruitless.

There is homage paid to every age and every type. There is an encouragement of individuality, which reflects the mind freedom of the era. We are given a voice in the matter of what we shall wear. It is made a personal responsibility whether we are going to look well or not. We are neither commanded nor asked to become slaves to any set mode.

A bewildering range of models is offered, and we are encouraged to adapt them to our own needs.

The well dressed woman is the one who makes the style suit her instead of trying to recast herself to fit the style.

Most New Styles Sane.

They say in the best shops women were never buying so many gowns so early in the season. Summer frocks are being selected in generous manner, and the spring gowns were picked up before they were ready for exhibition.

There is no attempt to deny the extremeness of some of the new modes, but the majority are so delightfully sane no one has the slightest reason to revile or ridicule the few which do not make personal appeal. I like so much the way in which serge and taffeta are combined in the plain street gowns.

A model in dark blue is ideal for the business woman, and practical for any woman. The bodice, cut in one with the sleeves, blouses slightly over the sash. There is a shawl collar of silk with silk revers, which extend to the waist line and are brought forward in such a way as to give the effect of a vest. There is an inner vest of embroidered mulle. The sleeves are long and have turned back taffeta cuffs.

The tunic of serge has a decided ripple. It hangs free from the belt over a foundation skirt of thin silk. It reaches below the hips and falls over a six-inch ruffle of taffeta, which gives the look of a second tunic. Below the serge skirt is narrowed toward the feet, but has a cunningly concealed inner inverted pleat at the hem which gives comfortable room.

A Smart Taffeta Model.

One of the smartest frocks for afternoon wear I saw on a girl in Sherry's. It was of flowered taffeta, the dull blue ground strewn with pink and yellow primroses. The skirt was draped full at the hips in the exaggerated peg-top style, and drawn in close at the hem. The bodice evidenced the snugness which is growing more popular each day. It was quite plain with a vest of cream lace, a touch of gold and an arrangement of dull rose silk repeating one of the shades of the flowers just at the bust line. The long sleeves were set in at the shoulder with a half-inch of heavy silk beading done by hand.

Two young women in the Ritz at the tea hour wore gowns illustrative of some of the newest fancies. One was of dark blue charmeuse with three spiral ruffles winding around the skirt in corkscrew fashion. Her hat was a tiny affair of blue straw with pink roses around the crown and a cluster of them under the brim at the side which turned abruptly up. The other frock was of taffeta, changing green and silver, with a tight fitting bodice and a bertha of lace drawn well down on the shoulders and fastened with a silk rose.

About the knees was a wide double box pleated ruche of the silk, the edges being pinked. The hat was of black straw, one side of the brim turning up on the crown so it gave the effect of being all crown and at the highest point was poised a bright green wing.

A PACKAGE OF SWEETS :: :: :: :: By Michelson

JUST an artist's whimsical notion—a bon-bon box crowded with beauties. And yet, Mr. Cynic, there is something rather pretty about the notion, if you don't mind.

The bon-bon box means sweetness—you'll admit that. Then ask yourself, Where shall you look for the sweetness of LIFE, with more certainty of finding it, than in the unspoiled youth of womanhood?

Much given, you will say, to the fripperies of fashion, and laughing at the world over which you frown so frequently. But what WOULD you have her do with this droll world? If she brings it the promise of spring, the fragrance of the flowers, the music of happy nature, the gentle gayeties of confident cheerfulness, is not the world so much to the good?

Find your bon-bon box—that's the game for you. Welcome sweetness where you find it, and see that YOU do nothing to turn it sour.

March Winds Dangerous for Weak Throats

By Dr. L. K. HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

Copyright, 1914, by L. K. Hirshberg.

DR. HIRSHBERG

IN spite of the ugly looks of March and threats of more wintry weather, the moist earth is nursing trailing arbutus, lilacs and April violets.

Of all its desolate domain, one of the widest of March horrors is a dread malady of childhood and youth, which spreads a gloom like the dead vegetable kingdom of dumb winter through the habitations of man

St. Vitus dance is this needy, hollow-eyed, sharp-looking wretch of an infection; a living graveyard of malicious microbes. It assails youth and childhood through the tunnels of the tonsils. Thence it ravages the human tapestries like the busy needles of mediaeval Gobelin housewives.

Tonsilitis is lightly thought to be "only a sore throat." Like narrow brooks that rise with sudden showers tonsilitis swells in haste and falls again, only to leave the cerise serum in your veins and arteries teaming with venomous bacteria of inflammatory heart maladies, inflamed elbows and knuckles and St. Vitus dance.

The present day dancing is a graceful, useful art, which is saving modern civilization from undigested suppers and fatty degeneration of the abdominal bow window.

The Ghost dances of the North American Indians and the darky camp meeting dances are types of hysteria useful for riots, mob-outbreaks, religious fanaticism and emotional excitement.

It was in Strasburg, in 1418, that the name St. Vitus dance was given to the epidemic of jerky convulsive movements. St. Vitus was a Sicilian youth who was martyred by the Roman Emperor Diocletian in 303.

Nowadays this March microbe is recognized as bacterial in nature. Star-eyed science thus distinguishes between a dangerous infection from a much scorned and disdained ailment of the shaky muscles.

Beware, then, the germ-flying winds of March. Hold tight the lisping lips lest the lascivious, lurking virus set sail for the sugar loaf tonsil. Once it enters there, weeks in bed and worse worries will be yours.

A "Blarney Stone" Dinner

By Jeannette Young Norton

FOR a Blarney Stone dinner on St. Patrick's day cover the table with a cloth of white silkoline covered with stone gray chiffon. In the centre place a large glass plateau and on it a fair-sized imitation Blarney Stone; bank the edge with early white and yellow hyacinths and galax leaves, and in the glass lake effect at the base of the stone put some tiny boats with red sails.

By each service plate place a flat wreath of the galax leaves with a white hyacinth growing in a thumb pot, having the place card tied to the handle. Gray and white china is the best to use, and yellow candles with shades green and red.

The olives and the radishes should be in a tiny market basket at each plate, and the salted nuts in little iron three-legged pots. Bonbons may be loaded on jaunting cars at each end of the table. A little Irish jug with a tiny tin cup tied to its handle will hold the after-dinner cordial.

Suspend above the table a harp of smilax with willow strings.

The other floral decorations about the room should be spring flowers. Waitresses in Irish costume add to the picturesqueness of the scene.

Of course the menu must be Irish, and the favors could be in a big Irish potato with an end of green ribbon protruding from every eye, and as many eyes as there are guests. These favors may include tiny serpents, pigs, potatoes, white high hats, little shamrock plants in Beleek pots, cotton geese and any number of other attractive novelties.

The jellies, sauces, creams and other edibles must be in the red and green coloring as much as possible to carry out the effect. The Blarney punch may be served right through the dinner, but beware not to take too freely, for it is as deceiving as the stone in the centre of the table in its blandishments.

MENU.

"Top o' the Mornin'" Cocktails
Sardine Relish Irish Broth
Bramble Salmon Mashed Murphys
Roast Goose, Apple Sauce and Panned Spinach
Killarney Sherbet
Paddy Salad
Irish Kiss Custard Silver Cake
Rose of Sharon Ice
Coffee Fruit Bonbons
Little Brown Jug Cordial

The cocktails are made of half-green grapes, seeded, green cherries, a dash of sugar, a dash of nutmeg and a few drops of cordial and gin. Sardine relish is made the usual way, and the Irish broth is lamb broth, highly seasoned, with every particle of grease removed, and little egg dumplings floating on the top.

The bramble salmon is the fish stuffed and baked, then sprinkled over with fried bread crumbs, parsley, finely chopped water chestnuts and little cane sprouts, with the sauce tartare colored green.

The Killarney sherbet is pineapple sherbet colored rose color. The Paddy salad is a salad of macedoin vegetables on white lettuce leaves with heavy mayonnaise. The Irish kiss custard is rich custard with the baked kisses on the top sprinkled with finely chopped angelica and pistacheo nuts, thoroughly chilled. The Sharon ice is pink orange ice served in pink candy roses of Sharon on green leaves.

Now for the Blarney punch. Use the juice of 12 lemons, six oranges, one pineapple, a gill of ginger syrup, a gill of strained honey, a half-pound of sugar melted in a gill of boiling water; strain the ingredients after they are mixed and stand to ripen until needed.

When ready to serve add a tumbler of rum, a tumbler of Irish whiskey, a bottle of ginger ale, and, last of all, a bottle of champagne. Serve very cold with a spray of mint leaves in every glass.

Those not asked to the Blarney Stone dinner may repeat a few stanzas from "The Groves of Blarney," running after this fashion:

Tis there's the kitchen hangs many a flitch in,
With the maids a stitching upon the stair;
The bread and biskey, the beer and whiskey,
Would make us frisky if we were there.

The Kind of Girl a Man Likes

BY NORVELL ELLIOTT

The Girl's Mother

SUCH a tiny little domicile it was, only three rooms, a bath and a porch the size of a canary bird cage. Yet the neighborhood was the best in the city, and the apartment house itself catered to high-class tenants.

"Since we cannot have quantity we've insisted on quality," said Anne and her mother when they moved into it. And quality they certainly got, quality in both apartment and in the kind of people who dropped in at all hours of the day and evening. As for Anne's beaux they were ALWAYS on hand, and two or three of them practically made the bit of an apartment headquarters.

On balmy evenings the tiny porch was called into use, and a hanging basket or two, a soft light, a pretty tea table, a few chairs, presto! Anne had as ideal a spot in which to be made love to as any girl could wish. That Anne certainly was "made love to" was never a subject for argument. It was a simple and undisputed fact. Anne was made for loving, and there were never less than four men at a time ready to put their savings bank accounts and their hearts at her feet.

As my bachelor friend and I left the apartment Mrs. Ragsdale came to the door with us, while Anne and her latest triumph waved good-by from the porch.

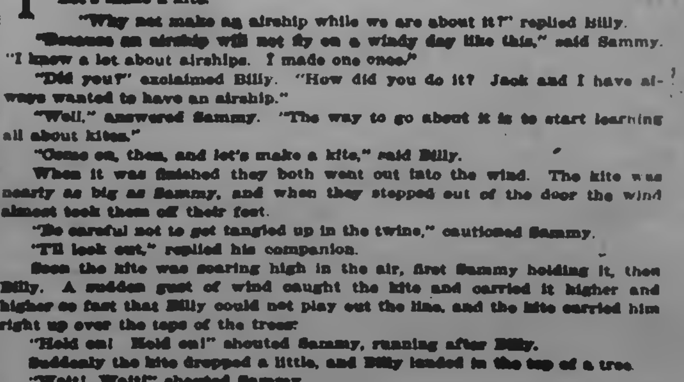
"I wonder if Anne appreciates her," mused the man by my side as we strolled leisurely along in the unusually balmy air. "Anne is attractive, I will admit, but alone she never could be as popular as she is with that delightful mother of hers. Every man who visits Anne frankly confesses he adores her mother, and, when Anne runs off on her little pleasure trips the boys continue to go in for cosey chats with the senior member of the firm, as they call Mrs. Ragsdale.

"Truly, lass, that mother is a wonder. The way she manages their small finances and gets the necessary finery for Anne's social requirements shows business ability of a remarkable kind. Then she is always on the spot when she is wanted, and always blissfully out of the way at the psychological moment. Every now and then one of Anne's followers tells me about it. . . ."

"Do they tell you after Anne refuses them they generally go straight to Mrs. Ragsdale to unburden themselves of the tragedy?"

"I guessed as much, knowing what they all think of her," replied lad, "and I do not blame them. They know Mrs. Ragsdale is as foolishly in love with that pretty daughter of hers as they are, and, therefore, of all people she can best appreciate and sympathize with their hard luck story. Anne scarcely realizes it yet, but some day she will understand why it was she had such an ideally popular young womanhood. For I've come to believe, lass, that a girl with a good pal mother is a very blessed kind of a creature. After all, the older woman, with her mature knowledge of life, holds her daughter's destiny in her hands."

"I only wish I had any mother at all," I whispered softly, looking up into the brilliant star space and biting my lips to keep them from quivering.



Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE ENSIGN SMITH

"THERE is a good wind today," said Sammy Squirrel to Billy Bunny. "Let's make a kite."

"Why not make an airship while we are about it?" replied Billy.

"Because an airship will not fly on a windy day like this," said Sammy. "I know a lot about airships. I made one once."

"Did you?" exclaimed Billy. "How did you do it? Jack and I have always wanted to have an airship."

"Well," answered Sammy. "The way to go about it is to start learning all about kites."

"Come on, then, and let's make a kite," said Billy.

When it was finished they both went out into the wind. The kite was nearly as big as Sammy, and when they stepped out of the door the wind almost took them off their feet.

"Be careful not to get tangled up in the twine," cautioned Sammy.

"I'll look out," replied his companion.

Soon the kite was soaring high in the air, first Sammy holding it, then Billy. A sudden gust of wind caught the kite and carried it higher and higher so fast that Billy could not play out the line, and the kite carried him right up over the tops of the trees.

"Hold on! Hold on!" shouted Sammy, running after Billy.

Suddenly the kite dropped a little, and Billy landed in the top of a tree.

"Wait! Wait!" shouted Sammy.

Billy held on fast to the limb of the tree until Sammy scampered up beside him.

"I don't like flying kites," whined Billy.

The twine was caught in the tree and Sammy gnawed it with his teeth until the kite was loose.

"Here you," he said to Billy, "pass this around you and I will let you down to the ground. What use has a rabbit for himself when he's in a tree?"

"I don't know," answered Billy.

When Sammy lowered Billy to the ground he hopped down the tree beside him and said:

"Now let's make an airship."

"Not today!" exclaimed Billy, as he hopped off home.

A Nice Calculation.

Two very dear old ladies walked up to the window where tickets were to be sold for two popular concerts. They wanted tickets for both nights; but, alas, those for the second evening were all gone! This was the more popular entertainment of the two.

"I'm so sorry, my dear!" pattered one of the old ladies to the other. "We did want to go, didn't we, and we wanted to go both nights?"

"You couldn't give us two tickets for each night?" inquired the other of the clerk.

"No, ma'am."

"You haven't two seats anywhere for the second night?"

"No, ma'am. Couldn't give you none room."

A great resolution beamed upon her gentle face.

"Then," said she firmly, "give me four tickets for the first night. We will make them do."

"Why, sister," quavered the other, "you're going to invite somebody?"

"No," said she, "but if we can't go both nights"— She paused, bewildered, quite out of her calculation. Then a happy thought struck her, and she added, "We'll go twice the first night."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties.—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

COMMON OBSTACLES TO HOUSEHOLD WORK

Ways in Which the Average Housekeeper Loses Time and Wastes Strength

An authority on domestic science has been investigating the ways of the average housekeeper with a view to determining in what ways she loses time and wastes strength, and has grouped the hindrances under six heads.

First is the loss of time in bringing and carrying materials and utensils in cooking. Closets are too many and too scattered, the refrigerator too far from the kitchen table. This difficulty is easily remedied by the use of the kitchen cabinet and by putting the refrigerator in the space set free by the installation of the cabinet. Many people find a kitchen cabinet too expensive, but at the Teachers' College in New York, they have improvised one from packing boxes which, at a nominal cost, answers every purpose.

Second, is the fatigue caused by tables and sinks, either too high or too low. One great advantage of the gas range is that one can cook on the level. The vacuum washer, which has often been mentioned in these pages, is a utensil which obviates stooping over a tub or washboard, and which saves many an aching back. People who live in rented houses cannot regulate matters of this sort for themselves, but every woman who has anything to say about building a house should insist upon sink, range and set tubs being at a convenient height. When no modification is possible, something may be done by supplying the kitchen with one or more high stools so that ironing and dish washing can be done in a sitting posture.

The third difficulty is working with the wrong tool or with tools in poor condition. Most kitchens are well equipped, but no care is taken to keep tools in good condition. A whetstone and an oil can should be at hand and each utensil should have its own nail at a convenient height, over table or sink according to its special use.

A fourth cause of waste is the loss of time in shifting from one process to another, this applying principally to cleaning. It is always best to clean several rooms at a time, sweeping each in turn, then washing the windows of all, lastly doing all the dusting, "getting your hand in" with each process.

The fifth difficulty applies to the purchasing of supplies. Much delay is caused by the running out of one article or another. Sugar, flour, or eggs are not at hand and cooking must be delayed while the purchase is made and the whole day's work is thrown out. There should be a regular system of purchasing supplies and of checking off each article as it is used up. In this same line time can be saved by planning the bill of fare for a few days ahead.

The sixth hindrance is one which would only occur to a trained observer, that is the inconvenience resulting from the use of movable utensils. The coffee mill attached to the wall involves much less exertion than the sort which is held in the lap. To have a chopping bowl or the receptacle of an egg beater clamped to the table is a simple matter and a substantial saving of labor.

Other hindrances than these will probably suggest themselves to individual housekeepers, but careful analysis of existing conditions will show the importance of this classification.

WONDERFUL GARDENS

Horticulture and Floriculture in its Most Attractive Phases

The kingly castle of Windsor is well known. Not so, however, the private gardens, which form part of the royal domain and are approached from the castle by a drive through part of the forest where monarch and prince have followed the chase, says E. T. Cook.

The gardens reflect the domestic attributes of the Royal family and artistic perceptions of the right use of powers in relation to tree and shrub have not been simply the will of the landscape gardener but the realisation of well considered schemes of the King and Queen. Roses, roses all the way flood the gardens with color and the air with drowsy fragrance, the incense of a pleasaunce fair, in which kings and queen, princes and princesses have sought sanctuary from the stress of public life. The gardens represent the skill of the landscape artist in its ripest development, and the rosary is a flowery retreat wherein all the most beautiful variations are completely represented, from the old-world "moss" of childhood days to those that waft a very pot-pourri of scents into the June air. Noble trees adorn the pleasure grounds of both Frogmore and Sandringham, but the exquisite surroundings of the Royal mausoleums, the perfect peace that breathes over the hallowed resting places of the noble dead fulfil the mission of a garden conceived in a way to weld the natural and the artificial into one complete and wonderful whole.

One of the most marked features of the Royal gardens and their surroundings are the trees, many of the most perfect in the world. Casting shade over the tea rooms in which Queen Victoria in the evening of her glorious reign passed many fruitful hours are the two famous evergreen oaks. Horticulture in its most splendid phases is the glory of Frogmore. Roses are the most treasured of the galaxy of flowers that entrances the Royal orchid and carnation, as well as the modest, perfumed violet, and the plants are grown in ways rarely seen even in places where the gardening art is practised assiduously.

A crimson rambler rose grown over an arch-like foundation of wirework is a blaze of color from its thousand sparkling blooms, a huge snowdrift of white comes from the aimee vibert, and as one wanders on fresh pictures are unfolded. An avenue of fruit trees—peach, nectarine, apricot and pear, leads to acres filled with those trained in many forms, and a glow of color is seen as the glasshouses are approached, well filled at this season with a throng of varie-hued chrysanthemums, grapes and other fruits brought to unsullied perfection under the kindly influence of artificial conditions.

WHERE DO PINS GO ?

Like Everything Else They End in Dust

For many years the world has been baffled by the problem of where the pins go that are turned out in millions of millions by the pin factories.

But the problem seems to have been solved at last. A Paris scientist, Dr Xavier, has been experimenting on pins, hairpins, and needles by the simple process of watching a few. He states that they practically disappear into thin air, by changing into ferrous oxide, a brownish rust that soon blows away in dust.

An ordinary hairpin took only 154 days to blow away. A steel nib lasted just under fifteen months. A common pin took eighteen months to vanish. A polished steel needle defied the ravages of the atmosphere longest, taking two and a half ears to disapear.

So the reason why the world is not a foot deep in the pins it buys is, it seems, exactly the same which makes an iron surface scale off when exposed for a long time to the atmosphere without the protection of paint.

Education in Canada

Ontario leads among the provinces as having the greatest percentage of persons five years of age and over capable of reading and writing. Of the Eastern provinces Quebec has made the greatest proportionate increase in the past ten years in the number who can read and write. That the educational standard of the British immigrant has improved in recent years is evidenced by the fact that their proportion of illiterates is smaller in those provinces which have received the greatest number of them within recent years. The per cent proportion of illiterates among the foreign-born immigrants is much higher and is fairly level for all the provinces, being highest for both sexes in Manitoba.

Glass Desk Fittings

Some women are so much affected by the sort of surroundings they have that an ugly or an attractive ink bottle means all the difference between pleasure and unhappiness. Good desk fittings are now sold in plain glass. These can be washed easily whenever they are soiled and are therefore a good investment. A plain glass ink well of good lines, a glass tray for pens, a glass mucilage pot, and a couple of little glass dishes for pens, postage stamps, sponges, erasers, or other knickknacks, and a few glass vases or bowls for flowers are simple and yet attractive. The flower holders can be kept neatly out of sight in the desk drawers when they are not needed and so cannot make the desk look untidy. A brass paper knife and pencil holder, a pair of sharp scissors, and a penknife and a calendar of some sort should also find their place on the desk.

Queen Mary Fond of Orchids

Queen Mary is passionately fond of flowers, and likes a bunch of Parma violets fastened to her furs. For evening wear she is generally partial to orchids or lilies of the valley. For the exotic and rather conspicuous blooms she has not very great liking, with the exception possibly of malmaisons.

Don't forget to have just plain bread and butter once in a while.

Autographs on Guest Cloth

A women who is as clever with her needle as she is charming as a hostess has a unique reminder of many a happy reunion of friends about her hospitable board. Some years ago she decided that she would have an autograph tablecloth. She bought a cloth of handsome damask. On this she has had friends who have been her guests at dinner pencil their autographs. These she has very carefully embroidered in satin stitch, in white. A casual glance does not reveal the dainty stitches but the names are disclosed on a few moments' close inspection.

Breeding Gold Fish

The breeding of gold fish for sale is said to be a new and money-making industry for those who have only small time and space to devote to a "side-line." The fish reared are not the ordinary gold fish seen in aquariums, but the choicer specimens such as the dragon-eyed Chinese Veiltails, with bodies like rubber balls, and two, three or four sweeping tails, or the calico fish, blotched and striped with brilliant colors. A fully developed pair of lion-hearted Fringetail fish, with hood and long mane like a lion, cost $1,000. But to grow such rare fish, requires, of course, expert knowledge.

An Interesting Experiment.

The following is an interesting experiment, which consists in placing five fluids on the top of one another in the order of their density without allowing them to mix. It is best to show this experiment after dinner when coffee is being served. You will then have all the liquids necessary at your command. A tall, thin glass is the first requisite. At the bottom of this glass pour in a little cold sweet coffee. Then make a cone of paper, whose point is turned at a right angle, and cut off the point so as to make an opening no larger than a quarter of a dollar. Pour gently in a little cold water, which will escape by the limb of you funnel, impinge on the side of the glass and take its due place on the surface of the coffee. Cease pouring when the height of the water equals that of the coffee.

Through a second cone you pour a layer of strongly colored wine, port if possible, through a third a layer of salad oil and through a fourth alcohol that is on the table for boiling your coffee. If carefully done each layer will swim upon the under fluid, and the whole will present a glass of brown, white, red, yellow and white layers of liquid.

Tricks For Husbands.

To tell yellow from green in matching silk. To wash the dishes without breaking more than two. To keep quiet when he's spoken to. To face the cook when she's angry. To find out what ails the gas range. To stand in line an hour for two trading stamps. To set up his wife's brother in business. To get up winter nights to investigate "robbers." To smile when his old sweethearts' pictures are burned up. To prefer halma at home to billiards at the club. To drop his old friends because they are "vulgar." To give up coffee because it disagrees with his wife.—Puck.

Frightened Off.

A Washington car conductor born in London and still a cockney has succeeded in extracting thrills from the alphabet—imparting excitement to the names of the national capital's streets. On a recent Sunday morning he was calling the streets thus:

"Haitch!"
"High!"
"Jay!"
"Kay!"
"Hell!"

At this point three prim ladies picked up their prayer books and left the car.—Lippincott's.

The Chamois Trail.

Every day at noon at Grindelwald there is a rush of visitors for the telescopes in order to gaze at one of the most interesting natural scenes in the Alps, "the chamois trail." Regularly at this hour a herd of twenty to thirty chamois may be seen passing in Indian file up the yawning abysses of the precipitous Mettenberg rocks, separating two glaciers, the male animals leading the way, the king of the herd keeping twenty yards in advance and on the watch. At the bottom of the Mettenberg, where the slope is freed from snow, the chamois find a meager subsistence when their usual feeding grounds are under deep snow. It is a curious fact that the chamois descend to their feeding grounds at dawn, when there is little likelihood of avalanches, and return to their haunts at an hour when avalanches—for this portion of the mountain has frequent avalanches—have already fallen and the danger is past.—Geneva Cor. Pall Mall Gazette.

Pussy and the Burglar.

A good dog has hitherto been considered the best protection against burglars, but a certain old lady differs from this view. She believes in cats, and, her house being broken into not long ago, she proceeded to put her theory into practice, and with marvelously good results. The midnight hour had not long struck when she heard unusual sounds in the hall below. She slipped out of bed, took her faithful feline in her arms and walked quietly on to the landing. She leaned over. The burglar was on the stairs. Suddenly in an unlucky moment he struck a match upon the staircase. The lady could see the burglar, but the burglar could not see the lady. She held puss up and then dropped her upon the burglar's head. The cat uttered an unearthly screech and then commenced to scratch for all it was worth. Puss was certainly the willing worker. The next instant the man was outside in the street.—Manchester Guardian.

RUB THE OTHER EYE.

And Let the One in Which the Bit of Cinder Lodges Alone.

Nine persons out of every ten with a cinder or any other foreign substance in the eye will instantly begin to rub it with one hand while hunting for a handkerchief with the other. This is all wrong. The right way is not to rub the eye with the cinder in it, but to rub the other as vigorously as you like.

A few months ago I was riding on the engine of a fast express. The engineer threw open the front window of the cab, and I caught a cinder in my eye, which gave me intense pain. I began to rub the eye desperately, when the engineer called to me:

"Let that eye alone and rub the other one."

Thinking he was chaffing me, I only rubbed the harder.

"I know the doctors think they know it all, but they don't, and if you will let that eye alone and work on the other one you will soon have the cinder out," shouted the engineer.

I did as he directed and soon felt the cinder down near the inner canthus and made ready to take it out.

"Let it alone and keep at the well eye," again shouted the engineer.

I did so for a minute longer, and then, looking into a small glass the engineer handed me, I saw the offender on my cheek. I have tried it many times since, always with success.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A SMART SPORTS COAT MODEL

The sports coat has evidently come to stay. Woman for all her love of fluffy, impractical clothes is quick to grasp a style that is useful and becoming at the same time. The sports coat is usually made of the lightest and woollest of materials and is warm and handy to slip on over the one-piece frock for a morning's shopping or for a game of golf. The bright colors, vivid greens, reds and blues are popular and rather bright plaids. Tweed mixtures in somewhat quieter grays and browns will appeal to the more conservative and are quite as smart.

Emerald green bouclé is used with 8128. The skirt is a brown tweed mixture.

This coat is cut with body and sleeve in one and may be worn closed over the side front with the collar in high turn down effect or may have the fronts turned back to form revers and the collar turned down to form a point on either shoulder.

It requires 4½ yards of 42 inch material to make this coat in size 36. No. 7207 is a three-piece skirt closing in front with just a suggestion of fullness at the belt in back. It may be made in size 24 with 3¾ yards of 42 inch material.

Every day new designs for the one-piece frock appear. In this model of rose colored sponge we have the drop-shoulder, a blouse that closes surplice fashion and a smart yoked skirt.

Black satin collar and cuffs give the necessary relief.

This dress may be copied in size 36 with 4¾ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8128—sizes 32 to 44.
No. 7207—sizes 22 to 32.
No. 8092—sizes 34 to 42.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

THE SHORT COAT AND STRAIGH INED SKIRT A POPULAR DESIGN FOR RING

The short coat, cutaway in front and coming to a rounded point in back, seems to be the leading design of the moment. These are especially smart if accompanied by a vest in a bright colored silk or brocade. The raglan shoulder is noted more often than the set-in or kimono sleeve, although all are being worn. No. 8210-8212 is a new model developed in striped velours le laine with collar, vest and trimming bands on the skirt of embossed velvet. The raglan sleeve is a feature of the coat, and the skirt is relieved from plainness by the two shaped bands or flounces.

This suit may be copied in size 36 with 2 yards of 42 inch material for the coat (8210) and 3¾ yards of 42 inch material for the skirt (8212) in size 24.

Velours de laine ranges in width from 36 to 40 inches, and may be purchased from $1.50 a yard and up.

No. 8225 shows the effectiveness of the new figured silks. It is a silk crepe with a conventional design on a plain French blue ground. The design is charmingly young and dainty. The gathered blouse has a yoke and sleeve cut in one and shows the new Japanese collar; a four-gored skirt gathered at the top completes the frock.

For a girl of 16 this dress requires 3¾ yards of 36 inch material. These silk crepes may be purchased from 75 cents a yard and up.

No. 8210—sizes 32 to 42.
No. 8212—sizes 22 to 30.
No. 8226—sizes 14 to 18.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

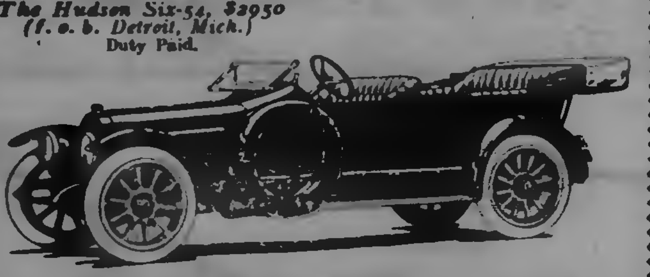
The Hudson Six-54, $2950
(f. o. b. Detroit, Mich.)
Duty Paid.



HUDSON Six Upkeep Less Than a Four

At one time all Sixes were big, powerful, extravagant. Now we build them in smaller sizes, and by a different method. Thus we have secured all the wonderful advantage of six cylinders, yet have not increased the gasoline consumption. A HUDSON Six will cost you less for gasoline, oil, tires and general upkeep than will a Four of equal power. In a score of contests we have proved this under average road conditions.

Until you drive a HUDSON Six you cannot realize its great advantage. Its smoothness and flexibility are an insurance as well as a delight. HUDSON Sixes are preferred because of high quality combined with moderate price. The Six-54 has four forward speeds, 135-inch wheel-base, motor 4½ x 5¼, developing 55 horse-power. Made in Phaeton at $2950 and Sedan at $4650. The Six-40 has 123-inch wheel-base, motor 3½ x 5, developing 47 horse-power, gives 12 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and is, we think, the easiest riding car on the market. The Six-40 in Phaeton and Roadster at $2200, and in Cabriolet at $2575. All cars, of course, are electrically started and lighted, left side drive, center control, gasoline tank in cowled dash. Catalog on request. Demonstrations as arranged. Prices f. o. b. Detroit, Michigan, duty paid.

They Helped Her Wonderfully

WHAT MRS. H. BEST SAYS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Alberta Woman Voices the Sentiment of the Women of the West That Dodd's Kidney Pills are Woman's Best Friend.

Retlaw, Alta, March 13. (Special)—"Dodd's Kidney Pills helped me wonderfully." So says Mrs. H. Best, a highly respected lady living here. And Mrs. Best expresses the sentiment of thousands of women in Alberta. Like most women Mrs. Best does not care to talk about her troubles, but she does wish others who have suffered as she has to know that they can find relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. "I found them entirely satisfactory. They helped me wonderfully," she says, "and I give you my full permission to tell the public what they have done for me."

Women who suffer in silence can be cured just as silently. The keystone of woman's health is the Kidneys. If they are kept strong and healthy, they keep the blood pure, and pure blood means good health all over the body. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Kidney Disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills make healthy Kidneys and good blood. That's why they are known as woman's best friend.

Escaped Belleville Prisoner.

Belleville Ontario. The young man who escaped custody in November last is now safe and sound in the hands of the authorities. This morning before the County Judge he was convicted of unlawfully escaping from custody after conviction and sentenced to six months in the Ontario Reformatory for the offence. In addition he will serve not less than three months and not more than two years less one day for receiving $15 which he knew was stolen and for stealing $9 from a man in this city a year ago last December. It will be remembered that the young man, Ralph DeShane, made the successful dash for liberty from the cell office at the entrance to the prison part of the court house.

WELLAND - CANADA
(INCORPORATED UNDER THE ONTARIO COMPANIES ACT)

7% CUMULATIVE PREFERENCE STOCK

Preferential as to Capital as well as Dividends

Par value of Shares, $100.00

Subject to redemption at any time after five years from the date of issue, upon three months' notice, and payment of accrued dividends, at $110.00 per share.

Price: Par, with a bonus of 50% Common Stock

Fractional shares of Common Stock will be dealt in at $50 per share

The Electric Steel and Metals Company, Limited, will manufacture the following articles:—Light-weight, high-grade steel castings; manganese and other alloy steel castings; bar steel suitable for rifles; bar steel for rock drills, boring machines, etc.; ingots for forging shops; ingots for tool-steel manufacturers.

After careful study of conditions existing in Canada by Mr. David Carnegie, Consulting Engineer, of London, England the following conditions were found to exist:—

That light, high-grade steel castings were mostly imported from the United States.

That manganese and other alloy steel castings were imported from the United States and Great Britain.

That bar steel for rifles and rock drills, etc., has to be imported.

That ingots for forgings and ingots for tool-steel manufacturers are not made in Canada. Such ingots enter the United States duty free.

And that all steel castings are subject to a duty of 27½% ad valorem.

CAPITAL EXPENDITURE.

Our plant in Welland will be ready for operation about May 1st, 1914, and will have a capacity of 4,000 tons of steel castings per annum. The total cost of this first plant, including organization, site, foundry equipment, electrical furnace, all buildings, labor and engineer's charges, will be under $130,000 by contracts already made by the company. Seventy thousand dollars will be reserved for working capital, making a total outlay of $200,000 for the production above mentioned

ESTIMATED EARNINGS.

Hydro-electric power is available at fourteen dollars per horsepower per annum, this price being subject to reduction as the load increases.

The Company is also favored with a fixed assessment of $10,000 for a period of twenty years, the taxes on which will not exceed $500 per annum.

The five-ton electric furnace which we are installing will handle five heats per day, and on this basis the plant will produce 4,000 tons of finished castings per annum. In the following estimate of earnings we have based our calculations on a production of three-quarters this capacity, namely, 3,000 tons. Our earnings are estimated as follows:—

3,000 tons steel castings, selling at $120.00 per ton	$360,000.00
Less cost of production, at $83.00 per ton	249,000.00
	$111,000.00
Less depreciation on plant and machinery	16,000.00
	$ 95,000.00
Less 7% dividend on $200,000 Preferred Stock	14,000.00
Leaving available for Common Stock	$ 81,000.00

The above costs of production and basis of selling prices have all been carefully prepared under the advice of Mr. David Carnegie, and detailed statements may be inspected at the Company's office in Welland.

REPORT ON THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL NOT AT ALL PARTISAN

Conservatives as well as Liberals Suspended---Whoever Padded Pay Sheets Must Face the Music---Anyone Aggrieved by the Report Has Every Opportunity for Redress

Editor of The Times.

Sir.—In view of a letter that has appeared in the local press regarding the Trent Canal report, etc., let me say that anyone who feels aggrieved in any way regarding the report, evidence or investigation, has every opportunity for explanation or redress. It is in this way: It is the time-honored right of the subject when voting, not only supplies, but any item of supply, to bring before the House of Commons and His Majesty any matter whatever. It is a peculiar privilege which probably few people know of, but it is taken advantage of continually by members, and gives rise to more debate than all other causes combined. We will be in supply day and night for at least three weeks yet, and all that anyone aggrieved has to do is to come to Ottawa and get someone here to voice his complaint. In a word, His Majesty (in the person of his Government and Governor-General) stand ready to hear all complaints in open parliament, and no one need remain for twenty-four hours under the shadow of injustice without being heard. Of course it is thoroughly recognized that many of the names appearing in the report as "laborers" are not the work of the owners of the names. The public understands that. But how did they get there? That question must be answered by those who handed in the pay sheets. The Minister will proceed to follow the whole matter up to its conclusion. That the report is not partisan is proved by the fact that Conservatives as well as Liberals have been suspended. The introduction of party politics into the affair is to be deprecated. No one party has a monopoly of honesty, and the free-for-alls have in reality no politics. Hoping that this information may be of service, I remain,

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

SPEND TWENTY MILLION ON C. P. R. ROAD IN B. C.

Official Tells of Immense Expenditure During Current Year.

Vancouver, Mar. 14.—Twenty million dollars, exclusive of terminal expenditures in this city, is approximately the amount of money the Canadian Pacific Railway will spend in the West this year, according to Mr. J. G. Sullivan, chief engineer.

Most of the money appropriated to carry out this year's improvement program will be expended in British Columbia, finishing the double tracking operations. In addition, the company has about six hundred miles of new line to construct on the prairies. While there will be a large expenditure on construction, the heavy cost will be for rails and new ties, Mr. Sullivan announced.

There are to be no new undertakings except the Prairie lines.

IMMIGRATION AND LABOUR

Speech of Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P. on the Labour Subject

During the debate in the House of Commons, on Immigration and Labour, Mr. J. H. Brunham, M.P., spoke as follows:

I would like to call the minister's attention to the fact that an anomaly exists in connection with the duties of some of the immigration agents who are paid so much per head for distributing the immigrants who are brought into the country. It frequently happens that these men for some reason or other, do not stay in the situations in which they are placed. Other people come to the Government immigration agent knowing that he has to do with immigrants and employment, and they say: 'We will take those men,' or 'we will take men.' It so happens that the Government immigration agent is precluded from taking a fee from those men for placing them in positions. The consequence is that, as they get their income in that way, if they place them there, they are cutting themselves off from their income. The net result is that either they must forego the simplest duty of their office and refuse to place these men in positions that are waiting for them, in order that they may place men who are brought out from the old country in the spring in those positions, and that they may get their pay per head. Or else, they must place them and assist in settling the difficulties of the employment problem in the country without receiving any pay for doing so. That really is a hardship that ought to be remedied. In Peterborough we have a very fine Government immigration agent in Mr. Miller, who has time and again placed men who have not been able to stay in the positions which he has found for them, after remaining there from one, two, three or six months. They may have left owing to the fault of the position or of themselves, but Mr. Miller says: 'I cannot see these fellows going around idle when I know of places where I can place them.' Therefore he places men in those positions, but he gets nothing for it; and in that way, when immigrants come out in the spring, he may have no places for them, so that he is between the devil and the deep sea. There ought to be some solution of this problem, although I do not know what it is.

Whether it is a problem for the Minister of the Interior or for the Minister of Labour, I cannot say; but the balance between supply and demand should certainly receive a greater degree of superintendence. It frequently happens that in different centres of the country there are more men than are necessary for the work, and still they keep coming in. What are we to do? They have either to be taken care of by the municipality or become burdens of a worse class on the community. At the present time, so far as I know or can find out, this superintendence is not exercised at all. The great cry is: Bring on your immigrants; fetch them in; fill up the country, so that we can say that the statistics show that the population is rapidly increasing. Population increasing in that irregular way is simply an absurdity. If in trade, supply and demand maintain more or less of a balance and adjustment, there ought to be something of an automatic character with regard to men; but, strange to say, in the whole theory of public employment, the man, that is to say the life of the individual, is given no consideration at all. The whole thing is treated on a basis of trade, of goods, of bargain and sale. Until we have reformed this, and remember that the life of the men, women and children of the country is the first consideration, we shall never have reached even the primary stages of civilization.

IRELAND'S PATRON SAINT WAS DULY HONORED HERE

A strong tribute was paid in Peterborough, on Saturday, to the memory of Ireland's Patron Saint, St. Patrick. From early morning, pretty girls, charming matrons and ladies who are certain to be matrons button-holed every man or woman they met and "tagged" them with shamrocks or other emblems of Erin's Isle. Not only ladies of the Roman Catholic faith, but many Protestant girls sold these emblems. The purchase of these emblems of Emerald tint were purchased by Protestants as freely as by Catholics. The cause for this "Tag day" was one that seemingly appealed to every class of the community. The money taken in was to aid the orphans and indigent of the Catholic church. The public of Peterborough demonstrated almost unanimously that in such a cause, creed, to use a slang expression, "cut no ice." Some $845 was taken in with other counties to hear from or rather more reports to be presented.

GALT GAS IS TO BE PURIFIED

Mayor Buchanan Receives Notification, Which is Causing Great Satisfaction.

Galt, Ont., Mar. 14.—An important document was received to-day by His Worship Buchanan in a letter stating that the Tilbery gas, which is being supplied to Galt, is to be purified.

The long looked for document bears the signatures of J. W. McDowell, President of the Ontario Southern Gas Company, Limited, and F. M. Lowery, vice-president and general manager of the Dominion Natural Gas Company.

Assurance is given that the foul product will be purified within three months. It is stated that for several weeks engineers have been experimenting and testing for a purification system. The pressure has been greater than anything the company has ever before experienced. It has been found possible to purify the gas, and the company decided upon the erection of a monster plant at Glenwood, Ont. which will purify all the gas being supplied to this district.

GEORGE WESTINGHOUSE'S DEATH CAUSES THOUSANDS TO MOURN

New York, Mar. 15. A hundred thousand men and women dropped their tools to-day as a tribute to George Westinghouse, whose genius gave them the means of livelihood. The great inventor of the air-brake was buried here to-day, while machinery stood idle in a dozen factories in America and Europe. Twenty-five thousand Westinghouse employes laid aside their tools in Pittsburg alone.

The funeral services were held this afternoon at the Fifth avenue Presbyterian church, and the burial was at Woodlawn Cemetery, in Brooklyn. Among the mourners were forty-seven men from the plant of the Westinghouse Air Brake Co. of Pittsburg, who worked in the original Westinghouse factory. There were present also delegations from the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and many more scientific bodies, and from industrial and financial corporations, which came in touch with the widespread enterprises founded by Mr. Westinghouse or based on his discoveries.

The services were conducted by the Rev. J. H. Jewett, pastor of the church, and by the Rev. S. J. Fisher of Pittsburg whose friendship with the inventor dated from the time when they were poor boys rooming together in a Pittsburg boarding house.

CREW SAVES SHIP IN ATLANTIC STORM

Gulfport, Miss., March 14.—Word has been received in Gulfport that the teamer Wyvisbrook, which sailed from this city early in February for Mobile and Antwerp, Belgium, had arrived at port with the cabins, saloons and engine room flooded, deck load shifted and the vessel badly listed.

The steamer is reported to have been in the same storm in which the County of Devon, which also sailed from Gulfport, was lost, and that only by the heroic work of the crew was the vessel kept from going to the bottom.

INSURGENTS RISE IN "SUFFS" AND NEW PARTY IS FORMED

Rebellion That Has Brewed for Many Months Breaks Out at Canadian Suffrage Association Meeting

Toronto, Mar. 15.—Declaring that the Canadian National Suffrage Association, which has been the governing body of all suffrage societies in Canada, is unprogressive and has bound itself up with the militant suffragettes and a small clique of Toronto women who have the affairs of the association under their thumb three Toronto Suffrage Clubs have separated from the parents society and will next week form the Canadian National Union of Woman Suffrage Societies.

At the head of the new movement is the Equal Franchise League, of which Mrs. L. A. Hamilton is the president. Lettergrams have been sent to all the Suffrage Clubs in Canada, asking that they become members of the new organization, and that they offer suggestions for a constitution for the new club. That the new organization will act as an impetus to the suffrage movement in Canada is acknowledged by both factions. In the new organization four Toronto suffrage societies have signified their intentions of uniting: The Beaches' Progressive Club, the Teachers' Suffrage Society and the Junior Suffrage Club, along with the Equal Franchise League.

Insurgents Make Statement.

Mrs. W. R. Lang, who has been prominent among those responsible for the division, Saturday made the following statement relative to the split: Most people know that there has been a Canadian Suffrage Association for many years, which doubtless did much good spade work. But devotion to a cause is not always a guarantee of business ability, and so it has proved in this case. The old national association was organized in 1912 and obtained a charter from the government in May of that year, but it has never fulfilled ordinary business formalities of an incorporated society nor adopted a constitution arranging for annual meetings, proper election of officers and executive, regularly audited accounts, etc.

Sure of Himself.

"You're terribly severe in your religion, Donald. I suppose you think we're all going to perdition, and nobody will be saved but you and your minister."

"I'm not so sure of that," said Donald, thoughtfully. "Ye ken, I whiles hae me doots about the minister."

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Fair and about the same temperature.

AUSTRALIAN EXPLORER IS HOME FROM ANTARCTIC TRIP

Adelaide, Australasia, March 14, —Dr. Douglas Mawson, the Australian explorer, returned here today from the Antarctic on board the Aurora. He said his expedition had been eminently successful.

The expedition under Dr. Douglas Mawson left Hogart, Tasmania, on Dec. 2, 1911, to survey the Antarctic coast line.

Two of the members, Lieutenant Ninnis, of the British army, and Dr. Merz, a Swiss, met with death by accident.

When the Aurora went to fetch the explorers back from the Antarctic early last year, the vessel was forced to leave before taking on board Dr. Mawson and five of his companions. They were well equipped and no fear was felt for their safety. It is this party which has now returned.

WHITE SLAVER GETS TWO YEAR SENTENCE

Chicago, March 04,—Violation of the Mann white slave act caused a sentence of two years' imprisonment in the penitentiary at Joliet to be imposed today on William Davis, of Nashville, Tenn., by Judge K. M. Landis, in the United States district court.

Davis was found guilty of having brought Mrs. Margaret Geddy from St. Louis to East St. Louis and then to Chicago last October. Testimony was presented that the woman had supported Davis here and in other cities.

A VERY SUCCESSFUL BIRTHDAY TEA AT "Y"

If you are wise, you will join the "Y's"
On March fourteenth at a Birthday Party,
And this little rhyme is to warn you in time
So you'll come prepared with an appetite hearty.
First count up your years, and no matter how many,
For each one you've lived you must drop in a penny.
Then here's something elsewell deserving of mention,
Our Candy and Cake Sale demand your attention—
All strictly home-made, and so tempting to view
That you simply can't pass without buying a few.
From four unto seven the hour is set;
The place is the Green Room; now please don't forget.

In response to the above invitation issued by the Girls' Auxiliary of the Y.W.C.A., quite a number of ladies visited the Y.W.C.A. building on Saturday afternoon and enjoyed the unique and successful entertainment provided by the Auxiliary. Booths decorated to represent the twelve months of the year formed an entrance to the drawing rooms and each month had its share of birthday pennies, as every newcomer counted up her years. After tea was served and a splendid musical programme rendered, the artists being Mrs. Boyd, violinist, Mrs. McDonald, Miss M. Sanderson, soloists and Miss K. Geary and Miss Given Sherry, pianists. A successful sale of home-made cake and candy was held. The proceeds of the tea were $41.00.

GOVERNMENT STOPS FLOOD OF SPANISH WORKERS TO THE CANAL

Four Hundred Spaniards, Half of Whom are Said to be Carpenters, Among Lot Who Landed in New York Saturday to Work on Welland Canal

Toronto, Mar. 15.—An attempt to flood the Welland district with Spanish laborers has been brought to a sudden halt by the government immigration authorities acting upon the advice of the government fair wage officers, Mr. M. Compton, and Hon. T. W. Crothers, minister of labor. More than 400 mechanics and laborers from Spain, who are alleged to have been hired to work on the canal contracts are now being held up at the border.

The local labor men were informed of this scheme through the medium of men who are in touch with the Spanish consul in Toronto, and immediately set to work gathering information in connection with the matter. Their investigations resulted in a complete verification of the facts as stated by the informant. Mr. Morley C. Clark, business agent of the local carpenters telegraphed the fair wage officer at Ottawa asking him whether this wholesale hiring of foreign labor for Canadian Government contracts was a breach of the fair wage clause in the contracts and was informed that it was, and a request for more details was made by the government officer. Mr. Clark immediately wired all information to the department of labor and received a reply Saturday stating that the immigration department were moving in the matter. This lettertelegram was signed by the minister of labor.

Four Hundred Landed.

The local labor men declare that 400 Spaniards landed in New York Saturday and were held up, pending advice from Ottawa. The men were hired through The J. Enoch Thompson Co., and were part of a large demand made by the English contractors who were awarded section No. 2 of the Welland Canal contracts. The name given in the labor journal is Baldry, Yerburg and Hutchinson, with head-office at Westminster, London, Eng. The government states that this work must be done by native labor as far as possible. The story that there is not enough labor of the character required is denied by the labor men, who have sent Organizer J. Marsh to Niagara in order that any attempt to land the Spaniards at that point might be checked. It is stated that the Spaniards are more than 50 per cent. carpenters and will be employed as concrete form makers, though many of them are just ordinary laborers, who are willing to work for much lower wages than the Canadian laborers.

FRIGHTENED BY FIRE SIX HUNDRED GIRLS TAKE TO LADDERS

Factory in Newark Completely Destroyed by Blaze Ilia Threatened Heart of City

Newark, N.J., Mar. 15.—Six hundred panic-stricken girls fled for their lives to-day in a fire which, starting in the factory of the Baker Printing Co., No. 251 Market street, threatened the destruction of the entire block, which takes in many factories and printing establishments.

Many persons trapped on the upper floors by the rapidly spreading flames, were rescued by policemen and firemen and carried down the fire escapes to safety.

All Apparatus Used.

Four alarms were turned in, bringing all the available fire-fighting apparatus within the city and from the outskirts to the scene, which is near the heart of the city.

The Baker Printing Co's building extends through from Market street just below Mulberry to Clinton street. The flames were discovered in the Clinton street end and the signal for fire drill was sounded. The girls, most of whom worked on the upper floors were thrown into a panic when they found the hallways filled with smoke. Below they could hear the crackling of the flames.

Wild Scramble Among Girls.

There was an excited rush for the windows, stairways and the roof. Some of the frightened girls threatened to jump, but were held back by the crowds in the street. The fire by this time had spread through to the front of the building. Ladders were quickly raised and a number of the girls were rescued in this manner.

In the intense excitement it could not be learned whether all had escaped and a roll call will be necessary. The building was completely destroyed, involving a loss of upwards of $200,000.

CONSERVATIVE MEMBER SAYS TEMPERANCE QUESTION ISSUE

A. E. Donovan Reads the Thirty-Nine Amendments Which Provincial Government Has Passed to North York Conservatives---Denied Statements of Liberals

Newmarket, Ont., Mar. 16.—The new town hall was crowded on Saturday afternoon to hear the Hon. T. W. Crothers, minister of labor; Hon. R. F. Preston, M.D., M.L.A.; A. E. Donovan, M.L.A., of Brockville; J. A. Armstrong, M.P., for North York; T. H. Lennox, K.C., M.L.A., address the annual meeting of the North York Conservative Association.

At the election of officers the following were elected for the ensuing year:

Pres., D. Roche, Newmarket; first vice-pres., Lloyd Hollingshead, Ketleby; second vice-pres., Isaac Fenton, Sutton West; third vice-pres., George McCormick, Vivian; sec.-treas., Dr. Clark, Newmarket.

Committee: R. Case, Aurora; Fred Kitching, Holland Landing; W. Halliday, Newmarket; Arthur Pugsley, Sutton West, Fred Button, Stouffville.

Read Thirty-Nine Amendments.

A. E. Donovan, M.L.A., said that the temperance question was the greatest of all before the province. He denied all criticism levelled at the Conservative party by Rowell and his followers, which was to the effect that they were working in the liquor interests. He then read out thirty-nine amendments which had been passed by the Conservatives during their term of office. The temperance question will be the issue at stake at the next election.

J. A. M. Armstrong, the member for North York, said that the Government had been accused of being a do-nothing government. He then spoke of the various measures put forward passed by the government.

LOTS OF SLOGANS.

Sarnia, Mar. 14—Between three and four hundred suggestions for slogans and synonyms have already been received by the committee of the board of trade directing the competition to find a suitable slogan for Sarnia.

ANCIENT LUXURIES.

Silver Lined Cooking Utensils Used Twenty Centuries Ago.

While the housewife of today may reasonably pride herself on the conveniences which her kitchen affords, she need not smile too superciliously at the thought of the makeshifts of days long gone by. She would certainly not do so were she to spend a little time inspecting the kitchen and other household utensils that were in use 2,000 years ago, as exhibited in the national museum at Naples. Saucepans lined with silver, pails richly inlaid with arabesques in silver and shovels handsomely carved figure among the household goods of those times.

An egg frame that would cook twenty eggs at once and pastry molds shaped like shells suggest luxuries of the kitchen of 2,000 years ago. Gridirons and frying pans, tart dishes and cheese graters were in use then as now.

The Roman lady's toilet table was well supplied. Ivory combs, bottles of perfume, pots of cosmetics, buttons, hairpins and even a hair net of gold wire figure in the museum.

Bronze thimbles and spindles are to be seen among the relics. The Roman lady even had her safety pin, for there is a specimen of this little convenience which, before the one in the Naples museum was found, was believed to be a strictly modern invention.

The Roman lady, however, apparently lacked one essential. She had no hairbrush. Neither had she a glass mirror. All the mirrors in the museum, with one exception, are of silver or some other white metal. The exception is a dark purple piece of glass let into the wall of a bedroom at the house Specchio in Pompeii.

In surgical instruments the ancient world was rich. Those found at Pompeii deprive modern science of the credit of more than one invention. Needles, probes and forceps resemble closely those in use at the present day.—Harper's Weekly.

Funny Stories.

"Ha, ha!" said the jovial man as he slapped an acquaintance on the back. "I'm glad to see you. I have one of the funniest stories on record, and you are just in time."

"I don't care for it," was the candid reply. "You see, there is often a pathetic side even to humor. I have just been out with my architect, and he showed me three of the funniest stories I ever saw. If I hadn't been paying for them I'd have laughed myself silly."

LAUGHTER AND TEARS.

A Comedy Scene In Which Grief Played a Leading Part.

"Stage fright is not one of the emotions which get across the footlights," writes Miss Alice Crawford. "Audiences are for the most part as serenely unconscious of it as they are of other individual sentiments in the actors having no relation to the incidents of the play.

"I shall never forget an instance of this curious insensibility of the crowd. Once when I was touring one of the most charming and popular girls of the company died after only a few days' illness. She was one of those sweet, tranquil natures and had endeared herself to us all. Her death in lodgings in the small provincial town had an element of real tragedy in it.

"The news that she was dead reached the theater in the evening just as two of the actors and I were about to go on for a scene of broad comedy. We went on the stage with tears in our eyes, and I can still see the face of one of these comedians with the great tears glistening on the paint. He was dreadfully affected. Try as he would, he could not control his voice, and the tears kept choking him as he rattled off his lines.

"The audience were convulsed every time his voice broke, and it made me cry more than ever to see the grief shaking him as he grinned and chaffed through his tears. Yet that comedy scene never went so well before. The audience never guessed."—Exchange.

They Were All "Pils."

One of the fashionable east side churches recently witnessed a funny incident at a choir rehearsal. They were preparing for the following Sunday morning a beautiful selection, the first words of which were, "I am a pilgrim." It so happened that the music divided the word "pilgrim" and made a pause after the syllable. The effect was most amusing. The soprano sang in a high key "I am a pil" and then stopped. The tenor acknowledged that he was a "pil," and when the bass came thundering in with a like declaration, "I am a pil," it was too much for the gravity of the singers, and they roared. No amount of practice could get them past the fatal pause without an outburst, and the piece had to be given up.—Musical World.

"Come Across."

"Do these Englishmen understand American slang?"

"Some of them do. Why?"

"My daughter is to be married in London, and the duke has just cabled me to come across."

"Well?"

"Does he want me or my wad?"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

SOME IMPORTANT FACTS ABOUT THE SILVER BLACK FOX INDUSTRY

The first Island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $4,000.00; in 1911 the price went up to $6,000 a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000 was considered high but not unusual, and at the time of writing (January 20th, 1914), live breeders can bring any price from $15,000 to $35,000, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000 a pair.

About $10,000,000 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $3,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the island contain 899 silver breeding foxes, (441 males and 458 females.) The total number of silver offsprings for 1913 was 703, and the average assessed valuе was $4,892.53 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $3,349,449. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1602.

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,628.00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company have TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND Silver Black Foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option are all eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These Foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor, and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which, in 1913, paid from 45 p.c. to 900 p.c.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a per centage of the production will be retained, placing the Company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211 acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

From the above it will surely be seen that the R. J. McNEILL BLACK AND SILVER FOX COMPANY, LIMITED, are engaged in business at a most opportune time and under most favorable circumstances. Take into serious consideration that our company is established and that we have the FOXES AND RANCH, and not prospective. YOU ARE ENTITLED TO SEPTEMBER, 1914, DIVIDENDS: you don't have to wait for your dividends until 1915. In 1915 another dividend will be awaiting you

REMEMBER the average cash dividend of the above companies is 175 per cent, and there is absolutely no excuse why we cannot repeat the same.

We offered for public subscription the remaining allotment of $70,000. $30,000 has already been subscribed. $40,000 remains to be sold.

NOTICE.—Should the shares of stock not be allotted, the money paid by you will be refunded by return mail.

SOME PRESS COMMENTS

"Widows" Fox Company Declares a 900 Per Cent. Dividend.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair & Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1912. This Company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent. was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I., who were employed in the States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $15,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $900 three years ago, and is now worth $45,000 directly from this source.

The Rosemount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1000 per cent. this year.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's Limited, received $25,000 from an investment of $500 made in this business three years ago.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $500 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $3,500. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair a year. The first litter consisted seven pups. The seven owners have received $36,000 each dividends since and the pair bought for $3,500 could be sold for $25,000 to-day. Mr. Austin Scales, of St. Eleanors, is a member of this Association

WORMS! YES. THAT'S IT WORMS IS THE TROUBLE—

Many Suffer From Them and Do Not Know It.

Many go to an early grave on account of them and have been pronounced to have had brain fever or some other complaint.

Prof. Mulvenev Comes to the Rescue

His Wonderful Remedies are saving thousands of lives.

Why not try his remedies, they are sure, certain and harmless.

Stomach worms are round like earth worms, and measure from 8 to 16 inches in length, the large ones being about the size of a lead pencil in thickness. They are white and sometimes pink in color; they infest the stomach and small intestines and sometimes great numbers are found to exist. One of my customers claims one of his children passed thirty from the use of my remedy. It does not require much thought to come to the conclusion that these worms are very dangerous, as they cause fever, convulsions, fits, etc. Many persons have died from worms and they have been known to crawl out of their mouth and nose after death. Just imagine the suffering and terrible agony a child or adult must experience with these disgusting and loathsome creatures crawling about in the stomach and bowels. There is no doubt that they are constantly taking the nourishment they should go to make a strong, healthy person. Is it any wonder that your child is cross, irritable and sickly? Adults are also restless, melancholy and miserable from the same cause and are sometimes treated for dyspepsia, nervous prostration and other complaints. My remedy is in liquid form and is an excellent remedy to build up the system, and can be taken for some time after the worms have been expelled to build up the system, which generally requires it as the stomach and bowels are generally in a weak and debilitated condition, caused by the ravages of these undesirable pests. My remedy known as Mother's Friend, is pleasant and agreeable to take and is a life-saver for children, as it not only destroys worms but strengthens and builds up the child, cures wetting of the bed, convulsions and fits, destroys pin worms. The price is $1.00. My remedy known as B'Well is most better for adults, and is the greatest nerve remedy on earth. Cures all nerve troubles, cleanses the system restores lost energy and is a life saver. B'Well is a microbe killer also a worm killer; microbes and worms cause all kinds of disease. B'Well kills the cause, also kills their poison. Sold only by Prof. Mulvenev. Write for further information free.

KING'S ATTENDANTS NOT OVER-WORKED

Royal Palace Run Like a Big Business Institution With Lots of Help

The changes that have taken place in the Royal household of Great Britain during the past twenty-five years are numerous, though in some ways the general management of the Royal establishment approximates now more closely to what it was twenty-five years ago than it did in King Edward's reign.

A quarter of a century ago the headquarters of the Royal household was at Windsor Castle, and Queen Victoria went only occasionally into residence at Buckingham Palace. In those days there were fewer Court officials. But the officials of the Royal household twenty-five years ago were worked far harder than most of them are now, and were practically always in attendance. Nowadays there are several officials of the household who are not required to be in attendance more often perhaps than once a month.

In Queen Victoria's reign most of the chief officials of the household resided at Windsor Castle, but when the headquarters of the Court were changed, after King Edward's accession, to Buckingham Palace, the "resident" officials became far fewer, for most of the ladies and gentlemen of the household have houses of their own in London, and only go to Buckingham Palace when required. Nowadays, not more than four officials of the household are in residence.

Maids of Honor

The Maids of Honor are never now in residence, and the Mistress of the Robes very rarely. Twenty-five years ago, when the headquarters of the Court was at Windsor Castle, the Mistress of the Robes was nearly always in residence at the Castle. The Mistress of the Robes nowadays is only in attendance on the Queen on state occasions. A quarter of a century ago she was not only in constant attendance on the Sovereign but supervised the whole management of the royal wardrobe, checked all her Majesty's dress bills, and it was she who (under her Sovereign's directions), regulated the hours of attendance of the other Ladies-in-Waiting.

Mr. Gladstone, during his ministry, came to Windsor Castle four times in one week. Nowadays the Prime Minister has an audience with the King not oftener than once or twice a month, unless he has some special reason for desiring to see the King or the King wishes to see him.

The letter which the Prime Minister used to write every night during the sitting of Parliament to the Sovereign has become a thing of the past. King George relieved Mr. Asquith of performing this entirely formal duty almost directly after his accession.

Servants for Servants

Nowadays the general management of the Royal household is conducted on far more businesslike lines than it was twenty-five years ago. If there were then fewer officers of the household than there are now, there was a much bigger staff of servants, most of whom had little or nothing to do. The attendance in the state and private apartments was performed mainly by the Indian servants, who themselves were waited on almost hand and foot by another set of servants.

The Indian servants were, however, all pensioned off after King Edward's accession and the whole management of the household was put on a different footing.

During the reign of King Edward the court was very rarely at Windsor Castle, but King George and Queen Mary both like Windsor, and are constantly in residence there; so that though Buckingham Palace remains, of course, the headquarters of the court, many of the servants and some few of the officers of the Royal household are permanently at Windsor.

It is but a little over a quarter of a century ago that Buckingham Palace was provided with a telephone, at the suggestion of the late King. Now there is a big private exchange at the palace, with an operator on duty day and night.

A Crushed Name

There are many stories told of the pronunciation of certain English names, that of Cholmondeley, pronounced Chumley, generally finding a place in the list. A story, told of Lord Cholmondeley, gives a possible reason for irregularity in pronunciations.

Lord Cholmondeley was one day leaving his house, when he encountered a man, who, not knowing his lordship by sight, asked him if Lord Chol-mon-de-lay, pronouncing each syllable distinctly, was at home.

"No," replied the Peer, without any hesitation, "nor any of his pe-o-ple."

Sidewalk Signs

Lanterns to project advertisements upon pavements are now made with electric lights powerful enough to be effective in the best lighted city streets.

Crowded Homes

Russian figures place the average number of occupants of a house at night in London, 45 in Vienna, 30 in Berlin and 52 in Moscow, and St. Petersburg.

Canadians pay over thirty-five million dollars per year in life insurance premiums.

MARY ELIZABETH MADE GOOD CANDY

She Began on a Small Scale—Now She's Worth Half a Million

Several years ago Mary Elizabeth, whose other name is Evans, started to make candy for sale in Syracuse. On a table she put her candies and a small wicker basket in which people put the money for what they took. People liked her trust of them and they did not ever take more candy than they were entitled to from the dishes on the unwatched table. They began telling other folks about the candy-table and pretty soon Mary Elizabeth was able to sell more candy than she could make alone in her little home. Then she hired assistants and opened a store with a real clerk in it. And now she has a candy-shop on Fifth Avenue in New York City, another in Newport and still a third in Bermuda. And she won't take half a million dollars for her business.

MARY ELIZABETH EVANS

COST OF LUXURIES

Fine Clothes and Food Not Necessary —But Hard to Abandon

It isn't things which we need that cost so dearly as to keep most of us poor, but the things that we don't need and would be better without. In other words, it's the luxuries which at once impoverish and enslave us.

For instance, take the much discussed matter of eating. It is literally true that a person in good health can keep the human machine going at full efficiency on the merest fraction of what the average Canadian thinks he must spend for food. A glass of milk, a handful of uncooked and uncracked wheat—wheat just as nature meant it should be eaten—and, for desert, a prune or a pinch of raisins make a meal rich in all the essentials of nutrition at a cost which is negligible.

The same rule of simplicity is true of other daily necessities. Clothing, to cover nakedness and serve as bodily protection, can be had for the merest fraction of the sums usually expended upon it. In proof, see how little you spend on your camp clothing and how serviceable and comfortable it is. While for bedding a pile of pine twigs and a blanket make a couch as restful as the downiest contraption that ever graced a king's palace. It has been demonstrated that people can be fed with palatable and sufficient food at an actual cost, right in this era of high prices of six cents a day.

They can be, but they won't.

AMBASSADORS' PAY

European Countries Give Big Money to Their Diplomats

In contrast with the position of the United States Ambassador to Great Britain, who has to rent his own house, on a salary of $17,500 a year, is the situation of foreign diplomats in Washington. All of the important embassies in Washington are either owned outright or are rented by the countries represented, ample funds are provided for upkeep, and salaries range from $30,000 to $50,000. England pays her ambassador at Paris $45,000; at Berlin, $40,000; at St. Petersburg, $39,000; at Rome, $35,000; and at Vienna, $40,000. Germany pays her ambassador at Paris, $30,000; at London, $37,500; at St. Petersburg, $37,500; at Rome, $30,000; and at Vienna, $30,000.

The French ambassador at Berlin receives $25,000; at London, $40,000; at Rome $24,000; at St. Petersburg, $50,000; and at Vienna, $35,000. Russia pays her ambassadors at Berlin, London, Paris, and Vienna, $40,000 each.

The highest salary paid to any United States ambassador is $17,500 a year.

Giving Linen a Polish

Various substances are used to give linen a polish. A bit of white wax or gum arabic added to the starch when boiling makes a reliable foundation for a good polish. A laundry polish can scarcely be obtained without the use of a polishing iron, which may be purchased of any ironmonger. The articles to be polished are first ironed in the ordinary way, then damped by laying on them a wet cloth, then placed on a board and rubbed quickly with the polishing iron until they shine.

Officer's Wine Bill

Lieut. J. F. V. Guise, of the battleship Thunderer, was charged before a court martial at Weymouth with disobeying the commands of Captain Oliver in exceeding the limits laid down for his wine and spirit bill, and also with committing an act to the prejudice of good order and ship's discipline in ordering a ship's steward to enter liquor consumed by him against the names of other officers in the wine book.

He pleaded guilty to all the charges, and was ordered to forfeit three months' seniority, dismissed from his ship, and severely reprimanded.

CLOTHES DRYING RACK

Attached to Ceiling and Can be Lowered or Raised Again

One of the best of all devices for drying clothes indoors is the rack shown in the illustration. It is 6 feet long and 3 feet wide and can be attached to any kitchen or laundry ceiling. It is lowered and raised by means of pulleys. When the garments are to be hung on the rack it is lowered to a convenient height and then raised when filled. This carries the clothes to the top of the room, where they are not only out of the way, but where the air is warmer and drier and where they dry more rapidly and more thoroughly. This rack is also useful to air clothes on after they have been ironed as many laundresses like to do rather than fold them up while still smelling of the iron. Even when in use it is not an incumbrance and at other times is scarcely noticeable.

Daughter of Famous Fenian

A venerable figure at the Banagher Convent Jubilee celebrations was that of Mme. Adina, who was the third Irish nun to join the Banagher foundation after its establishment. She is the daughter of Stephen Joseph Meaney, the well known Fenian leader, who was arrested and imprisoned not only during the '67 period, but also in '48. She was absent from Ireland for forty years, and returned to the Bower Convent, Athlone. She noticed many changes for the better in the condition of the people.

Footballer Sent to Prison

At Newcastle John Armstrong, a well known Grimsby professional footballer, was sent to prison for eighteen months for housebreaking. Counsel asked the judge to deal leniently, as Armstrong's career as a footballer would be ended anyway. The judge said it was absurd to suggest that such an offence should be overlooked because the man was a professional footballer.

SANOL ANTI DIABETES
for Deadly Diabetes

SANOL ANTI-DIABETES is the new Cure for this terrible affliction. It is perfectly harmless to the organic system, and contains no poisonous or injurious ingredients whatever. It never fails to effect a Cure in every case in whatever form it may present itself, provided the patient has not reached the very stages of the malady when the vital organs have become irreparably damaged.

SANOL ANTI-DIABETES has cured many people; some of the cases had reached the stage where the patient was suffering from open sores, and in other respects the disease was well advanced. We have letters from just such sufferers as these. We are able to refer inquiries to large numbers of such cases, including people whose names are widely known and who occupy prominent positions. Doctors have tried and have proven the scientific value and worth of this remedy, in fact many of the Medical Profession in Canada have been permanently cured of Diabetes through this wonderful treatment.

THE STRIKE DEBATE

If the efforts to make party capital out of the Canadian Northern situation for the Government have been deplorable (and there is this to be said about them, that they have been carried on, not by responsible members of the House, but by the most irresponsible partizan press), the efforts to make capital for the Liberal side out of the Nanaimo coal troubles have been even more distressing. If there is any charge at all to be brought against the Government in this matter it is that it did not support the old-established Canadian union, which has a working agreement with the collieries and was perfectly willing to carry it out; that it permitted an alien body to march into Canadian territory and by the most high-handed methods precipitate a costly, dangerous and disastrous strike, threatening the fuel supply of a large part of the Canadian people: that its efforts to preserve law and order were, for a time at least, somewhat half hearted. None of this is mentioned in the complaint of the Liberal members of the House against Hon. Mr. Crothers. Their sole object is to make it appear that he a tool of the mine-owners, seeking only to crush the noble and unselfish labor leaders who were striving to emancipate their tyrannized Canadian brethren, and that his Government is owned, body and soul, by Mackenzie and Mann, who happen to have an interest in the collieries in question. The chief objection, if not the only objection, that they raised to the report of the Labor Minister's deputy on the Nanaimo strike was that it was hostile to the United Mine Workers of America. If no labor investigator in this country, on completing his enquiries, is to be permitted to be hostile to the U. M. W. we might as well quit holding investigations and allow the union to write its own reports.

Mr. Crother's reply to these attacks was rather effective, owing to the fact that so far as concerns any of the points made against him, he had a perfectly clear case. His critics, of course, did not say a word about the action of the U.M. W. in invading the territory of an old and recognized Canadian union, at peace with its employers; though Mr. Crothers was able to show that some of them had said a great deal about the kind of operation by the same union when their own ox was being gored in the Maritime Provinces. They did not say a word about the state of terrorism by which the Nanaimo strike was enforced upon an immense number of unwilling workingmen. Their argument was that the men must have been right and should have won and didn't win, and that, therefore the Government which did nothing, must be responsible.

Magic "Nerviline" Cures Toothache, Earache

IT RELIEVES EVERY EXTERNAL PAIN

Cures Cold, Coughs, Sore Throat, Tight Chest and Hoarseness

It's when sickness comes at night, when you are far from the druggist or the doctor, that's when you need Nerviline most. Experienced mothers are never without it. One of the children may have toothache. Without Nerviline—a sleepless night for the entire household. With Nerviline the pain is relieved quickly. It may be earache, perhaps a stiff neck, or one of the kiddies coughing with a bad chest cold. Nothing can give quicker results than vigorous rubbing with this old-time family remedy.

Nerviline is too useful, too valuable to be without. For lumbago, lame back, sciatica or neuralgia there is no liniment with half of Nervilin's power to penetrate and ease the pain.

As a family safeguard, as something to ward off sickness and to cure the minor ills that will occur in every family, to cure pain anywhere, you can find nothing to compare with old-time Nerviline, which for forty years has been the most widely used family remedy in the Dominion. The most economical size is the large 50c. family size bottle, small trial size 25c. All dealers sell Nerviline.

The Electric Steel & Metals Co., Limited

The Electric Steel & Metals Co. of Welland, Ont., is especially fortunate in having on its directorate, men who know the ins and outs of the steel business thoroughly. Mr. Robert Turnbull, the President, is an expert in electric furnace work, and has been for the last seven years Resident Engineer in America for Dr. P. Heroult, the inventor of the aluminum process and the electric steel furnace which bears his name.

Mr. J. H. LeFevre, the Vice-President and General Manager, has been actively engaged in the steel business for the last twenty years, and the other members of the board are all men of equal practical knowledge.

The company is erecting a modern plant at Welland capable of manufacturing 4,000 tons of finished steel castings a year and it is to finance the completion of the plant that Messrs. Rooke, Bickle & Co., of 26-28 Adelaide street west, Toronto, are announcing an offering of a $200,000 issue of seven per cent cumulative preference stock in the company. The stock is offered at par with a bonus of 50 per cent of Common. There is an urgent demand for the products of the corporation which are now chiefly imported, despite a stiff tariff, from the United States and Great Britain, and there is not the least doubt but that the company will have a prosperous future. Earnings based on a production of three quarters capacity, or 3,000 tons of steel castings are estimated by the president at $360,000 gross and $111,000 net, which would leave after providing for the preferred dividend and depreciation a surplus of $81,000 applicable to common stock dividends. The offering in view of the industrial revival now in progress, is one that will prove very attractive.

BAPTIST PASTOR WAS INDISCREET AT UNITARIAN CHURCH

Rev. F. B. Gruel's Action in Welcoming Rev. H. H. Saunderson Strongly Criticized

Toronto, Mar. 15.—Rather indiscreet and somewhat untimely was the address of welcome delivered to Rev. H. H. Saunderson, the new pastor of the Unitarian Church, by Rev. F. B. Greul, pastor of Parkdale Baptist church, in the opinion of many Baptist ministers of the city, expressing in strong terms on Saturday.

"Speaking in a Unitarian Church so soon after his arrival in the city, I am afraid was rather indiscreet," said Rev. A. J. Vining of College street Baptist church. "Of course, he spoke in his unofficial capacity, and had a perfect right to welcome anybody to the city. As a citizen, I am sure we all welcome Mr. Saunderson, but for a minister of the Baptist Church to welcome him in the church of his faith, at an official reception, I am afraid, is liable to be understood as an acceptance of the beliefs of the church, which we all most emphatically condemn."

This seemed to be the general opinion of the various Baptist ministers interviewed, but it is thought that the matter will drop here, as only Dr. Greul's own congregation has any power to act in censuring his action.

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

A Shaded Story.

Joseph Alexander is a pickaninny of many virtues, but sadly given to exaggeration. One day when I had him pulling weeds in the front yard he ran into the house with eyes big as moons and cried:

"Law, Miss Minnie, what you think! I dun kilt three big rattlesnakes out in the yard."

"Now, Joseph," I replied, "you know that is not so."

"Well, now, Miss Minnie," he insisted insinuatingly, "it was two turrible big snakes, an' I killed 'em fo' sho'!"

Determined to convict him, I insisted, "You know you did not kill two snakes, Joseph."

He thought a moment, then said impressively, "Well, now, I did kill one powerful big snake in dat very front yard."

"Go away, boy! You are an outrageous story teller!" I cried indignantly. He was not one whit abashed by my vehemence, but cheerfully replied:

"Well, 'clare for goodness, Miss Minnie, hit was a powerful big worm!"—Delineator.

THE CAMPHOR LANGUAGE.

Used in Johore Because of a Malay Superstition.

In Johore, on the Malay peninsula, there is employed one of the strangest languages in the world, used for a most curious purpose. This tongue is called Pantang Kapor or "camphor language," and is a medium employed by natives and others engaged in gathering the product of the Malayan camphor tree, but only when they are at work.

It is a superstition of these natives that should they use the language of the district, the Malay or the aboriginal Jakun, they would be unable to obtain their camphor

The Malay natives firmly believe that each species of tree has a spirit or guardian angel that presides over its affairs, this spirit being known by the name of Bisan. This divinity's resting place is near the trees. Then, too, the spirit of the camphor tree is held to be extremely jealous of the precious gum, so that it becomes necessary to propitiate her, inasmuch as she would, should she learn that hunters were in quest of it, endeavor to interpose obstacles to their mission. Accordingly the natives speak in a tongue that the tree spirit may not understand. It was for this purpose that the mysterious "camphor language" was invented, and it consists of an odd mixture of Jakun and Malay words that have been curiously altered and reversed.—Harper's Weekly.

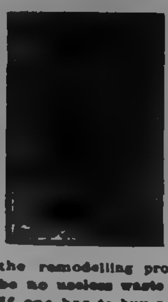
How to Make New Gowns From Old Bits of Cloth

By MADGE MARVEL



MAKING over clothes is more than a task—it is a fine art. The wisdom of a feminine Solomon is required to decide whether the gown is worth making over, in the first place, and the rarest of judgment is necessary to plan the remodelling process so there shall be no useless waste of time and money. If one has to buy a lot of new material in order to have the old stuff available it would seem foolish to attempt the task. Also, if, after considerable time has been spent in fixing over a frock, it is patent to all the world that it is but a home-made makeshift, it requires little discernment to see that it has been effort thrown away.

Now that two or three materials are combined, it is sometimes possible to remodel a costume without having to buy much new goods, and have a very creditable creation to pay for one's planning.

A woman of my acquaintance, who is clever in designing her frocks and can also make them, utilized a blue serge suit by adding a couple of yards of taffeta in the same shade so successfully she has a smart little morning dress with all the ear-marks of the latest style.

She also had a black and white striped silk frock which was half-worn out, and a black satin which was in the same condition. She made a skirt out of the black satin and a blouse and tunic of the black and white stripe, and where the seams of the tunic showed she was able to lay over pleats in the new way and line the edge with cerise and make a girdle of the same. The cerise, by the way, was part of another gown. The only expenditure for either gown was time and sewing silk, bodice lining and batiste enough for the vest and collar and cuffs of the serge.

From scraps of jet which she had saved from year to year another woman of my acquaintance made a charming toque which would have cost her a pretty penny to buy. It required great patience, for the tiniest bits of material were fitted into place till they became part of the pattern, and every bead was saved and restrung and sewed on bits of black net to fill a space in the mosaic.

In remaking, each garment should be carefully cleaned and ripped and pressed. Every worn portion should be discarded for it will give out after a few wearings, and even if it doesn't it will make the gown have a look of shabbiness from the start.

Where one has to depend upon a dressmaker for all her clothes it is to be seriously questioned whether it will pay to make over any but the best of goods. Dressmakers dislike to "make over," and they cannot be blamed for the fact. It is frequently twice as much work to fix over an old gown as it is to make a new one, and the result is seldom as satisfactory from an artistic standpoint.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie—Do you think it is fair to judge people by appearances?

I don't, but my mother says it is. Whenever I get a new girl friend she wants to know where she lives and how late her mother lets her stay out at night, and whether she goes to picture shows much, and everything foolish like that. I have a girl friend who is just as sweet as she can be, but my mother saw her out walking late one evening with a married man, and now she won't let me have a thing to do with her.

I don't think it's fair to judge so by appearances. Maybe he was in trouble and she was trying to advise him what to do, or something. How can you tell just by the outside?

FAIR PLAY.

WELL, Fair Play, I'm on the other side of the fence this time. I think your mother's right, for once anyhow.

Of course, as the usual thing, she's apt to be wrong, isn't she—how can anybody know anything about the world who can't do the Hesitation Waltz, and who couldn't show you the Argentine Tango to save her life?

But this time she's right—poor, foolish, old-fashioned, stupid mother.

If you are not going to judge by appearances, tell me, pretty maiden, oh tell me, tell me true, what are you going to judge by?

How do you tell a peach from a tomato? By what somebody tells you about it?

Or do you just look at them both and see which looks most like a peach, and make up your mind accordingly?

My eyes were given to see with. If I can't see anything with them what's the use of having them?

It may be that there is occasionally a noble hero who looks and acts like a pickpocket. I've read about such people—in books. I've never seen one, not a single one.

When a man looks and acts like a thief I usually make up my mind that he is a thief, or he wouldn't look and act that way.

When a girl gets herself "talked about" she ought to be talked about.

Why not?

If your hair is red do you expect people to say that it is as black as jet, just because you wish it were, or because they happen to admire brunettes.

A girl who makes people think she is careless about her reputation is careless about it, and a girl who doesn't mind what her reputation is, is quite apt to be indifferent as to what her character is.

As for your sweet friend who goes out late with a married man, she may be as sweet as sugar, but she's a little goose just the same.

What can she possibly have to talk about with that man which would interest him so late? Shakespeare and the musical glasses, or what?

No, no, little girl, she isn't any different, or any deeper, or any better than any other woman who does things that make people believe she is no better than she should be.

I'd choose some other friend if I were you.

Your mother may seem to you a very odd and inquisitive person; poor little girl, I hope you'll never have to find out how very, very sensible and practical those questions of hers are after all.

Yes, it's fair to judge by appearances, and it's sensible, too.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her care this office.

DON'T take this picture flippantly. It's a serious matter. If you are a man you won't understand. But if you are a woman you will know the meaning of the crisis confronting the heroine of this picture-story.

If you are a woman you will know how dreadful it is to have to DECIDE. Life is full of deciding for a woman, and never fuller than just now.

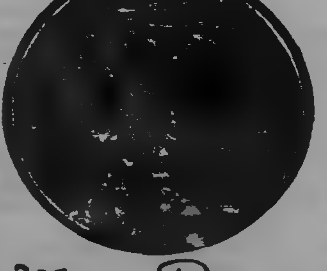
There are so MANY kinds of hats, for example. Even when you have a heap of them sent on approval you can't escape an ordeal. For with so many charming blossoms of millinery fancy right within reach it is simply torturing to realise that you can wear only one at a time. One can't buy them all. One has one's economies, of course. Besides, there IS undoubtedly a best one—just best for YOU.

Men can't appreciate a mental strain of this kind. Not at all. Only a girl understands—in the Spring.

Will the Super-Woman Be Happy?

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service.



Winifred Black

FIFTEEN little girls have been selected to be trained to be super-women in an eastern female seminary.

They are to be given seven years in folk dancing, rhythmic gymnastics, language acquisition by phonetic and "mental motion processes," etc.

Also "fundamental conceptions," whatever they may be; and they are to eat, sleep and live every hour according to the most advanced theories of psychological and physical experimentation.

Dear me, what busy little girls they're going to be.

Every time I wish I were some one else doing something quite different from the things I am doing, I shall think of those little girls, 15 of them, poor babies, and be so glad I am not one of them that I shall be quite cheerfully content with my lot in life again.

And yet—how interesting it will be to see what becomes of those little girls, when they are really grown up, and what sort of women they will make, after all.

What a terrible business this thing of living must be when we begin to work so hard just to prepare for it!

Seven years of isms and ologies and ics and things, and at the end of it perhaps a cold in the head, or an attack of bronchitis! And just a little, narrow grave, just as if the one who sleeps there couldn't even read and write.

What's it all about, anyway, I wonder—all the fuss and fury and fume of learning how to live, and then, just as we have learned how, we stop living!

I wonder if it will be any easier for one of these 15 little girls to be happy, even when she's miserable, than it is for us poor every-day mortals who have a bit of a time of it trying to remember how to spell eugenics and what "primary selection" really does mean.

Mistakes Cost "Bitter Coin."

Will little Mary Smith know enough not to fall in love with the wrong man when she comes out of the super-woman training? Will she say "no" to the dark-eyed stranger who tells her he will die without her, or will old Mother Nature push little Mary's carefully grounded theories right into the background and make the poor child marry the romantic lover, who will make her miserable all the rest of her life, just because nature wants some children who are partly romantic, like Mary's dark-eyed stranger, and partly practical, like poor little Mary herself?

How much will Mary's "super-woman" training have to do with her life?

How much do the things we know have to do with the way we live—I wonder—don't you?

I know better than to do a whole lot of things that I do right straight along, but I do them just the same.

And then I pay for doing them in, oh, such bitter, bitter coin of the realm.

How am I any better off than my washwoman, who makes a cross when she's supposed to sign her name?

I have a bigger world mentally—there are more things to think about, more things to enjoy for me—but there are more to grieve over, too, and the things I think about are not always half as pleasant as the subjects which take up the mind of the washwoman.

She's good and tired when her day's work is done, too tired to grieve, too tired to eat her heart out over things that she cannot help.

All she wants, all she needs, all she hopes for is a bright fire and a nice, smelly dinner of fat pork and cabbage.

And when she has it her heart sings and she is content.

Why, isn't she just as well off, as far as happiness is concerned? And better off, for that matter, than little Mary Smith, after her seven years of ologies?

Those Old, Primitive Griefs.

Mary Smith won't like fat pork and cabbage—they're not hygienic—and the things that she does like will be hard to get, and she will be apt to be so worried over the way she has to get them that they won't taste like a thing but sawdust to her after all.

When Mirandy, the washwoman, makes a fool of herself by flying into a temper because the clothes won't dry right, she thinks it's all right and just a part of the game.

She gets good and mad and gets over it, and that's all there is to it. Mary Smith—when she gets cross about something that she can't help—why, Mary Smith knows what a fool she is and hates herself for it and expects every one else to hate her.

I know two women whose husbands have been deceiving them.

One woman found out about her husband, and she followed him and the girl in the case and horse-whipped them both in the public street.

The girl screamed and the man swore, but he went home with his wife. And the wife tells all the neighbors. And husband is beginning to feel quite proud to think that his wife was so dead in love with him that she would make such an exhibition of herself—and of him—and altogether the two of them seem to be quite moderately happy together again.

The other woman found out her husband, and she gave him up and went away, after the most approved modern fashion—and she's dying of grief and humiliation and misery, just as if she didn't know that the man wasn't worth one hour's real sorrow.

Sometimes I wonder whether the primitive, uneducated, uncultivated woman isn't, after all, the happier and the better off, just because she is so primitive and so uneducated and so uncultivated that she can do the simple, primitive, natural thing and not hate herself for doing it.

The boy who is breaking his mother's heart is just as clever and just as well educated as the boy next door, who is keeping his mother alive by his unselfish good cheer and friendly comradeship.

The greatest sorrows are not those that come from the lack of money or from the lack of mental training. They are the old, primitive griefs that wrung the hearts of our grandmothers when they lived in the caves centuries ago.

What are we going to do about them?

Perhaps the super-women, or at least one of the 15 super-women, will be able to tell us when she graduates.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Air and Water Best Cure For a Muddy Complexion

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

Copyright, 1914, by L. K. Hirshberg.

DR. HIRSHBERG.

BABYLONIA was noted for its beautiful women. So was Greece and Rome. Those lands were also distinguished by their wickedness. Yet there is no logic in this analogy. It is merely a coincidence.

Semiramis was the beautifier rather than the founder of Babylon, according to Justin, Strabo and Herodotus. They fail to say, however, what made the women of Nineveh so lovely.

Just as eyes are made for seeing, has beauty its own excuse for being. St. Augustine soliloquizes about beauty: "And lo! Thou wert within, and I abroad searching for Thee. Thou wert with me, but I was not with Thee."

Olivia inventories her own beauty in "Twelfth Night" as made up of two lips, red; two gray eyes with lids to them, one neck, one chin, and so forth.

Diogenes Laertus, in his personal account of Aristotle, proves that philosophers no less than fair women are interested in beauty. Aristotle used to say that personal beauty was a better introduction than any letter; but others say that it was Diogenes who gave this description of it. Aristotle also called beauty "the gift of God."

Common Facial Blemishes.

Socrates called it "a short-lived tyranny"; Theophrastus, "a silent deceit"; Theocritus, "an ivory mischief"; Carneades, "a sovereignty which stands in need of no guards."

Is it a wonder, then, that savants and physicians, barbers and prima donnas, should be appealed to more often for an appearance like Idalian Aphrodite, fresh as foam, new bathed in Paphian wells?

If there are any facial blemishes which mar the blushes and roses of girls more commonly than blackheads, medical experience has yet to meet them.

Blackheads are those peppery, black periods that punctuate the face of sweet Helen and pouting Rosalind. They occur in a small, discrete way sometimes upon all human flesh.

They linger and accumulate, though, only in the skin of those who over-eat, over-indulge themselves in oils, sugars, spices and fancy foods, or who suffer from inheritance or internal disorders.

Even the beauty that is the rhetoric of persuading eyes, that might be dumb eloquence more than words of wisdom from the wise, that might stir the blood or be a harmony whose diapason lies like the key of passions to ravish the senses, loses all its power when blackheads show themselves.

Natural Remedies Best.

Blackheads are not the tiny worms with dark specs as heads. This notion prevails because the little oil canals of the skin become plugged with this flesh-wax, and the dust from the air puts a dry patch on its outer end.

To be fairer than the flowery meads of the June days, those who suffer with blackheads must begin to starve their stomachs a bit. Begin to approach the "matchless Ganymede, divinely fair," by subsisting upon green vegetables, plain bread and lots of pure, fresh water.

Laxatives and fresh air, sunlight to the point of tanning, and the taboo of all soups, gravies, greases, fried dishes and sweets must be your new aim.

Nocturnal masks made of glycerine, sulphur, peroxide and fresh lanolin will help you to eradicate blackheads.

Never use soap of any sort upon your face, but dissolve away the blackheads, grease and dirt by means of a neutral, non-oily glycerine cream.

The human cheeks are channels for tears, therefore a tearlike mixture of one teaspoonful of table salt to a quart of water may be safely used as a frequent face wash.

Answers to Health Questions

MRS. T. C., Camden, N. J.—Thank you for these excellent, helpful articles. I cannot wait at night until I see them. If something happens that I must wait a few hours I feel as if I've lost a friend.

I am very irritable, nervous and worrisome. I've had stomach disorders for 18 years. I suffer with noises in the head, neuralgias, bilious attacks, constipation, and my heart palpitates. Is there any hope for me?

You have indeed had a rough time of it. If you could possibly live at the seashore or in the mountains where you would bathe, exercise, drink 20 glasses of water a day and eat lots of fruits much might be done.

However, there is every reason why you will be well. Take a Bulgaria tablet of lactic acid bacilli with milk and sugar three times a day. Stop eating a great diet, and avoid soups, stews, saurkraut, cabbage, sausage and giblets.

Eat a little bit often. Go out doors four or five hours a day and drink a tumbler of water every hour. At night drink two hot glasses of milk, and if you then lie awake or worry, try to hold your head three inches up from the pillow until it drops back, "dead tired."

Words of Wise Men

What a man does with his wealth depends upon his idea of happiness. Those who draw prizes in life are apt to spend tastelessly, if not viciously; not knowing that it requires as much talent to spend as to make.—E. P. Whipple.

A spirit of revenge is the very spirit of the devil; than which nothing makes a man more like him. If your revenge be not satisfied, it will give you torment now; if it be, it will give you greater hereafter. None is a greater self-tormentor than a malicious and revengeful man, who turns the poison of his own temper in upon himself.—J. M. Mason.

There is no real elevation of mind in a contempt of little things. It is, on the contrary, from the narrow views that we consider those things of little importance, which have, in fact, such extensive consequences.—Fenelon.

Give a child the habit of sacredly regarding the truth, of carefully respecting the property of others, of scrupulously abstaining from all acts of improvidence which can involve him in distress, and he will just as likely think of rushing into an element in which he can not breathe as of lying, or cheating, or stealing.—Brougham.

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

"I DON'T see why you play with dolls," said Jack Rabbit to Baby Bunny, just before supper one night.

"I get lonesome when you fellows are away," began Baby Bunny. "Mirandy Lou is very dear to me. My doll is as much to me as your skates are to you."

"Come on and get in bed," began Jack as he pulled down the covers for Baby Bunny to jump in. His brother tucked him in and put the doll next to him. Then he went back to where Billy was.

"I like those Indian stories," said Jack. "I wish Father would tell us some more."

"Let's ask him," said Billy.

Brer Rabbit came in the back door dragging a cabbage leaf behind him. When he had placed it on the kitchen table he sat down by the evening light and began to read the Woodland News.

"Here are your slippers, Father, dear," said Jack.

"What are you getting so good to me for?" asked Brer Rabbit.

"We want another Indian story," said Billy.

"I certainly will tell you another then," said Brer Rabbit, putting down his newspaper, and laughed to himself, then began:

"Silver Star and Ka-wash-a, his sister, loved to sit in the star light and wonder what was going on many, many miles away. Ka-wash-a thought the sky was a big black piece of cloth with the sun shining behind it. The stars were holes in the curtain.

"One evening when they were watching the stars a wolf came very near them.

"'Keep still, little sister,' said Silver Star. 'I will make him go away.' Ka-wash-a moved closer to her brother as Silver Star began to make a noise like a bumble bee, 'Bz-z-z.'

"Wolves are afraid of bumble bees because they get in their hair and sting them. The wolf went away in a hurry, while Ka-wash-a said softly to her brother:

"'You are a very brave boy, I am proud of you.'

"'That was not bravery,' said Silver Star; 'it was just using what I know about wolves.' With that they went back home."

Brer Rabbit exclaimed: "What! you rascals aren't asleep yet!"

"No," said Billy, "we were too interested to go to sleep."

"Hell!"

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties.—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

To Stop Hiccoughs.

Simple cases of hiccough are often relieved by such measures as sucking ice or taking salt and vinegar, says the New York Medical Journal. Pulling the tongue forward and holding it for some time is an effective procedure. Sometimes obstinate hiccough is relieved when the patient is strong by having him hang with the arms extended and grasping some beam or pole, so that his feet do not touch the floor. With all the abdominal muscles tense, have him hold his breath as long as possible. Sneezing is very efficient in certain cases, since it is the exact opposite to hiccough, being a sudden expiratory act.

AEROPLANE'S USE LIMITED TO WAR

Too Expensive and Too Dangerous to Become a Popular or Practical Means of Travel

Although the possibilities of the aeroplane as an asset of very great value indeed in the warfare of the future have been generally recognized by aviation experts for some years past, there would still seem to remain considerable doubt in the minds of those who have made a study of the conquest of the air as to whether the aeroplane is ever likely to prove of assistance in ordinary everyday business life. The Birmingham Post secured a number of interesting expressions of opinion on the subject from leading students of the science of aviation.

"I have made a profound study of aeroplanes for many years and, as yet, I have not found any use for them except for military purposes," said Sir Hiram Maxim. "Quite true, they may be very popular, and considerable numbers of them sold for sporting purposes, but sport does not increase the wealth of nations.

"Passengers wish to start from some definite point at a given time, to travel in safety and comfort in all kinds of weathers, and to be delivered at the place of destination promptly on time, and they ask all this at a very low price. It is impossible for the aeroplane to fill all of these conditions, and as far as freight is concerned, the cost of carrying a pound by aeroplane over a given distance would be quite as much as it would cost to carry a ton by rail or boat; therefore it is very difficult to see how the aeroplane can be of any commercial value."

M. Victor Menard, official aviator at Reims, had this to say: "I must confess at once that, as far as everyday business life is concerned, I do not consider it probable that the aeroplane will ever play a particularly useful or important part. Although the science of aviation is, to a very great extent, merely in its infancy, it is my firm convection that for commercial purposes, except in times of war, it will never prove of real value to mankind, that is to say in the same way as does the motor car.

"I should like to add, however, that in the colonies and 'new' countries where railways are regarded as luxuries and not necessities, the aeroplane will probably play a very important part for postal purposes, and also for medical purposes. In far-away homesteads in Canada, for example, in times of illness, the doctor of to-morrow is likely to make great use of the aeroplane."

Count Henry de la Vaulx, one of the many French aeronauts who have made their mark in the science of aviation believed that sportsmen would take kindly to the aeroplane for the sake of adventure, but, "I must confess that I cannot see that it is ever likely to prove of much value in everyday life, for the sole and simple reason that, comparatively speaking, flying must be an undertaking always fraught with a certain amount of danger."

Another English authority, Mr. H. Barber, said that in his opinion the aeroplane is never likely to prove of much assistance in everyday life. He based his conclusion on the fact that the expense of flying, while it will probably become less than it is at present, must always be considerably greater than any other means of securing sport or transportation, and for that reason it could only be indulged in by persons with well-lined purses at their disposal.

TABLES AND DECORATION

Only Those Which Are Useful Truly Beautify a Room

The old-fashioned center table has given place to special tables, each useful for one thing and decorative because they are useful. The tea table or tea wagon is a pleasant addition to comfort, and the small tables are so pretty and fit into nooks and corners where they reign modestly and effectively. The old-fashioned candle and stand beside the bed, holding the water set, the favorite book, and other night comforts, is distinctly sensible and therefore decorative in the best sense.

Stevenson once said his ideal room should contain a lot of tables—empty. He evidently wanted freedom to use them as the mood suggested. Freedom is the thing the fussy housekeeper fights; certain things belong on tables and there they must be. If it is a vase or a photograph easily toppled over the danger zone around that table is a wide one.

The Japanese solve the clutter question as they do many house matters for us Canadians. One beautiful thing on which to concentrate one's attention is enough for them in a room. A vase perhaps, and after a time another takes its place, resting the eye, giving variety and eliminating confusion and much dusting. Massive tables belong only in large rooms; a few books and magazines, a reading lamp, and spaces left for convenience, what more do we want or need on them? When a table makes it difficult to pass through a room, separates people from the chance of intimate conversation, destroys the sense of freedom and space, it would better be moved or eliminated entirely.

SEWING SUGGESTIONS

A spool-board will be found a great convenience in the sewing room. Cover a light wooden board with cambric, cretonne, or any suitable material, or paint it. Drive into the board plenty of those long wire nails which are slender and have small heads. Hammer them only enough to hold firmly, leaving them protruding a good distance. Make holes with a gimlet through the upper two corners, to attach a cord or wire for hanging the board in the sewing room. Fill the spikes with spools of cotton and sewing silk. They will be out of the way, and at a glance you can tell which one you want.

To make strong buttonholes, place a fine piece of muslin or lawn underneath the buttonhole and work it the same as usual. When it is all finished cut away the muslin close to the stitch.

When putting hooks and eyes on a waist, try this quick way of doing it without measuring: Sew the eyes on the left front, the desired distance apart, with the loops out far enough to make hooking easy; then baste the right front carefully over the left, lapping as much as may be desired; turn the waist just as it is, wrong side out, put a hook in every eye and sew them in position.

When stitching seams on the machine in a silk garment, use either fine cotton or one thread cotton and the other of silk. By so doing you will obviate any puckering of the seams, and if you should have to rip them you will have far less trouble.

Many women have not discovered this easy way to shirr. Gather everything—ruffles, tops of sleeves, etc.—on the machine, stitching in the ordinary way without the use of extra attachments. Simply set the screw for the longest possible stitch and loosen the tension, then stitch as usual. The lower thread can easily be pulled tight, with the result that the gathers are much more even than can be done by hand.

One woman has discovered that the following process makes velvet look like new: Let the fire in the range get very low, take a large cloth, wring in cold water, and spread over the top of the stove. Then spread the velvet over the cloth till the nap rises.

FACTS ABOUT THE BIBLE

It will surprise many persons to learn that there are two chapters in the Bible which are practically identical, these being the 19th chapter of the Second Book of Kings and the 37th chapter of Isaiah. There are 929 chapters with 592,493 words in the Old Testament, and 260 chapters and 181,253 words in the New Testament. Asked off-hand, one would probably say there were more words in the Bible than in Shakespeare's works, but, as a matter of fact, the balance is in favor of the Bard, who has the respectable total of 814,780, or 41,317 more than the Bible. Altogether his plays have no fewer than 1,277 characters, one of whom (Hamlet) has 11,610 words to deliver.

"Hamlet," indeed, is the longest play, containing as it does 3,930 lines, while the "Comedy of Errors," is the shortest, with 1,777 lines. The longest word is "honorificabilitudinatibus," which is certainly a tongue-twister. The curious can find all the letters of the alphabet in the 21st verse of the 7th chapter of Ezra, while reference to the 117th Psalm will show that it is not only the shortest chapter in the Bible, but also the middle chapter of the book.

Palmist's Defence

Jane M'Connell, or Marshall, known professionally as Mme. Nita, was convicted at Glasgow of professing to tell fortunes by palmistry. She said she believed that by means of the hand she could tell certain things with regard to the future. She practised no deceit, really believing in what she told the people. She was fined $36.

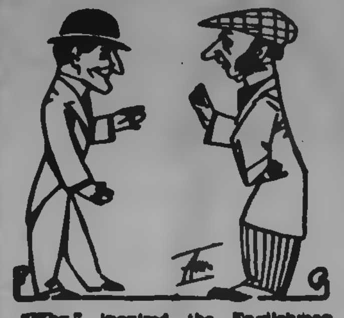
The Base Bawled.



"Why," inquired the Englishman, "do they call this game baseball?"

"The first time it was played," explained the American fan, "the members of a singing quartet were among the players, and when the umpire said 'Strike 4!' it made the bass bawl."

S. Holmes, Jr.

"Hah!" said Sherlock Holmes, Jr., as he and the doctor sat down in the dining car.

"What is it, Sheri?" asked the great detective's companion.

"Notice the man across the aisle?"

"Yes."

"He is paying his own way. He is not one of the many who have the privilege of turning in expense accounts when they get home."

"Wonderful! Do you know him?"

"No. I never saw him before."

"How have you succeeded in making this startling deduction?"

"Look at the bill of fare. You will see that they are serving strawberries in this car. He is not ordering any."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Ruler of Russia's Title.

The general allusion to the ruler of Russia as the czar is, strictly speaking, incorrect. His official title is "emperor and autocrat." Czar is the old Russian word for lord or prince and was abandoned by Peter the Great on his triumphal return from Poltava, his crowning victory over Charles XII. of Sweden. Since then the Russian monarch has been officially entitled emperor, and at the congress of Vienna in 1815 his right to the imperial term was admitted by the powers, with the proviso that, though he was emperor, he had no precedence over the kings of western Europe.—St. James' Gazette.

Strange Death of Rival Stags.

Many records exist of the way in which rival stags have met their death when fighting for supremacy. Probably none is more strange than that described by Herr C. Drathmore of Charlottenburg in the Deutsche Jager-Zeitung. In 1908 the keepers on the Geibomsand shooting in Mecklenburg-Schwerin found a fine twelve pointer lying dead, apparently from antler thrusts and with both beams close together. Not far off was a smaller stag, a ten pointer, still living, but as its back was broken it was put out of its misery. On examination it was found that the antlers of the larger stag were torn out of the skull and the frontal bone was broken. The back of the smaller stag must have been broken in the struggle.

One of Mark Twain's Jokes.

Mark Twain played a practical joke on the first audience he addressed in England. This was in 1872, when his reputation was already high in that country, and the announcement of his lecture filled St. George's hall, London, to overflowing. Few if any of those present had ever seen the humorist. He came on the platform in evening dress, with the crestfallen air of a manager announcing a disappointment. "Mr. Clemens had landed at Liverpool and had fully hoped to reach London in time, but unfortunately missed his train." The audience started booing, but the boos changed into cheers and laughter when he added that, fortunately, Mark Twain was present and would do his best to fill the place of the defaulting Clemens.

THE DRINK CALLED COFFEE.

Here Is the Way They Made It in the Seventeenth Century.

There are in existence in Great Britain a few copies of an ancient cookbook, published in 1662, that gives what is perhaps the first English recipe for coffee. The recipe reads:

"To make the drink that is now much used, called coffee.

"The coffee berries are to be bought at any Druggist, about seven shillings the pound. Take what quantity you please, and over a charcoal fire, in an old frying pan, keep them always stirring until they be quite black, and when you crack one with your teeth that it is black within as it is without, yet if you exceed, then do you waste the Oyl, and if less, then will it not deliver its Oyl, and if you should continue fire till it be white it will then make no coffee, but only give you its salt. Beat and force through a lawn sieve.

"Take clear water and boil one-third of it away, and it is fit for use. Take one quart of this prepared water, put in it one ounce of your prepared coffee and boil it gently one hour, and it is fit for your use; drink one-quarter of a pint as hot as you can sip it. It doth abate the fury and sharpness of the Acrimony, which is the gender of the Diseases called Cronical."

Awfully Agonizing.

"He told me my operation would be absolutely painless."

"And wasn't it?"

"Now, it cost me a hundred dollars!"—Houston Post.

A SMART SPORTS COAT MODEL

The sports coat has evidently come to stay. Woman for all her love of fluffy, impractical clothes is quick to grasp a style that is useful and becoming at the same time. The sports coat is usually made of the lightest and woolliest of materials and is warm and handy to slip on over the one-piece frock for a morning's shopping or for a game of golf. The bright colors, vivid greens, reds and blues are popular and rather bright plaids. Tweed mixtures in somewhat quieter grays and browns will appeal to the more conservative and are quite as smart.

Emerald green boucle is used with 8128. The skirt is a brown tweed mixture.

This coat is cut with body and sleeve in one and may be worn closed over the side front with the collar in high turn down effect or may have the fronts turned back to form revers and the collar turned down to form a point on either shoulder.

It requires 4⅝ yards of 42 inch material to make this coat in size 36. No. 7297 is a three-piece skirt closing in front with just a suggestion of fullness at the belt in back. It may be made in size 24 with 3⅝ yards of 42 inch material.

Every day new designs for the one-piece frock appear. In this model of rose colored sponge we have the drop-shoulder, a blouse that closes surplice fashion and a smart yoked skirt.

Black satin collar and cuffs give the necessary relief.

This dress may be copied in size 36 with 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8128—sizes 32 to 44.
No. 7297—sizes 22 to 32.
No. 8098—sizes 34 to 42.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

THE SHORT COAT AND STRAIGHT LINED SKIRT A POPULAR DESIGN FOR SPRING

The short coat, cutaway in front and coming to a rounded point in back, seems to be the leading design of the moment. These are especially smart if accompanied by a vest in a bright colored silk or brocade. The raglan shoulder is noted more often than the set-in or kimono sleeve, although all are being worn. No. 8210-8212 is a new model developed in striped velours de laine with collar, vest and trimming bands on the skirt of embossed velvet. The raglan sleeve is a feature of the coat, and the skirt is relieved from plainness by the two shaped bands or flounces.

This suit may be copied in size 36 with 2 yards of 42 inch material for the coat (8210) and 3⅝ yards of 42 inch material for the skirt (8212) in size 24.

Velours de laine ranges in width from 36 to 40 inches, and may be purchased from $1.50 a yard and up.

No. 8225 shows the effectiveness of the new figured silks. It is a silk crepe with a conventional design on a plain French blue ground. The design is charmingly young and dainty. The gathered blouse has a yoke and sleeve cut in one and shows the new Japanese collar; a four-gored skirt gathered at the top completes the frock.

For a girl of 16 this dress requires 3⅝ yards of 36 inch material. These silk crepes may be purchased from 75 cents a yard and up.

No. 8210—sizes 32 to 42.
No. 8212—sizes 22 to 30.
No. 8225—sizes 14 to 18.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

The Hudson Six-54, $2050
(f. o. b. Detroit, Mich.)
Duty Paid.

Not All Sixes Will Do This

The average man thinks a Six is merely two cylinders added to a Four. The engineer knows better. Many baffling problems were solved by Howard E. Coffin and the Hudson engineers before the Hudson Six was perfected. Not all designers of Sixes have been so successful. Not all Sixes will develop the marvellous smoothness, the amazing flexibility, the vibrationless motion that one enjoys in the HUDSON Six. It's worth your while to see the HUDSON before you decide.

Until you drive a HUDSON Six you cannot realize its great advantage. Its smoothness and flexibility are an insurance as well as a delight. HUDSON Sixes are preferred because of high quality combined with moderate price. The Six-54 has four forward speeds, 135-inch wheel-base, motor 4½ x 5½, developing 55 horse-power. Made in Phaeton at $2050 and Sedan at $4050. The Six-40 has 123-inch wheel-base, motor 3½ x 5, developing 47 horse-power, gives 13 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and is, we think, the easiest riding car on the market. The Six-40 in Phaeton and Roadster at $2200, and in Cabriolet at $2675. All cars, of course, are electrically started and lighted, left side drive, center control, gasoline tank in cowled dash. Catalog on request. Demonstrations as arranged. Prices f. o. b. Detroit, Michigan, duty paid.

Havelock Man Won Suit.

A Toronto despatch of Saturday says that Judgment was given at Osgoode Hall, awarding John Robertson of Havelock, five thousand dollars damages from the town of Havelock, for the loss of his three children, aged two, six and ten years, who were killed in a cave-in at the municipal gravel pit last August.

Rev. Canon Davidson in Bad Fall.

The many friends of Rev. John C. Davidson, rector of St. John's church, will regret to learn that the latter was seriously hurt yesterday morning. After the morning service, the Canon crossing a room in his residence stepped on a rug which covered a polished hardwood floor. The rug slipped and the Canon was thrown heavily, striking his head. He was unable to attend the Sunday School, but took the evening service.

Big Social Function at Smith.

A big dance was held on Friday night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Avery, of the 7th line of Smith. Everything went merry as a wedding bell. The evening was characterized by good music, bright eyed pretty girls whirling round on the arms of their attendant cavaliers and a recherche supper. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Warboys, Mr. and Mrs. S. Slater, Mr. John Darling the Misses Wheeler, Mr. Harry Wheeler and a large party from Young's Point.

A Talented Artiste.

Miss Lavina Hallihan, the Canadian soprano, professionally known as Lillian Lavique, and formerly of Peterborough who has been meeting with great success abroad for the past couple of years, was recently married to Dr. Heber H. Ward, of New York City, by the Rev. Father Craig, of St. Joseph's church, Brooklyn. Miss Lavique made a very successful debut in London a short time ago, under her teacher Mme de Nevosk and intends returning to Paris to study a French repertoire and thence to Milan for Italian opera. She will still be known professionally as Lillian Lavique.

MARVELOUS BALSAMIC ESSENCES CURE CATARRH
NO DRUGS TO TAKE--A DIRECT BREATHING CURE

TO STOP A COLD QUICKLY AND PREVENTS CATARRH, USE "CATARRHOZONE"

This disease is most dangerous owing to its tendency to extend to the Bronchial tubes and lungs, where it causes Consumption. Unfortunately the people have had faith in sprays, ointments and snuffs, which can't possibly cure, and in consequence catarrhal disease has become a national curse. Science is advancing every day, and fortunately a remedy has been discovered that not only cures but prevents Catarrh. This new treatment "Catarrhozone" has sufficient power to kill the germs of Bronchitis, Catarrh and Asthma. It contains pure pine essences and healing balsams that go to the remotest part of the nose, throat and lungs, carrying health-giving medication to every spot that is tainted or weak. You don't take Catarrhozone like cough mixture—you inhale its healing vapor at the mouth and it spreads all through the breathing organs, soothing and curing wherever Catarrh exists. This is nature's way of supplying the richest balsams the purest antiseptics known to science.

A sneezing cold is cured in ten minutes. A harsh cough is eased in an hour, the most offensive catarrh is thoroughly drawn from the system.

For Asthma and Bronchial irritation nothing can equal Catarrhozone—every physician and druggist says so, and we advise our readers to try this treatment if suffering with a winter ill. The complete outfit costs $1.00, medium size 50c., at all dealers.

Not Likely to be Enforced Here

A bill is to be brought into the Ontario House, whereby any County Council shall have power to pass a by-law prohibiting the use of a motor vehicle on any highway under its jurisdiction during certain hours in any day provided that the total number of hours during which the use of such motor vehicles is prohibited shall not exceed in any one week twenty-four hours; and provided further that any such by-law shall not apply to physicians or clergymen using motor vehicles in the ordinary course of their respective callings.

A Lindsay Man's Invention.

A Lindsay inventor has discovered how to clean out all rats from the cellars and recesses where they congregate, and flies from the domicile. Both inventions are worked by electricity, and the machines perform the work as the inventor claims they no doubt will, a great boon to the public will be supplied, and the disagreeable sticky fly paper which may attach itself to one's coat-tail at any time, and the rat trap, which may take a finger off when making excursions through the cellar, will be dispensed with.

A Local Concert.

Referring to a notice in Saturday's Times of a pleasing function held in S.O.E. Hall, under the auspices of the Protestant Protective Association, it might be added that the following contributed to the program: Messrs. R. J. Winch, Dawson Kennedy, Mayor Buller, Ald. Johnston, Ald. Duncan, Pratt, Green, Miller, Callender and Nash. Mr. J. B. McWilliams very ably filled the chair.

Did Hotelmen "Cough Up?"

Port Hope Guide. The Police Committee have started to work. Yesterday, Mayor Bush, and Mr. J. C. Hayden visited the different hotels and the liquor store and in each case had an interview with the proprietor. This interview was an effort to find out if the hotelmen had been approached either by the police or their agents offering protection from prosecution in consideration of a sum of money to be paid weekly, five dollars being the amount mentioned.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Are you keeping your liver, stomach and bowels clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

No odds how sick, headachy, bilious and constipated you feel, a Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children — their little insides need a gentle cleansing, too.

RIGHTS IN CANADIAN PORTS ASKED FOR U. S. FISHERMEN

Deputation of Gloucester to Visit Ottawa, Accompanied by Representative of Secretary Bryan

Washington, Mar. 16.—Secretary of State Bryan has promised his active interest in trying to secure for the fishermen of Massachusetts and the Atlantic coast rights in Canadian ports, the denial of which often works hardship upon them and endangers the success of their trips. Dr. A. Piatt Andrew, of Gloucester, had a talk with the Secretary yesterday, and proposed that the State Department should send a representative to accompany a delegation of Gloucester marines in a call upon the Government at Ottawa and St. John's with their request.

At present American vessels are compelled to pay an annual tax of $1.50 a ton for the privilege of entering Canadian and Newfoundland ports to buy supplies, make repairs, etc., and vessels having power auxiliaries are not permitted to enter those ports at all, except in case of accident or disablement. Meantime, under the new tariff law providing for free fish, Canadian fishermen are free to enter American ports at will. Secretary Bryan promised to consult personally with Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, and secure his co-operation in an effort to have the Canadian and Newfoundland Governments remove the license fee and other disabilities.

Not only have the privileges named been offered in every reciprocity arrangement proposed by the British authorities to the United States, but from 1871 to 1875 these privileges were granted American fishermen. Fish is now on the American free list, and the United States has given to Canada and Newfoundland without return the American market, for which the very things she now asks for have often been offered.

EARLY ERECTION OF NEW DRY-DOCK

The Government Engineer, Mr. R. H. Fraser, C.E., was in the city on Saturday, completing arrangements for the laying out of the seven acres near Lock No. 6, expropriated by the Government for a drydock, with railway spur, repair shop, storehouses and repair basin.

ACCEPT THE PLAN, SAYS ASQUITH, WAIT FOR DETAILS

Details Now, Says Law--Government Will Give Chance for Discussion

London, Mar. 16.—Premier Asquith in the House of Commons to-day, made his promised statement on the Government's view as to Ulster opposition to Irish Home Rule, announcing a determination which, it is believed, may possibly change British history.

Before a chamber jammed to the Doors with members, and every gallery full to overflowing, the Premier gave in great detail the concessions the Government is willing to make to placate Ulster, declaring that giving Irish counties the right to vote on whether they would accept the Irish Parliament for a period of six years was as far as the Administration would go.

No More Concessions.

Asquith, while his words were mild, practically confirmed the recent statement of Secretary Churchill that no further concessions of any sort would be made. He said if the proposals of the Administration for a counties plebiscite were acceptable to the leaders of the Ulster men, the Government would proceed to make such supplementary financial and administrative adjustments of the Home Rule plan as would appear necessary. He insisted, however, that the Government had no idea of wasting its time by working out these details if its proposals looking to peace were rejected.

THE WEATHER.

ELLIS TELLS STORY OF WIFE'S MURDERER

Cincinnati Business Man Says Mind Is Blank as to Her Actual Death.

Chicago, Mar. 16.—With a wealth of detail concerning conversations with his wife in the ten days just before he killed her in a Chicago hotel last fall, but not a word directly touching the manner of her death, William Cheney Ellis to-day testified in his own defence in his trial for wife murder.

He steadfastly declared that his wife had confessed her love for another man and that he had pleaded with her to return to their Cincinnati home, where their two little children awaited them and where he was a respected and prosperous business man.

Pale and apparently on the verge of collapse, Ellis said:

"I simply seemed to give way. The first thing I knew I found myself in bed with my arms around Mrs. Ellis. I had on her kimono—an—and—and I saw my darling wife was dead.

"I got the knife and cut my throat and wrists. Then I called Mrs. Ebersole and asked her if she would not come down right away. I told her something terrible had happened. She said, 'Don't let it happen until I can come down.' 'It its too late, we're dying,' I said. After that I cut my throat and wrists again. Then the officers came."

WRIGHT CONTROLS THE AVIATION INDUSTRY; $1000 FOR MACHINE

New York, Mar. 16.—With the aviation industry of the country in his power, according to court decision, Orville Wright here from Dayton yesterday, indicated the terms on which his competitors in manufacturing will be permitted to continue in business. He named $1000 for each machine as a basis of royalty charges.

On the possibility of the Wanamaker Curtiss proposed transatlantic flight, Mr. Wright is not so optimistic as many of his contemporaries. He does not believe that the aeroplane has advanced in efficiency to the point that would enable it to carry the fuel necessary to cross the ocean in a single flight.

Mr. Wright declared that it would be necessary for the builders of the oversea craft to obtain a license for its construction from the Wright company.

Two Years in Russian Fortress for Publishing Pamphlet.

St. Petersburg, Mar. 16.—Prof. Baudoin de Courtenay, of St. Petersburg, has been sentenced to two years' confinement in a fortress for publishing a pamphlet entitled "National and Territorial Characteristics of Autonomy," which advocates Federalism. He was released on bail pending an appeal. Prof. Baudoin is a great authority on the Slavonic languages and has often represented Russia at foreign congresses.

SEA ROSE NINE FEET AND FLOODED TOWNS

Over 1,000 Persons Drowned by a Hurricane in Russia.

St. Petersburg, Mar. 16.—Over a thousand persons were drowned in cis-Caucasioia, during a violent hurricane to-day. The hurricane prevailed in the province of Kuban. The sea of Azov rose nine feet and flooded several villages. In the town of Achtyrskaya, near the city of Azov, the wall of water swept 860 houses into the sea, and a thousand people were drowned.

One hundred and fifty perished in the town of Yarenkaya. All along the Black Sea, trains were blown from their tracks by the terrific force of the hurricane.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT TO LEAVE IN SEPTEMBER

Then Will Go to Yukon, Says Rumor and Return Home Via the U.S. Route.

Lonkon, Mar. 16.—The Manchester Guardian, which is generally judicious in what it publishes regarding exalted personages, gives prominence to-day to a despatch from its correspondent in London who declares the Duke of Connaught will definitely close his term as Governor-General of Canada in September. The Duke, however, may not return to England immediately, seeing he is going to visit the Yukon. His Royal Highness is likely to return home via the United States, taking leave of President Wilson at Washington and spending a few days in New York in private engagements. The Guardian's correspondent adds that the Duke will, on the close of his Canadian term of office, consider his long public career ended.

As to his successor at Ottawa, this correspondent thinks the Duke of Teck will not likely accept, seeing he is due to command the First Life Guards.

The Ulster defence fund received $150 from the Grand Orange Lodge of Manitoba.

EVADED GRAVE FOUR DAYS MRS. CAMPBELL IS DEAD

Wife of Oil Springs, Ont., Doctor Who Recovered When Thought Dead, Slept Life Away.

Oil Springs, Mar. 16.—After having raised the hopes of relatives and friends by regaining consciousness following her apparent demise Mrs. J. Campbell died about 10 o'clock last night.

Early Thursday morning, her husband, Dr. Campbell, who had watched at her bedside while she lay unconscious of an incurable trouble, believed life was extinct, and funeral notice cards were ordered from Petrolea and Undertaker Penfound of Oil Springs was summoned. On the latter's arrival he found that the doctor had discovered signs of life, and there was hope that Mrs. Campbell might become conscious again. The next day her friends rejoiced that consciousness had returned and she remained so for two days, though no hopes were held out for her recovery. On Sunday morning she fell into a deep sleep and last night she passed away.

Mrs. Campbell was sixty-five years of age, and formerly resided at Florence, where Dr. Campbell practised for many years. Since coming to Oil Springs about fourteen years ago the doctor had lived retired, but he and his wife had made many friends in this district. One daughter at home survives.

GREEN FIDO DOES NOT APPEAL TO IRISHMEN

Hibernians Warn Merchants Against Caricatures.

New Orleans, Mar. 16.—The Irish people of New Orleans don't want any green pigs, green chickens, clay pipes or anything of that sort sold on St. Patrick's Day.

For this reason the Irish members of the County board, Ancient Order of Hibernians, have passed strong resolutions asking the merchants and business men of New Orleans to restrain themselves from putting such exhibits in their show windows.

According to one member, "Shamrocks are all right, post cards and other things of the sort. But who ever heard of a green dog? What patriotism would there be in a green Fido, anyhow?"

St. Patrick's Day, March 17, will be celebrated by a ball at the Knights of Columbus Hall

GRAND LIAMA ARRIVES FOR SECRETARY BRYAN

Buenos Ayres Mayor Sent Live Gift Six Feet Tall.

New York, Mar. 16.—An exceptional llama, which might be called a Grand Llama, arrived to-day from Buenos Ayres aboard the steamship Verdi, consigned to William J. Bryan, "Minister of the Interior," which is the Argentine conception of the office of Secretary of State.

The Mayor of Buenos Ayres selected the llama as a gift to Col. Bryan from a big herd of animals, five others of which were passengers by the Verdi. The Bryan llama, or, as it was known on shipboard, "Billy," is exceptionally tall for a beast of its kind, being nearly four feet from the ground to the shoulders, and to the top of its head, surmounting an unusually long neck, more than six feet from the deck.

SIGNS FOR TRADE BETTERMENT IN OUR CANADIAN WEST

Natural Optimism Reveals Itself in Many Parts of Manitoba and Saskatchewan

Winnipeg, Mar. 16.—As the end of winter draws near, the natural optimism of the Westerner begins to show itself, and already there are signs of a better feeling in the country. Last week was mild and the wise ones are predicting an early spring. The snow has practically disappeared from the fields in most parts of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and the farmers are beginning to think about getting their implements in shape for an early start.

As the weather last fall was particularly favorable to getting the crop in early and as it continued mild until quite late there was a great deal more plowing done than usual. This gives the farmer a good start, and if the spring comes early, as present conditions seem to indicate, we can count on getting the sowing done in record time. Already immigrants are starting to arrive in such numbers that most of the West-bound trains on the main lines are being run in two sections. This is a cheerful sign, and helps to promote the better feeling which everywhere is in evidence.

While there undoubtedly are indications of an improvement business is still dull. There are as yet no general signs of money loosening up, and the tendency is to go slow and watch developments as the spring progresses. This is pretty much the rule all through the country, and was brought home to your correspondent by conditions in the different parts visited the last ten days.

HON. F. COCHRANE BETTER

Will Be Back in Canada in April After Visit to Nice.

Montreal March 16.—A London cable says: Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals for Canada, whose health necessitated a trip abroad, says that he is feeling much better since his arrival here, and that he only needed a thorough rest. He is taking things so quietly that his presence here has escaped the notice of the London press, and also the attention of many Canadian officials.

Mr. Cochrane is leaving to-day for Nice in the South of France, where he will probably stay till the end of the month, returning to Canada early in April.

ONE-LEGGED GAMBLER FALLS AFOUL POLICE

New Orleans, Mar. 16.—In a spectacular raid on a card game at St. Joseph and Calliope streets Saturday afternoon, the police captured Charles Johnson, a one-legged negro, a pair of dice and a Lincoln penny. The dice and money are in the Central Station and the negro is in a cell.

Operator Ervine, of Central district, was notified of the game through an anonymous phone call. Several officers donned their weatherproofs, and assuming a determined look, started for the scene of trouble. When they arrived the game was at its pinnacle. One newsboy was heard to offer to bet three cents that the manipulator of the "bones" could not throw "big dick."

Cautiously the officers approached to within a few feet of the gamblers before being discovered. A scramble followed. In one second the only person on the block besides the officers was the unfortunate negro with the hardwood limb.

PASSED BOGUS HALF DOLLAR

Toronto, March 16.—On the evidence of a private citizen, William H. Hill, who followed the prisoner from hotel to hotel, Fred Schelf, of Port Perry, was sentenced to four days in jail for passing a bogus 50-cent piece in the Tremont Hotel. George Brooks, a companion of Schell's, was let go.

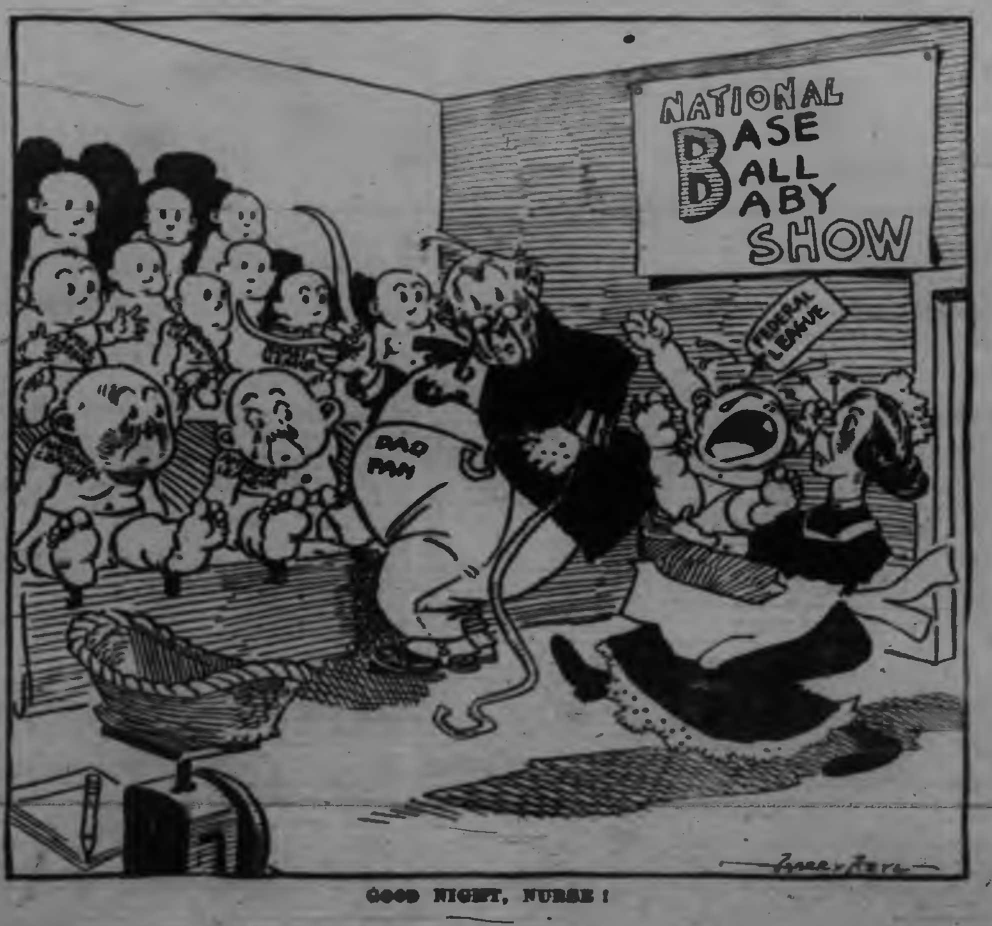
Exile In

EXILE ENOUG PUNISHMENT

Toronto, March 16.—Two years exile in Chicago which William Morrisey has taken since he committed an assault on Allan Hartwick was considered sufficient punishment by Magistrate Denison, and the young man who was arrested on a two-year-old warrant, was let go.

$30,000 IA BUILDING PERMITS.

Toronto, Mar. 16.—Mr. H. L. Atkinson was to-day granted a building permit to erect a number of stores and dwellings on St. Clair avenue, near St. Clarens, to cost $30,000.



GOOD NIGHT, NURSE!

M'CONKEY APPEAL DISMISSED FLATLY BY JUDGE DENTON

New Year's Eve Celebration Is Denounced in Scathing Terms by His Honor

Toronto, Mar. 16.—Concurring with the opinion of Magistrate Denison that the whole affair "was a revelry by night, an orgy and a disgraceful scene for such a well known establishment," Judge Denton, in a lengthy written judgment, given out to-day, dismissed with costs the appeal of Ernest G. McConkey from the conviction of Magistrate Denison and the suspension for 60 days of the appellant's liquor license for keeping a disorderly house.

His Honor finds that in the Police Court proceedings Magistrate Denison placed more reliance on the evidence of the waiters and the two policemen than that of the forty witnesses "who were not particularly anxious to show that the company they were keeping was disorderly."

In his judgment his honor says:

Defining "Disorderly."

"If the court were driven to rely on the criminal code and the decisions based upon it for a definition of a disorderly house, this case would be a very simple one. The appeal would have been allowed at once, for there is not the slightest evidence before me that McConkey's establishment comes within that definition, and the same conclusion would, I think, have been reached if, unaided by the Liquor License Act itself, we had to rely on the generally-accepted legal definition of a disorderly inn.

"To that extent I quite agree with Mr. Ludwig that a house must, in a sense, be disreputable before it can be said to be disorderly, but Section 81 under which the conviction is made, itself states when and under what circumstances a magistrate may convict. And if there was, in fact, disorderly conduct in this house on the night or morning in question, it cannot, I think, be successfully contended that it was not disorderly conduct in point of law, simply because it has not shown that there was disorderly conduct in the same place on some previous occasion."

MOLLER CLAIMS HE WAS TRICKED INTO MARRIAGE

Son of Former Partner of H. O. Havemeyer, in Suit to Recover $150,000.

New York, Mar. 16.—The suit of Charles J. Moller to recover upwards of $150,000 from Symbert Summers and Jane Summers, or Jane Moller, who tricked him into a marriage, he says on August 24, 1910, when he was 65 years old and the woman 45, will be called for trial to-morrow in the Supreme Court. Mr. Moller is the son of the late Peter Moller, who left an immense fortune made in the sugar business, in which he was at one time a partner of Henry O. Havemeyer.

The complaint in the case recites that Jane Summers induced Mr. Moller to marry her, while she was still the wife of Symbert Summers, although no ceremony had been performed between them. Before he married the woman, Mr. Moller says, she admitted to him that in 1904 she went to St. Louis to marry Summers, and that he induced her to consent to common law marriage because he is an agnostic. For two years she lived with him in St. Louis as his wife. Mr. Moller's attorneys, Cabell & Gilpin, insist that under the laws of Missouri, the marriage was valid, and that it will be recognized in New York.

YOUNG RUSSIAN SEES PREMIER AND IS GIVEN PRESENTS

Sends a Drawing to Sir James Whitney Which Was Framed--Invited to Home of Prime Minister

Toronto, Mar. 16.—There is no prouder boy in Toronto to-day than Max Miller, of 129 Palmerston avenue. He is one of the few persons who have had the pleasure of seeing Sir James since his illness. There is a touching little romance surrounding the visit of this boy of ten to the Premier of Ontario.

Max Miller is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Miller, Russian Jews, who came from Odessa to Canada six years ago. He appears to be a boy of exceptional intelligence for his age, and is well up in history and geography. "He is like a political man," said his mother who spoke with maternal pride of the accomplishments of her son. Young Max was greatly distressed at the illness of Sir James Whitney, and followed with interest the daily reports as to his health.

Prayed For Recovery.

He used to pray that he might recover, and there was no one more delighted than he when he read that the Premier was better and on the road to recovery. Among his other accomplishments, Max is fond of drawing, and when he read the good news he sat down with pencil in hand and tried to draw Sir James' likeness from a portrait published in one of the daily papers. His first attempt was not very satisfactory, but his second drawing was so excellent that his parents and everybody who saw it said it was the picture of an artist, and the boy was advised to send it to Sir James. He wrote a touching little letter, saying how sorry he was to read of his illness, and that he was always praying that Canada would not lose him. "I showed the picture to my ma," he wrote, "and she said that for ten years of age it was not so bad."

Invited to See Premier.

Two days later he received from Miss Nora Whitney, the following letter:

113 St. George St., Feb. 16th.

"Dear M. Miller,

"My father asked me to write and tell you how pleased he was with your letter and the photograph you drew. He is not able to write letters yet. He wants you to see him when he is well enough to come home, and will tell you himself how he appreciates your thinking of him.

"Very sincerely yours,
"Norah Whitney."

HUERTA WILL ADD 50,000 TO HIS ARMY

According to Official Figures, He Will Then Have 300,000 Men.

Mexico City, Mar. 16.—Another increase in the army is announced. It is stated that the regular establishment is to be raised from 200,000 to 250,000 men. Including the irregular service, if the official figures of the strength of the army are correct, would give President Huerta 300,000 men.

Coronation Memoirs.

Perhaps the most calamitous of all coronation days in England was that of William the Conqueror.

After the coronation oath, whereby the new monarch promised to protect the Church and to execute judgment and mercy, the archbishop put the usual question

"Will you have this Prince to be your King?"

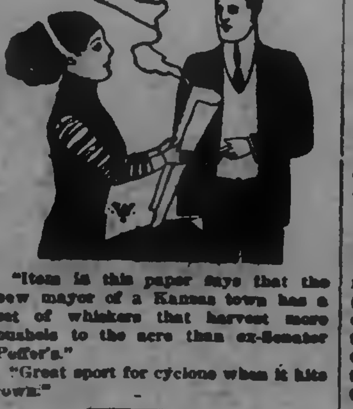
A clamorous shout of assent from the assembled English so startled the Norman soldiers outside that they immediately set out burning and plundering, believing the English had revolted.

Charles Stuart had a most unfortunate day. The royal barge stuck in the mud of the Thames; the sermon sounded like a funeral oration; an earthquake shock was felt during the ceremony; and, finally, the herald pronounced him the "dubitable heir, instead of the "indubitable" heir.

When George III. was installed on the throne, the master of ceremonies forgot the Sword of State, and the chair and canopy for the banquet.

And as he moved down the Abbey with the great circlet on his head, the large diamond dropped out.

Discussing the News.



"Item in this paper says that the new mayor of a Kansas town has a set of whiskers that harvest more bushels to the acre than ex-Senator Peffer's."

"Great sport for cyclone when it hits town."

The Famous Dudley Pearl.

The famous Dudley pearl has been bought by an American purchaser and is now in this country, where it is likely to remain. It weighs 200 grains and came originally from the Indian fisheries. At one time it belonged to the Spanish royal family, and there is a painting of it in the royal galleries at Madrid. It was stolen from Spain and was unheard of for several years, when it reappeared and was bought by the Earl of Dudley, who has now sold it to the present owner, who is anonymous.

His Money.

A poor beggar received a monthly allowance of $5 from a rich man. The money used to be paid to him regularly by the bookkeeper. On one occasion when the poor man came around the bookkeeper handed him only $3. The poor man remained standing quietly until the bookkeeper asked whether there was anything else he wished.

"You must have made a mistake," he said. "I always get $5."

"Yes," replied the bookkeper; "that has now been changed."

"Changed? Why?"

"You see, the boss recently married off his eldest daughter, and he had a great deal of expense, as you may imagine—the dowry and so forth. You can easily understand"—

"Yes, yes!" grumbled the beggar. "Give your employer my best wishes and tell him that if he ever marries off another daughter he may do it with his own money, not with mine." —Maccabean.

When to Eat Fruit.

To obtain the most benefit from the succulent fruits they should be eaten at the end of the chief meal. Bananas are an exception and may be eaten with any meal. They are very acceptable cut in thin slices and eaten with bread and butter. Stewed fruits often have their virtues wasted through being eaten at the wrong time. Six or eight stewed prunes half an hour before breakfast are beneficial; so are stewed figs or stewed apples eaten before breakfast. Peeled oranges cut into thin slices so that the juice is set free, with sugar strewn over the slices, are not unlike pineapple and form a highly efficacious aid to digestion. Grapes should never be eaten except after the chief meal of the day. Taken when the stomach is comparatively empty, they are a specially harmful fruit.—Family Doctor.

The Modern Idea.

Roman Guide (impressively) — The ruins of the Colliseum! Seattle Man (astonished)—Well, what do you think of that! Why, I saw photographs of that heap twenty years ago. Roman Guide (loftily)—Quite likely, sir. Seattle Man—But why in thunder aren't those ruins cleared away and a modern Colliseum erected?—New Orleans Picayune.

Unless.

Townsend—Can a man live on $1 a day? Boers—Certainly, unless he's so prodigal as to lay something aside for a rainy day, keep up his insurance, eat when he's hungry, buy clothes and pay his bills.—Chicago News.

Flight.

"Would you take $10,000 to fly from Albany to New York?"

"Why not? Our cashier took only $2,000 to fly to Europe."

SOME IMPORTANT FACTS ABOUT THE SILVER BLACK FOX INDUSTRY

The first Island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $4,000.00; in 1911 the price went up to $6,000 a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000 was considered high but not unusual, and at the time of writing (January 20th, 1914), live breeders can bring any price from $15,000 to $35,000, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000 a pair.

About $10,000,000 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $3,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the island contain 899 silver breeding foxes, (441 males and 458 females.) The total number of silver offsprings for 1913 was 703, and the average assessed value was $4,892.53 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $3,349,149. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1602.

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,628.00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company have TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND Silver Black Foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option are all eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These Foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor, and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which, in 1913, paid from 45 p.c. to 900 p.c.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a per centage of the production will be retained, placing the Company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211 acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

NOTICE.—Should the shares of stock not be allotted, the money paid by you will be refunded by return mail.

SOME PRESS COMMENTS

"Widows" Fox Company Declares a 900 Per Cent. Dividend.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair & Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1910. This Company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent. was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I., who were employed in the States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $15,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $600 three years ago, and is now worth $45,000 directly from this source.

The Rosemount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1000 per cent. this year.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's Limited, received $25,000 from an investment of $600 made in this business three years ago.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $500 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $3,500. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair a year. The first litter consisted seven pups. The seven owners have received $36,000 each dividends since and the pair bought for $3,500 could be sold for $35,000 to-day. Mr. Austin Scales, of St. Eleanors, is a member of this Association

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvenev has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅛ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvenev's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

ARABS' QUEER WAYS

An Arab on entering a house removes his shoes, but not his hat. He mounts his horse upon the right side, while his wife milks the cow upon the left side. In writing a letter he puts nearly all the compliments on the outside. His head must be wrapped up warm, even in the summer, while his feet may well enough go naked in winter.

Every article of merchandise which is liquid he weighs, but he measures wheat, barley, and a few other articles. He reads and writes from right to left. He eats scarcely anything for breakfast, about as much for dinner, but after the work-day is done he sits down to a hot meal swimming in oil, or better yet, boiled butter.

His sons eat with him, but the females of his house wait till his lordship has done. He rides a donkey when travelling, his wife walking behind. He laughs at the idea of walking in the street, or even vacating his seat for a woman. If he be an artisan he does work sitting, perhaps using his feet to hold what his hands are engaged upon.

He drinks cold water with a spoon, but never bathed in it unless his home be on the seashore. He is rarely seen drunk, is deficient in affection for his kindred, has little curiosity and no imitation, no wish to improve his mind.

A WOMAN CONTRACTOR

Miss Durkin Chose Building as Her Profession

As a school girl Miss Alice Durkin of New York had ambitions for the years that were to follow her graduation. After the solid education of a normal school, as she did not wish to teach she took the first offer of employment she had and that happened to be in a builder's office. Though her's was only routine office work the details of the business fascinated her. She liked responsibility and saw that she could not have it without technical knowledge, so in every spare minute she studied plans and specifications. After three years of hard study in this way her employer allowed her to tender with regular contractors. This was the point she had worked to attain. It meant hard work and long hours, but the harder the problem the more it pleased her.

After seven years spent thus she started out for herself. She had gained the confidence of business men, and so had the financial credit necessary to allow her to begin her business. Building contracts became plentiful with her.

"Building is just as suitable an occupation for women as for men," says Miss Durkin, "and there is no reason why they should not enter into the lists for its prizes, but just because they have always regarded it as a 'man's work' they have left it alone.

TEETH NEED EXERCISE

Foods Which Require Chewing Should be in Daily Diet

Do you take care of your teeth? Do you recognize the fact that good teeth are a valuable asset in maintaining the general health of your entire body? Do you know that the kind of food you eat has an effect upon the condition of your teeth?

Teeth, as any other organ of the body, need exercise! This exercise must not be too severe, of course, especially if the teeth are not used to it. You will remember that the savage, who is accustomed to chewing and biting tough fibrous foods, usually has very fine teeth. The tendency, as civilization increased, has been to eat softer foods. And the result is that foods which require real chewing have become disliked and often eliminated, from the daily diet. Cooking, soaking, grinding and other means are resorted to nowadays to save the trouble of chewing when the food which needs chewing has been retained in the daily food list. This state of affairs has caused the teeth to forget their old cunning. Nature, finding there was little or no need for strong teeth, has failed to provide them.

Teeth are an attractive feature of the human face, as well as a useful member of the digestive apparatus of the body, therefore we should not give them a chance to disappear because of lack of use. Some foods which require chewing should always be found in our daily diet so that we may give our teeth some exercise and preserve these valuable aids to good health.

LIGHT ON THE HITTITES

A Great Palace Discovered in Central Mesopotamia

An account is published of fresh remarkable finds made by Baron von Oppenheim at Tell Halaf, the Hittite fortress town in Central Mesopotamia, where the Oppenheim expedition has been at work sing 1911.

Among the new discoveries are the ruins of one of the largest Royal palaces ever unearthed in West Asia. The inner court is over a hundred yards square, and it is enclosed by several rows of rooms. Among the smaller finds are elaborately carved stone door-angles and threshold stones, and very large water vessels.

Near the south door of Tell Halaf citadel was discovered a well-preserved female figure in basalt, and a second statue of an elderly woman holding a vessel. In the town proper was excavated a Hittite "cult chamber," the only one known, with two colossal statues, one male, the other representing a man and woman sitting together, and also a large number of statuettes and other small objects.

TO AVENGE HER SON

Would-be Murderess Disguises Herself as Nun and Attacks Judge

As Judge Balestrieri was leaving his residence in Naples he was waylaid by a woman disguised as a nun, who attacked him furiously with a butcher's knife, hacking him seriously about the head, neck, and shoulders. She was knocked over as she was about to plunge the weapon into the judge's heart.

The wounded man gasped out, "Why are you killing me? Who are you? What harm have I done you?" Whereupon the woman retorted, "You are the murderer of my son."

It appears that about a year ago the woman's son, a youth of eighteen, committed suicide by shooting himself, and the distracted mother got it into her head that he was murderer by a couple of cousins. She denounced them to the police, and Judge Balestrieri tried the case, the accused being acquitted.

WHERE CANADA LEADS

Canada possesses the largest mountain park in the world—"sixty Switzerlands into one"—thousands of square miles in extent.

Montreal has the largest grain conveying system in the world.

The largest pulp wood resources in the world are in the Dominion. These are being renewed by fresh growths, so that the supply will be inexhaustible.

Canada has the largest consecutive wheat field in the world—an area which is constantly extending and which justifies the prediction of Lord Strathcona that Canada will soon be the granary of the world.

The thickest coal seam in the world is found in Nova Scotia—48 feet.

The greatest sea fisheries in the world are those of the Dominion. These are worth, east and west, almost $50,000,000 per annum, and are capable of indefinite expansion. The salmon industry in British Columbia, great as it is, is in its infancy.

Canada has the largest nickel mines in the world; upon these the naval authorities are in great measure dependant, as nickel is employed in the armoring of warships.

The Dominion possesses a greater railway mileage than Australia and New Zealand or Italy and Spain combined, and more than all the South American countries.

The largest grain mills in the world are in the Dominion.

The largest elevator in the world is found at Port Arthur, with a capacity of seven million bushels.

The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Transmission Line—292 miles, is the longest in the world.

ANIMALS' RESTAURANT

One of the most interesting restaurants in the world is one in which the only diners are domestic animals. The restaurant is in Westminster, London, England. The sign on the window reads:

"Restaurant For Domestic Animals. English Meat Only. Fresh Twice Daily."

The restaurant is arranged so that the domestic animals which patronize it may be perfectly comfortable while they are getting their meals. Those that wish to do so many sit down while eating. The women who serve the diners are very fond of animals, and know the wants of each particular customer. One of the regular callers at the restaurant, a dog, prefers having his meals in private, so instead of eating his luncheon in the restaurant he walks from his home to the place every day, buys his luncheon and carries it home. He pays his own bill at the end of each week, carrying the money tied in a little wallet around his neck.

Cats, canary birds, goldfish, parrots, monkeys, squirrels and goats are also provided for in the restaurant.

A VETERAN CRICKETER

The One and Only "W. G." Still in the Game

Although sixty-five years old, Dr. W. G. Grace is still a keen cricketer. Dr. Grace played in his first recorded match 54 years ago, and when only sixteen appeared for the Gentlemen against the Players. In first-class matches he has played no fewer than 127 three-figure innings—126 in England and one in Australia—and in all kinds of cricket he has hit as many as 217 hundreds, a feat which no other cricketer has approached. He has scored no fewer than 13 double-centuries in first-class matches, and in consecutive innings in 1876 he made 344, 177 and 318 not out.

In 1895, when within two months of his 47th birthday, "W. G." scored 1,000 runs as early as May 30. But perhaps the most remarkable performance of his career was at Gravesend in May, 1895, in a match between Kent and Gloucestershire. He was in the field while every ball was bowled, and scored 257 and 73 not out, his wonderful batting coupled with Painter's unexpected success as a bowler in the second innings of Kent, giving Gloucestershire a brilliant victory.

Dr. Grace has also on seven occasions accomplished the double feat of scoring 1,000 runs and taking 100 wickets in one season. It has been well and truly said that he is the greatest cricketer who ever played, and that we cannot hope to see his like again.

DIVER'S BOTTLED AIR

New Outfit Does Away With the Pump and Tube

An important improvement has been made by a German inventor which makes it possible for the diver to remain several hours under water without any connection with the upper world. The innovation is a self-contained diving suit in which a supply of fresh air is generated and supplied to the diver as wanted, the supply being entirely under his own control. The expired air is purified automatically by passing over cartridges of chemical which absorb the impurities. In the place of the usual lead ballast, the diver carries on his chest a weight constituted by steel bottles where compressed air or highly compressed oxygen is accumulated. Whenever the diver wishes to reach the surface without any outside help, he simply opens the valve of these bottles, thus causing air to flow into his outfit and to impart to the latter the required buoyancy. This is how, in cases of emergency, he will from any normal depth reach, in a few moments, the surface of the water. A safety valve actuated with any excess pressure prevents the diving outfit from bursting with any accidental rise from considerable depths. The apparatus worked satisfactorily under the most severe tests.

A REVENGEFUL AND MALICIOUS PRIEST

The action of Father Murray, formerly priest at Fort Erie, in deliberately and maliciously trespassing upon another person's plot in the local cemetery by burying therein the body of an unknown foreigner, is a typical instance of the autocratic power some of the clergy of the Church assume unto themselves. The judgment that has been granted against him by Judge Livingstone, and the award of $200 damages in favor of the aggrieved persons, should be a lesson to Father Murray, and a few others who are similarly with the autocratic spirit that shows itself in disrespect and disregard for the State laws, that they are amenable to secular government in this country, and that they will not be allowed to ride rough-shod over the poor parishioner in this Province, whatever the practice may be in other Provinces. Some of the evidence adduced at the trial showed up Father Murray in a very bad light, and convicted him of having an unchristianlike spirit and a revengeful disposition.

THE WAY OUT

But, after all, the true way back to economy is by the path of policy. It is the feud with Germany which is alone responsible for this "rattle into barbarism." If we can end that feud and initiate the true Triple Alliance of England, France and Germany, we shall not only bring down our navy estimates but we shall decure the peace of the world on the only enduring basis that can be found for it. No doubt some still regard this as a vain dream. But why? Who would have thought in the autumn of 1911 when the two countries were on the brink of war over Morocco that in the winter of 1912 they would be jointly piloting Europe through the perils of the Balkan war and that to-day they would be negotiating an African treaty as serenely as if there had never been a quarrel? There is no ineviatble hostility any more than an inevitable war. Certainly there is none between the peoples of England and Germany, and the remarkable interparliamentary movement in France and Germany shows that there is none between the peoples of those countries either. It is the militarists and the jingoes who are the common enemy. And in both countries it will be found that the fire-eaters, the people who cry out for more ships, and still more ships, are the anti-social gentry — the Junkers in Germany, "The Spectators" and "National Reviews," here. They keep alive these animosties for controlling the democracy. Just as some theologians insisted on a material torment as a means of exercising moral control over their subjects, so these people create an external bogey in order to keep the people in subjection at home.

INDIGESTION ENDED, STOMACH FEELS FINE

Time "Pape's Diapepsin!" In five minutes all Sourness, Gas, Heartburn and Dyspepsia is gone.

Sour, gassy, upset stomach, indigestion, heartburn, dyspepsia; when the food you eat ferments into gases and stubborn lumps; your head aches and you feel sick and miserable, that's when you realize the magic in Pape's Diapepsin. It makes all stomach misery vanish in five minutes.

If your stomach is in a continuous revolt—if you can't get it regulated, please, for your sake, try Pape's Diapepsin. It's so needless to have a favorite food meal, then take a little Diapepsin. There will not be any distress—eat without fear. It's because Pape's Diapepsin "really does" regulate weak, out-of-order stomachs that gives it its millions of sales annually.

Get a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. It is the quickest, surest stomach relief and cure known. It acts almost like magic—it is a scientific, harmless and pleasing stomach preparation which truly belongs in every home.

PUBLIC OPINION

PRESERVE THE WATERFRONT.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—I notice that surveyors in the employ of the city are engaged in locating a site for a sewage disposal plant across the river from the street railway wharf. This will indeed be sad news to the working classes who have been in the habit of spending their summer evenings on the river at this point and who are unable from the lack of time and small incomes to go far afield for fresh air. The erection of such a plant in that vicinity will certainly mar the pleasure of thousands of our citizens, to say nothing of adding another unsightly disfigurement to our beautiful waterfront. Surely the pre-election champions of the interests of the working man in the city council will rise to the occasion and see that this injustice is not carried into effect. It may be said by those in favor of the project that the plant will be perfectly sanitary and odorless, and those who have never had to face a whiff of singed smells from the smoke-stack of the incinerator for which the same claims are made, will possibly believe the statement, but take it from the writer or anyone who ever had occasion to visit the vicinity of the small experimental plant in Toronto, the offensive odors are right there unless you have taken the precaution to plug your nostrils with limberger or some other mild disinfectant. One thing is sure, if the city council persists in erecting the plant at this point it will have scores of actions for damages to property on its hands. It will certainly spell ruin to ahost of small property owners who looked forward on the erection of a bridge, in the near future, to selling their holdings as suburban property.

Yours truly,
Camper.

Deaf as an Adder.

The expression "deaf as an adder" is from the Psalms of David where it appears in the following form: "Their poison is like the poison of serpents. They are like the deaf adder that stoppeth her ear which will not hearken to the voice of charmers, charming ever so wisely." East Indian travelers tell us that there is a widely prevailing superstition in the east to the effect that both the viper and the asp stop their ears when the charmer is uttering his incantations or playing his music by turning one ear to the ground and twisting the point of the tail into the other.

His Favorite.

"Which is your favorite Wagnerian opera?" asked the musician.

"Lemme see," said Mr. Cumrox, appealing to his wife. "There are several that I never heard yet, aren't there?"

"Yes."

"Well, I reckon it's one of them."—Washington Star.

Do Long Breaths Hurt?

DANGEROUS PLEURISY ALWAYS BEGINS THIS WAY.

Speediest Cure is Nerviline.

Ouch, that stab-like pain in the side is like a hot knife blade in the ribs.

Probably got overheated — cooled too fast—now there is congestion, tightness, such soreness you can't draw a long breath.

This is the beginning of Pleurisy.

Pleurisy is far too serious to neglect a single instant.

Quickest relief will come from a vigorous rubbing with Nerviline. This trusty old pain reliever will fix you up in no time—will take away the congestion—make you well just as it did Mr. Samuel St. Johns, of Stamford, who says:—"In running to catch a train last week I became much overheated. I put up the train window and rode that way in order to get cooled off. In an hour my side was so full of pain and my breathing hurt so much that I thought I had pneumonia. I always carry Nerviline in my grip and at destination I rubbed my side thoroughly three times. The warm penetrating effect was soon noticeable and I quickly got relief. Nerviline I consider saved me from a serious illness."

Any sort of a cold can be quickly broken up with Nerviline which is a marvel for reducing inflammation, for relieving congestion in the throat and chest, for curing stitch in the side, lumbago, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Nothing more soothing or powerful. The 50c large family size is the most economical. Small trial size 25c at dealers everywhere.

Not Surprised.

"Funny thing about Boliver," said Wiggins.

"What's that?" asked Bjones.

"Why, they operated on him for appendicitis the other day, and, by ginger, when they came to look there wasn't anything there," said Wiggins.

"Well, I'm not surprised," said Bjones; "I never could see anything in Boliver myself."—Harper's Weekly.

CHILDREN HATE OIL, CALOMEL AND PILLS

"California Syrup of Figs" best for tender stomach, liver, bowels—tastes delicious.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given to-day saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50c bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

RUNNING A PAPER.

Jim Jones he was an editor—that's what he tried to be;
He bought himself a printing press and started in to see
Just what there was in editin', but when he'd canvassed 'round
Some fifteen hundred editors in that town he found—

They all knew more about it than he could hope to know.
They told him: "You must run her, Jones, and run her so and so.
Be sure to boom the Baptists—they's sure to help you out,
And give the good old Methodists a good salvation shout.

"Give every man a notice—be sure and let it be known
Whenever Major Jinks is seen perambulatin' town.
Put in a few free locals for all the stores and give Away some free subscriptions if you wish your sheet to live."

Well, Jones, he did just what they said, for fear they'd make a row,
But the more he tried to please 'em all, the more they told him how.
Until at last he took his book and laid it on the shelf,
Then ran the paper in the ground and followed it himself.

Hints on Beauty Culture

Mother Hands Can Mold Growing Child's Features

By MAGGIE TEYTE

Prima Donna of the Chicago-Philadelphia Opera Company.

MAGGIE TEYTE

A PHYSICIAN who makes a specialty of the diseases of children told me the other day that when he saw a child with an ill-shaped head he blamed the mother or the nurse. He said it was the right of every normal child to have a comparatively perfectly shaped head.

"A child's skull is but little more than putty in substance," said he, "and it is up to the mother to make it shapely. Also, in nine cases out of ten there is not the least excuse for any child having an ugly nose. That is like putty, too. If the women would pay half the attention to making their children beautiful they do to making over their own faces, the next generation would look better than this one."

Well, I think we are learning a great deal about child culture, for the schools are doing so much in that direction. But there is a lot to be done before the child reaches the school age.

One Mother's Success.

I know a dear little woman who is only an inch or so over five feet tall. She has a wonderful son who is as handsome as a Greek god. She has also three daughters, each of them "divinely tall" and lovely in features. Their father is a man of ordinary height and most ordinary appearance.

The mother told me when her son was born she made up her mind he should be tall and broad shouldered and have the best features it was possible for him to possess. Like all young mothers, she was afraid of the little body, so she sought the advice of the family physician, who sympathized with her wishes and directed her.

When the baby was only a few weeks old his mother began with gentle and systematic exercises. She rubbed the little back and ever so gently she stretched the little legs and arms and rubbed the tiny chest. She gave freedom of clothing for the baby to kick and squirm and stretch. She kept him from bearing any weight on his legs till they were so strong there was not the least chance of their growing bowed. She never let him sit without support at his back. He had a funny little snub nose and she massaged it till it became regular and straight.

She discouraged the slightest tendency to sucking the thumb. She knew that many hopelessly ugly mouths owe their being just to this habit. When the baby slept she saw his ears were not crumpled up, and every time she bathed him she pressed the ears into place.

The First Lessons.

When the baby girls made their appearance she pursued the same tactics. Only in addition to making the girls strong and straight and tall, she massaged the little arms and wrists so as to make them rounded. She made the little fingers tapering. She gently rounded the tiny throats. One of the girls had a very full and protruding upper lip. She persistently pressed it back till it became a regular Cupid's bow, and now the young woman is noted for her lovely mouth.

As soon as the first teeth came and showed the need of care, the mother engaged the services of an expert dentist, and every one of the children has almost perfect teeth, firm and white and even.

The second girl had high shoulders. They might easily have become a real deformity. The doctor assured the mother there was no defective bone formation and the mother gently smoothed the shoulders downward and encouraged all the exercises of the little arms which would tend toward lowering the shoulders.

The first lesson she taught her children was how to breathe and proper filling of the lungs soon became a habit with them.

They were encouraged in all outdoor sports. Today they are all fine, splendid, healthy young persons. Their mother's system has been a perfect success. What she has done many other mothers can do, for she has been a busy woman with only ordinary means to do with.

Will Alone Needed.

A beauty specialist declares any mother can make her baby have curly hair by always brushing the hair backward when it is damp and washing it from the forehead instead of the way it grows.

She says ringlets and waves can be trained.

Eyebrows can be gently pinched into the desired arched beauty line.

The contour of the little face can be made perfect.

The tiny bodies are so plastic that it is only necessary to have the will and the determination to make them anything one wishes them to be. But it is a task which requires a well balanced trainer and one who understands the delicacy of the material upon which she is working. It is quite as easy to deform the baby body as to make it beautiful.

Said by Wise Men

We are reformers in spring and summer. In autumn and winter we stand by the old. Reformers in the morning; conservatives at night.—Emerson.

The laws of nature are just, but terrible. There is no weak mercy in them. Cause and consequence are inseparable and inevitable. The elements have no forbearance. The fire burns, the water drowns, the air consumes, the earth buries. And perhaps it would be well for our race if the punishment of crimes against the laws of man were as inevitable as the punishment of crimes against the laws of nature—were man as unerring in his judgments as nature. —Longfellow.

Some men think that the gratification of curiosity is the end of knowledge; some the love of fame; some the pleasure of dispute; some the necessity of supporting themselves by their knowledge; but the real use of all knowledge is this, that we should dedicate that reason which was given us by God to the use and advantage of man.—Bacon.

Laughter is a most healthful exertion; it is one of the greatest helps to digestion with which I am acquainted; and the custom prevalent among our forefathers, of exciting it at table by jesters and buffoons, was founded on true medical principles.—Hufeland.

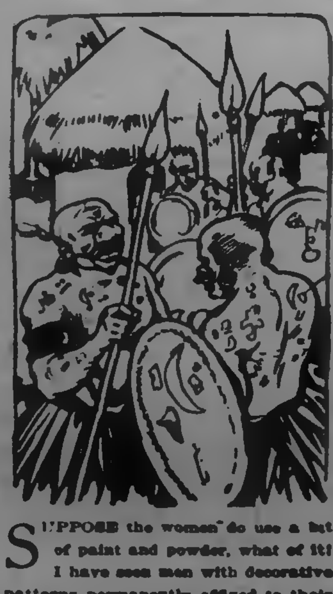
Simple words, short maxims, homely truths, old sayings, are the masters of the world. Great reformations, great revolutions in society, great eras in human progress and improvement, start from good words, right words, sound words, spoken in the fitting time, and finding their way to human hearts as easily as the birds find their homes.—D. March.

A good digestion is as truly obligatory as a good conscience; pure blood is as truly a part of manhood as a pure faith; a vigorous brain is as necessary to useful living as a vigorous will, which it often helps to make vigorous; and a well ordered skin is the first condition of that cleanliness which is next to godliness.—H. W. Beecher.

Three Minute Journeys

Where Beauty Is Only Skin Deep

By Jonathan MacFarland



SUPPOSE the women do use a bit of paint and powder, what of it! I have seen men with decorative patterns permanently affixed to their faces in various unlovely colors not in the least like those intended by nature. Vanity in women isn't a marker to the brand indulged in by the sterner sex.

Sterner sex! I laugh. You would laugh, too, if you could see one of those great bronze warrior lads of the Marquesas whimpering under the painful needles of a tattoo artist.

Beauty is certainly skin deep when it is pricked in with colors—and that must be especially apparent to some of those poor devils in the South Sea Islands, who, in a wild effort to have the last word in nobby complexions, have submitted to the exquisite torture of being tattooed from head to foot with patterns as diverse, both in color and design, as those of an oriental rug. Of course, such ornamentation, when it is complete, and the patient has begun to look out of his cotton batting, has certain advantages. The wearer is always sure that his clothing fits well, and that his trousers are not baggy at the knees. And as styles in the Marquesas never change—the proverbial "yard of sunshine" is de rigueur on all occasions—the native always has that well dressed feeling.

Tattooing isn't confined to the South Sea Islands by any means, but it seems to have reached its highest artistic level in that aqueous region of the world. The Maoris of New Zealand—as ugly as prize bulldogs, and three times as safe—have some fine specimens of "the art epidermis" to show.

It is dying out, though, with the advent of cheap jewelry and gay clothing, so that it will not be long before the allover pattern will have disappeared. And then, too, the children will demand movies instead of merely a picture book daddy.

"KEYNOTE OF SUCCESS IS SYSTEM"

Lillian Gish

Movie Star Gives Practical Rules of Life

By Cecile Manning

REGULATE your days by the clock. "Learn to live by a system. Haphazard methods never win in business. Life is the most important business.

"Eat only when you are hungry, and eat only enough to satisfy the hunger. It is the extra ounce of food which makes the superfluous pound of fat.

"Never drink anything stronger than tea and coffee. Let your indulgence of these be rare. Spring water and lemonade, alternated with milk and vichy, are the best beverages.

"Believe in yourself and don't borrow trouble.

"Be interested in your work, and do your best under all circumstances."

These are the rules for success and beauty given by Lillian Gish, whom David Belasco calls the most beautiful blonde in the world. Such an opinion is superpraise, and the girl so complimented might be pardoned for setting herself on a pedestal.

But Lillian Gish has a very level head on her 18-year-old shoulders, and she values her beauty only as a business asset. She tells you quite simply and frankly that in her profession, that of a "movie" actress, "perfect health and steel nerves are much more important than perfect beauty." It is the possession of these attributes which made Lillian Gish a star after the first pictures in which she appears as a Mutual girl.

"Live the simple life and live it by the clock," she repeated when she gave her beauty rules. "Perhaps that is easier for the 'movie' girl than for the girl in the ordinary walk of life. We have so much excitement in our work that we welcome the quiet of home and early bedtime. It is to us what the tango evening is to other girls.

"But I believe all women would be better in looks and health if they would adopt a regular system of life. The keynote of success is system.

"Being a 'movie' actress has one great advantage. She has the chance to see herself as others see her. If she has been eating enough to change the outlines of her figure the screen will show the added weight instantly. If she has been trying to burn the candle at both ends by cutting down her sleep allowance her dull, heavy eyes and the tired lines in her face will tell the story. The screen is more truthful than kind. It never flatters.

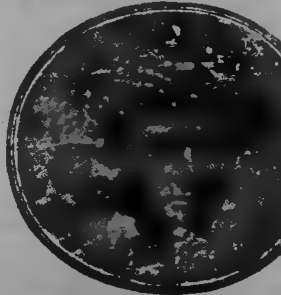
"The 'movie' actress lives through all the emotions and crises of the average lifetime in nearly every picture. She has to be true to the part, for she is going to face thousands of critics every hour of the day in all the four corners of the earth.

"I think the 'movie' girl who has a real interest in her work feels a certain responsibility in not disappointing one of her unknown friends. We are very real to thousands of people who never see us except on the screen, and who know us only by our work."

Is Marriage Going Out of Date?

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service.



Winifred Black

THEY'RE worrying about the marriage statistics again, the people who have time to worry about such things.

They say marriage is going out of the fashion.

Men are afraid to marry, they declare; wages are low; work is scarce, and women are extravagant.

"The modern woman doesn't want to keep house," says one eminent authority, "she wants to do the tango."

"The up-to-date girl doesn't care for babies," says another, "she cares for fads."

"No man can support a woman and pay the kind of grocery bills that come in at the end of the month nowadays," declares the president of a well known Providence League.

"Raise the men's wages—and you'll keep the women out of the shops," announces the editor of a labor paper. "The men will marry and the girls won't have to work."

"The instincts of nature are eternal," so expounds the editorial writer in a large and influential paper, which lies before me at this moment. "There isn't a good girl in the world who would not rather be at work for her man and her baby than to have the highest salaried job in town—high wages for men, that the solution."

Every reason but the right one, gentlemen of the jury.

The instincts of nature are eternal, Mr. Editorial Writer, and it is quite true, what you say, that there isn't a good girl in the world who would not rather be at work for her man and her baby than to have the highest salaried job in town. That is just exactly the reason the good girls of the world are no longer in such a hurry to be married.

The good girl of the world is in the world now. She isn't shut up out of it in some nook and corner where you and many other men think she ought to be; and she's been finding out a whole lot of things about this "man" who would perhaps like to be "hers," and she isn't quite so crazy about him as she was—when she didn't know him quite so well.

She knows just how hard he works, and how hard he doesn't work, too. She knows just how clever he is, and how far, far from clever he sometimes appears to be.

She observes his passion for cigarettes and his weird and, to her, abnormal and mysterious thirst at all hours of the day. She finds out that she can work longer and harder and go without luncheon better than he can, and he doesn't look to her quite as much like a knight in armor as he did before she knew him so well.

And then, when she leaves the "highest salaried job in town" to marry "her man," she wants to know that he's really going to be "her man" after all, and not every other woman's "man" who chooses to angle for him.

And she wants to know that he's going to be fit to take the right kind of care of her and her baby before she gives that job up and settles down with him for life.

When little Mary Smith married 25 years ago, she didn't know where her husband was when he left her to sit alone at home in the evening.

Little Mary Smith who marries today does know.

She's heard them talk about it at the office.

John Johnson told her about it himself, before he thought of asking her to marry him.

And when Mr. Johnson goes away from home too often Mrs. Johnson is likely to slip on her hat and coat and run over to Sally Smith's and telephone some of the other girls who used to be in the office with her before she gave up her job for "her man," and go out for a perfectly good time of her own.

Staying at home and wishing "your man" would come home is a habit.

The modern girl is entirely out of it, and she doesn't intend to get into it, if she can help it.

And the fact that she has a perfectly good job at a perfectly good salary is one of the things that is doing a great deal toward helping her to help it.

She's a good girl all right, is Mary Smith, the girl who works for a living; and she's normal, perfectly normal, just as normal as the men who "can't understand her point of view."

That's the trouble with her—she is normal; and she has a chance to be—for the first time in the history of the world; and she doesn't intend to give up being normal and go back and be abnormal again for all the love making and love promising in the world.

She's out in the world, and she's going to stay out in it. You can't tie the veil over her head an hour longer—she's had it off too long. And she rather admires the feel of the fresh wind in her face.

She's normal, all right—that's why she wants a normal share in the doings of the normal world.

The man and the babies are a part of her life, the best part, the noblest part, the happiest part, the truest part—but only a part—and that is what is the matter with the marriage statistics.

Think it over—and see.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Blindness May Result If You Neglect a Stye

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

Copyright, 1914, by L. K. Hirshberg

DR. HIRSHBERG

YOU can never find out too much about your eyes. True eyes are the pure, honest pulpits from which the shining soul speaks.

The bright-fleshed, black-trimmed eyelids droop across these melting blue or polished black orbs, as the petals of the pansy or the violet guard the flowery heart.

A stye upon these fringed curtains distorts the outer world, makes you see a distant mountain where only a smooth field spreads before you and causes serious annoyance to your peace and comfort.

These scarlet scourges, dotting singly or in crops the margins of your lids, send pain and poignant darts into your flesh. The divine touches of the most adorable eyes and the sweetest glimmers of matchless eyes are dulled and deranged in the presence of these little, swollen craters of the lids. A stye is nothing more than a colony, mound, or battle-ground, where the tissue units have been assaulted by the little demons of disease called bacteria. The results of this mad conflict between these poisonous germs—which crept into a pore or the bed of a hair shaft—and the flesh is the little "pimple," "boil" or "tumor."

Few there are who lack a personal, first-"eyelid"-acquaintance with styes. Any one subject to carbuncles, whiteheads, blackheads or pimples is susceptible to them.

Amid the gloom of such an infected lid-margin, the chastened eye and changing vision looks tenderly forth through the darksome lashes.

Usually, if a stye is not due to errors in the eye itself—as when you need glasses and do not wear them—they may "die a-bornin'." That is to say, it may disappear with the application of ice compresses, or even hot boric water stupes.

A stye blots your beauty as frostbite the Greenland meadows. And when a little yellow spot is seen upon the peak, it is more dangerous than ugly.

These yellow, punctuate craters contain pus. This teems with microbes and dead tissue, which, if rubbed into the eyes, may jeopardize your vision.

Then the eye will have a bloom almost a mockery of the tomb, with gleams that may ungently slink away "as a departing rainbow's ray."

The treatment, then, depends upon many things. The ophthalmologist may nick the stye open. If cold compresses or boracic acid water does not abort the troublesome nuisance. Or, perchance, if you have granular eyelids and are subject to "crops" of styes, he may insist upon the use of a yellow unguent at night.

These ointments, applied to the edges of the lid, allay pain, iron out the kinks, destroy the stye parasites and toughen the affected flesh.

On the whole, styes are not so malignant in themselves as they are pestiferous. Often they are Madam Nature's couriers to bring you unpleasant greetings of lurking assassins. In brief, they are the semaphores which admonish you to clear the tracks, or suffer some approaching catastrophe.

Answers to Health Questions

J. W. B., Philadelphia—I suffer with "lumbago" and "rheumatism." I am [illegible] years old. My business keeps me out of doors. I walk a great deal.

When these attacks come on have your daughter or some one "iron" the kinks out of your back with a fairly hot iron. Then take a plain lemonade as hot as you can drink it; a hot mustard foot bath, and jump into bed at once. Remain there 10 or more hours, and this is safety without drugs—sweat the trouble out.

* * *

A. B., Philadelphia—What food, exercise and habits will make me gain flesh?

Go to bed at 10 o'clock at night. Eat a hearty meal before you retire. Drink lots of rich cream, olive oil, cocoanut oil and molasses. Eat sweets, fatty meats, oily soups, butter, eggs, potatoes and all sort of greasy fodder, gravies and fried foods.

Keep out of doors and in the sunlight. Walk, row, swim, dance, skate and run when you can. If possible eat six meals daily.

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN MATRIMONY

By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Woman's Greatest Experience

XLIII.

LEONA DALRYMPLE

"MOTHER," I said, "tell me—when you were young and perhaps a little foolish, did you want children?"

"Always!" said mother, simply. "The touch of a child's hand awoke in me some great thrill that I did not understand until I had a child of my own."

"Mary," I blurted, very white, "doesn't want children, and her mother doesn't want her to have them."

Mother put her arms around me and kissed me suddenly, and there were tears in her eyes.

"Poor Peter!" she said, gently. "Poor laddie!"

It was the first time mother had made any reference to the shortcomings of my married life with Mary, and only a tragic sense of loyalty to my wife sealed my lips to the utterance of much that was better left unsaid.

"Mary will change, Peter," she added, hopefully. "There is a tremendous something in a woman's heart that is bound to cry out in the end. And a child is a link to the coming generation."

"I thought every girl looked forward to having children of her own!" I blurted.

Mother sighed.

"The old order changeth," she said. "Son, when the world is caught in a whirlpool of unrest, as it is now, things change. And again, Peter, in a sweeping summary of results, you mustn't be too hard upon women. Men have been much too high-handed and domineering in the past. Now with the tremendous revolt of womankind, some few must stray away into wrong paths blinded by the glare of unreal freedom."

"You mean—"

"Just this. Women have been too quiescent for generations, Peter; not in the bearing of the race—that is a duty women must fulfil to the end of time—but in many other ways.

"Charity is the very soul of a woman's existence. Therefore, she gave men a broad latitude of conduct and asked nothing for herself, accepting a protection that grew presently into an arrogant suzerainty, and men with head-strong sex-insolence went too far. They smiled and began to build a man's world—a world for the selfish gratification of male instinct and male appetite. Now, when the inevitable reckoning comes, we're all plunged into a mad whirlpool of unrest; but men are reaping what they have sowed."

"And women?"

"Just as woman went to the extreme of quiescence, Peter," said mother thoughtfully, "so now she is going to the extreme of rebellion. She cannot see her way clearly and much of her groping ahead is utterly without direction. Instead of claiming a sane, well balanced freedom, she is trying to seize a complete freedom from burdens of every sort—motherhood and all the essential duties of her sex. Identity of function for the sexes is a preposterous notion. It would spell inevitable disaster."

"Mary spoke of injustice, mother. I am sorry nature saddled women with the great burden of pain which motherhood entails—but—"

"Nature didn't, Peter!" put in mother. "Nature's burden was lighter than [illegible] of civilization and vanity. Women have paid a heavy price for the corset. And besides, Peter, no matter what the burden of pain, the compensation is great enough to make it worth while.

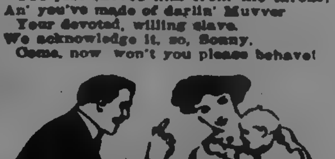
"Isn't motherhood the greatest experience of life? Doesn't the woman who deliberately foregoes it dwarf her life and impede the great, stirring evolution of her soul? The greatest joys and the greatest sorrows come to women, son, but I would not have it different."

A mother is the holiest thing in the sight of God and man.

The Ruling Monarch

By Brett Page

AIN'T you 'shamed, you little rascal,
Sittin', smilin' there alone!
You've cut out your poor old father,
You just shoved him from the throne,
An' you've made of darlin' Muvver
Your devoted, willing slave.
We acknowledge it, so, Sonny,
Come, now won't you please behave!



Say Sonny, 'fore you send your Pa
To earn your board and keep,
Won't you please let Muvver dress you,
If you won't lie down and sleep?
Don't just sit and show your dimples
Watching Pa with eyes of blue.
Please don't rub it in. Dad knows, Son,
That the Ruling Monarch's you!

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties.—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

Jews Keep the Best.

The "best" fried-fish shops in London are kept by Jews. These shops charge higher rates than the others, twopence and threepence being the usual price. In others, the humble halfpenny will purchase a slice of fish. Many places use grease but the Jews use oil to fry the fish. Their shops are also said to be cleaner than the others.

The evening is the harvest time of the fried-fish shop. After six o'clock, when the tired and hungry workers are returning home, the seats in these places will all be occupied, and the rest of the shop filled with customers standing up devouring the luscious delicacy. The eel shops are particularly well patronized.

FOR THE COMMON GOOD

It is the aim of The Times:

To exploit and advance the best interests of the people of the fair and fertile land wherein it is published, and to which it steadily devotes its efforts;

To stand for liberty and law, equal rights and good government, the greatest boon to a free people;

To foster and encourage private and public enterprise, and hold up the hands of every honest toiler, either with brawn or brain, in every field of activity;

To stand independently for the true interests of the city, the Dominion and the Empire, and for those policies only which make for the common good;

It aims to be excellent and not cheap.

SECTION 2, SEVERN DIVISION
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Section No. 2, Severn Division, Trent Canal," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon on Monday, March 23rd, 1914.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on or after this date at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa; at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont.; and at the office of the District Engineer, Public Works Department, Midland, Ont.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered bank of Canada for the sum of $36,000.00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railway and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

A NOTE OF SIMPLICITY MOST ATTRACTIVE IN THIS HOUR OF THREATENED FUSSINESS

Despite the tunic and pannier, with the transparent and much befrilled bodice that seem to be coming to the front, the plain little one-piece dress still holds a first place for day-time wear. Nothing is more fetching or more comfortable or fills the bill quite as perfectly.

One of those printed silks in Art Moderne design is used with 8023. The figure, a dot with a circle, is dark red; the ground is dull green. A buckled girdle of dark red crepe de Chine completes an attractive little dress for informal day-time affairs.

This design may be made up for size 36 with 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

These printed silks may be purchased from 75 cents a yard up. They come in several widths.

Gray sponge is used in the other dress, with collar and cuffs of colored embroidery and a wide hip sash of Oriental silk.

The blouse shows a drop-shoulder with a long fitted sleeve. The skirt is in peg-top design.

Fashioned after this design a dress may be made in size 36 with 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

Eponge averages 40 inches in width and ranges in price from $1.50 up.

No. 8023—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 7948—sizes 34 to 42.

A QUAINT SPRIGGED CREPE FOR SOUTHERN CLIMES

Dainty materials and charming colorings are being shown in the simple morning and day frocks for the south. While the tailored suit of white or light colored serge, ratine or cloth is still favored, the one-piece dress is equally used. They are essentially plain, depending upon material and cut for effect. As illustrated, No 8098 is developed in flowered cotton crepe. A tiny, old fashioned looking flower in old rose is scattered over a blue ground. A bit of hand embroidered batiste forms collar and cuffs and trims the skirt.

In size 36 this model may be made with 5⅝ yards of 36 inch crepe or silk. A charming little frock could be fashioned after this design in one of the new silks, tussahs or voiles. These may be had in several widths, 36 and 38 inches, and in price range from 75 cents up.

Most of the new materials and trimmings favored for grown ups are being used in children's things. The new printed and fancy woven novelty cottons, crepes, voiles, etc., are used and the plain linens, chambrays and piques.

No 7962 is designed to slip on over the head sailor fashion. The skirt is attached to a sleeveless underwaist. Plain white crepe is used here trimmed with colored floss and a low hung belt of red suede.

For a child of 8 this dress requires 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8098—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 7962—sizes 4 to 14.
Each pattern 15 cents.

MILLIONS IN MUSHROOMS

Grown in Enormous Quantities in Deep Caverns Near Paris

One of the most important industries carried on in the suburbs of Paris is that of mushroom-growing. In the various districts surrounding the French capital there are numerous old quarries, and in these subterranean caverns mushrooms are planted and grown to maturity. Scattered all around one may see quadrangular wooden towers, which are the shafts used for ventilation of the quarries. Some of these were the source of the stone and plaster used by medieval builders in erecting great public edifices in Paris.

In general they consist of a labyrinth of low and narrow chambers. In them are found conditions of temperature and humidity favorable to the culture of the mushroom. Provision for ventilation is essential, and wells are dug for supplying the large amount of water necessary in this form of "farming." There are 250 mushroom "installations" in the vicinity of Paris, and 1,000 workmen are employed.

The value of the product, which is much sought by the gourmets of Paris, is about $3,750,000 annually.

Not Likely to be Enforced Here

A bill is to be brought into the Ontario House, whereby any County Council shall have power to pass a by-law prohibiting the use of a motor vehicle on any highway under its jurisdiction during certain hours in any day provided that the total number of hours during which the use of such motor vehicles is prohibited shall not exceed in any one week twenty-four hours; and provided further that any such by-law shall not apply to physicians or clergymen using motor vehicles in the ordinary course of their respective callings.

OUT FOR THE FEES.

Corporation Directors Want Their Rights and Usually Get Them.

A large corporation held a directors' meeting a few days ago. As the meeting was coming to a close one of the directors, reputed to be worth $10,000,000, ran in all out of breath. Just as he entered the other directors were making their exit, says the Hartford Courant.

"Look here," the incoming director shouted to the chairman, "I want to know why I haven't received notice of this meeting."

"I am sure I don't know," the chairman said. "Notices were sent to all directors. You surely must have received one."

The director finished up an excited tirade by saying, "I want my rights."

Just then the secretary was brought into conference, who in turn handed the late director an envelope. He departed with a smiling countenance.

This recalls the story of a New York corporation where $20 for each director was laid on the table and those who attended divided the whole pile. If half came each got $40. The members were men far advanced in years and in riches. One day it stormed violently when a meeting was to be held. The executive officers did not believe a single director would be there, but every man of them was on hand, each having figured out that nobody else would appear and that he might swipe the entire allowance.

His Mental Incapacity.

The Court—So you ask divorce from this man on the ground of mental incapacity. What proof have you that he's insane? The Woman—Who said he was insane, your honor? The Court—Why, you say he is mentally incapable. The Woman—Yes; incapable of understanding that I'm boss.

Enthusiasm Dulled.

"Don't you feel as if you would like to leave footprints in the sands of time?" asked the ambitious citizen.

"No," answered Mr. Crosslots gloomily; "out where I live the mud is eighteen inches deep, and I don't feel as if I wanted to see another footprint as long as I live."—Washington Star.

Sarcastic.

The Manager—I've got a new idea for a melodrama that ought to make a hit. The Writer—What is it? The Manager—The idea is to introduce a cyclone in the first act that will kill all the actors.

Soft Toned Bells of China.

The natives of China use large bells of their own make in many of their temples and monasteries. I have noticed all through Japan and China that the tone of the monastery and temple bells is very soft and smooth, due to the superior quality of the material used in their manufacture and to the absence of iron clappers, the result being a marvelous softness and mellowness of tone. The bells are never swung, being always suspended in a fixed frame, and the sound is produced by striking them on the outer edge with a wooden mallet. This makes the soft tones which are so delightfully melodious.—Consular Reports.

Dr. Holmes' Wit.

One of the best repartees ever credited to a habitual maker of happy phrases was that made by the beloved "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" on a certain social occasion.

Going to dine with a Boston neighbor, Dr. Holmes was met by her with an apology:

"I could not get another man. We are four women, and you will have to take us all in."

"Forewarned is fourarmed," he said with a bow.

Flies and Filth.

The fly is born in, lives and thrives upon filth. If no filth is allowed to accumulate in a house or its neighborhood it will not be troubled by flies, for they do not ordinarily stray far from their breeding places and their sources of food. In a thoroughly clean neighborhood they cannot live in the face of screens preventing their access to food and to the absence of manure heaps and other receptacles for filth in which to deposit their eggs.—Survey.

Helping Things Along.

"The family in the next flat has three phonographs and four boys with toy express wagons," said Mrs. Growcher's wife. "What on earth shall we do?"

"Send for the piano tuner and ask him how much he'll take to work by the day."—Washington Star.

Good News.

"My dear, our landlord says he's going to raise our rent."

"Glad to hear he can do it, I can't."—Baltimore American.

Though some of us are poor, let us all be genteel.—Stevenson.

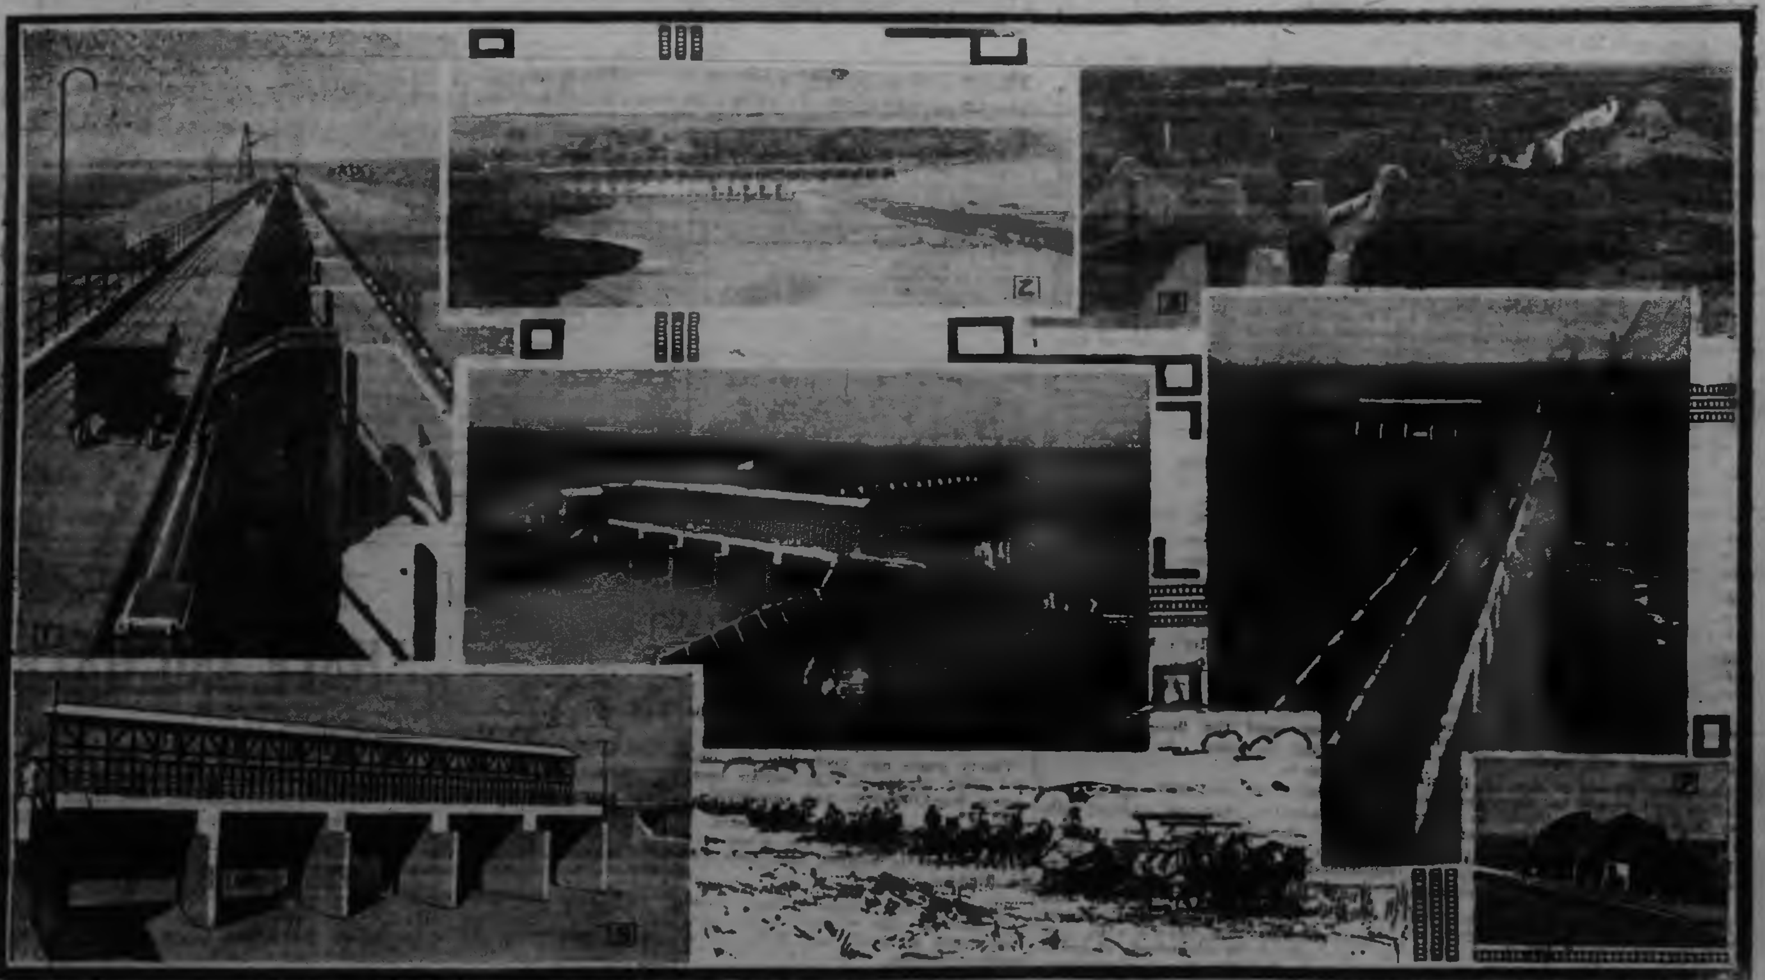
THE GREATEST IRRIGATION DAM IN THE WORLD



NO. 1—Overlooking top of the Dam across Bow River. NO. 2—Panoramic View of Bow River. NO. 3—Showing the steps and irrigation ditches after the water has been diverted into the Main Canal. NO. 4—A picturesque view of the head gates and dam. NO. 5—Entrance to the Main Canal. NO. 6—View overlooking spillway toward head gates. NO. 7—Bassano Station.

The accompanying views have been specially taken to illustrate the greatest irrigation dam the world has ever seen. This Dam was erected by the C. P. R. across the famous Bow River, in the vicinity of Bassano, at a cost of several million dollars, in order to divert the water for the purpose of irrigating a million acres of land to provide ready made farms for incoming settlers. Recently the head gates were opened and the canals and ditches were quickly filled with water, and this Spring the land will be occupied by settlers for the first time. The low water stage in Bow River is raised approximately forty feet (40) by the Bassano Dam. It is a composite structure, the most notable portion being the concrete spillway, 720 feet in length. Extending easterly from the Dam is the main channel, five miles in length, partly in a deep cut of 70 feet bottom width. The most notable of the canal structure is the Brooks Aqueduct, 10,000 feet in length with capacity of 900 second feet across the broad low depression.

O'Toole Goes Free.

The young man O'Toole, who with others took a local girl out to Jackson Park, a local livery, the lift lock, etc., some weeks ago and thereby got into trouble was up before His Honor Judge Huycke for decision this morning. He and his pals were dismissed as it would seem that the girl in question had lived not wisely but too well and generally Mr. Gordon acted for the prisoner

Former Local Priest's Will.

The will of the Very Reverend Joseph Henry Coty, formerly the priest in charge of St. Patrick's parish, Hamilton, has been entered for probate. The will disposes of an estate valued at $6,129.51, made up as follows: Household goods and furniture, $25, book debts, $586.47; bank and other stocks, $35; cash in the Bank of British North America, $4,[illegible].50; books, $200; and clothing and personal effects, $75.

May Be Trouble in Lindsay.

Lindsay Warder: Mr. G. Balfour, governor of the county jail, and Deputy-Sheriff G. Foster, arrived home from Kingston last night after securely placing Burke and Burkholder in the penitentiary. Burke talked incessantly to the officers concerning the counterfeiting game and may have possibly told things which some folks would not like to see in print. However, time in its revolution may unearth some hidden secrets that may show up others who were in complicity with the two men now under penal servitude for five years.

Civil Service Examinations.

It is expected a number from Peterborough will write in Toronto.

How Different Here!

Port Hope Guide, referring to a report of the Children's Aid Society for the United Counties of Durham and Northumberland, says: Mr. Beales made a short report of conditions as he found them in Port Hope, referring among other places, to one house, where parents and four little children are living. His report reads in part: "This house, which consists of a hall or passage, a room on either side and one in the rear, is filthy and delapidated beyond all belief. The floor is lower than the level of the street, so that when your inspector called, the whole front of the hovel was flooded with manure-tinged water from the road. Back of one of the smaller rooms, reached only after wading through the cold putrid water, is a dark, ill-smelling cupboard or hole, just large enough to contain a bed. It was too dark to distinguish anything in this "room," but oh, the pitiable picture the light of a match revealed. A pile of dirty rags on a dirty mattress, cold, damp and filthy—that is where the family sleeps. When the weather is not too severe, however, an old bundle of straw is thrown on the floor of one of the other rooms, as a bed for some of the children."

A Pretty Selection of 12½c and 15c Ginghams for 9½c Yard

SURELY AS LONG AS GIRLS AND WOMEN need washable dresses, there is nothing that can take the place of Ginghams where pretty patterns, serviceability and cheapness are concerned. And in this instance, the Annex comes forward with some notable values in these popular goods, right at the commencement of the warm weather season, when most feminine heads are filled with plans for spring frocks, either for themselves or for the children. These Ginghams and Chambrays are to be secured in a host of plain colors, also in check, plaid and stripe designs of all descriptions. Each piece is our standard quality usually selling at 12½c or 15c, and while a number will be shown in the window, many more are to be seen in the Annex; all marked at the remarkably low price per yard, namely 9½c

YOUR BABY'S SKIN

Is the most delicate fabric in the world. You may cause it permanent harm by using poisonous mineral ointments for the little rashes and eruptions that every baby suffers from occasionally. Don't take any chances. Use Zam-Buk, the baby's best balm.

Zam-Buk is made from fine herbal extracts, and is free from any harmful poisonous coloring matter. Like the grasses and the flowers, nature has colored it green. It is nature's own healer!

Most ointments and salves have, as their foundation, various animal oils and fats. Zam-Buk does not contain an atom of animal substance. Most ointments and salves are too coarse to be absorbed by the tender delicate skin of a baby and remain on the skin an irritating mass. Just put a little Zam-Buk on baby's skin, and see how soon it is absorbed, showing conclusively that the pores of the skin are greedy for it.

Use nothing but Zam-Buk for baby's skin troubles and wash with Zam-Buk Soap.

Zam-Buk should also be used for cuts, burns, scalds, eczema, piles, ulcers, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes and imitations.

CITY IN PARAGRAPH

SUNLIGHT AND SHADOW ON THE DIAL OF A CITY LIFE.

Crows were rite plentiful in the West Ward Sunday and yesterday.

Thirty years ago yesterday, the central span of the C.P.R. bridge here, cross the Otonabee was completed.

Thirty years ago the livery barn of the late Robt. White, for whom the White House is named, was destroyed by fire.

This is St. Patrick's Day. Good luck attind the mimory of a Saint that every Catholic and lots of Protestants revere.

A Port Hope hotelkeeper has been fined $50 and costs for Sunday selling. The hotels in this city maintain the law in its entirety.

The Examiner wants a non-"partisan" commission to enquire into political graft. Would our E.E.C. refer a religious investigation to Bob Ingersol?

Mr. Jas. Bogue has completed his contract on the new Armouries at Lindsay. Mr. A. McIntyre did the carpenter work and Ald. G. H. Duncan the painting.

A good many local citizens regard with holy horror the show up here of Trent Canal methods. A good many of the kickers did not get a look in on the change.

Journalism up-to-date? Port Hope Guide has a 24 point type heading over a report of a murderer (suspected) arrested in Peterborough with the words "Local Police Get," etc.

James Maloney and George Brickley, the two strangers arrested here recently on the charge of vagrancy were further remanded yesterday by Magistrate Dumble until next Monday.

Yesterday and to-day the pictures and vaudeville at the Royal Theatre are of high grade. The vaudeville consists of a dialogue between a man and his wife (stage) whereby the wife assumes the attitude of a suffragette. Both artists are clever.

It would seem that P. C. Brown's application for the position of Chief of Police of Port Hope was favorably received. It would also seem that the stipend offered did not meet with Officer Brown's approval.

NAVAL "HOLIDAY" ON PARTIAL BASIS OF ADMIRALTY CHIEF

Mr. Churchill Says Any Delay by Worst Rival to be Matched by England

London, Mar. 17.—A variant on the "naval holiday" suggestion was produced by Mr. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, in the House of Commons to-day. In introducing the naval estimates for 1914-15, amounting to $257,750,000 he said:

"Every delay accidental or deliberate by the next strongest power to England will be matched by us."

Admitting that the naval estimates were the largest that ever had been submitted to the House, the First Lord gilded the pill by making the prediction that in the absence of any new departure the estimates for 1915-16 would be substantially lower than the present ones, which show and increase of $13,700,000 over those of last year.

EIGHT TO GERMANY'S FIVE.

Mr. Churchill reiterated that it was the policy of Great Britain to complete eight battle squadrons by the time Germany had established five without calculating ships on foreign stations. He explained that the development of the German fleet had not been so rapid as had been anticipated, owing to difficulties in manning the vessels, Great Britain, therefore had been enabled to postpone the completion of her Gibraltar squadron, which now consists of only four battleships. The increased expenditure, he said was largely attributed to the change to oil fuel to the establishment of a naval flying corps and to the increased pay of the blue jackets.

MARTIN TRIAL BEGINS IN N. Y.

New York, Mar. 17.—Harry Schaeffer, 19 years old, was to-day placed on trial in the Supreme Court for the murder of William G. Martin, a milliner, of Toronto, who came to this city on August 13 last.

Assistant District Attorney Brothers told the jury Schaeffer had confessed to the murder of Martin in a room where he and Jack Serego had enticed him. The day after the men strangled the milliner and robbed his body, they sailed for South America. On his return Schaeffer confessed to the murder, saying it had been on his conscience and had almost driven him crazy.

C. N. R. MATTERS OVERSHADOW ALL ELSE AT OTTAWA

Members Realize That the Fate and Future of the Whole Transportation Problem of Canada is at Stake

Ottawa, Mar. 17.—There is but one subject of interest at Ottawa at the present time, and that is the Canadian Northern Railway situation. The House proceedings, the N.T.R., Redistribution and every other question is completely overshadowed. It is the only topic of gossip in the lobbies and the air is full of rumors and counter rumors.

Everyone recognises that the situation is a serious one and that the fate and future not only of the Canadian Northern Railway Company, but of the whole transportation problem in Canada is at stake.

Not only is the Dominion Government interested in the final settlement of the question, but nearly every Provincial Administration is more or less involved in the fate of the system. The four Western Provinces have pledged their credit for millions to the C.N.R. They have guaranteed bonds for over a hundred millions, and if by any chance the road went into the hands of the receiver they would have to meet an annual interest outlay for which they have not prepared in their revenues. Their interest in the question is shown by the fact that last week two members of the Saskatchewan Government, Hon. G. A. Bell, Provincial Treasurer, and Hon. A. P. McNab, Minister of Public Works, were in the capital and today Hon. Charles Mitchell, Provincial Treasurer of Alberta, arrived in the Capital, presumably on the same mission.

Times are changing in Canada. We are progressing as a people. A few years ago, in the halcyon days of the Laurier Government, such a request as the C.N.R. has now made would have been taken as a matter of course. It would have gone through the House with barely a dissenting voice. As a matter of fact in 1911 the Laurier Government, in face of an election, put through a $35,000,000 bond guarantee for the C.N.R. for the Lake Superior section. They asked nothing in return, there were no concessions.

PUNCHED CHURCHILL SEVERELY IN MOUTH

First Lord of Admiralty Attacked At Bradford.

London, Mar. 17.—A Wolverhampton newspaper says that while the police were escorting Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, to the train after a speech at Bradford last Saturday, a man pushed his way through the police and the dense crowd and punched Mr. Churchill severely in the mouth. The man escaped

SUFFS. FAIL TO REACH FOOT OF THE THRONE

London, Mar. 17.—Suffragettes who tried to address King George and Queen Mary while they were attending a matinee at the Palladium here today started a disturbance which caused their quick ejection amid scenes of great excitement.

The disturbance began when one woman approached close to the Royal box and arose as though to speak. Instantly the attendants of the theatre and members if the Royal bodyguard grasped the woman and rushed her, wildly screaming and gesticulating to the exit. No sooner was the original disturber seized than a dozen of her companions tried to rush the box in which the King and Queen, both quite cool, were watching the proceedings. None of the militants got near royalty but they did shower the royal box with "votes for women" literature. Finally after a struggle all were ejected, the audience hissing them vigorously and as vigorously applauding the King and Queen.

The Note.

"Oh, by the way, dear," said the merchant as he was preparing to leave the house in the morning, "if I find I can't be home to dinner I will send a note by messenger."

"Don't trouble," said his wife sweetly. "I have already found it on the blotting pad."

HOME FACE PEELING BECOMES POPULAR

No complexion treatment yet discovered seems to have become so generally and so immediately popular as the mercolized wax process. Evidently the reason is that this method actually gets rid of a bad complexion, which can hardly be said of any other. To temporarily hide or bleach the defective skin with cosmetics, cannot compare with the effect of literally removing the skin itself. Mercolized wax takes off the offending surface skin in flour-like particles, a little at a time, until there's none of it left. The new complexion thus produced exhibits a healthy glow and girlish beauty obtainable in no other way. This wax, which you can get at your druggist's, is applied at night in the same way you use cold cream, and washed off next morning.

Here is one thing that actually does remove wrinkles, remove them quickly and at trifling cost. Powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel. Use as a face bath.

DROVERS COMPLAINT LANDS HIM IN JAIL

Declares He Was Robbed in Train Caboose and Was Arrested.

Brockville, Ont., Mar. 17.—When E. T. Connor, a young Marlbank drover reached Brockville in charge of a carload of cattle consigned to Montreal, he made complaint of having been "touched" for his wad in the caboose of the freight train while sleeping. The charge was indignantly denied by the conductor and his crew, who testified that Connor was intoxicated and offered them whiskey, which is a breach of the Dominion Railway Act. The company officials here had Connor arrested, and he was convicted of this and another charge of using insulting language to the train crew. In default the prisoner was committed to jail.

STRANGE DISAPPEARANCE OF A STRATFORD BOY

Left Home for School Last Friday and Has Not Since Been Seen.

Stratford, Mar 17. Harvey Hewitt the 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hewitt, left home on Friday morning last to go to school. Since then he has not been seen. His strange disappearance has created great apprehension among his relatives and is puzzling the police.

When he left home he told his chums he was going to Goderich, where his grandmother lives. But a card from there says he had not been seen. He had no money on him. When he left his home on Friday morning, he wore a brown suit, a red sweater and knee trousers. He has short curly hair and large blue eyes and when he walks he turns his toes in. Mr. Hewitt is a G.T.R. engineer

ENDORSE HYDRO RADIALS FOR WESTERN ONTARIO

Stratford Council Will Send Delegates to Ottawa to Urge Support.

Stratford, Mar. 17.—Strong endorsation to Hydro Radials was given by the Stratford City Council last night and arrangements were made to send 20 delegates, including the Council as body, with mammoth deputation from Western Ontario, which will wait upon the Federal Government to request a subsidy of $6,400 a mile for Hydro radials and insist that the 6,000 cubic feet of water at Niagara Falls still available for power be preserved for the people.

It was decided to submit a new fire by-law to the ratepayers for new equipment to the amount of $15,000. The clauses provide for an 800-gallon steam fire engine, a city service ladder truck fully equipped and a combination chemical and hose motor truck.

POWERFUL ELECTRIC CURRENT SURGED WITH FATAL RESULTS

Calgary, Mar. 17.—Extra high voltage caused deaths of two men in different parts of the city, seriously burned another, shocked a number of others, and created a small panic which was allayed only by the closing down of high voltage lines, putting a portion of the city in darkness last night.

The dead are:

William Woods, stableman, married, aged 40 years.

Charles Cotter, baker, aged 20 years.

The injured are:

James Thomas, baker's helper, hand burned.

Robert Taylor, boy, hand and foot burned, may be maimed for life.

The voltage which killed Cotter passed through the body when he attempted to turn on an electric light in the bakery.

NEEDLES DRIVEN INTO CHILD'S BRAIN; HEAVY INSURANCE ON LIFE

Edmonton, March 17.—The death occurred a few days ago of a four-year-old girl named Lowe, who lived with her step-parents at 449 Gallagher street.

Yesterday Dr. Campbell was called in and as he was not altogether satisfied with the circumstances, he called in the coroner. Dr. Forum made a post-mortem examination and found that there were five needles thrust into the brain through the skull.

The child carried heavy life insurance. The step-father, William Lowe and his wife have been taken into custody by the police pending an investigation, which is proceeding today.

All the parties are negroes.

INDIAN LAND CASE GOES TO COURTS

Ottawa, Mar. 17.—A conference was held last night over the settlement of the St. Peter's Indian land question. At the conference were Hon. C. J. Doherty, Hon. Dr. Roche, Hon. Arthur Meighen, Geo. Bradbury, M.P. for Selkirk, C. P. Fullerton, counsel for the Dominion Government in this case, and the Selkirk deputation, Mayor Ross and Andrew Norquay. The Selkirk deputation urged an immediate settlement of the question.

Hon. Mr. Doherty pointed out the steps that had been taken to bring about a settlement, and that a test case was now ready for the courts. He told the deputation that no other method of settlement was possible and that the Government would wait the decision of the courts. He promised that as little delay as possible would be permitted in pressing this case to a final settlement.

ASSASSINATION OF EDITOR, MEANS END CAILLAUX RULE

Wife of French Minister of Finance, in Terror, Put in Prison Cell--First Boastful, Soon Dismayed

Paris, March 17.—The fall of the French Cabinet to-day generally regarded as likely to be brought about by the assassination last night of Gaston Calmette editor of the Figaro, by Madame Caillaux wife of the Minister of Finance.

Premier Doumergue conferred lengthily this morning with President Poincare at the Palace of the Elysee, and a Cabinet Council was called for later in the day when it was to be decided whether the Ministers should resign in a body or an attempt be made to reorganize the Cabinet with Mr Caillaux left out.

It was conceded by members of all parties who discussed the situation today in the lobbies of the chamber of Deputies that the shooting of M. Calmette would probably have far-reaching effects on French politics. It was recognised that M. Caillaux had been the creator of the present French Cabinet and was its guiding spirit. As he had offered his resignation it was pointed out the Cabinet was no longer in a position to uphold its announced policies.

DISMAY AND TERROR.

Madame Caillaux when she was driven from the police station to St. Lazare Prison after committing the crime was accompanied by Arthur Leymarie, chief private secretary of the Minister of War. She conversed quite calmly with him saying:

"My husband is one of the most honest of men. The press campaign which has been carried on against him for some time, is absolutely frightful. I tremble every morning when I open the newspapers."

The prisoner's composure failed, however, when the chief warden of St. Lazare Prison told her she was to be put in a cell. Her expression then became one of dismay and terror.

M. CAILLAUX WEEPS FAREWELL.

Owing to yesterday's hostile demonstrations by street crowds against Joseph Caillaux, Minister of Finance, a number of detectives were assigned to the duty of protecting him to-day and they accompanied him wherever he went.

Mr. Caillaux appeared to be extremely depressed. He broke down during an interview with the officials and began to tremble and weep. He then turned away and his colleagues quietly withdrew.

KIDNAPPING OF KELLEY MENTIONED IN HOUSE

Ottawa, March 17.—Calling on the Government to intervene and to use the power of diplomacy on behalf of a Canadian citizen incarcerated in an American prison, Mr. Frank Carvell moved in the Commons for the production of papers and correspondence on the matter of William J. Kelly of Richmond, N.B., at present serving a term of fourteen years in a Federal prison at Atlanta, Georgia. Mr. Carvell reviewed the circumstances, charging that Kelly had been inveigled across the American border and kidnapped by the American officers.

It is a case of a New Brunswick man caught by Americans on a charge of smuggling in 1903. He had been shot by an American officer but not seriously wounded, jumped from his sleigh, and beat the officer with a stake, leaving him by the roadside.

An action was taken for his extradition by the American authorities, but the Canadian judge held that the offence of which Kelly had been guilty was not extraditable. Later he was kidnapped by American officers.

SUFFRAGE PLEA BASED ON LACK OF DIVORCES

Denver, Col., Mar. 17.—Although equal suffrage for women has existed in Colorado since 1893 (twenty-one years), not one divorce suit has resulted from political differences between husbands and wives. This fact is attested to by twenty-one judges of the District Courts of this State in letters sent to-day to Senator Shaffroth at Washington, to be used as an argument for the suffrage amendment.

BANKER, 42, SLASHES THROAT

New Orleans, March 17.—Despondent over loss of position and intoxicated, H. Jack Brinker, aged 42 years, of 133 South Johnson streets, drew a razor across his throat at his home shortly before 10 o'clock Friday morning, and died in the Charity Hospital an hour later. He was married, but had no children.

For many years Brinker was identified with the steamboat business. He was at times captain of several small crafts. His last position was mate on mate mange, a position held by mate Landry at the time of the Mrs. A M Cooke episode.

TWO WOMEN AND TWO CHILDREN PERISHED IN FIRE AT BRECHIN

McCaulay's Hotel Burned Causing Death of Four, Injury to Three

Brechin, Mar. 17.—Four persons are dead and one is in a serious condition and may die, and two others are suffering from injuries sustained in jumping from an upstair window, as the result of a fire early to-day which completely destroyed Thomas McCauley's hotel in the north end of the town and wiped out the residence of Dr. Gilpin across the road.

BOARDER HERO OF FIRE.

The fire was discovered about two o'clock by Victor Adair, a boarder to whose heroism Mr. Thomas McCauley, the stricken father and husband, owes his life.

The McCauleys were sleeping in a large room over the kitchen and were overcome by smoke from the fire which evidently started in the basement from a cause as yet unascertained.

WOMEN OVERCOME BY SMOKE.

Mr. Adair climbed from his window broke open a door, climbed a stair to the room and dragged both Mr. and Mrs. McCauley to safety. Mrs. McCauley, however, was so overcome by the smoke that she succumbed a short time later. Mr McCauley was far gone and is still in a precarious condition.

Two other children were also sleeping in the room and they were brought to safety by neighbours who rushed to the scene at the first sound of fire and helped carry the children to safety.

SERVANT GIRLS ARE SAVED.

Three servant girls were sleeping in the front room facing the street and all three were awakened in time by one of the bartenders.

Miss McInerney and Miss Crosbie jumped from the window and escaped with a few cuts and bruises.

Miss Callaghan rushed to the window with them, but overcome by fear or smoke sank back into the flames and was burned to death.

STILL SEARCH FOR BODIES.

None of the bodies had been recovered early this afternoon. They were buried in the debris and searchers are still seeking them.

There is no fire fighting system in the village and the flames made easy headway against the efforts of the bucket brigades that quickly formed.

DR. AND MRS. GILPIN SAFE.

Carried by stifff breeze, the flames shot across the street and set fire to the residence and office of Dr. Gilpin, and it, too, was burned to the ground. The doctor and his wife awakened by the light from the fire at the hotel had already left the building and were in no danger.

The fire burned itself out at 4.30 a.m.

COURT REJECTS PLEA OF JEW

French Conscript Objected to Work on Saturday.

Charlons, Mar. 17.—A military conscript who refused to work on Saturday pleaded before a court martial that he could not do so because the Jewish creed, to which he subscribes, forbade it. The court imposed a sentence of three months' imprisonment despite the religious plea.

This apparently shows that French military courts are less Christian than the Spanish, as one of the latter acquitted a naval officer who refused to attend mass because he was a Protestant.

ARRESTED AT FUNERAL ALTER FOR MURDER OF POLICEMEN

One of Men Sought by Montreal Authorities--Constable Jumped on His Back After Trailing Him Into Sacred Edifice

Montreal, Mar. 17.—Joseph Beauchamp, one of the three men accused of the murder last Wednesday morning of Constable Bourdon at St. Laurent, and for whom the police have been scouring the whole Province, was arrested this morning in St. Vincent de Paul Church on St. Catherine street.

Beauchamp was kneeling among the mourners attending the funeral service of a little girl.

He was recognized going into the church by Constable Choquette, who followed him. When Beauchamp knelt down the policeman threw himself upon him. Beauchamp, it is alleged, made an attempt to get his hand to his hip pocket, but Choquette says he himself pulled a pistol secreted there and threw it away. Beauchamp held securely by the officer, quietly submitted.

When the policeman sprang at the murder suspect and threw the revolver up the aisle of the church, the little funeral party immediately rushed for the doors.

Reassured by the prompt manner in which Choquette handled Beauchamp, the mourners returned to their pews and the mass was being continued even before the policeman and his charge had left the church.

Several other people had identified Beauchamp in the church and had notified detective headquarters, so that by the time the policeman and the man got outside the building half a dozen policemen, heavily armed, were ready to receive him.

There was a reward of $1,000 out for Beauchamp's arrest or information leading thereto, and already four parties, beside Constable Choquette, are claiming it.

Since Thursday night, after the battle with the police, I have seen neither Foucault nor Bouret my companions, Beauchamp is alleged to have said at police headquarters after his arrest. "We ran different ways. I have seen none of my friends since then. I have been hiding in various out-of-the-way places, cellars, shacks, and outhouses. I have had very little to eat, and was very hungry often. I had very little except nuts for some time.

"This morning I was very cold. I had been out in a yard all night, not daring to seek food or shelter. I crept into the church because I was tired, cold and weary, and I felt that I could not drag myself any further."

No better man than Choquette could have been found for the work of capturing Beauchamp. He weighs 230 pounds, and was formerly a miner in Montana, where he participated in many a rough-and-tumble fight.

The fact that the infant child of Foucault was dying the police thought would attract the wanted man to his home. It was "tipped off" to the police that he had visited the child, and a rush was made to the house. When the police broke in they found Mrs. Foucault walking the floor with the child clasped to her, and when it was examined it was found to be dead. No sign of Foucault was to be found.

TRY THIS TREATMENT FOR REMOVING UGLY HAIRS

(Helps to Beauty)

No pain, and very little expense, is attached to this home-treatment for removing unsightly hair or fuzz from the face, neck or arms: Make a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water. Spread this on the hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes, remove, wash the skin and the hairs will have vanished. It is well to keep a small package of delatone handy to use whenever superfluous hairs make their appearance.

Curran and Lord Clare.

Curran, the Irish advocate, was on terms of intense enmity with Lord Clare, the Irish lord chancellor, with whom, when a member of the bar, he fought a duel and whose hostility to him on the bench, he always said, caused him losses in his professional income which he could not estimate at less than £30,000. The incidents attendant on this disagreement were at times ludicrous in the extreme. One day when it was known that Curran was to make an elaborate statement in chancery Lord Clare brought a large Newfoundland dog to the bench with him and during the progress of the most material part of the case began in full court to fondle the animal. Curran stopped at once. "Go on, go on, Mr. Curran!" said Lord Clare. "Oh, I beg a thousand pardons, my lord! I really took it for granted that your lordship was engaged in consultation!"

His Experience.

"Jasper," said Mrs. Grigson, who was looking over the morning paper, "here's a story of a woman who was robbed on a street car in broad daylight, and yet the thief got away unsuspected."

Mr. Grigson said that he had seen the item, but that it was either a typographical error or else the story was pure invention.

"Why do you say that?" asked his wife.

"Look at the item again. It says her purse contained $100 in currency, does it not?"

"Yes."

"It says there was also a receipted bill for a five dollar hat, does it not?"

"Yes."

"Well, no woman with $100 in cash in her possession would buy a five dollar hat."—Youth's Companion.

His Critic.

"The greatest compliment that I ever received," says Opie Read, "was a criticism. Several years ago I went to Arkansas and visited the scene where one of my stories is laid. The landlord of the little hotel said to me:

"'Here comes a little old fellow to whom I loaned a copy of your book. He can't read, but his wife reads to him. Let's see what he says about the book.

"'"Hello, Jason, did your wife read that book to you?"

"'"Mawnin', sah. Yes, she done read it to me."

"'"Well, what do you think of it?"

"'"Huh! That ain't no book at all. I done lived hear fo' fo'ty years an' I done hearn folks talk that a-way all th' time."'"—Cincinnati Inquirer.

TIPS IN SCOTLAND.

An Example of How Some Servants Win Their Wages.

A gentleman was invited to a shoot in Scotland at two places close together. He arrived at the first place, and immediately after his arrival at the first house received a telegram calling him back to town. He, however, determined to have one day's shooting and to proceed to town by the night mail.

At the end of the day he gave the head keeper £1 and asked him to send his gun and cartridge bag over to the other place for which he had an invitation and where he proposed proceeding in three or four days' time.

On his arrival there after his visit to town he found his gun, etc., had not arrived, whereupon he wrote to the keeper, asking him to forward it at once, and he received a reply stating that when he (the keeper) had received the other £4 to which he was "entitled" the gun would be forwarded. It was detained till payment was made.

The gentleman wrote to the keeper's master and received a reply that "he (the master) never interfered between his guests and his servants in the matter of tips." The gentleman ascertained that the master in question paid the keeper no wages, but left him to get what he could out of the guests.—London Times.

Bench Made Joke.

Mrs. Smith-Jones-Brown (effusively) —Congratulations, my dear! I hear you just received your final decree.

Mrs. Greene-Robinson-Johnson-Jackson—Yes, indeed, and the judge paid me such a pretty compliment.

Mrs. S.-J.-B.—Really? What was it?

Mrs. G.-R.-J.-J.—He said that in view of my excellent record in the divorce courts an honorary decree should be conferred on me.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Luck in Horseshoes.

The superstition about luck in horseshoes dates back too far for record, but it was not always confined to the horseshoe. Any piece of iron found in one's path was accounted a sign of good luck, and as horseshoes were more commonly picked up than any other article of that metal that particular object at last became the standard emblem of good fortune and the supposed defense against bad luck. In Aubrey's "Miscellanies," written 200 years ago, the author mentions having seen the horseshoe nailed up in church, and he also says that "most of the houses in the west end of London have the horseshoe on the threshold." The horseshoe to possess virtue must have been found, not purchased or looked up. Admiral Nelson had great faith in the luck of the horseshoe, and one was nailed to the mast of his ship, the Victory.—London Chronicle.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY PAVILION

PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., 1915.

The Grand Trunk Pavilion, which will occupy a prominent position in the railway plaza at the northeast corner of the grounds of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, will be directly opposite the mammoth machinery palace, adjacent to the passenger ferry slips, and overlooking San Francisco Bay. As will be observed the design is simple in outline and Spanish renaissance in character, making a handsome and ornate structure. The walls will be of stucco, rough finish and tinted a soft cream shade, relieved with an ornamental enriched band carried around the building under the eaves. Shields and fountains have been effectively placed to enhance the decorative effect of the building. The roof will be covered with a rich red Spanish tile. The design for this building was the one accepted by the Exposition Authorities as the standard for all the other buildings which will be erected on the railway plaza. This pavilion will house the exhibits of both the Grand Trunk Railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Messrs. Ross and Macdonald of Montreal, are the Architects.

The many friends of Mr. Harry Rogers, son of Mr. R. B. Rogers, will be pleased to hear that he has been promoted to the position of Chief Bridge Inspector on the Esquimalt-Nanaimo branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway, with headquarters at Vancouver and Victoria.

The many friends of Mrs. J. H. McClellan will regret to learn that she has been impelled by illness to return to the hospital for further care.

A Port Hope hotelkeeper has been fined $50 and costs for Sunday selling. The notes in this city maintain the law in its entirety.

Prayers have been written and engraved on many small objects, but only one person ever has been patient and painstaking enough to inscribe a complete prayer on a grain of wheat. One day Sir Moses Montefiore received a small tin box in the mail. On the cover of the box was written, "A prayer for Sir Moses Montefiore, by Enoch Mordecai, son of Zebi Hirsch Scheinemann of Jerusalem." The box contained a single grain of wheat, on which were inscribed in characters so small they could only be read with the aid of a powerful microscope the 336 Hebrew letters of the prayer and the date of the year (Hebrew reckoning) 5645. Sir Moses kept the prayer in his private desk until he died, and it is preserved with religious care by one of his friends.

How People Feel

When They Have

Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvenev has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvenev's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Sanol BLOOD SALT

No Indigestion can exist if this remedy is taken according to instructions—and there is no known remedy to take its place.

This Blood Salt is a mixture compounded so as to resemble in essence and effect, the salty parts of the human blood. It is well known that our vitality is normally kept up by means of the natural blood salts.

Hence a lack of the latter will alway superinduce a loss of the former. It is also a fact that with each quart of urine we lose about 18 grams of blood salts. Accordingly we must gradually become weak and sick, unless we provide a substitute for these salts in the blood.

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion such as Dyspepsia, Gastric Catarrh, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, etc., and as an aid to digestion, in wasting and nervous disease.

O summer girl, sweet summer girl,
We're watching now for you!
We're waiting for you to arrive,
You and your peekaboo.
The winter girl is very sweet,
And she has many charms,
But now the summer girl we want
To greet with open arms.

O summer girl, sweet summer girl,
Come early as you can
And be, as you have always been,
A blessed boon to man!
We'll lavish on you all our love,
As we have done before,
And we'll agree to bow the knee
And worship and adore

OUR POINT OF VIEW

It is said that Premier Borden, when discussing the divorce question with a number of personal friends, ventured the opinion that a good way to prevent divorce is to kiss your wife every day. Now we are waiting to hear what Mrs. Borden thinks of this proposal.

MARCONI'S NEW MIRACLE

Wireless telegraphy, wonderful as it is, is not to be the last word in the wizard achievements of the great Italian. Mr. Marconi has been making further wireless experiments and has at last succeeded in lighting up a suitably designed bulb by a wireless current supplied from a 100 h.p plant at a distance of six miles. The dream of a day when both light and heat will be distributed from central stations by wireless method would thus seem to be made a little more real, though most of us will be inclined to think such a realization a long way off. Mr. Marconi, however, does not hesitate to say that he believes it possible that our houses will one day be lighted and heated by wireless power. The father of the Marconigram has also been working patiently at his wireless telephone and has been able to communicate with it at a distance of one hundred miles quite clearly and distinctly. To do this he has used the ordinary telephone receiver and an apparatus quite like the ordinary telephone. The difficulty, however, in the way of the wireless telephone lies in the fact that the transmitter is a very heavy affair, requiring two men to carry it. That Marconi believes in a marvellous future for "wireless" will make many of us hesitate about being too sceptical of what the future will bring.

NEW METHODIST COLLEGE IN ROME

The Methodist Episcopal Church, working in Rome, Italy, has decided upon the erection of a splendid new college for young men, and has bought land for the same on Monte Mario, one of the highest and most prominent parts of the city. The same church has had a college for young women in operation in Rome for years this being one of the specially successful features of its work in that city. It is expected that the new institution will be thoroughly equipped and up-to-date along all lines, with the highest educational ideals, physically, intellectually and spiritually. Zion's Herald, of Boston, publishes a picture of the signing of the contract for the ground, and has the following to say about the enterprise:

> "Methodism, which has already brought to pass such remarkable results in Italy, took another important step on January 24, when the legal papers were signed which transferred to the Board of Foreign Missions 27,000 square meters of ground on Monte Mario, which is to be used as the site for a new collegio. This is one of the highest, boldest and most prominent parts of Rome, rising sheer 390 feet from the Via Trionfale along which Julius Caesar passed on his triumphal way to Rome. The new collegio will stand out, not only before the eyes of the capital, but also before the eyes of the entire kingdom."

Joints Quit Aching
Soreness beats it away

NO MORE STIFFNESS, PAIN OR MISERY IN YOUR BACK OR SIDE OR LIMBS!

Wonderful "Nerviline" is the Remedy

A marvelous pain reliever.

Not an ordinary liniment—just about five times more powerful, more penetrating, more pain-subduing than any thick, oily or ammonia liniment. Nerviline fairly eats up the pain and stiffness in chronic rheumatic joints, gives quick relief to those throbbing pains, and never burns or even stains the skin.

"Rheumatism kept my joints swollen and sore for ten years. My right knee joint was often too painful to allow me to walk. In this crippled tortured condition I found Nerviline a blessing. Its warm, soothing action brought relief I had given up hoping for. I rubbed on quantities of Nerviline and improved steadily. I also took Ferrozone at mealtime in order to purify and enrich my blood. I am to-day well and can recommend my treatment most conscientiously."

(Signed) C. PARKS
Prince Albert

Not an ache or pain in the muscles or joints that Nerviline won't cure. It's wonderful for lumbago and sciatica; for neuralgia, stiff neck, earache and toothache. Nerviline is simply a wonder. Best family liniment known and largely used for the past forty years. Sold by dealers everywhere, large family size bottles 50c., small trial size 25c. Refuse a substitute, take only "Nerviline".

Marriage In Burma.

In Burma marriage is civil, not religious, and is regarded as a simple partnership which, if not happy, may be dissolved at any time. After marriage there is no outward symbol like a wedding ring on a Burmese woman. She does not even adopt her husband's name, but retains her own. The husband has no right over the property which his wife possesses before marriage nor over the property which she might acquire after marriage. The Burmese woman can appear in law courts to represent her husband. In contracts with a third person she and her husband sign their names together. They can borrow money on joint security. Both husband and wife can sign deeds and lend money. And when there is no longer any love between a married couple they can get a divorce with alacrity.

FREAK PAINTINGS.

A Tiny Work of Art and Rosa's Transformed Harpsichord.

Specially prepared canvases and gilded frames are not essential to the making of great paintings. This has been demonstrated by the artists who have painted masterpieces on scraps of board, shells, grains of corn and the walls of rooms and prison cells. Some of the most valued art objects belong to the freak class.

The smallest painting in the world of distinctive merit was executed on the smooth side of a grain of corn by a Flemish artist. On this limited surface the artist painted in perfect detail a mill, a miller with a sack of grain on his back, a horse and cart and a group of several peasants standing in a road.

The largest picture ever painted is said to be a panorama of the Mississippi river, executed by John Banvard, an artist who died in Watertown, S. D., in 1891. The gigantic canvas was twenty-two feet high and nearly two miles long. It gave a detailed representation of 2,000 miles of the Father of Waters.

The largest of the old masters' canvases is Murillo's "Appearance of the Christ Child to St. Anthony of Padua." The picture is ten feet wide and eighteen feet high.

It is related that a friend called on Salvator Rosa in Florence one day and found him playing on an old harpsichord. The caller asked the artist why he kept such a worthless instrument.

"Why, it is not worth a scudo!" the friend said.

"I will wager," replied Rosa, "that it shall be worth a thousand before you see it again."

A bet was made. Rosa immediately painted a landscape on the lid that not only sold for 1,000 scudi, but was accounted a work of great merit.

The celebrated St. John's Wood clique of artists in London executed a series of large frescoes in oil on the walls of the studio of J. E. Hodgson, one of the members. The paintings were begun in the winter of 1864-5. Shakespearean subjects were chosen, and the figures were a little under life size.

When Hodgson moved from his studio an unappreciative tenant covered the walls of the room with brown wall paper, completely hiding the paintings. The frescoes were rediscovered by accident forty years afterward and restored.

Divides the Waters.

Situated exactly at the highest point of the divide of the Rocky mountains, on the Crow's Nest division of the Canadian Pacific railway, in British Columbia, is a hotel. When it rains in the mountains the water which falls on the eastern slope of the hotel roof trickles away to join a tiny rivulet, which in due time mingles its waters with the Atlantic. The water falling just beyond the ridgepole, on the other side of the roof, flows westerly and ultimately into the Pacific.

Poor Little Goose!

"Seems as if I can never find a decent quill in the house," growled the eighteenth century author.

"I think it would pay you to keep a goose," sharply retorted his wife.

"You mean one that would be of some help to me, don't you?" chortled the brute.—Detroit Free Press.

Vulgar Ostentation.

Little Willie—Say, pa, what is vulgar ostentation? Pa—Vulgar ostentation, my son, is the display made by people who have more money to make it with than we have.—Chicago News.

She Knew the Answer.

A reporter called on a rector to ask him if he had accepted a bishopric that had been offered him. The servant said that her master could not be seen. He was at prayer seeking for guidance. Then could the reporter see the rector's wife? "Oh, no," said the slavey, "you can't see her. She's busy packing up!"—Circle.

A Neighborly Precaution.

The new clerk at the drug store returned the prescription to the old customer with a request that he wait till the boss returned.

"But why can't you fill it out?"

"I could if you was a stranger, but I ain't to fill 'em for folks that lives about here."—Success Magazine.

REPORT OF MR. J. E. B. McCREADY

Perhaps one of the best reports on fur farming, its profits and possibilities, is the following article written by Mr. J. E. B. McCready, the Government publicity agent:—

A single pelt of a silver fox from a ranch in Prince Edward Island, Canada, was sold by C. Lampson & Co., of London, in April, 1910, for £540 ($2,700.) Other pelts from the same ranch were sold to the same purchasers at the same date for £530 and £500 each, respectively. Twenty-seven skins including the above, brought £7601 ($38,005.) an average price of $1,400 each.

Since 1910 practically no pelts have been sold from the Prince Edward Island ranches, excepting of foxes that died from accident or disease or such as had grown too old to breed. The reason for this is obvious. The profits from fox breeding had proved to be so exceptionally large that many desired to enter the business and the demand for breeding foxes absorbed all that were produced. Breeding foxes were sold in 1910 for something more than their pelt value, and to-day a good pair of breeders are selling as high as $35,000 a pair.

Mr. Leo Frank, representing the R. J. McNEILL BLACK AND SILVER FOX CO. Ltd., has caused to be published a book on the Silver Fox Industry which he will gladly mail to readers of The Peterborough Times, free of charge by addressing him at 517 New Birks Building, Montreal.

His Mental Incapacity.

The Court—So you ask divorce from this man on the ground of mental incapacity. What proof have you that he's insane? The Woman—Who said he was insane, your honor? The Court—Why, you say he is mentally incapable. The Woman—Yes; incapable of understanding that I'm boss.

Enthusiasm Dulled.

"Don't you feel as if you would like to leave footprints in the sands of time?" asked the ambitious citizen.

"No," answered Mr. Crosslots gloomily; "out where I live the mud is eighteen inches deep, and I don't feel as if I wanted to see another footprint as long as I live."—Washington Star.

Sarcastic.

The Manager—I've got a new idea for a melodrama that ought to make a hit. The Writer—What is it? The Manager—The idea is to introduce a cyclone in the first act that will kill all the actors.

Lights His Pipe in a Gale.

I write as one who has smoked in his time more matches than most people, and it will be understood how I regard the bus driver's ability in lighting a pipe. A gale may be blowing, the horses requiring special attention, his left eye engaged on the reflection of the omnibus in shop windows, a passenger inquiring who won the Derby in 1884, constables issuing directions with the right arm, a fare hailing him from the pavement, and amid all these distractions he can strike one wooden match, hold it in the curve of his hand and the tobacco is well alight. Also while hats are blowing about the streets in the manner of leaves in autumn his headgear never goes from its place, rarely moves from the angle decided on the first journey. I have always assumed that he takes it off at night before retiring to rest, but to part with it must mean a terrible wrench.—London Express.

Chinese Music.

The notes of Chinese music read, like the written characters, from right to left, and the intervals of the scale are different from those of the scale adopted by the nations of the west. The music is not very harmonious and sounds meaningless and jangling to western ears, but it has a pretty musical cadence that makes it attractive and interesting in spite of its frequent discords.

The Hudson Six-54, $2050
(f. o. b. Detroit, Mich.)
Duty Paid.

Not All Sixes Will Do This

The average man thinks a Six is merely two cylinders added to a Four. The engineer knows better. Many baffling problems were solved by Howard E. Coffin and the Hudson engineers before the HUDSON Six was perfected. Not all designers of Sixes have been so successful. Not all Sixes will develop the marvellous smoothness, the amazing flexibility, the vibrationless motion that one enjoys in the HUDSON Six. It's worth your while to see the HUDSON before you decide.

Until you drive a HUDSON Six you cannot realise its great advantage. Its smoothness and flexibility are an insurance as well as a delight. HUDSON Sixes are preferred because of high quality combined with moderate price. The Six-54 has four forward speeds, 135-inch wheel-base, motor 4½ x 5½, developing 55 horse-power. Made in Phaeton at $2950 and Sedan at $4050. The Six-40 has 123-inch wheel-base, motor 3½ x 5, developing 47 horse-power, gives 13 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and is, we think, the easiest riding car on the market. The Six-40 in Phaeton and Roadster at $2300, and in Cabriolet at $2575. All cars, of course, are electrically started and lighted, left side drive, center control, gasoline tank in cowled dash. Catalog on request. Demonstrations as arranged. Prices f. o. b. Detroit, Michigan, duty paid.

"SEE THE TRIANGLE ON THE RADIATOR"

Bumps on the Head.

The lump raised by a blow on the head is due to the resistance offered by the hard skull and its close connection with the movable elastic scalp by many circumscribed bands of connective tissue. The result of a blow when the scalp is not cut is the bruising and laceration of many of the small blood vessels or capillaries. Blood or its fluid constituent, serum, is poured into the meshes of the surrounding connective tissue, which is delicate, spongy, distensible and cellular, and the well known bump or lump is quickly formed. This cannot push inward at all and naturally takes the line of least resistance. Similar bumps may be formed on the skin in exactly the same way, for the shin bone also is covered only by skin and subcutaneous connective tissue.

By MAGGIE TEYTE

MAGGIE TEYTE

CHANGE of season spells change of diet for the woman who values her health and looks.

Nine out of ten of us have been eating too much and too heavy food for several months. We have eaten more than we needed. Now that the need is lessened so materially the supply should be cut in half.

Mr. Thomas A. Edison apparently understands the laws of hygiene as well as the mysteries of electricity. He and his wife went on half-rations some time ago and increased their efficiency thereby.

When the trying intermediate days came, when winter was most severe and spring just around the corner, he went to the sunny Southland and lived on fruits and vegetables and plenty of water.

We can't all go South. Otherwise we can copy his program.

There is an old Greek saying that "Surfeit has killed more than famine."

I met a man recently who told me he had a long period of misfortune which compelled him to curtail all his expenses. He said when he had reduced living to a fine financial system he found he could allow himself but 20 cents a day for food.

"I started out to analyse the needs of the body and the component parts of different foods," said he, "and I soon realized that I could not only keep from starvation on what seemed so small a sum in comparison with former expenditures, but I lived better from the standpoint of health. I was soon able to save a few pennies each day, which gave me a reserve fund when the need of extra food came to meet some unusual demand of work."

A celebrated dietician advises the gradual diminution of food from the first of February to the first of May, then keeping that standard for the summer. He allows about 16 ounces of food daily, but he insists it shall be of the most nourishing kind and well balanced.

Naturally, the amount of food eaten depends upon the work done by the individual. The woman who does the housework for a big house will find the necessity for food is greater than the woman who does nothing but read and loaf and seek amusement. But the latter is the woman who is sure to overeat. Lots of persons eat more because they can't think of anything else to do. Eating is more or less a habit. If, when you feel you must eat, you will stop and think whether it is too much time or too little food which created the thought the chances are you will find you are not hungry.

An ideal diet for the spring is made up of fruits, fresh vegetables, eggs, some meat, excluding pork, unless one has great work to do, milk and tea and coffee in moderation if you feel they are necessary.

"Eat only when hungry, and be sure you know when you are hungry," is the advice a physician gives to his patients.

Forget the existence of white bread unless you toast it brown and crisp. Pineapple is a beautifier and an antiseptic for the throat and stomach. "Greens," which means spinach and dandelions and young beets and kale, are blood purifiers and complexion makers.

And if you want to be happy and well and beautiful never drink less than a dozen glasses of water daily between meals—and not a drop with meals. If you follow these hints you can evolve a diet which will suit your individual needs.

Then cast out all unkindness and all envy, and think only of truth and love and beauty, and you will note a magic change in your appearance and your health.

"DRESS" A Message to Today from Theresa Tidy

THERESA TIDY was a household name when the great-grandmothers of today were debutantes.

She wrote advice on a variety of subjects of interest to the young women of the time and her books on decorum ran through ten or a dozen editions. They are full of gentleness, but written with an authority which convinces the leader that Miss Theresa Tidy was sure of her position on any subject which she discussed.

In one of her quaint little volumes published by A. H. Maltby of New Haven, Ct., in [illegible], and entitled "Eighteen Maxims of Neatness and Order," she discourses on dress with a delightful dignity which will doubtless amuse the young women of the present as much as it impressed their ancestors.

And underneath its elaborate wording there is the leaven of good sense which must ever remain undated. Says Miss Tidy:

"Woman being the solace and delight as well as the helpmate of man, a moderate use of ornament seems reasonably allowable to her.

"By a judicious selection and tasteful arrangement of dress a lady adds to the charms which nature has bestowed upon her; but a gaudy and inappropriate dress lessens or absolutely hides them. We are inclined to believe that young ladies would be more becomingly attired than they usually are, were they aware of the extent to which a person of any penetration can discern their character and disposition in their style of dress and manner of wearing it.

"Good sense, delicacy and discretion and their opposites are as manifest in the dress of a young female as in her countenance; and every sensible woman ought, therefore, to pay so much attention to it as to avoid subjecting herself to unfavorable imputations.

"She should convince every one who sees her that she knows the just medium between parsimony and extravagance, between slovenliness and gaudy profusion of inappropriate ornaments, and between vanity and a modest desire to dress appropriately to her station.

"Indecencies of dress usually take their origin in indelicacy of mind; and where they do not originate in it they infallibly produce it.

"In this particular modesty is a powerful aid to beauty. No woman looks so well as she whose dress is strictly decent; and the most liberal display of charms does not create half so powerful an interest in the breast of beholders as those which are painted by imagination, and which concealment is sure to procure the credit of.

"Neatness is the very handmaid of elegance, and a happy mixture of both is inexpressibly superior, in its effects, to gaudy profusion and ill-assorted splendor.

"We must not forget that, while propriety of dress and moderation in the expense of it are positive virtues, their opposites are positive and heinous sins.

"Our bodies are but temporary caskets of our immortal souls and to bestow inordinate care upon the former we must necessarily neglect the culture and improvement of the latter.

"In addition to this, every needless expense in dress is so much abstracted from the means intrusted to us for the benefit of our less fortunate fellow-creatures."

The Kind of Girl a Man Likes

BY NORVELL ELLIOTT

The Purposeful Girl

"THERE is all the difference in the world between those two girls," said my bachelor friend emphatically, as we passed Caroline Myers and Maria Roberts.

I lifted my eyes questioningly.

"Maria Roberts is just drifting. Caroline has a purpose in life. Simple enough to say, but mighty big when it comes to moulding the character of two young women." The philosopher by my side turned to me for corroboration. "Don't you agree with me, lass?"

"Certainly," I replied earnestly. "You know, lad, I always have believed women should have a definite purpose in life as well as you men."

"And if you didn't, a little review of Caroline's and Maria's lives would convince you," he replied. "Maria is exceedingly pretty and, on first acquaintance, she seems attractive enough, but she doesn't last. I used to wonder why and it took me a good many moons to fathom the mystery. There was nothing to her beyond a certain shallow appeal—she loved the theatre, was wild over peppermints, adored Scotch terriers, slept until 11, had a luncheon date five days in the week, hated the dressmaker, motored miles every afternoon, selected the flowers for the family dinner table from the family conservatory herself; in the evening, dances, the opera! Good heavens, lass, what a life! Fortunately for her there are a few men left in the world who haven't any more definite goal themselves, and these Maria manages to keep hanging around her. Puppets, all of them!

"Take Caroline—same social circle, plenty of money, could lead a life like Maria's if she wanted to and nobody would criticise. But Caroline isn't the kind of girl to be satisfied with a life like that. She wants her life to count for something in the community. She has a purpose and she is steadily working toward the fulfilment of that purpose. You know the result, lass. I doubt if there is a girl in this entire city who has as many genuine friends among people who are worth while. As for the men—just for example—recently I tried to make an engagement with her, but every single evening was taken for two weeks in advance!

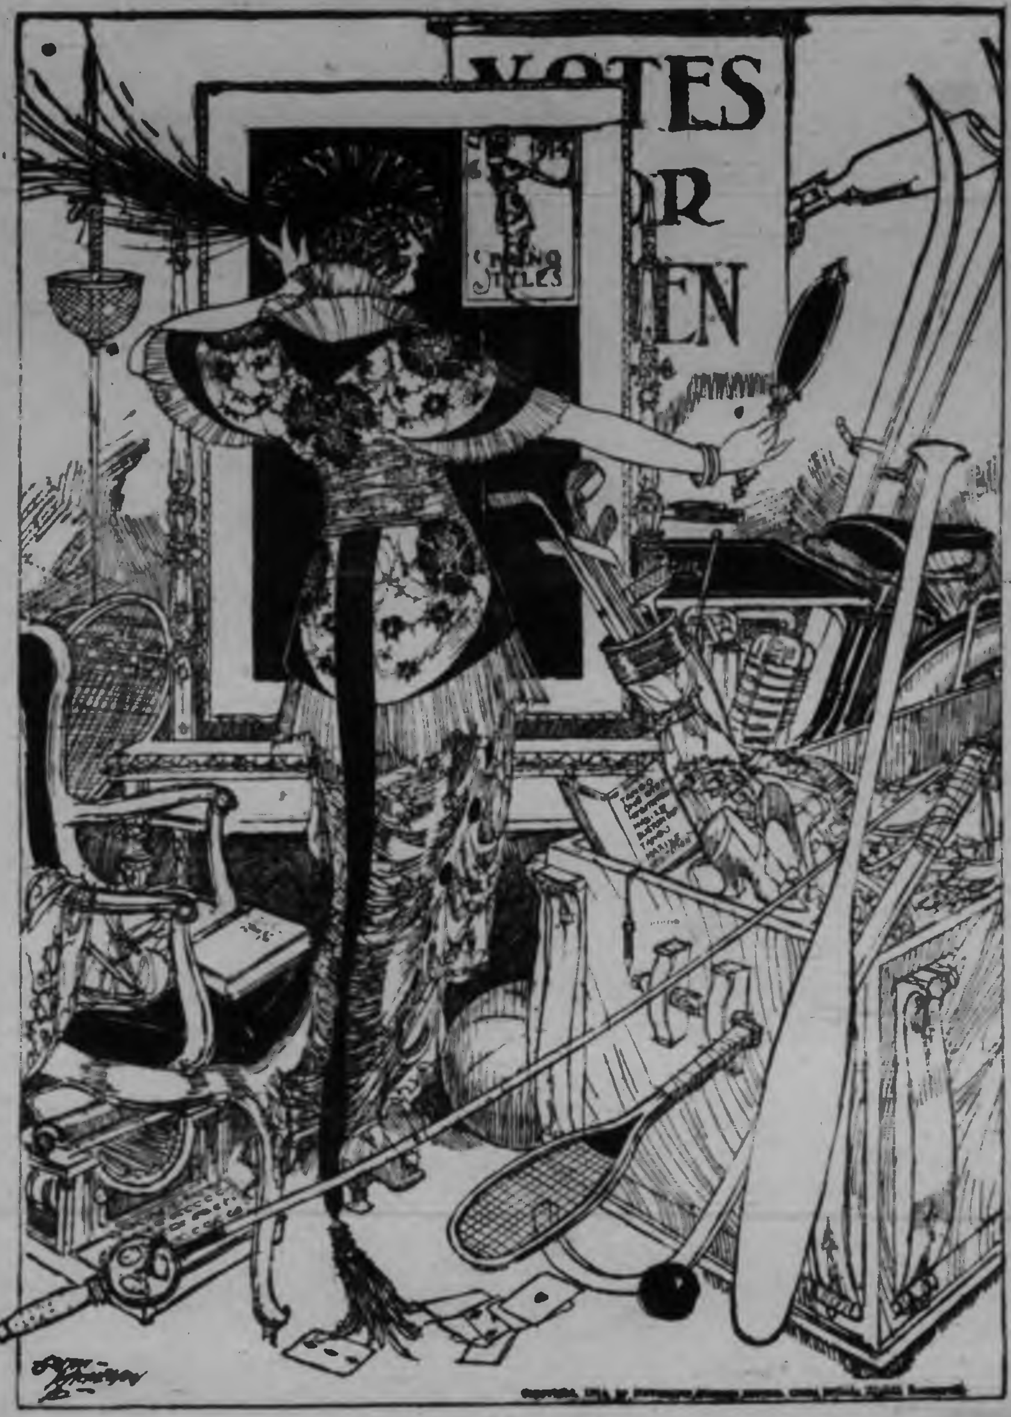
"Not long ago I overheard the conversation of several girls in the first year in high school. One of them said she was going to take a commercial course that she might be prepared to go into business if the need arose. The other was interested in domestic science in which she expected to specialise. Just at this point in the conversation up came a beauty of a girl who began to laugh at her more serious minded friends.

"'As for myself,' she said, 'I'm not going to bother my head about any serious study. Why, don't you know, girls, it's the girl who knows nothing that marries early? That's my game.' Poor little fool, lass, she's got a lot to learn in this big world.

"For the girl a man wants to marry nowadays is the girl who has shown she can be happy without a husband. And no woman can be happy unless she has an object in life—a purpose she is working out for herself. The women who count want to marry men of purpose and the day has come when the men who count want to marry women of purpose. They know the woman who can make a success of her own life before she is married is pretty apt to be the kind of a woman who can help her husband make a success of his. The girl will, in the majority of cases, give up her business or profession for the larger profession of motherhood and home-making, but because of those years of a busy, purposeful existence before she married she will be all the stronger, all the more capable of fulfilling the greater profession for which woman was made."

Great Grandma's Attic in 2014

By Michelson



IT WILL happen—a hundred years from now a nice girl somewhere will find herself among the debris in great-grandmother's attic. She will find in the litter all sorts of oddities reflecting the activities of a time long past—emblems and instruments of strange old sports, and CLOTHES. Oh, yes! Clothes! Such old dresses, worn in 1914 and thereabouts, and hats of the most peculiar style.

You can fancy that girl of 2014 slipping on one of the hundred-year-old dresses, and of course one of the old hats. You can readily imagine that she will think they are very funny. She always thinks everything is funny that is not being worn NOW. The girl who comes a hundred years after HER will think the things SHE regularly wears are funny. That is the way the world goes.

But, mind you, nice girls themselves never go out of fashion. You may like to stop and think just what they will be like in a hundred years. PROBABLY you will only succeed in fancying them in different clothes.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am a stranger in a big city and I don't know what to do with myself evenings. I can get acquainted with plenty of folks, of course, just as any other young fellow can, but I don't know anything about them and, besides, I don't like the kind of people that are so easy to pick up. I'd like to know some nice girls like the ones I went with back home. But those that I see here all seem so fresh, as we used to call them, that I don't seem to care for them.

Any girl that will pick up with me just because I smile at her will pick up with the next fellow who comes along. I don't like that kind of a girl. What shall I do to get acquainted?

LONESOME KID.

WELL, Lonesome Kid, you may be a kid and you may be lonesome, but you have plenty of good common sense hidden away in that youthful head of yours just the same.

You are quite right. The girl who smiles at you, just because you smile at her, will smile at the next man who passes, and at the one who comes behind him and at the whole procession of men.

She isn't smitten with your looks, she's just after a flirtation and she thinks you'll do—that's all.

It doesn't make any difference what city you're in; the girls are just the same there as they are anywhere else.

Human nature has nothing, or at least not very much to do with geography.

The spoony girl back home, who went down to the depot to see the Chicago train come in and make eyes at the brakeman, lives in the big city, too.

She doesn't have to wait for the Chicago train; that's all.

The girl who always had the last new "drummer" "on the string"—you knew her back in the home town, didn't you?

She was the sort who always wanted to start the kissing games at the Sunday school picnic, and when it came time to take down the swings and pack up the lemonade buckets she was always "lost" somewhere—with the young fellow from town who called everybody who didn't live where he did when he was at home "a jay."

Poor girl, she ran away with a dark-eyed stranger at fair time. He deserted her somewhere down South and she came home looking like her own grandmother.

She's common enough, that sort of girl, poor thing, and you're quite right to want to keep away from her.

How shall you meet the right sort? You mustn't expect to do that all in a minute.

The right sort of girl isn't hanging on a bush for the first man who passes to pick.

She's at home helping mother let down little sister's school dresses, and mend little brother's trousers, or else she's at work somewhere supporting herself.

But don't be discouraged; you'll find her and her sisters all right, if you try hard enough.

Where do you go to church?

Nowhere? That's a mistake.

Pick out a good church, and go to it Sunday evenings and Wednesday evenings.

Go and have a talk with the minister; tell him who you are and what you are and how lonesome you are, and the first thing you know you'll know so many girls that it will be hard for you to keep track of them.

Every big city is full of decent social clubs for decent young men and women. Hunt some of them up. You won't find it hard.

Don't be ashamed of wanting to know nice girls. Be proud of it.

The nice girls all want to know you, and men like you, too.

Good luck go with you, Lonesome Kid. You won't be lonesome long.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her care this office.

Observations of a Cynic

There is one good feature about the divorce business: There is no question about the sincerity of the celebration that follows the issuing of a decree.

The policeman's baton is the only reform club that is effective with some people. And it often reaches the wrong head.

Folks become speechless with fright quite often. It is a pity that anger does not have a similar effect on the vocal organs.

Flattery is none the less pleasant because both parties to it know it to be false. And it is just as effective as if both believed it to be true.

Thirty days is a shorter time when mentioned in a promissory note than when embodied in the sentence of a police magistrate.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

When You Are "Grouchy," Look for Physical Cause

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

Copyright, 1914, by L. K. Hirshberg.

DR. HIRSHBERG

WHEN you are well you are light-hearted. You feel as light as a feather. You can tango and dip and hesitate and trip the light fantastic as bouncingly as a feather.

There is something exhilarating about good health. Your spirit is light and your head is as free of care as an X-ray globe is of air.

If you are pessimistic, heavy, heady, leaden footed or loaded down with trouble, an honest, searching examination will disclose the fact that the world is treating you no worse than it is treating George Green and John Jones.

Your physical make-up is at fault, not the universe. If you have pins and needles tingling your spine, a pain in your neck, aches and twists in your anatomy, you are apt to rail at people and things.

Many of these ballast-like torments weigh you down. They keep you from the buoyancy round about. You grow sensitive. You dread the joke which is on you. You think, when people mock you, that misery is yours.

Don't you believe it. Those around you who taunt your complaints, your knock-knees, your humpback, your excess obese baggage, mean no more than they would mean if they said sweet things to you.

Human nature is so endowed that people speak scandal and do not mean it deeply. They mock you, and are not even aware that you exist. They speak well about you, praise you, advance your stock of "ego" 100 per cent.

Yet they have no deep feelings in the matter. It is all a matter of their light-heartedness 'gainst your foolish heavy-headedness.

When a boy shoots a bean at a silk top hat it is buoyancy. When men shriek "Hi! Whiskers" at some aged and alfalfa-covered deacon it shocks the neighbors, but it is a sign of health and vigor.

Of course this can be carried a bit to extremes. To tie a tin can on a dog's tail is unfair. To pull a man's whiskers or break a $10 hat is not playing the game according to the rules.

But, within the limits of the conservation of another's health and resources it is a sign of vigor, stamina and good physique to imitate the wind through a man's whiskers or laugh at a fellowman in silk hat and evening clothes.

Why, then, are people sensitive about mockery, practical jokes, or fun poked at their weaknesses? Why does a foolish, puritanical, clinical professor grow mad when he is dubbed an expert who "went a-shearing and came home shorn?"

Simply because their nature is not buoyant. They are heavy-sided, top-heavy, unhealthful.

Thou wilt not leave us in the dust;
Thou madest man, he knows not why,
He thinks he was not made to die;
And Thou hast made him: Thou art just.

Answers to Health Questions

Miss N. L., Indianapolis—My hair is turning gray, yet I am only 27 years old. What shall I do?

Apply a proper oil to your hair twice a day and resorcin ointment to the scalp every other day. Sulphur and ammoniated mercury ointments half and half once a week. Take 20 drops of tincture of iron in water three times a day through a tube.

* * *

F. B. L., Pottstown, Pa.—I work in an office and do not exercise. What is good for falling hair and dandruff?

Wash your hair with haseline snow or rose water cream. Do not use water. Clean your combs and hairbrushes with scalding hot water and ammonia. Use 5 grains of salicylic acid, 10 grains of resorcin to an ounce of castor oil as remedy every other night.

* * *

G. K., Toronto, Canada—I have noises in my ear only when at work. The noises are not there when I go walking. I'm deaf in one ear.

Suppose you try dropping 10 drops of glycerine in that ear twice in 24 hours while you are at work. Also have an aural surgeon examine it.

Sayings of Children

A little boy and his sister were allowed last summer to collect eggs from the hencoops, but were told they must never take away the nest egg. The little girl, however, did so one morning by mistake, and her brother told her she must take it right back, "because that was what the old hen measured by."

Aunt Sarah (to nephew from the city)—Is Uncle Cyrus through milking, Teddy?

Teddy—Not quite. He's finished two faucets and has just begun on the other two.

Teacher—Who can tell me what useful article we get from the whale?

Johnny—Whalebone.

Teacher—Right. Now what little boy or girl knows what we get from the seal?

Tommy—Sealing wax.

A little girl aged 9 called her father to her bedside the other evening.

"Papa," said the little diplomat, "I want to ask your advice. What do you think it will be best to give me for a birthday present?"

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE ERNEST SMITH

"WHAT in the wide world is that noise?" asked Mrs. Rabbit of Jack Rabbit, as she began making bread one evening.

"I guess it's Father snoring," answered Jack.

"I hope he don't shake the stove down. Go and wake him up and ask him to tell you a story. You are in the way here."

Jack went up stairs and asked Billy to come down with him. "How will we wake Father up?" asked Billy.

"Cher-cher-cho-oo!"

Jack sneezed so loud Brer Rabbit almost jumped to the ceiling.

"Good morning!" exclaimed Billy.

"What do you want, you rascals?" asked Brer Rabbit.

"Another Indian story," said Jack.

"Then," began Brer Rabbit: "Let me twist my ear and start my brain going."

Then he began: "Indian children, my dear boys, love the woods, the trees, the little streams, the flowers and the birds.

"Silver Star and his sister Ka-wash-a had a little canoe on the Sunshine river and often they went along the edge of the water gathering flowers. Silver Star paddled in front while Ka-wash-a sat behind.

"They climbed up the bank of the Sunshine river one day when suddenly they came upon a nest of bees.

"All about them the busy little bees swarmed.

"'Keep perfectly still,' said Silver Star to his sister.

"There the children stood like statues, hardly daring to move.

"Over their heads came the bees, nearer and nearer, but they stood motionless, for Indians have wonderful self-control.

"One by one the bees went away and left Silver Star and Ka-wash-a standing alone.

"They went back to their canoe and paddled back home, where Ka-wash-a told her Father, the Great Chief, what Silver Star had done.

"The Great Chief took an eagle's feather and placed it in Silver Star's hair and——"

"Didn't he even kiss him?" asked Billy Bunny.

"No," answered his father. "To have an eagle's feather placed in your hair by the Great Chief is far greater honor than being kissed.

"But I am not a Great Chief, so here is a kiss for each of you," said Brer Rabbit as he finished.

There is a curious looking animal in South Africa that looks for all the world like a piece of toast with four legs, a head and a tail. It resembles a pussy cat about the forehead and ears, but its nose is distinctly that of a rat, while its tail is not very dissimilar to that of a fox. This strange animal is called the aard wolf and doubtless dwells in South Africa because, judged by his looks, he would not be admitted into good animal society anywhere else.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months resident upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties.—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

FOR THE COMMON GOOD

It is the aim of The Times:

To exploit and advance the best interests of the people of the fair and fertile land wherein it is published, and to which it steadily devotes its efforts;

To stand for liberty and law, equal rights and good government, the greatest boon to a free people;

To foster and encourage private and public enterprise, and hold up the hands of every honest toiler, either with brawn or brain, in every field of activity;

To stand independently for the true interests of the city, the Dominion and the Empire, and for those policies only which make for the common good;

It aims to be excellent and not cheap.

SECTION 2, SEVERN DIVISION
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Section No. 2, Severn Division, Trent Canal," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon on Monday, March 23rd, 1914.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on or after this date at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa; at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont.; and at the office of the District Engineer, Public Works Department, Midland, Ont.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered bank of Canada for the sum of $36,000.00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railway and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted

The cheque of the successful tenderers will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,

L. K. JONES,

Asst. Deputy Minister and Secretary.

THE RAGLAN SHOULDER A FEATURE OF THE SPRING COAT

There is a decided flare at the bottom of many of the new coats so that they may fit over the panniers and puffs which, if all indications prove true, will be the features of most of the summer frocks. There is an almost endless variety of these new short coats; some are long in back and short in front, others bolero-like with inset vests; and still others showing somewhat longer lines, the bottoms often being lengthened with one or two flaring, godet-like flounces; when worn as a suit coat or with a skirt of the same material, this flounce appears to belong to the skirt.

There is a new striped duvetyn, in light and dark tones of the same shades, such as light and dark brown, light and dark green, etc., which will be very popular for the little separate coats and capes which are to be much worn over thin dresses this spring and summer.

No. 8270 is a raglan coat, with a shaped flounce at the bottom; it is fashioned of sweet-pea purple duvetyn; the fullness at the back is held in by a buttoned strap on either side.

This coat requires for size 36, 3¼ yards of 42 inch duvetyn or cotton velour.

The costume shown in No. 8283-8284 is of moire in a charming shade of golden brown; the inset vest shows glints of gold and there is a most attractive collar forming two points in the back.

This costume may be copied in size 36, with 1⅝ yards of 42 inch material for the coat (8283) and 3⅝ yards of 42 inch material for the skirt (8284).

Moire is wide, averaging 40 inches, and may be purchased from $1.50 and up.

No. 8270—sizes 32 to 42.
No. 8283—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8284—sizes 22 to 30.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

THE NEWEST COATS ARE SHORT

Do you like these snappy short coats? They are the last word for spring. The popularity of the tunic, the pannier and the puff is responsible for them. Many of these little coats are bolero-like, others are miniature cutaways or box-coats.

It is remarkable how we accustom ourselves to the new modes and grow to admire something which at first appeared more than extreme.

Also they appear to be the height of economy, for if one desires she may wear one of these little coats with several different skirts. They are fashioned of plain fabrics and worn with plaid skirts or conversely they are fashioned of plaid or brocade, to be worn with plain skirts.

No. 8203-8204 shows an unusually smart suit with a short coat and draped skirt; the skirt is a cotton duvetyn in white and the coat is a black and white novelty cotton. This is a most appropriate suit for Southern wear.

These novelty cottons are most interesting; they are so dainty and charmingly patterned. They are wide and may be purchased from 75 cents a yard and up.

No. 8241 is a kimono coat for a girl of from 2 to 10 years; as illustrated it is developed in pin striped serge, with contrasting collar and cuffs.

No. 8203—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8204—sizes 22 to 30.
No. 8241—sizes 2 to 10.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

THE HOAXER HOAXED

Captain Koepenick in Turn Swindled by Mock Officials

Wilhelm Voigt, the notorious shoemaker of Koepenick, known as Germany's champion hoaxer, was cleverly duped in a manner that recalls his own famous exploits.

While he was strolling along the market square at Goslar he was held up by two men dressed as officials of justice. They demanded the instant payment of $70 in fines for an offence alleged to have been committed by him a year before, threatening him, in default, with imprisonment.

Voigt, who resides in Luxembourg, and was merely on a brief visit to Germany, happened to have only $30 on him at the time. The "officials" thereupon compelled him to telegraph to his home for the balance, keeping guard over him at the telegraph office for three hours.

At the end of that time the money arrived, and, having duly paid it over to the men, "Captain Koepenick" lost no time in leaving Germany.

Subsequently the discovery was made that the men were not officials at all, and that, although Voigt had rendered himself liable to prosecution, no order had even been issued for his arrest, nor were any proceedings pending against him.

Mr. Carton's Writ Issued.

Acting for Mr. M. Carton, Peck, Kerr and McElderry have served the city with a notice of writ for damages of $5,000. Mr. Carton, it will be remembered was injured at Central Park, when struck by a falling limb.

It would seem that P. C. Brown's application for the position of Chief of Police of Port Hope was favorably received. It would also seem that the stipend offered did not meet with Officer Brown's approval.

BAIT FOR SARDINES.

Bretons Coax the Tiny Fish With Salted Eggs of the Cod.

Sardine fishing forms the chief industry of Brittany. In an average season the Brittany sardine fishermen catch 10[illegible] to [illegible] pounds of sardines, for which they receive anything from £300,000 to £400,000, while the shore industries dependent upon this fishery give employment to 20,000 other persons, mostly women and girls. So important is the sardine that in many communities in Brittany every person is directly or indirectly supported by it, and the failure of the fish to come means ruin, starvation and death to many people in the more isolated places.

Sardines are found on the coast of Brittany throughout the year, but flourish in greater abundance in summer and autumn. As many as 100,000 have been taken at one time in one net from one school. One remarkable feature of sardine fishing in Brittany is the enormous amount of bait which is used. The bait in general use is the salted eggs of the codfish, and it is estimated that the Breton fishermen pay £70,000 every year to Norway for cod roe for use as bait.

The casting of the bait, on the proper use of which a great deal of the success of the fishing depends, is always done by the captain of the boat, who stands on a little platform in the stern and while directing the movements of the boat and the manipulation of the net throws the bait to attract the fish to the surface and around the boat. When the fish are on one side of the net or on the other his next move is to cast the bait in such a way as to cause them to rush against the net and thus become gilled.—London Tit-Bits.

Two Cheerful Liars.

Two Americans were disputing as to which had experienced the greatest cold in winter. Said one: "In the part of Iceland where I was last summer the ground is frozen so hard all the year round that when they want to bury a man they just sharpen his feet and drive him in with a pile hammer."

The other replied: "Yes, I know that place. Didn't stay there long—found it not quite bracing enough for me. Went on to a small town farther north. The hotel where I was staying caught fire. My room was on the top story. No fire escapes or ladders in that primitive settlement. Staircases burnt away. Luckily, kept my presence of mind. Emptied my bath out of the window and slid down the icicle."—Truth.

Corporation Directors Want Their Rights and Usually Get Them.

A large corporation held a directors' meeting a few days ago. As the meeting was coming to a close one of the directors, reputed to be worth $10,000,000, ran in all out of breath. Just as he entered the other directors were making their exit, says the Hartford Courant.

"Look here," the incoming director shouted to the chairman, "I want to know why I haven't received notice of this meeting."

"I am sure I don't know," the chairman said. "Notices were sent to all directors. You surely must have received one."

The director finished up an excited tirade by saying, "I want my rights."

Just then the secretary was brought into conference, who in turn handed the late director an envelope. He departed with a smiling countenance.

This recalls the story of a New York corporation where $20 for each director was laid on the table and those who attended divided the whole pile. If half came each got $40. The members were men far advanced in years and in riches. One day it stormed violently when a meeting was to be held. The executive officers did not believe a single director would be there, but every man of them was on hand, each having figured out that nobody else would appear and that he might swipe the entire allowance.

The First Fork.

The first fork? The fork, as a matter of fact, did not appear as a table implement until the seventeenth century, though as early as the thirteenth century gold and silver ones were made for special purposes. The ordinary diner was only provided with a trencher, a napkin and a spoon. For knife he used his own, which he carried about, and, worse, there was no second trencher, no second spoon. When the several courses came along he exercised his ingenuity and mopped his trencher with his bread. His spoon—well, we ourselves lick postage stamps!—London Chronicle.

Comparing Notes.

Mrs. Slowboy—My husband's so lazy that if it wasn't for me I don't believe he would get up in time to go to bed.
Mrs. Rounder—My husband's different. He scarcely goes to bed in time to get up.

The Amen of Nature.

Do you ever wonder why poets talk so much about flowers? Did you ever hear of a poet who did not talk about them? Don't you think a poem which, for the sake of being original, should leave them out would be like those verses where the letter a or e or some other is omitted? No; they will bloom over and over again in poems as in the summer fields, to the end of time, always old and always new. Why should we be more shy of repeating ourselves than the spring be tired of blossoms or the night of stars? Look at nature. She never wearies of saying over her floral paternoster. In the crevices of cyclopean walls, in the dust where men lie, dust also; on the mounds that bury huge cities, the Birs Nemroud and the Babel heap, still that same sweet prayer and benediction. The amen of nature is always a flower.—Oliver Wendell H[illegible].

During the cold weather when it is necessary to keep on extra fires there is always increasing danger of accidents happening from defective chimneys, defective stovepipes, furnaces, explosion of coal gas, accumulation of dust near heating appliances and numerous other causes.

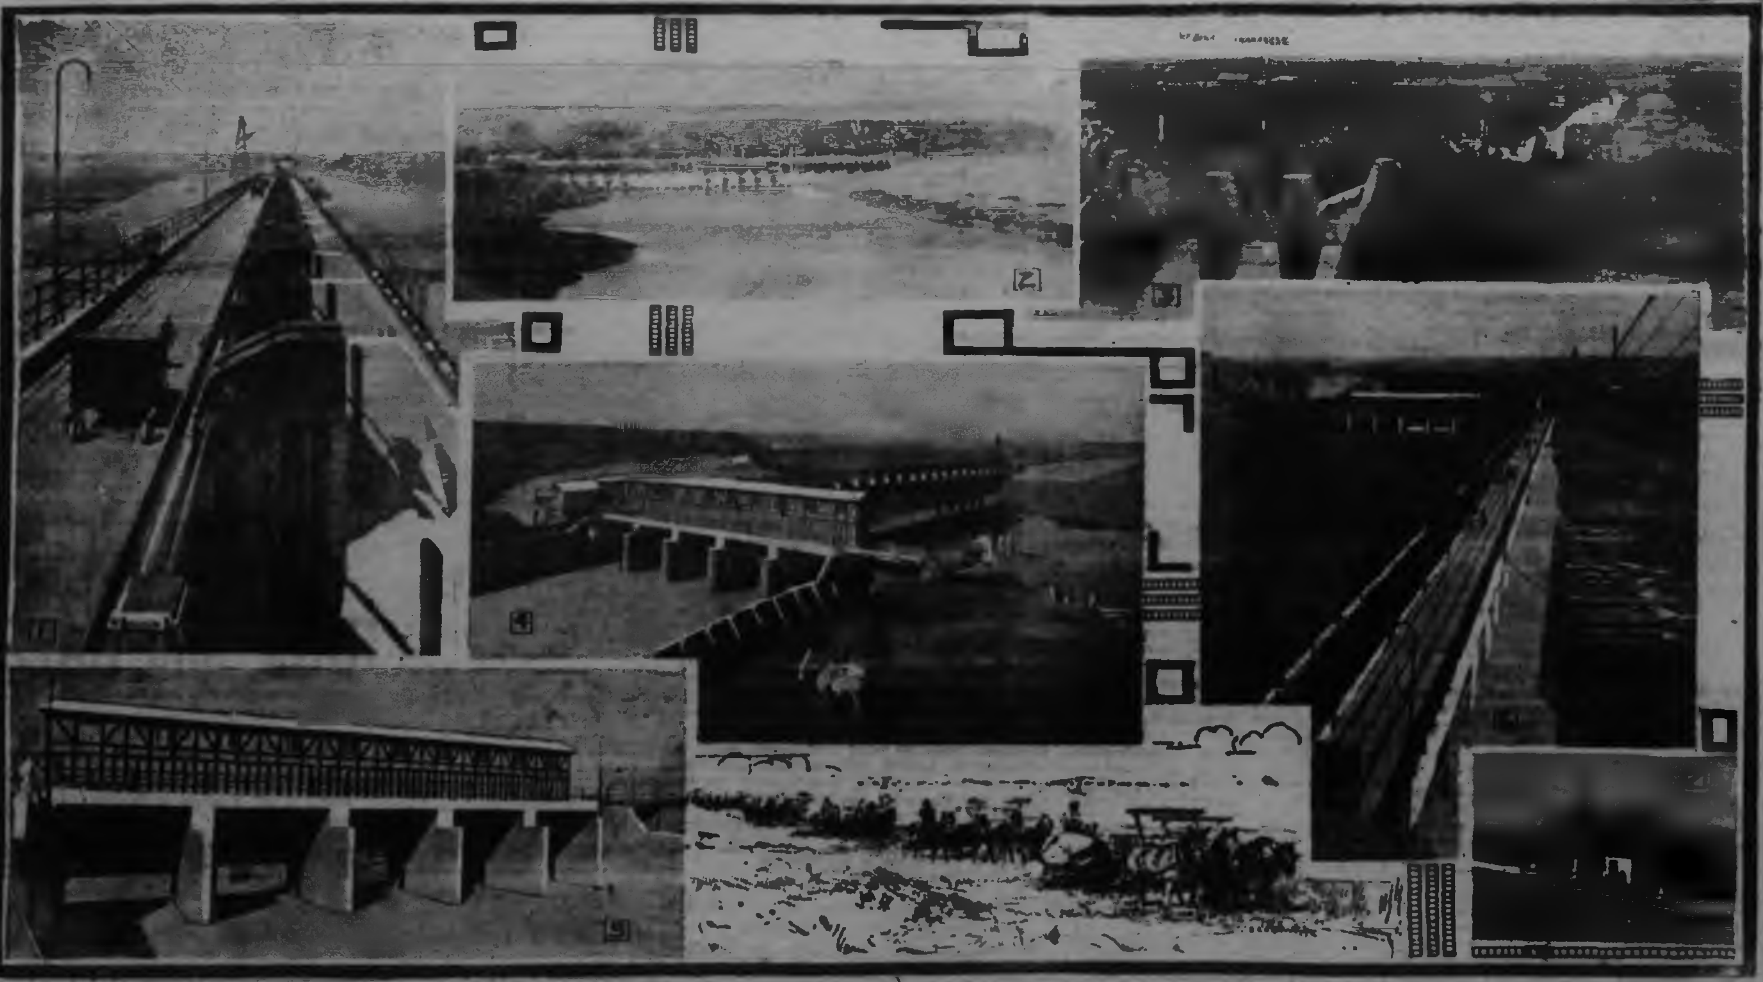
THE GREATEST IRRIGATION DAM IN THE WORLD



NO. 1—Overlooking top of the Dam across Bow River. NO. 2—Panoramic View of Bow River. NO. 3—Showing the steps and irrigation ditches after the water has been diverted into the Main Canal. NO. 4—A picturesque view of the head gates and dam. NO. 5—Entrance to the Main Canal. NO. 6—View overlooking spillway toward head gates. NO. 7—Bassano Station.

The accompanying views have been specially taken to illustrate the greatest irrigation dam the world has ever seen. This Dam was erected by the C. P. R. across the famous Bow River, in the vicinity of Bassano, at a cost of several million dollars, in order to divert the water for the purpose of irrigating a million acres of land to provide ready made farms for incoming settlers. Recently the head gates were opened and the canals and ditches were quickly filled with water, and this Spring the land will be occupied by settlers for the first time. The low water surface in Bow River is raised approximately forty feet (40) by the Bassano Dam. It is a composite structure, the most notable portion being the concrete spillway, 720 feet in length. Extending easterly from the Dam is the main channel, five miles in length, partly in a deep cut of 70 feet bottom width. The most notable of the canal structure is the Brooks Aqueduct, 10,000 feet in length with capacity of 900 second feet across the broad low depression.

CITY AND DISTRICT

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES REPORTERS.

Three New Cops.

At a meeting of the Police Commissioners, on a recommendation of the Police Chief, W. S. Brown, F. Burnham and John Deannard were appointed, their duties to commence immediately. Brown and Burnham have been residents of the city for a number of years and Deannard all his life.

Lakefield Girl Insane.

Magistrate Edmison has received the evidence, taken by John Hull, J.P., of Lakefield, as to the case of Miss Mabel Garland, alleged to be insane. This evidence proves the girl to be mentally defenctive. His worship has forwarded the evidence and report to the Inspector of Asylums for Insane and in all probability the unfortunate young lady will be removed to some institution. The girl is but 18 years of age.

A Police Matron.

At the meeting of the Police Commissioners, Mayor Buller, brought forward again, his suggestion that a matron be appointed. Chief Thompson remarked that he was looking into the matter with a view to recommending one or more suitable persons for the position. The only name he mentioned was that of Mrs. McElheney. It was decided that the Chief should bring in a report at the next meeting.

JOHN LOWRY FOR CENTRAL.

John Lowry was yesterday sentenced to six months in the Central Prison by Magistrate Dumble, on the charge of having no visible means of support. Lowry pleaded guilty, claiming that he was unable to get work. Police Chief Thompson, however had as a witness Lowry's landlady, a Mrs. Petors, an aged widow who said that Lowry owed her for eight months board, amounting to $100. Lowry had been a boarder at her place for nearly two years.

Curling Club Officers Elected.

At the annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Hon.-Pres.—Mr. H. F. Foot.

President—Mr. H. R. H. Kenner.

Vice-Pres.—Mr. J. F. A. Fitzgerald.

Committee of Management—Messrs W. H. Taylor, W. G. Ferguson, W. D. Campbell and R. Neill.

Representatives for Ontario Curling Association—Messrs Geo Morrow and W. G. Ferguson.

The office of secretary-treasurer will be filled at a meeting of the Board of Management to be held in the near future.

Important Real Estate Deal

Work was begun yesterday on tearing down the brick sheds and kitchen of the old homestead of Sheriff Hall at the corner of Hunter and Fleming Terrace. This property, which was announced in the local press as designed for an appartment house to be built by Sanford Fleming of Ottawa, has been purchased, through the well known real estate firm of J. T. O'Connell & Co., by Mr. Henry Hickey, the local builder. The price paid was a stiff one. Mr. Hickey after demolishing the present building will erect three attached dwellings facing on Fleming Terrace, which will offer ideal sites for residential purposes.

CALIFORNIA ORANGE DAY

On March 21st, the people of the State of California will celebrate what will be known annually as "California Orange Day," when the slogan will be "California oranges for health." The idea of the celebration is to bring before consumers one of the greatest Industries of that state, the orange crop this year amounting to 40,000 carloads. The celebration will not be confined within the borders of California for many of the eastern railways will feature the golden fruit on the menus of their dining cars for that day. The Grand Trunk have arranged to give prominence to California oranges on their menus on March 21st.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF HAIR STOPS FALLING

Girls! Try this! Makes hair thick, glossy, fluffy, beautiful—No more itching scalp.

Girls! Try This! Makes hair thick, glossy, fluffy, beautiful—No more itching scalp.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after afew weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and caregully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

Some Important Facts about the Silver Black Fox Industry

The Motto of Every Canadian Shou'd be "What We Have, We INTEND to Hold"

In so far as it applies to Canada's national wealth, our forests, and more particularly the protection of our fur-bearing animals, which, however, would soon become but evidence of a great past unless husbanded by the foresight of man.

To the foresight of Prince Edward Island's practical men two of the most famous of Canada's fur-bearing animals, the Black and Silver Fox, have been saved to future generations—and as a consequence Canada will unquestionably furnish the world's great demand in future, for this princely fur exceeds its weight in gold!

Concerted action by shrewd Canadians now engaged in this industry in Prince Edward Island will shortly control all the available Black and Silver Foxes wherever found on this continent, a fact generally conceded by persons in authority—consequently this announcement is of great interest to the careful investor and believer in Canada's vast Fur Wealth.

The first island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $1,000.00, in 1911 the price went to $6,000, a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000.00 was considered high but not unusual and at the time of writing (January 28, 1914) live breeders can bring any price from $15,000.00 to $35,000.00, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000.00 a pair.

About $10,000,000 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $3,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the Island contain 899 silver breeding foxes (441 males and 458 females). The total number of silver offspring for 1913 was 703, and the average assessed value was $4,892.52 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $3,349,449. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1,602.

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,628.00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company has TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND silver black foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option all are eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which in 1913 paid from 15 per cent to 900 per cent.

THE INDUSTRY

No industry in recent years has made such wonderful strides as the Black-Silver Fox Industry, and the reason is that it offers larger financial returns than any other business in the Dominion. Moreover, its future possesses unlimited opportunities, as the demand is constantly increasing, while the supply has reached almost a minimum until a few companies undertook the breeding and rearing of these valuable animals. Everyone who is alive to the opportunities of enormous profits without risk will readily appreciate the advantages of investing in the R. J. McNeill Black and Silver Fox Company, Limited. It is a fact that every bona fide fox company organized within the Province of Prince Edward Island has paid dividends of from 45 per cent to 300 per cent and some companies have even done better than this.

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a percentage of the production will be retained, placing the company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211-acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair and Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1912. This company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I. who were employed in the United States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $15,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $300 three years ago, and is now worth $45,000 directly from this source.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's, Limited, received $25,000 from an investment of $500 made in this business three years ago.

The Rosemount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1,000 per cent this year.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $500 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $3,500. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair for [illegible]. The first litter consisted of seven pups. The seven owners have received $336,000 cash dividends since and the pair bought for $3,500 could be sold for $35,000 to-day. Mr. Austin Scales, of St. Eleanors, is a member of this Association.

From the above it will surely be seen that the R. J. McNEILL BLACK AND SILVER FOX COMPANY, LIMITED, are engaged in business at a most opportune time and under most favorable circumstances. Take into serious consideration that our company is established, and that we have the FOXES AND THE RANCH, and not prospective. YOU ARE ENTITLED TO SEPTEMBER, 1914, DIVIDENDS; you don't have to wait for your dividends until 1915. In 1915 another dividend will be awaiting you.

REMEMBER, the average cash dividend of the above companies is 175 per cent., and there is absolutely no excuse why we cannot repeat the same.

We offered for public subscription the remaining allotment of $70,000, $30,000 has already been subscribed, $40,000 remains to be sold.

SMOTHERING OF ASTHMA STOPS QUICK THOUSANDS CURED BY "CATARRHOZONE"

Count Ten—Then Relief Comes from Chronic Asthma.

Nothing yet discovered can compare with Catarrhozone in bad, ugly cases of Asthma.

Catarrhozone is the one remedy that can be sent quickly and direct to all parts of the breathing apparatus.

The effect from Catarrhozone is a quick one—you feel better in no time—keep up the good work, use Catarrhozone as directed and you get well.

If your case is curable, if anything on earth can rid you permanently of Asthma, it will be Catarrhozone. It contains that strangely soothing and powerful antiseptic found in the Blue Gum Tree of Australia, and this is fortified by other germ-killing properties which, when so scientifically combined, make Catarrhozone a veritable specific for Asthma, Catarrh and Bronchitis.

Even though many other remedies have failed—even though you are discouraged and blue—cheer up and try Catarrhozone to-day. What it repeatedly has done for others it will surely not fail to accomplish for you.

Catarrhozone is not expensive. One dollar will buy a complete outfit from any Druggist. The money will be well spent because your immediate improvement in health will surpass your fondest expectations. Don't wait—to-day is the time to use Catarrhozone.

CANADA CRITICIZED FOR ITS NAVAL AID FAILURE

STINGING COMMENT ON CANADA'S FAILURE TO ASSIST BRITAIN

Mr. Churchill Cannot Replace Three Dreadnoughts by Acceleration in Building

London, Mar. 18.—The Standard commenting editorially upon Mr. Churchill's statement in presenting the naval estimates in the House of Commons yesterday, declares "In the matter of the substitution for the Canadian ships, Mr. Churchill has no effective defence. Accelerations cannot supply the deficiency which Mr. Churchill pledged himself to meet in the event of Mr. Borden's inability to carry his proposals.

Is Deadlock Removable?

"It may be that the Canadian deadlock is removable, but it is not safe to base a policy on a mere hypothesis as it will be injurious to Canada. Canadians are doubtless willing and anxious to co-operate in naval defence but they must make up their minds as to the extent and character of their contributions. Telling Canadians that the delays are inconvenient and that we hope they will make up their minds soon is merely a form of excruciating pressure which ought not to be exercised."

Jeopardising the Empire.

The Daily Express says: "Mr. Churchill demanded these Canadian ships as an absolute necessity. They are not forthcoming. Does Mr. Churchill lay them down? By no means. He merely attempts another slight acceleration of his construction programme. Either he has misled Canada or he is jeopardizing the Empire."

Colonial "Offers" Costly.

The Daily Chronicle says: "The replacing of the Canadian ships costs an extra half million pounds. If the acceleration is to be permanently maintained the eventual extra cost will work out considerably higher. Colonial 'offers' if they are to be treated as committing the Mother Country to an expenditure which would not otherwise be taken, are an experience which few Liberals would wish to occur."

FORMER MINISTER OF CUSTOMS DEAD

Hon. William Paterson Had Been in Failing Health for Some Years.

Brantford, Ont., Mar. 18.—Word has just been received here that Hon. William Paterson is dead.

Hon. William Paterson, former Minister of Customs, was born in Hamilton, Ont., on September 19, 1839, became an orphan at ten. Adopted by Rev. Dr. Ferrier (Presbyterian), he was trained for a business life, and in 1863 entered into the manufacture of biscuits at Brantford. He made of that business a great success, with connections all over the country.

Sterling qualities also early designated him to the preference of the community in which he lived. He was in turn deputy reeve and Mayor of Brantford and member of Parliament for South Brant, having defeated Sir Francis Hincks, Minister of Finance, in 1872. In 1596, he was made controller of Customs, being the following year promoted to full Cabinet rank as Minister of Customs.

Hon. Mr. Paterson was defeated in the election of September 21, 1911, and failing health since that date had precluded any activity in public affairs.

ANOTHER BODY RECOVERED FROM RUINS OF THE WOODBINE HOTEL

GORDON MAY A BIGAMIST

Both Women Were in Court When He Pleaded Guilty.

Brantford, Mar. 18.—Gordon May, formerly of Oshawa, was this morning tried in the Police Court on the charge of bigamy. He pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence. He was married on June 4, 1908, to Ruby Dane, of Oshawa, and later to Leta Anderson of Uxbridge. Both wives were in court when May pleaded guilty.

"SHOOTING" JIMMY WILSON IS DEAD

He Was a Veteran of the Fenian Raid and the Riel Rebellion.

Stratford, Mar. 18.—"Shooting" Jimmy Wilson, veteran soldier and famous marksman, died here at the age of 84 years. He was one of Stratford's best liked and most familiar residents. Prizes to the number of 125 he had won with his old Snider-Enfield, and was a member of almost every regiment in this part of the province. A veteran of the Fenian Raid and Riel Rebellion, he was also an old Grand Trunk Railway employe, having joined this company when it had only eight locomotives.

CANADIAN CLUB BANQUET

Last night the "Savoy" (Coleman's) restaurant was well filled. The function was a dinner given by the local Canadian Club. The chair was occupied by Vice-President D. STRAIGHT TALK BY PARTY MEN CAUCUS SIMPLY ASKS FACTS

Mackenzie and Man, Rich in Railroads, Must Tell Why More Aid

Ottawa, Mar. 18.—The following statement was issued by the Premier after the conclusion of the Ministerial caucus this afternoon:

> "There was a caucus of Government members to-day at which several matters of interest were discussed. Amongst others the position of the unfinished Transcontinental Railway was considered and the opinion of the Senators and members of the Commons was invited thereon. After an interesting discussion in which many members took part, and in which the subject was debated in all aspects, the caucus adjourned at 1 o'clock."

It is understood that the Government did not present any proposals to the caucus, which was not called for that purpose.

Ottawa, Mar. 18.—The much talked of Conservative caucus to discuss the C.N.R. situation was held this morning. It opened at 10 o'clock and lasted until long after one o'clock. The members were naturally not saying anything as to what took place, though an official statement was given out by the Prime Minister this afternoon. It was simply a heart to heart party talk with no resolutions. With the views of the various elements of the party now before them the Government will be in a position to decide upon a policy and when this is drafted it will be presented to another caucus.

Not Like This in Olden Days.

No caucus for years had attracted such attention as that held this morning when the whole situation was thoroughly threshed out from every standpoint. The very fact that the question was left to a caucus before the new Government took any action was a new and democratic departure in Ottawa politics. In the days of the Laurier regime the party was seldom consulted. Often the members did not know what action the Government was going to take on the most important subjects until introduced in Parliament. The party whip was cracked; they fell in line and that was the end. When a caucus was called it was only after a line of policy had been decided upon. The members were then asked to endorse it.

For the Choir

"What was that sentence the choir repeated so often in the liturgy?"

"As near as I could make out it was, 'We are miserable singers.'"

SOUTH AFRICAN SENATE PASSES INDEMITY BILL

As Outgrowth of the Deportation of Ten Labor Leaders.

Capetown, Union of South Africa, Mar. 18.—The Senate to-day passed the bill to indemity the Government for its acts last January, under martial law, by a vote of 25 to 9.

The indemity bill passed its third reading in the House of Assembly on Mar. 9, by a vote of 70 to 12. This bill is an outgrowth of the deportation of ten labor leaders from South Africa.

SETTLERS CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH

Cochrane, Mar. 18.—A fire which destroyed the farm house of K. A. Bielek, a Russian, who often acts as court interpreter, was responsible for the death of two of his children, one of them aged two years and a half, and the other aged nine months. The farm is situated about a mile and a half from town. About 10 o'clock on Friday morning, Mrs. Bielek went out to feed the chickens, during the absence of her husband. She left the two children in the house, the two elder children being away at play at a neighboring farm. When Mrs. Bieleck emerged from the henhouse she saw smoke issuing from the dwelling and on rushing inside was able to grab the infant and bring it out and throw it in the snow, but not in time to save its life. She then rushed back into the burning building to try and rescue the other child, but was driven back by the flames. In her efforts at rescue she was badly burned about the face and arms. After the fire had been extinguish, the remains of the second child were found under the incubator, where it had evidently crawled to escape the flames. There was no male around the farm at the time of the outbreak.

THE STED GAMBLE CASE STANDS OVER TILL FALL

Postponement was Granted at Request of Counsel for Defence.

Whitby, Mar. 18.—Sted M. Gamble, charged with damaging a coil of rope at the Canadian Pacific Railway Dixie Camp, and thereby endangering the lives of workmen, appeared for trial at the Spring Assizes to-day, and was remanded until fall. Last Autumn the jury on Gamble's case disagreed, and a new trial was ordered at the Spring Assizes, which commenced here to-day. Mr. H. H. Dewart, K.C., for Gamble, applied through his assistant, for an adjournment of the case, owing to the serious illness of one of the chief witnesses. Judge Sutherland, who took the place of Judge Meredith, prevented through illness from presiding, granted an adjournment until the Fall Assizes. This means that the second hearing of the case will be one year after the first trial. Gamble's bail was renewed at $750. Witnesses for the case were called from places as far distant as Ottawa; others were present from Hamilton, and the Crown expenses in the case will be large.

BENTON WAS STABBED TO DEATH IN VILLA'S OFFICE

Washington, Mar. 18.—The facts of the killing of Benton, the British rancher, as they will be set forth in an official report, became known here to-day.

Benton went to Juarez to get Villa's permission to bring some of his cattle out of Chihuahua for sale in Texas. What had not been known heretofore is the fact that Benton sought to make it worth while for the rebel chieftain to let him get his cattle out, offering in return for this permission to see that Villa got a certain amount of arms and ammunition.

This proposal, it is now reported, was favorably received by Villa. Discussion of the precise terms of the arrangement, however, led to a quarrel between the two men. This quarrel ended in Benton being killed, not by a revolver, as previously reported, but by stabbing. The Britisher was attacked with knives by those in Villa's office during the discussion, and not a shot was fired. The Britisher was stabbed in many places, and after he was dead his body was mutilated in an unspeakable manner of such frequent occurrences in Mexico. Whether Villa personally aided in the stabbing of Benton is not definitely known.

The body of Benton was buried in Juarez and is still there, according to this official information.

The investigations of the last few weeks have not only established these facts, but have also resulted in the precise place of burial being made known. No steps have yet been taken to recover the body, however, because it is felt that its exhumation would contribute no information regarding the state of the body at the time of burial.

St. Paul's Church offers you a are treat to-night, of seeing and hearing The Passion Play with 80 views, by Rev. David Lang, of Toronto. Admission 25 cents; children half price.

BOLD ATTEMPT TO ROB POST-OFFICE AT MIMICO

Police Trap Was Made and Three Men Fell Into It---One Man Wounded

Mimico, Mar. 18.—A desperate, but unsuccessful attempt to rob Mimico Post-Office was frustrated early this morning when assistant postmaster Fred Werdon, alarmed at the sound of people in the office, notified County Constable Robert Waite, who arrested three men, but not before one of the trio of robbers was shot.

The wounded man is William Eagleson, who gave his address as 5 Erie terrace. The other two men arrested are Frank Davis, concrete worker, 377 Jersey avenue, and George Powers, a teamster, 64 Pearl street.

Eagleson is in the Grace Hospital with a bullet in his thigh. He will recover, unless blood poisoning complications set in. An operation was performed this afternoon to remove the bullet. Eagleson is under police supervision.

They Pleaded Guilty.

Powers and Davis appeared in the County Police Court this morning, before Magistrate T. H. Brunton, on a charge of burglary and robbing the mails. They threw themselves on the mercy of the court and pleaded guilty and were remanded to the jail for a week for sentence so that their records may be looked up. Eagleson will also come up for trial then.

The trio were victims of a police trap. The post-office and store had been ransacked in January. Preparations were made to capture the robbers the next time they returned. A police alarm was installed. It was shortly after two that Werdon was aroused out of his sleep by noises in the post office. Looking through his bedroom door in the office he saw three men. Werdon slipped out of the back door across the field to Constable Bob Waite's place which is nearby, and notified the officer.

Got Shot in Leg.

The three men were surprised by Constable Waites and Werdon while in the act of rifling a mail bag. Seeing that they were cornered the trio jumped through a plateglass window and dashed down the road. Waites and Werdon chased them. Refusing to stop at the demand of the Constable, Postmaster Werdon discharged his 22-calibre rifle in the air in an effort to scare the fleeing men. They kept on running. Werdon fired another bullet that reached its mark. Eagleson received the bullet in the back of the leg and toppled over. He got up again and made a desperate effort to keep up with his companions, dragging his leg along. Eagleson was forced to stop, and when the other two men saw their pal fall on the road they surrendered. With Eagleson lying on the ground rolling from the agony of the gaping bullet wound, the other two men started to cry and pleaded for mercy.

CITY'S BOARD OF WORKS MET IN WEEKLY SESSION LAST NIGHT

May Use Road Oil This Year--Will Advertise for Tenders for Cement and Sewer Pipe--Engineering Departments Expenditure Since January 1st.

The City's Board of Works met in regular weekly session last night, Chairman Ald. Duncan presiding. There were also present, Mayor Buller Aldermen Saunders, Duffus, Stratton, Green, Johnston, McIntyre and City Engineer Parsons.

The application from the Canadian Oil Co., to instal a gasoline tank beneath the sidewalk and road in front of their local premises on Charlotte street, of which Mr. Gerald Rackham is manager, was granted.

$60 was accepted in full of all claims against the city by the Gas Company, subject to the endorsation of the City Solicitor.

This year, as last, the city will pay cost of maintenance of the Engineer's automobile in use on civic business.

The Board will advertise for tenders for cement and sewer pipe for 1914.

The question of repairing the road roller was left in the hands of the Mayor, the Chairman and the City Engineer, with power to act.

Street Watering.

Street watering this year must be paid on a general rate as last year, which principle, governed by legislature, is considered by the Board generally to be very unfair. $3,000 odd was paid for this work last year.

On motion of Ald. Stratton and Johnston, this whole question was left in abeyance until the Street Railway Co's proposition for watering the streets on which their cars run is to hand, together with prices for high grade road Oil. Ald. Green thought oiling leading roads through the city would relieve the situation somewhat in permitting more attention to watering other streets, the districts for street watering being generally conceded to be too large.

A Crying Need.

Ald. Johnston urged that provision for taking care of the surface drainage from Edinburgh street to inlet of present pipe on Aylmer street, be taken into serious consideration. He thought that permanent drainage should be furnished to abate the yearly nuisance at this point. The Engineer is taking this question up.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Windy and cold with some snow storms.

HIS ALIBI.

It Cleared the Accused, but Furnished an Odd Sequel.

A highly respectable gentleman arrived at York one evening with luggage and dined well, went to bed early, rose in good time and had a substantial breakfast. After this meal he casually asked the landlord if there was anything of special interest in York. "The assizes are on, but I do not know if there is anything particularly interesting in the list," was the response.

"Thanks," drawled the stranger. "I'll look in if I happen to pass the court and see."

He did look in and heard a follower of Dick Turpin in the dock, charged with highway robbery, pleading his innocence vehemently to a stolid judge and jury, who, with firm faces, did not look as if they placed much credence in the prisoner's profession of innocence. Suddenly the prisoner caught sight of the stranger, who had strolled in from the hotel out of curiosity.

"Here, thank God, is some one who can prove my innocence!" cried the prisoner, pointing to the stranger, who was aghast at becoming the center of interest so unexpectedly.

He seemed astonished and shook his head.

"Oh, yes," cried the accused; "just think! You were at Dover—a long way from here. You came out of the Ship hotel, and I took your luggage in a wheelbarrow to the Calais packet at the pier. That was the day I am supposed to have committed the crime up here."

The stranger seemed bewildered. The judge, struck with the tragic earnestness of the prisoner, questioned the stranger, but the latter could not assist him much.

"Have you any notebooks," asked the judge—"any memorandum of your movements on that day?"

"I am a merchant," replied the stranger, "connected with an old established firm of bankers in London. I travel a lot and of course enter everything in my books. Here are my keys if the court cares to send to my hotel and bring here the books out of my case. I can easily settle the point."

The books were fetched. The gentleman had been in Dover that day and had left by the Calais packet. This was sufficient for the judge and jury. The prisoner was acquitted.

Comic sequel: Both the "banker from London" and the highwayman were placed in the same dock shortly afterward charged with daring burglaries in the neighborhood.—Harry Furniss in London Standard.

She Made Rapid Progress.

The feminine will out even in the case of children. This was amusingly shown not long ago when little Caroline, seven years old, and her brother, six years old, were sent to school on the same day.

For a week they attended regularly, and on Saturday night the proud father called them to him. With one on each knee, he asked what they had learned in school.

"Well," said the boy, "I learned dat de worl' is round. I can count up to five and say my alferbet."

His father beamed and by careful questioning got quite a remarkable amount of knowledge out of his small son.

"I'm proud of you, Freddie," he said, smiling. "Now, Caroline, have you learned lots too?"

"Uh, huh," answered Caroline shyly.

"Well," encouraged her father, "tell us what you have learned."

"I learned the names of all the boys in Freddie's class," she answered, proudly and wept when her father laughed.—Philadelphia Times.

Soft Toned Bells of China.

The natives of China use large bells of their own make in many of their temples and monasteries. I have noticed all through Japan and China that the tone of the monastery and temple bells is very soft and smooth, due to the superior quality of the material used in their manufacture and to the absence of iron clappers, the result being a marvelous softness and mellowness of tone. The bells are never swung, being always suspended in a fixed frame, and the sound is produced by striking them on the outer edge with a wooden mallet. This makes the soft tones which are so delightfully melodious.—Consular Reports.

Dr. Holmes' Wit.

One of the best repartees ever credited to a habitual maker of happy phrases was that made by the beloved "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" on a certain social occasion.

Going to dine with a Boston neighbor, Dr. Holmes was met by her with an apology:

"I could not get another man. We are four women, and you will have to take us all in."

"Forewarned is fourarmed," he said with a bow.

Flies and Filth.

The fly is born in, lives and thrives upon filth. If no filth is allowed to accumulate in a house or its neighborhood it will not be troubled by flies, for they do not ordinarily stray far from their breeding places and their sources of food. In a thoroughly clean neighborhood they cannot live in the face of screens preventing their access to food and to the absence of manure heaps and other receptacles for filth in which to deposit their eggs.—Survey.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY PAVILION

PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION, SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., 1915.

The Grand Trunk Pavilion, which will occupy a prominent position in the railway plaza at the northeast corner of the grounds of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, will be directly opposite the mammoth machinery palace, adjacent to the passenger ferry slips, and overlooking San Francisco Bay. As will be observed the design is simple in outline and Spanish renaissance in character, making a handsome and ornate structure. The walls will be of stucco, rough finish and tinted a soft cream shade, relieved with an ornamental enriched band carried around the building under the eaves. Shields and fountains have been effectively placed to enhance the decorative effect of the building. The roof will be covered with a rich red Spanish tile. The design for this building was the one accepted by the Exposition Authorities as the standard for all the other buildings which will be erected on the railway plaza. This pavilion will house the exhibits of both the Grand Trunk Railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Messrs, Ross and Macdonald of Montreal, are the Architects.

How People Feel

When They Have

Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¼ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Sanol BLOOD SALT

No Indigestion can exist if this remedy is taken according to instructions—and there is no known remedy to take its place.

This Blood Salt is a mixture compounded so as to resemble in essence and effect, the salty parts of the human blood. It is well known that our vitality is normally kept up by means of the natural blood salts.

Hence a lack of the latter will always superinduce a loss of the former. It is also a fact that with each quart of urine we lose about 18 grams of blood salts. Accordingly we must gradually become weak and sick, unless we provide a substitute for these salts in the blood.

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion such as Dyspepsia, Gastric Catarrh, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, etc., and as an aid to digestion, in wasting and nervous diseases.

THE MIDDLEMAN, THE HERRING, AND THE TRAIL

SOME months ago, an every day farmer from Neepawa, making a casual visit to Winnipeg, was moved to write his impressions for the interest of his friends in that City.

After referring to the magnificent homes and surrounding grounds along the fashionable thoroughfares, he expressed surprise on being informed they were principally the residences of the wholesale merchants and jobbers of that City. The farmer pertinently remarked that the class he represented was no better off as a result of the high prices the City consumer paid for farm produce, but were worse off than in former years, as he in turn paid enhanced prices for every article he purchased. In the wealth evidenced by the magnificent residences and grounds of the merchant princes of Winnipeg, he claimed to find the proverbial "Ethiopian in the wood-pile."

♠ ♠ ♠

THE shrewd old Neepawa farmer may not have been very far out in his observations, not in his advice to turn the white light of publicity from railways to jobbers and middlemen. The Western rate investigation recently closed, and now awaiting decision, was the result of a resolution passed by the Winnipeg Board of Trade and in turn endorsed at their request by other bodies of the same character in the West. The dominant influence on the Winnipeg Board of Trade is the wholesaler and the jobber. This influence is also paramount on the Boards of other Western centres. The wholesaler, in turn, exercises no small influence with the retailers, who are the principal members of Boards in smaller towns. There were therefore no insurmountable difficulties in securing a unanimous endorsation to a resolution which, in its results, would add to the profits of all concerned.

♠ ♠ ♠

WHEN it was found there was an extravagant margin between the cost F. O. B. cars Winnipeg and the cost of the consumers, no champion of the oppressed rose from the Board of Trade to explain. When the farmers, through the Grain Growers' Guide, pointed out that the producers raked in no golden shekels because of this oppression of the consumer, no doubty warrior from the Jobbers' Union threw his challenge glove into the arena. If some philosophic manufacturer took the same observing tour through the by-ways of our large cities (as perhaps he has) he might be moved if he dared, to endorse the philosopher from Neepawa, and point out that the manufacturer as well as the farmer and the consumer was in the same boat. The Westerners knew from newspaper announcements that railway rate reductions have been made, but they are still awaiting results that apparently have been pocketed en route. The Manitoba Government in 1901 made a contract with the Canadian Northern involving substantial reductions in merchandising rates from Eastern Canada. This was heralded as saving the people millions. No bargain sales resulted. Who got the millions?

♠ ♠ ♠

THE decision of the Board of Railway Commissioners in the Regina rate case forced substantial rate reductions to Western points; however, without reducing the cost of living to the common people. Extensive reductions were made two years ago in the rates on fruits and vegetables from British Columbia to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan, but the kindly housewife finds no reduction in the cost of the fall preserving.

By instruction of the Railway Board, reductions were made in lumber from the same Province, but the farmer's new barn costs more than ever. Coal rates were reduced into Saskatoon, but the Trade Commissioner of that Enterprising City published last fall a tearful plaint that the price of coal to the common people refused to budge.

♠ ♠ ♠

INTERSTATE Commission rate reductions have brought some United States railway managers to the verge of lunacy, but there has been no abatement in the cost of living, nor has anyone risen from the ranks of farmers, manufacturers or consumers to call the blessed. The irrepressible jobber, however, like a modern Oliver Twist, still howls for more, with a two-fold purpose. One to get more, and the other, that by conducting his howling on patriotic grounds, public sentiment is enlisted in his behalf and public attention diverted from his bulging pockets. While the West wants railway extensions to develop her millions of uncultivated acres, wants railway service, the jobber demands from purely patriotic motives the same rates in the West as apply in the East. Of course, the fact that Eastern rates have never produced a dividend for the investors in any Eastern railway enterprise, or that the outstanding feature of the Intercolonial are its deficits has no place in his Lexicon.

Let us impose the same conditions on Western lines, and as Counsel for Alberta and Saskatchewan in the recent investigation remarked with swelling chest and clarion tones, "We will stand the consequences." The unfortunate producer and consumer who pays the bulk of the taxes, is, however, not consulted. The financial ability of these Provinces to make good this proud boast is not considered.

♠ ♠ ♠

THE fact that railway extension is at a standstill, except for newspaper announcements, and thousand of laborers unemployed, is a mere trifle. That capital alarmed at a demand that means a repetition in the West of an unfortunate investment in the East, refuses the necessary funds. That railways are this year embarking on the new enterprise and are merely completing what they started, that development is handicapped, and settlement deterred. All this is as nothing, if the Middleman can add a little bit from the railways to what he now has from the consumer, and make just a little bit more. If we are to be governed by Commissions, let us have one to regulate the outrageous burden imposed on both the consumer and the producer, by the Middle man.

A CHILD'S LAXATIVE IS "SYRUP OF FIGS"

They love to take it and it doesn't harm the tender little stomach, liver and bowels.

If your little one's tongue is coated, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given to-day saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

IT WAS A FINE COD.

A Little Story of William M. Chase, the Portrait Painter.

Several years ago I had a studio at Hammersmith and was hurrying into London one morning to transact some business. Just as I swung around a corner occupied by a fishmonger's market my eye was attracted to a magnificent cod stretched out for exhibition on a clean slab of white marble. Whatever my mood for color was that morning, that fish completely fitted and filled it. I must paint it, I decided.

I called out the proprietor and told him what I wanted. I was a bachelor, I explained, and did not want to buy the big fish. I only wished the use of it as a model. Could I rent it?

"Ow, now, sir," he said, with true British stolidity. "I'll never rents my fish. You see, it's Saturday, too, sir. I'll must sell him today, sir."

However, I explained that I needed the fish for only a few hours, and directly we struck a bargain. If after two hours I still wished to keep the fish I should buy it. At the end of the stipulated time the boy came. I was not quite finished. "In a few minutes," I said, and when I looked up he was gone.

Shortly afterward the proprietor came, tiptoeing in and peeping over my shoulder. I could hear him softly sighing, and I said nervously, "In a few minutes now, in a few minutes."

"Don't 'urry, sir; don't 'urry," he urged. "She's gettin' on! I'll take my chances, sir!"

When the painting was finished he refused at first to accept any remuneration, but at length, with a muttered apology, he charged a shilling. The painting was hung and shortly afterward purchased by the Corcoran Art gallery for a very substantial sum.

On my next trip to London I determined to call up my fishmonger, tell him of the good fortune that had attended the painting and tender him some fitting reward. To my great surprise he not only refused again any sort of fee, but evinced no surprise whatever at the figure the painting had brought, though the price paid represented several times over the investment of his shop.

"Ah, but it was a fine cod, sir!" he said, and his eyes glowed with pride. "Now, wasn't it?"—William M. Chase in Delineator.

Sinister Motives.

Two men—William Jones and John Smith—were neighbors and deadly enemies. They often crossed swords in court and out of it, and Jones, being what might be called more clever than Smith, invariably got the better of the encounter. In the end so cowed was Smith that the slightest move on the part of Jones made him nervous and suspicious, and with the remark, "I wonder what object he has in this?" he called up all his reserve faculties to combat the fresh attack which poor Jones never contemplated.

One day a friend called on Smith and greeted him with:

"Well, old man, have you heard the news?"

"No," said Smith. "What news?"

"Jones is dead. He died last night at midnight," replied the other.

Smith paused, drew a hard breath, raised his hand to his forehead and thought, then blurted out:

"Dead, did you say—Jones dead? Great heavens! I wonder what object he has in this?"

Knee Joint Stiff Three Years

CURED BY NERVILINE.

Anyone would marvel at my recovery, writes Mr. Leonard Lotham, a young man well known about Chatham. I had inherited a rheumatic tendency through my mother's family, and in my early days suffered frightfully. About three years ago the pain and stiffness settled in my left knee joint. I was lame and walked with a very distinct limp. Nerviline was brought to my notice and I rubbed it into the stiff joint four or five times a day. It dispelled every vestige of pain, reduced the swelling, took out the stiffness and gave me the full use of my limb again. I don't believe there is a pain-relieving remedy not a single liniment that can compare with Nerviline. I hope every person with pains, with sore back, with lameness, with lumbago, with neuralgia—I do hope they will try out Nerviline which I am convinced will quickly and permanently cure them."

If Nerviline wasn't a wonderful painless remedy, if Nerviline didn't quickly relieve, if Nerviline wasn't known to be a grand cure for all rheumatic conditions, it wouldn't have been so largely used as a family remedy for the past forty years. No better, stronger, or more soothing liniment made. Get the large 50c family size bottle; small trial size 25c; sold by any dealer, anywhere.

AN OLD TIME EXPLOSION.

Its Curious Phases Told by a Seventeenth Century Scribe.

An old chronicler tells a curious story of an explosion which occurred in London Jan. 4, 1649. A ship chandler, it seems, "about 7 of the clock at night, being busy in his shop about barreling up of gunpowder, it took fire and in the twinkling of an eye blew up not only that, but all the houses thereabout to the number of fifty or sixty. The number of persons destroyed by this blow could never be known, for the next house but one was the Rose tavern, a house never (at that time of night) but full of company. And in three or four days, after digging, they continually found heads, arms, legs, etc." The most interesting part of the account comes further on:

"In the digging they found the mistress of the house of the Rose tavern sitting in her bar and one of the drawers standing by the bar's side, with a pot in his hand, only stifled by dust and smoke, their bodies being preserved whole by means of great timbers falling across one upon another.

"There was also found upon the upper leads of Barking church a young child lying in a cradle as newly laid in bed, neither child nor cradle having the least sign of fire or other hurt. It was never known whose child it was, so that one of the parish kept it for a memorial, for in the year 1666 I saw the child, grown to be then a proper maiden."

His Little Comeback.

Miss Neverstop, seating herself between two much engrossed senators, exclaims, "A rose between two thorns!"

"Nay, madam," retorts one irate old gentleman; "say, rather, a tongue sandwich."—Life.

Hints on Beauty Culture

Old Fashioned Courtesy Beauty's Best Accessory

By MAGGIE TEYTE

Prima Donna Chicago-Philadelphia Opera Company.

MAGGIE TEYTE

IN one of the joke corners of some magazine I read the other day the answer of a small girl to the question, "What is a gentleman?" said the child. "It is what you call a man when you don't know him very well."

There's food for thought there. It is quite as applicable to either sex. But the thing we want to aim for is to deserve the name when we are well known.

For years there has been a tendency to avoid the term "lady." It has been so abused and misused. It has suffered the same careless treatment that has been accorded "Professor," which is used to designate a barber quite as often as the man of science or the scholar. Still, when we talk of some dear old feminine being, whose manners are a delight, whose courtesy is never-failing and whose greeting is like a blessing, we seek for the highest and most comprehensive term, and we call her a "real lady."

So, after all, the true meaning of the term has not changed. But it is to be doubted if it could be as generally and sincerely used today as in the days when it was the fashion.

"When it became unfashionable to call women ladies," said an old gentleman to me once, "it seems to me it became less fashionable to be a lady."

"Ladylikeness" Desirable.

When you stop to think of it, our manners leave much to be desired in these very up-to-date days. We don't have the time perhaps for the courtesy and the charm of manner which our ancestresses had. And the younger generation appears to have less time for "ladylikeness" than we have.

Yet, isn't it just as desirable now as ever?

History says the beauty of Mme. Recamier was due quite as much to the sweetness of her nature and the courtesy of her conduct as to her loveliness of face.

Watch the women in the shops. I don't dispute the haughtiness of some of the saleswomen, but the shoppers are not all models for them to copy. There is no way in which one may judge so justly of a woman's real nature as in her treatment of those who, in the social scale, are her inferiors.

The true lady is always the lady. She has the heart of a lady, as well as the appearance of one. She has kindness and sympathy with the world. She has herself in subjugation.

Should Cultivate Charm.

Being a lady is not always inherited. Some of the most atrocious examples of rudeness and impoliteness I have ever seen have been in the conduct of women who lay their claim to superiority to the fact that their ancestors were persons of consequence. I always feel like saying to women of this kind, when they brag of their blue blood, that it has grown too thin for these days.

There is a delightful description of the lady-type of woman given in one of Oliver Wendell Holmes's essays, which is as true today as when it was written. Says the dear Doctor:

"A woman who does not carry about with her wherever she goes a halo of good-feeling and desire to make everyone contented—an atmosphere of grace, mercy and peace, of at least six feet radius, which wraps every human being upon whom she voluntarily bestows her presence, and so flatters him with the comfortable thought that she is rather glad he is alive than otherwise—isn't worth talking to as a woman; she may be well enough to hold discussions with."

That six-foot radius of which the doctor speaks is something worth tucking away in a corner of our memory. Imagine what a glorious place this world might be if each and every woman in it spread an area of "grace, and mercy and peace" to fill the space of the six-foot radius!

Talk of the possibility of a millennium!

Charm, my dear sisters, charm is what we all want to cultivate while we are trying to get the wrinkles rubbed out of the corners of our eyes and the bloom of youth coaxed back into the cheek which has left youth behind.

Beauty is power.

Charm is success.

New Lenten Fish Dishes

By Jeannette Young Norton

VARIETY is the watchword in the fish diet, and it will repay the cook to acquaint herself with just what the market affords and study the ways and means for the best serving of the products.

There are a few unwritten laws on the fish subject that must be obeyed, if success is to crown culinary efforts. The first is in taking great care in the selection, being sure that the fish is fresh, in season, and suitable for the dish for which it is designed.

Gauge the quantity purchased according to the size of the family, for boiled fish, or, on occasion, baked fish, is all that works over into "left-over" dishes acceptably. Cold, or heated over, fried fish is apt to have a very unhappy taste, and it is poor economy to fuss with it at all. Fish to boil should always be put on in cold water, otherwise the outside will cook too quickly, leaving the inside underdone, thus making the fish unpalatable. A trifle of salt and vinegar added to the water when the fish is to be boiled gives it firmness.

At the Lenten season the choice of fish is quite extensive and among those most popular are fresh cod, haddock, shad, bluefish, Spanish mackerel, halibut, flounder and smelts.

Now that one may serve planked fish in her own kitchen, there is another delight added to the enjoyment of such a dish. A well seasoned plank, tongued and grooved, may be purchased to fit the gas or the range even at a very medium price and, after the first using, it may be thoroughly scrubbed and cleaned, after that it needs only to be carefully scraped and cleaned with a dry corn vegetable brush. The plank has to be heated hot in the oven, then greased with a greased mop before the fish is put on. The fish is laid with the skin side down, after it has been split, and occasionally the backbone is removed.

A new garnish for the planked fish, instead of using the mashed potato border, is to scrub white potatoes and bake them on the plank spaced around the fish, and between each put a half green pepper filled with vegetable macedoine, highly seasoned, with plenty of butter. When the plank is removed to a heavy tray for serving, take slices of lemon and draw sprays of watercress through the centre of each slice, then lay them about the fish.

There is perhaps no other fish that lends itself to as many different combinations as the fresh cod, for in chowder, creamed, boiled, fried, in turbot, in salad, even in Newburg, it is acceptable.

The salmon is a close second to the cod and has one advantage over it, for it is delicious served cold with sauce tartare.

So many pretty dishes of fish may be made for special occasions with the aid of brown, cream and mayonnaise sauces and jellies of different colors that they are well worth studying.

The Elevator Boy

By Brett Page

THE Elevator Boy's a bore,
He's all the time up in the air,
And, when you call him down,
He's sure to let the blamed car slip
The while he's shooting off his lip,
With anger in his frown.

◆ ◆ ◆

For he'd impress you, if he can,
The elevator boy's a man—
But he will have to stop;
Oh! don't you care, friend, let him rage,
He's there with you right in that cage
And dassent let it drop!

SECRET OF STYLE IS STUDY

Mlle. Adeal Foviari

How to Dress Well on a Small Allowance

By Madge Marvel.

THE dress cleverness of French women amounts to genius. They are the envy and despair of their sisters of other nations, who watch them with hawk-like eyes and copy their dress to the smallest details, all the time conscious that they are unable to imitate the one elusive thing which makes their style distinctive.

And the maddening part of it all is that French women have a way of looking unutterably and indescribably smart and chic and all other desirable ways a well dressed woman should look on an absurdly small dress allowance, compared to the unlimited extravagance of many American women.

When noted French women come to the United States they say all manner of lovely things about American women and their style, but, when they realize at what price such sartorial elegance is obtained they roll their eyes, shrug their shoulders and grow voluble. When they reduce American dollars to francs they are horrified.

Few French women are wildly extravagant. They all seem to have an element of thrift in their natures which gives them a very delightful and exemplary long-headedness in matters of expenditures. They achieve much in the way of chic on little in the way of cash.

Mlle Foviari, the celebrated French actress, late of the Comedie Francaise, now in America, where her talent and her gowns are creating somewhat of a sensation, has an interesting explanation of the French woman's style.

"The French woman sews her costumes with silk," says Mlle. Foviari, with a charming smile and a wave of her shapely white hand, as if that settled the whole matter forever.

"Silk thread?" exclaims the interviewer, in true American accents.

"Oui. Silk thread," she repeats. "Is it not true that the silk thread lasts longer than the other kind? Certainly. It does. Also it is more elastic, it washes better, it cleans better, it holds firmer. Then it does not cut the fabric, no matter how delicate. It has a way of sinking in out of sight, so that a seam which is finely sewed scarcely looks like a seam at all.

"Moreover, it yields to the figure, and one is surer of having a bodice fit perfectly if it is sewed with silk than if the ugly cotton is used. Cotton. It is but good for the basting, to hold the garment till the silk thread can be stitched in. Even in the little blouse of mulle, the little frock of lawn, the blouse tailleur, which all American women wear so beautifully, the seams are better sewed with silk.

"We French women make our costumes last two, three times as long as the American women. We do not spend so much money. But we are most exacting how the gown is made in the first place. We do not have a gown just to have something new. We have a dress because we have need for it. Also we know what that need is.

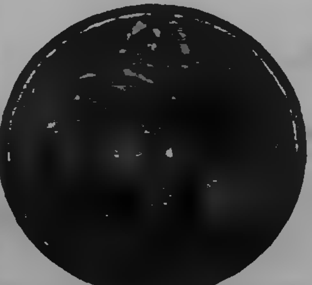
"Then we get the costume which will give us the most service and look always chic. We think much about our costume before we spend our money for it. We are never in a hurry when we have a visit to the modiste. We make sure all is perfect.

"Then we wear it until it is gone. I am told that the American woman frequently throws her costumes away after one season. It is not so with the French woman. She has the tailor or the modiste make it new again. There is where the silk thread helps. It has not ripped or hurt the cloth. It has left no marks."

Through the Eyes of a Mother

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service



Winifred Black

DAUGHTER'S coming home for the Easter holidays, bringing a friend with her, and mother is worried to death.

I went over to see mother the other day and she told me all about it, though she didn't know she was doing it.

"Mabel"—she tried hard to say May Belle—that's the way the girl spells it now—"will be here at Easter. She's bringing her friend, Clarice, with her and I'm having the bedrooms and dining room done over.

"I did want to get the living room done, but father and the boys made such a fuss I had to give it up.

"What is the reason men are so unsympathetic with the ideas of a young girl? Somehow they don't seem to have any feeling for May Belle at all—just because she likes things to be pretty at home and to have them as the other girls have them when she visits them.

"I'm going to have May Belle's room in soft green and the guest room in French pearl. She says that's the latest thing. I wanted blue or rose, but she says they've all gone out. The dining room is to be early English; she sent me some sketches. It looks a little dark and gloomy to me in the sketches, but I suppose I'm old-fashioned.

"I'm taking the old dining room furniture up into the boys' room; they like the table to work on. I shan't let them see till they are here; I know they'll say they are spindly. Mabel says they're perfectly dear, but they look to me a good deal like church pews cut in two.

When "May Belle" was "Mabel"

"Who do you think would be good to make some really smart frocks? Little Mrs. Bronson is dowdy, May Belle says. I wonder if that new French woman charges too much."

And mother's kind, good, little face tied itself into a hard knot of perplexity and anxious care.

Poor little mother, she'll be down sick before the Easter vacation ever arrives, and I hope when she is that there'll be a trained nurse in the house and that May Belle and Clarice will have to sneak down the back stairs and take such meals as they can get off of the kitchen table—just for a change.

I saw May Belle when she was home last Easter, and I didn't like her.

I didn't like her at all, and that was too bad, because May Belle and I were great friends when there was no Y and only one L in her name.

The last time I saw Mabel—no, I don't spell it with the Y or with the double L—that isn't the way she was christened; I know because I held her in my arms when she was sprinkled, and a red-faced, unpleasant little person she was, too—the last time I saw Mabel she and her mother were making visits. They made a visit to me and Mabel was worried to death for fear her mother would say something about old times when Mabel made her own hats and was proud of it.

I sent out for a plate of cookies to have with the tea—and Mabel said "she didn't care for sweets, thank you," and "didn't I think that English muffins toasted were too perfectly dear for words?"

She didn't care for motoring, she said; she found it dull; she was going in for aeroplanes—a bit she preferred, she thought, (of course, it was noisier than the [illegible], but somehow, there was something er-a, didn't I think er-a)—and Wagner, oh, he was hopelessly out of date—as bad as the old-fashioned pictures; nothing but futurists for May Belle—so temperamental, don't you know, so yearning—so er-a, would you call it—er-a—possible; and all the time I wanted to shake Mabel and slap her and shut her up in the dark closet under the stairs till she promised to be our own stupid, kind-hearted, good-humored, plain, little chubby-cheeked Mabel again, with a cookie in one hand and a book of Louisa Alcott's in the other—[illegible] girl worth a moment's real love and consideration.

Mother's Colored Spectacles

I'm sorry for Mabel's mother, awfully sorry for her; Mabel's so worried about her mother and so dreadfully ashamed of her. And yet I'm mad, just plain American m-a-d, not grieved, or sorry, or vexed, with Mabel's mother.

She started out being a good, sensible woman with a big heart and a loyal soul and a clear, practical brain of her own.

She never wrote an ode in her life and she couldn't tell the difference between a sonnet and a limerick. But she was the best housekeeper in town, and when nobody knew what to do about the minister's boy who was beginning to go wrong, poor lad—after his mother was lying fast asleep in the little churchyard on the hill—it was Mabel's mother who got hold of him and brought him round to going right again.

And when the bank cashier shot himself, it was Mabel's mother who had the courage to tell his young wife what had happened. And now Mabel's mother is letting a silly, flighty fool of a girl turn her whole well ordered, sensible, kindly life upside down—just because she is her daughter.

What is it that gets into a woman that makes her such a goose about her children, when they get to the silly age?

Talk about the blindness of love! Why, Cupid sees through a telescope compared to the way a mother who's in love with her children looks at things.

Some day Mabel will come to. There's good blood in her and she can't help it; some day she'll be practical and sensible and kind and generous hearted and worth loving again.

Until her own daughter comes home from boarding school and makes a fool of her all over again, just as she is making a fool of her mother.

That dark closet under the stairs looks mighty lonesome to me this morning, May Belle. I can't help wishing that you were in it.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

You Are Love's Target If You Have Curly Hair

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

Copyright, 1914, by L. K. Hirshberg.

DR. HIRSHBERG

THE lovelorn and amorous lads of a few years ago sang, "Not because her hair is curly, not because her eyes are blue." That is to say, the swains justified their surrender to the blandishments of the lovely maid by denying that curly hair had affected them.

Yet, physiologically, the mating instinct unconsciously hidden in your cosmos is intimately associated with curly hair. Even mother-love, the maternal pride in a child, is interwoven with the twisty, twirly, spiral ringlets of the child's brow.

Watch a mother stroke the hair of her boy or girl. See how careful and gentle she is to avoid straightening the curls.

Artists, with their intuition of love between youths and maidens, weave curly locks upon the heads of their beauteous creations. Micheleon unconsciously makes you a slave to his pretty girls and handsome men by depicting roguish, hirsute double circles and circuitous, mischievous ringlets.

Even barbers unknowingly fall victims to this devotion to curly tresses. Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, a score of years ago, ordered all of his liege citizens to curl their mustaches, and no American barber pays a patron a more dashing compliment than to curl his mustache!

The humorous thrusts directed at the vanity of European soldiers, due to the pretty women who are always at their heels, is attributed to the curly mustaches and hair.

Barbers hate to cut the curly, blond hair of little boys, even when their schooldays begin. "It's such a pity to have to cut off Willie's curls," say the women.

Musicians, artists and others with the "artistic temperament," go in for large crops of curly hair, for the same reason that brunette Svengalis do.

Svengali could perhaps never have so successfully exerted the masculine, hypnotic power over Trilby had he been lacking in those great brunette waves and whorls of curly locks.

There is a tendency in all creatures that live and mate to move in circles and curves. The straight textured animals are always tributary to those with curls. Animals curl up before a fire with glee and comfort, and straight-haired human races are always less happy than curly-haired ones.

The kinky-haired negro is always happy. Curly-haired white children and pretty girls are usually buoyant, carefree and gay.

The Medes and ancient Persians of high rank wore curly hair, just as the serious and dignified military officials of Prussia and Russia do today.

Puckering up the lips for a kiss is at the bottom of the notion hidden away in a girl's thoughts that a man with a curly mustache is "kissable." Just as a man feels that his sweetheart is most lovable when her tresses dash about in vortices and wheels before a saucy wind, so women fall under the spell of a curled mustache.

The outward essence of girlhood and manhood beauty is often apprehended, unawares, through the fluttering, spring-like spirals of the hair. Moreover, this is fundamentally at the basis of love and sweetness.

Rest, stillness, quiet, age and coldness show themselves in straight, smooth hair.

Action, movement, change, vivacity, capricious power, mocking strength, mystical, violent love lurks in locks that are loose and curly.

O Love! what is it in this world of ours
Which makes it fatal to be loved? Ah, why
With cypress branches hast thou wreathed thy curly bowers,
And made thy best interpreter to sigh?

Answers to Health Questions

H. S. B., Germantown, Pa.—Despite all dieting and treatment by several skin specialists, I still suffer as badly as ever with pimples on the cheeks. I wash with a well known soap and have no indigestion. Will you please tell me something to help me?

Stop dieting. Cease using soap of any kind on your face. Touch each pimple and blackhead with an alum pencil every night.

Do not use greases or creams on your face. Cleanse your face with glycerine, benzoin and hydrogen peroxide. Take calcium lactate and lactic acid bacilli internally.

• • •

MISS O. D., Toronto, Can.—What can be done for short-sightedness? I loathe glasses. Is there no operation that will take the place of glasses?

For some eye defects the muscles of the eyeball are cut. This cures the trouble, and after a time the glasses can be discarded.

However, glasses are made now by up-to-date opticians, just as hats and fashions are made by milliners and tailors. That is to say, to match your face and appearance, to be "becoming."

You should be able to obtain almost invisible glasses. You will soon learn to like them.

Dr. Hirshberg will answer questions for readers of this paper on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. He will not undertake to prescribe or offer advice for individual cases. PETER'S ADVENTURES IN MATRIMONY

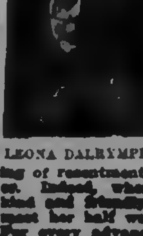
By Leona Dalrymple

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth, plain and unvarnished, about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Wife vs. Mother.

XLIV.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

I AM trying very hard to understand why a man's wife and mother are so frequently at swords' points. Why is the relationship so subtly different from that of a man and his mother-in-law? Yet it is and who can gainsay it? I have no inborn feeling of resentment toward Mary's mother. Indeed, when she chooses to be kind and friendly, I'm always glad to meet her half way. But not so Mary. For every advance my mother makes, Mary seems somehow to recede and make the distance between them a little wider.

"Mary, tell me," I said, patiently, one night, "why is it that the two most powerful interests in a man's life—his wife and his mother—so frequently conflict?"

"Why do you bother your head about such things?" inquired Mary, flushing. "I've always read that a man's wife and mother are bound to be hostile."

"I've read it," I admitted, "and I can't see any reason for it."

"It's the fault of the mothers!" said Mary primly. "Any girl will tell you, Peter. There never was a woman yet who wasn't insanely jealous of her son's wife. She's been first so long that she hates the notion of being second."

"But a mother is never second!" I put in hotly. "And, besides, the love a man bears his wife is so essentially different from the love he bears his mother that I can't for the life of me see why there should be comparison of any sort."

"Nevertheless," said Mary, "there is."

I asked mother why, in the course of one of our chats, and after a while she told me.

"Mary's right, Peter," said mother. "A woman is jealous of her son, but the great cause of conflict doesn't lie entirely with her. There is a delicate arrogance—a flaunting sense of proprietorship—in a daughter-in-law that is sometimes a little difficult to bear. Don't misunderstand me, Peter. I'm not speaking of Mary. Let's always be general. The young wife's manner often says as plainly as words, 'Your claim wasn't strong enough to hold him. I've [illegible] him away.'"

"Mother," I asked bluntly, "were you jealous of Mary?"

"I think I was, Peter," admitted mother fairly. "But the wise mother makes a great struggle at the first and weeds that tiny rankle out of her heart before it has a chance to grow into a flame that burns."

Mother, then, has fought that inherent sense of hostility with the splendid courage I have so frequently admired, but Mary has done nothing to help her. And now mother is in the eternally placatory side of the scale, tentatively offering what Mary ignores. How wisely fathers stand back and watch!

The possessive sense in a woman must be inherently feline. Else why does she hold a velvet paw in readiness to scratch, as Mary does. Vanity, narrowness of viewpoint—these two must make up part of that singular hostility which a mere man can't understand.

The wife of a man insidiously rears a barrier between him and his mother . . . Why? . . . And isn't the elder woman's attitude a recognition of that fact?

I think so. The son-in-law doesn't have the same viewpoint. He couldn't raise a barrier between his wife and her mother if he tried. For one thing they are subtly banded against him in an involuntary spirit of sex antagonism. For another thing I think most men have too much good sense to be jealous of a mother's love.

"There's one consolation," a woman once said to me. "My daughter-in-law has estranged my son from me, but some one will come along in time and do the same for her."

Not a very good spirit, I take it—but typical nevertheless.

Perfectly Transparent.

Claudia—I don't believe that she needs spectacles one bit. She simply wears them because she thinks they make her look distinguished.

Sarepta—To be sure. Why any one could see through the subterfuge.

Improving Her Muscles.

"I understand that Mrs. Bloomeroore has employed a boxing instructor for her daughters."

"Yes. She says that every girl ought to learn something about the woman's art of self-defence."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months resident upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties.—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

THE SPORTS COAT A COMFORTABLE FAD

Although many of our fashions are conceived with never a thought of the practical, for adornment alone, the sports coat, which is becoming more popular every day, is an exception.

This garment, I believe, originated with the mackinaw—a rough, heavy coat of plaid patterned after the garment of the same name worn by the Canadian woodsmen. It is now being made of all suitable coating materials, plain or plaid, and fills a very important place in the modern girl's and woman's wardrobe. A reversible coating is used with No. 8130; the outside is a soft, wooly fabric in dark blue; a narrow stripe of red runs through the reverse side and is turned back to form collar and cuffs. A stitched strip of the material forms the belt. The raglan shoulder, which shares honors with the yoke this season, is a feature, and the huge patch pockets are a convenience.

This garment may be copied in size 36 with 3¼ yards of 42 inch material.

A three-piece skirt accompanies this coat. It is developed in blue duvetyn and trimmed with bone buttons. The panel front is distinctive.

Size 24 in this design requires 2¾ yards of 42 inch material.

The tunic is literally a fairy godmother to the modern frock. By adding one in chiffon or plaited silk a plain little dress is entirely transformed. The shops are showing tunics of taffetas and satin which are suitable to wear with almost any dress. One or two of them in a wardrobe is like having that many extra gowns.

No. 8116 is blue silk poplin, with the second tunic of blue chiffon and the upper one of the poplin. A few dark red bone buttons are effective as trimming.

This frock may be copied in size 36 with 6¼ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8130—sizes 32 to 44.
No. 7981—sizes 22 to 30.
No. 8116—sizes 34 to 42.

THE APRON ONE OF THE NEWEST TUNIC EFFECTS.

Tunics have become so popular that designers have nothing to do but invent new arrangements; there are half tunics, full tunics, one-sided, even tunics and tunics pointed on the sides; the one illustrated in No. 8281 is the apron tunic. This is brought about by two gathered ruffles which narrow in front, and lengthen in back to form a double flounced overskirt. This costume is made up in mahogany charmeuse, with the two flounces in mousseline of the same shade. A most attractive feature of this frock is the bodice, which is held in at the neck and front with a ribbon forming a ruffle of the material. A shaped, pointed girdle is another distinctive point.

For size 36, this dress requires 6 yards of 36 inch charmeuse, which may be purchased from $1.50 a yard.

Frills and flounces are seen on many small frocks and coats; they lend a quaint, attractive note without being too fussy.

No. 8260 is a dress in drop-shoulder style, fastening in front and having an applied yoke. This little dress is developed in one of the new silky crepes in a soft shade of blue.

For a child of 6 this model requires 2¾ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8281—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8260—sizes 2 to 10.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

AUCTION DEAD-HEADS

Men Brought in to Act as Decoys for the Public

How Londoners are decoyed into salesrooms was described at Bow street during the hearing of a case against Ernest Collard, John Callaghan and Arthur Smythe who were charged with assaulting an auctioneer named Dent.

Mr. Dent said his brother was selling goods by auction when Collard threw a biscuit barrel at him, but it just missed him. Saying that he was going to smash the shop up, Collard then struck Mr. Dent with a bronze horse and threw a figure at him. Callaghan struck him with a stick and he also received a punch from Smythe.

He had given Collard odd jobs as a "dead-head" but he was not employed in the shop when the row took place. Dent admitted that he employed men to stay in his auction room as an inducement for others to come in, and also that he had occasionally given them money with which to make purchases. He denied, however, that he supplied his "dead-heads" with counterfeit money so that they might get outsiders in a buying mood by seeing a brisk business going on. The young men were fined.

Mr. Carton's Writ Issued.

Acting for Mr. M. Carton, Peck, Kerr and McElderry have served the city with a notice of writ for damages of $5,000. Mr. Carton, it will be remembered was injured at Central Park, when struck by a falling limb.

It would seem that P. C. Brown's application for the position of Chief of Police of Port Hope was favorably received. It would also seem that the stipend offered did not meet with Officer Brown's approval.

Surprised Her.

A gentleman who had spent the greater portion of his life in Canada relates an amusing experience which befell him.

He had been on a hunting expedition for several days in the backwoods, roughing it rather severely, and on taking a seat in a railway train returning homeward he looked as begrimed and weather beaten a trapper as ever brought his skins into a settlement.

He happened to find a seat next to a young lady, evidently belonging to Boston, who, after taking stock of him for a few minutes, remarked:

"Don't you find an utterly passionful sympathy with nature's mountains and the dim aisles of the horizon touching forests, my good man?"

"Oh, yes," replied the apparent backwoodsman, "and also I am frequently drawn into an exaltation of rapt soulfulness and beatific incandescent infinity of abstract contiguity when my horse stumbles."

"Indeed!" said the young lady, much surprised. "I had no idea the lower classes felt like that."—Chicago Record-Herald.

His Own Joke.

"I admit I was found in the possession of firearms," said the prisoner, "but it's only a joke of mine, my lord."

"Explain yourself," said the magistrate.

"Why, I put two pistols in my pocket when I go out to a friendly gathering. Then I start talking of aeroplanes."

"Well?"

"Then I say my life was once saved by parachutes."

"Yes?"

"And I pull out the pistols and say, 'Pair o' shoots.' Ha! ha! See?"

"Yes, I see. Did you make up that joke yourself?"

"Yes, my lord."

And All of Them Americans.

An English visitor has recently been expressing his wonderment at the facility with which America assimilates its stream of immigrants. A friend with whom he was talking on the subject remarked: "My housemaid is a Norwegian, my grocer a Scotchman, my butcher is a German, my druggist is a Finn, my barber an Italian, my newsman a Jew, my laundryman is Irish, my fishmonger English, my florist Greek and my tailor Russian."—American Hebrew.

Shortened His Wait.

"Experience," said Mark Twain once, "makes us wise, but it also makes us hard. Consider the old, experienced man in the busy restaurant. He took a seat, looked round him and, pointing to a well dressed gentleman who had not yet been served, said to the waiter:

"'Waiter, how long has that gentleman been here?'

"'About twelve minutes, sir,' the waiter answered.

"'What's his order?'

"'Porterhouse and French fried, sir, with mince pie and coffee to come.'

"The old man, hardened by experience, slipped a quarter in the waiter's hand.

"'Waiter,' he said, 'I'm in a hurry. Put on another porterhouse and bring me his.'"

Fresh Discovery of an Old Truth.

Helen's enjoyment of the party given in honor of her ninth birthday was nearly spoiled by the ill tempered outbreaks of a very pretty and well dressed little girl who was among her guests. A peacemaker appeared, however, in a plain and rather shabby child, who proved herself a veritable little angel of tact and good will.

After her playmates were gone Helen talked it all over very seriously with her mother. She summed it up in this piece of philosophical wisdom:

"Well, I've found out one thing, mamma. Folks don't always match their outsides."—Woman's Home Companion.

Salt and Health.

Few persons understand the therapeutic value of salt. A little salt in one's drinking water is "good medicine." Salt applications to the skin are wonderfully soothing and wholesome. There is nothing better as a wash for the throat and the nasal passages to prevent or to cure catarrhal troubles than a solution of common salt in plain water—the cheapest remedy one can find. Many persons give their eyes a daily bath of cold salt water with satisfactory results.

Ancient Oath Taking.

A method of taking the oath far more hygienic than kissing the book was that observed at the Forest of Dean Mine court for about 500 years, beginning in the thirteenth century. It was not for any hygienic reasons, but to prevent soiling the book that the miners before giving evidence touched the four gospels with a stick of holly. The witnesses wore their hats to show that they were free miners.—London Chronicle.

Not Troubled.

Irate Tenant—I asked you when I rented this place if you had ever been troubled by chicken thieves, and you said no. Every one of my chickens was stolen last night, and I am told that the neighborhood has been infested with chicken thieves for years.

Suburban Agent—I never keep chickens.

During the cold weather when it is necessary to keep on extra fires there is always increasing danger of accidents happening from defective chimneys, defective stovepipes, furnaces, explosion of coal gas, accumulation of dust near heating appliances and numerous other causes.

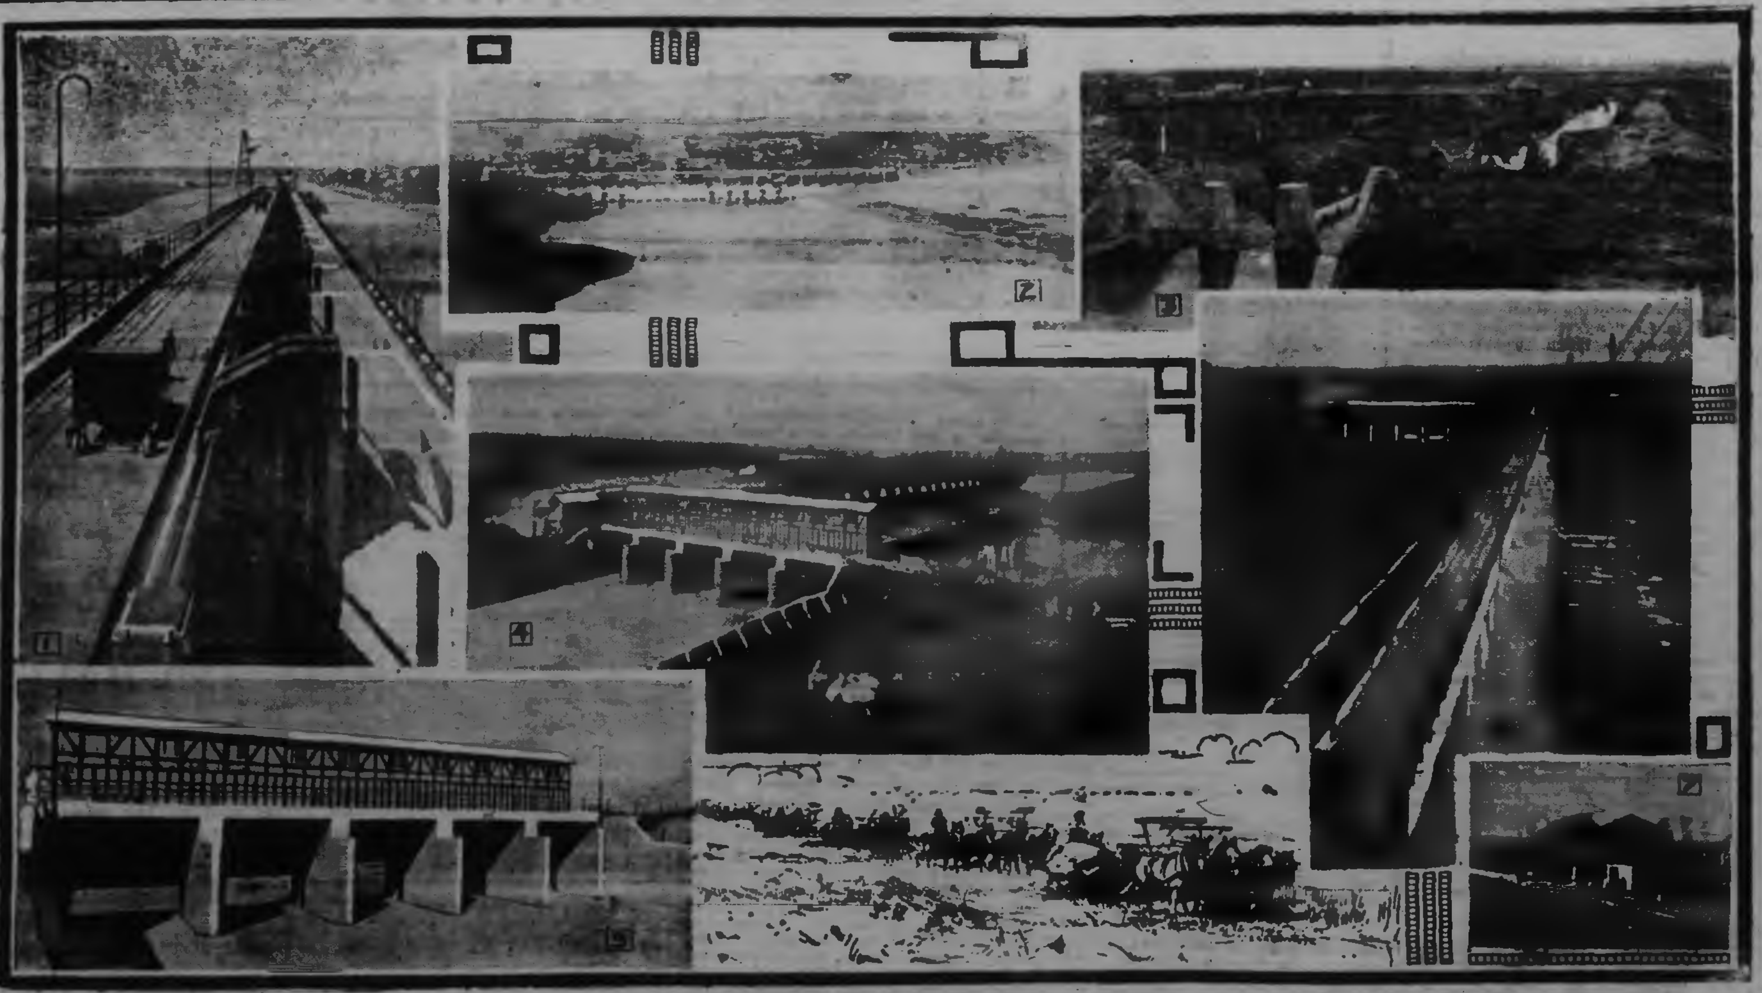
THE GREATEST IRRIGATION DAM IN THE WORLD



NO. 1—Overlooking top of the Dam across Bow River. NO. 2—Panoramic View of Bow River. NO. 3—Showing the steps and irrigation ditches after the water has been diverted into the Main Canal. NO. 4—A picturesque view of the head gates and dam. NO. 5—Entrance to the Main Canal. NO. 6—View overlooking spillway toward head gates. NO. 7—Bassano Station.

The accompanying views have been specially taken to illustrate the greatest irrigation dam the world has ever seen. This Dam was erected by the C. P. R. across the famous Bow River, in the vicinity of Bassano, at a cost of several million dollars, in order to divert the water for the purpose of irrigating a million acres of land to provide ready made farms for incoming settlers. Recently the head gates were opened and the canals and ditches were quickly filled with water, and this Spring the land will be occupied by settlers for the first time. The low-water surface in Bow River is raised approximately forty feet (40) by the Bassano Dam. It is a composite structure, the most notable portion being the concrete spillway, 720 feet in length. Extending easterly from the Dam is the main channel, two miles in length, partly in a deep cut of 70 feet bottom width. The most notable of the canal structure is the Brooks Aqueduct, 10,600 feet in length with capacity of 900 second feet across the broad low depression.

"CATARRHOZONE" PREVENTS BAD COLDS STRENGTHENS WEAK, IRRITABLE THROATS

Employs Nature's Own Methods and Is Invariably Successful.

Few will escape a cold this winter but alas! many colds run into Catarrh.

Neglected Catarrh is the straight gateway to consumption.

Catarrhozone is a germ-killer—destroys microbes that cause Catarrh.

It heals and soothes, relieves the cough, gives throat and lungs a chance, cleanses the nostrils, clears out the phlegm.

You feel better in an hour.

In a day you're greatly relieved and on goes the curing of Catarrhozone until you're well.

No treatment so direct. Catarrhozone goes right to the spot—acts quickly, cures thoroughly catarrh, bronchitis and all throat affections.

"Nothing could kill a cold so fast as Catarrhozone," writes Amey E. Snelling, from St. Johns. "Last month I had a frightful cold in my head, suffered from itching nose, running eyes and torturing headache. Ten minutes with "Catarrhozone" inhaler gave relief and in one hour I was well of my cold. Catarrhozone I consider a marvel."

Carry "Catarrhozone" inhaler in your pocket or purse—take it to church—to the theatre—to work—use it in bed. It prevents and cures all manner of nose and throat troubles. Complete outfit, guaranteed $1.00; small size 50c.; sample size 25c.; at dealers everywhere.

The New Minister.

The young people who presented "The New Minister" at Knox church lecture hall, will repeat the performance in Lakefield next Tuesday night, under the auspices of the Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church. A special train may be secured for the trip.

St. Andrew's Church.

The bill to enable the trustees of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Peterborough, to sell certain lands, has been reported on favorably by two of the Justices of the Supreme Court, Judges Falconbridge and Middleton.

King Edward School Baseball.

King Edward School Baseball Club has been organized for the season. The following were the officers elected:

Hon. Pres.—Mr. B. F. Ackerman.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—Mr. Ed. Carr.
Pres.—Mr. M. N. Clark.
Sec.-Treas.—Mr. J. M. Koszel.
Mascot—Percy Fairbrass.
Water Boy—Wilfrid Fuller.
Executive Committee—Eddie Jackson, Gerald Cunningham, Leith Bartley, Angus McLeod.

New Moving Picture House.

As rumors were current on the street yesterday regarding Mr. Pappas securing premises on George street for a new moving picture house, a Times representative consulted with Mr. H. Clayton who operates the Royal, the Princess and the Red Mill Theatres. Mr. Clayton said that premises now known as the "10 cent store" had been secured and will be changed to a theatre to seat 500 people. It is, we understand some 25 feet frontage with a depth of 140 feet.

Our Policemen's Shoes.

The city spends approximately $100 a year on clothing and apparatus for each of our local policemen. The cops, however, buy their own shoes. Anyone who sees the size of shoe worn by Peterborough's finest can easily recognize that the leather architecture and labor put into these shoes must cost each officer a whole lot of masuma.

Belleville Bigamy Case.

Belleville Ontario: William Lindsay, of Madoc, was placed on trial this morning in the court house before Judge Deroche on a charge of bigamy. On July 11th, 1900, Lindsay was married, it is stated, to Ethel Switzer at Tweed. After some years there was a deed of separation agreed upon for certain reasons. On August 23rd last Lindsay married Mary Canniff. Sheriff Morrison was unable to find Ethel Switzer (of Ethel Lindsay) to serve a subpoena to attend court.

Wolves at Minden.

Minden Echo: Mr Freeman Trumbull was in town this week with five wolf skins and made application for the Government bounty before the local Crown Land Agent. He states that he was taking a tramp through Anson township some two weeks ago, and drove a pack of wolves away from a deer which they had just killed. Freeman proceeded to place poison in the carcass of the deer and returned a few days ago, finding that five of the animals had taken the bait and were dead.

An Old Pair of Spurs.

Yesterday a Times representative had a chat with a local man who has been engaged in many a cocking main bothin this city and elsewhere. He told of his experience when, as a boy 12 years old, he remembered a former local saloon keeper, who was then only 4 years old being brought to a Peterborough "chicken dispute," and led there by the hand by his father. Our informant, whilst only a boy then, fought some "black-reds" (those in the chicken game will understand) in a big main here. This gentleman still owns the pair of gaffs or spurs used on that occasion 46 years ago.

Why P. C. Brown Not Chief.

Port Hope Guide: The City Fathers assembled in regular session Monday. A policeman was not appointed, but it was not the fault of the Police Committee. The Committee on Saturday had practically engaged Sergt. Brown of Peterborough at $1,000 a year, and there were two reasons why this appointment did not go through. First—Mr. Brown had phoned on Monday afternoon that he had decided not to accept the position, and second—Mr. Chislett and Mr. Smith, while probably favoring the appointment, objected to the large increase in salary. Consequently, had a vote been taken on Mr. Brown's appointment it would have resulted 5 to 3 against, only the members of the Police Committee supporting him.

W. A. of All Saint's Church.

At the annual meeting of the Womens' Auxiliary of All Saint's Church, the following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres.—Miss Chamberlain.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Fitzgerald.
Pres.—Mrs. Hooper.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Latimer.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Taylor.
Secretary—Mrs. Harris.
Treasurer—Mrs. Gilbert.
Dorcas Committee—Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. Connoly, Mrs. Shannon.
President Junior Auxiliary—Mrs. Blois, with Mrs. Dobbin.
Secretary Babies' Branch—Mrs. (Dr.) McCullough and Mrs. Alexander.
Organist—Miss Rush.
Executive—Mrs. Buller, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Hillier.
Delegates to annual meeting in Toronto—Mrs. Hooper, Mrs Gilbert and Mrs. Shannon.

Improvements at Gas Works.

Possibly the most radical changes ever made in any local industry, in proportion to its size, are these in evidence at the gas works. Under the able management of Mr. Harry Beal, the whole system has been revolutionized. A huge new boiler has been placed in commission. The flues of these are now cleaned of sutt by steam in a few minutes instead of a man laboring over the work for a couple of hours as heretofore. An immense meter, some 10 feet in diameter has also been furnished. Where the stable formerly stood, a modern brick building has been erected. This is the purifying house. Formerly four huge iron boxes, filled with oxide of iron, through which the gas passed to cleanse it of impurities and which had to be emptied every two or three weeks were used. Now the oxide is used on steel floors of the new purifying house, and the oxide has only to be renewed in as many months as it required weeks previously. There are about 110,000 feet of gas made daily. It is of high candle power and great heating capacity.

She Got So She Was Almost Insane

AND THEN FOUND A CURE IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

That's Why Mrs. Wellington Dunlop Says Dodd's Kidney Pills are the Best of All Medicines.

South Waterville, York Co., N.B., Mar. 18.—(Special).—Mrs. Wellington Dunlop, an estimable resident of this place, has given an interview in which she states that she believes Dodd's Kidney Pills to be the best of all medicines. Mrs. Dunlop says:

"When I commenced taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I was in a terrible condition. I had been sick for over a year and had paid out more than one hundred and thirty dollars for doctors and medicine. I would get some better and then get just as bad as ever.

"The doctor said my trouble came from my stomach. His medicine relieved me for only a few minutes after I had taken it, and I got so that I was nearly insane.

"I had not taken Dodd's Kidney Pills two days till I was some better. I took twelve boxes in all, and I can truly say they have done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are suffering woman's best friend. If you haven't tried them yourself, ask your neighbors.

The Motto of Every Canadian Should be "What We Have, We INTEND to Hold"

In so far as it applies to Canada's national wealth, our forests, and more particularly the protection of our fur-bearing animals, which, however, would soon become but evidence of a great past unless husbanded by the foresight of man.

To the foresight of Prince Edward Island's practical men two of the most famous of Canada's fur-bearing animals, the Black and Silver Fox, have been saved to future generations—and as a consequence Canada will unquestionably furnish the world's great demand in future, for this princely fur exceeds its weight in gold!

Concerted action by shrewd Canadians now engaged in this industry in Prince Edward Island will shortly control all the available Black and Silver Foxes wherever found on this continent, a fact generally conceded by persons in authority—consequently this announcement is of great interest to the careful investor and believer in Canada's vast Fur Wealth.

Some Important Facts about the Silver Black Fox Industry

The first island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $4,000.00; in 1911 the price went to $6,000, a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000.00 was considered high but not unusual and at the time of writing (January 28, 1914) live breeders can bring any price from $15,000.00 to $35,000.00, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000.00 a pair.

About $10,000.00 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $3,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the Island contain 599 silver breeding foxes (141 males and 458 females). The total number of silver offspring for 1913 was 703, and the average assessed value was $4,992.52 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $3,349,149. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1,602.

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,628.00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company has TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND silver black foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option all are eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which in 1913 paid from 45 per cent to 900 per cent.

THE INDUSTRY

No industry in recent years has made such wonderful strides as the Black-Silver Fox Industry, and the reason is that it offers larger financial returns than any other business in the Dominion. Moreover, its future possesses unlimited opportunities, as the demand is constantly increasing, while the supply has reached almost a minimum until a few companies undertook the breeding and rearing of these valuable animals. Everyone who is alive to the opportunities of enormous profits without risk will readily appreciate the advantages of investing in the R. J. McNeill Black and Silver Fox Company, Limited. It is a fact that every bona fide fox company organized within the Province of Prince Edward Island has paid dividends of from 45 per cent to 300 per cent and some companies have even done better than this.

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a percentage of the production will be retained, placing the company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211-acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair and Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1912. This company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I. who were employed in the United States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $15,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $300 three years ago, and is now worth $45,000 directly from this source.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's, Limited, received $25,000 from an investment of $500 made in this business three years ago.

The Rosemount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1,000 per cent this year.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $500 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $3,500. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair for a year. The first litter consisted of seven pups. The seven owners have received $836,000 cash dividends since and the pair bought for $3,500 could be sold for $35,000 to-day. Mr. Austin Scales, of St. Eleanors, is a member of this Association.

From the above it will surely be seen that the R. J. McNEILL BLACK AND SILVER FOX COMPANY, LIMITED, are engaged in business at a most opportune time and under most favorable circumstances. Take into serious consideration that our company is established, and that we have the FOXES AND THE RANCH, and not prospective. YOU ARE ENTITLED TO SEPTEMBER, 1914, DIVIDENDS; you don't have to wait for your dividends until 1915. In 1915 another dividend will be awaiting you.

REMEMBER, the average cash dividend of the above companies is 175 per cent., and there is absolutely no excuse why we cannot repeat the same.

We offered for public subscription the remaining allotment of $70,000, $30,000 has already been subscribed, $40,000 remains to be sold.

C.P.R. FIRE FIGHTING CARS.

The construction of a couple of tank cars, specially equipped for fire fighting, is a new departure on the part of the C.P.R. They are, in general, of the standard construction. They have been built to the designs of the company by the American Car Company, and the idea is to operate them in pairs. Apart from the end arrangement of the auxiliary equipment, they are of identical construction. Each car carries a tank of 8,438 imperial gallons, and on the end of each car there is a 20x10 in. duplex fire pump using steam from the locomotive boiler. The corresponding end of the other car has a rack construction on which can be carried 6,000 ft. fire hose. The car is designed for weight capacity of 100,000 pounds, so standard fifty-ton trucks are employed. These tank cars have done good service in the United States.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC NEXT RAILROAD TO REQUEST MONEY

In What Form "Assistance" is Required is Not Known at the Capital

Ottawa, March 19.—It is understood on good authority to-day, that the Grand Trunk Pacific will next descend on Ottawa for assistance, and will ask for $15,000,000 to complete their line. Just in what form they will ask for assistance is not known.

They have been waiting to see what progress the C.N.R. was making before any application, but have decided the session has gone too far to wait further. In the present state of feeling at Ottawa and with the Government taking the firm attitude it is in regard to the Canadian Northern, it is the general belief that the outlook will be very poor for the G.T.P. receiving any further aid.

The situation as far as the C.N.R. is concerned is not changed.

CAUCUS HAS CLEARED AIR.

The Caucus yesterday cleared the air and there is now a definite understanding that there will be no assistance to Mackenzie and Mann until after a searching inquiry, and until it is proven that the situation is as grave as represented. This investigation is already being conducted by the Government, both at the head office at Toronto and through the Government experts at Ottawa.

Mr. F. P. Gutelius, General Manager of the Intercolonial, is still in Ottawa and is advising and assisting the Government in its inquiry. It is understood on the best authority that the C.N.R. admit it will take $100,000,000 to complete and thoroughly equip their line. They believe they can finance half of this and want a Government bond guarantee for the other $50,000,000.

A GREAT DEBATOR

Considerable interest is centred on the big political meeting to be held in the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, March 30th. The event will be in honor of Mr. J. H. Burnham, Peterborough's member for the House of Commons, who will be accompanied by the Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, and the Hon. Arthur Meighen, Solicitor-General. Mr. Rogers, is probably the most prominent member of the Borden Cabinet, while Mr. Meighen, who is also from the west, enjoys the enviable reputation of being the ablest debator in the House of Commons. Unquestionably our citizens will turn out in strength to welcome the distinguished visitors and our own energetic and capable member.

TENDERS TO BE INVITED FOR CITY'S GARBAGE COLLECTING

Area Divided Into Six Districts, and Will be Accepted for One or More or All Districts--A. S. Sanderson Gets the Market Tolls and Charges For $876

The City Council's Property Committee met last night, Chairman Ald. Wm. Langford presiding. There were also present his worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen Duncan, Saunders and McIntyre.

Tenders will be invited for garbage collection by districts, the area governed by the garbage by-law to be divided into six districts, one man to take the contract for one district, similar to the principle governing street watering. Tenders will be accepted for one or more or all districts. Seven months' contract terminating the end of the year, beginning June 1.

THE MARKET TOLLS.

The following tenders for Market tolls were opened.

A. S. Sanderson	$876
John Riddel	837
Walter Fisher	840

On motion of Ald. Duncan and Saunders, the highest tender, that of A. S. Sanderson, $876, was accepted.

REPAIRS TO HOSPITAL.

His Worship reported the repairs necessary to the Isolation Hospital at a cost not exceeding $380.

POISON CUP SERVED TO GUESTS AT DANCE

Ten Made Ill, Two of Whom Have Since Died From the Effects—Will Analyse Liquor.

Revelstocke, B.C., Mar. 19.—Provincial Constable Rothwell has just returned to town with the bodies of two victims of a tragedy which occurred at Malakwa, near here. It appears that on Friday night liquor was purchased in Revelstove by a Malakwa man for consumption at a dance at Malakwa on Saturday.

As a result of partaking of this liquor, ten guests at the dance were taken ill during Sunday and Monday, and two, a married man named Labeau, of Malakwa, and Olef Jensen, a laborer, died on Monday in terrible agony. Others, including Pat Labeau, brother of one of the deceased were very seriously ill, but are now recovering. Constable Rothwell holds the bottle containing a small quantity of the liquor, which will be produced at the inquest Friday.

WIDOW'S ROMANCE TERMINATED IN DEPORTATION FROM CANADA

Wooed by Letter, Came to Windsor to Wed Only to Find She Had Been Deceived

Windsor, Mar. 19.—Robert Tait, of Cargill, Ont., appeared in the Police Court this afternoon, charged under the Immigration Act with bringing Mrs. Lillian Horne, of Hicksville, O., into Canada for immoral purposes. The case arose out of an advertisement inserted by a matrimonial agency with headquarters in Illinois. Tait wrote the woman more than 75 letters encouraging her to come to Canada, telling her he had a house furnished in readiness for his bride-to-be.

As a result of the correspondence, Mrs. Horne, accompanied by her two daughters, aged 10 and 12, respectively, arrived in Windsor on Thursday, last en route to Cargill. She was taken off the train by the immigration authorities, not being able to qualify under the Act, as she only had $11. Mrs. Horne was held at Windsor, and an investigation was made by Traveling Inspector Reynolds, of Ottawa, and Inspector Clydesdale, of Windsor, assisted by County Constable Briggs, of Walkerton. This resulted in the arrest of Tait at Cargill on Monday.

It was found that Tait was practically worthless, instead of being the wealthy man he represented himself to be to the woman. The officers found he had no money and was employed for the most part as a rustabout around the mills. The suit he intended to get married in was obtained on credit, and when the merchant learned of his apprehension, came to the hotel and removed the clothes from his person, while the landlord of the hotel held his chattels for an unpaid board bill. It was learned he had been a section hand at Berlin and had also worked at Listowel and other places in Ontario.

Tait was brought here, and appeared before Police Magistrate Leggatt.

Tait acknowledged writing the letters. He was remanded for a week for sentence. The magistrate declared it was one of the most revolting cases he had ever had to deal with.

Tait and Mrs. Horne have never seen each other, although they had been corresponding since June last. As the woman was not permitted to meet the man at the trial, she may never have an opportunity of seeing him, as, following the order of deportation, she was sent back to the United States. Her divorced husband resides in Detroit.

HOTEL DEBRIS MUST NOT BE TAKEN AWAY

Toronto, March 19.—Although the city has given permission to the Woodbine Hotel Company to remove the debris of the building, Coroner McCallum, who has charge of the inquest, has issued strict orders that the wreckage is not to be taken away. The jury will view the wreckage tomorrow afternoon at 3.15 o'clock prior to resumption of inquest.

As the work of turning over the debris is very dangerous only English speaking laborers are being employed, so that they will fully comprehend the orders of the gang foreman.

Mr. E. M. Burke, president of the company, said that an inquiry had been ordered because it was alleged that he had not secured the necessary building license. Mr. Burke declared that he not only had the license, but papers to show that $450 worth more of steel had been put into the building than had been demanded.

Morden, Man., Mar. 19.—To-day, after many days' delay, the arraignment of John Krafchenko, charged with the murder of H. M. Arnold, manager of the branch of the Bank of Montreal, at Plum Coulee, and with the robbery of the bank, opened here before his Lordship Chief Justice Mather. An effort to secure a postponement of the trial on the ground that owing to the publicity given the case it would be impossible to secure an impartial jury, failed, and the taking of evidence was begun.

NOT MUCH HISTORY MADE IN HOUSE OF COMMONS YESTERDAY

Ottawa, March 19.—There was not much history made in the Commons yesterday. The proceedings were intolerably dull, and most of the day there was a bare quorum in the House. A bill to amend the Shipping Act, which affects the Maritime Provinces only, as the Great Lakes are excluded was given a second reading. The second reading also was given of the bill to consolidate the Fisheries and Fishing Act.

Objection was taken, particularly on the part of the Opposition members from the Maritime Provinces, to the namely of certain fisheries officers as justices of the peace, Messrs. Carvell, Carroll, Kyte, Mackenzie and others contended that while this might be necessary in unorganised districts in Western Canada, it was not desirable in the Eastern Provinces, where justices of the peace are to be found in every neighborhood. The effects of the law, they said, was to give a fishery officer possessing such powers the right to try cases within his own jurisdiction. Such an officer would be interested in securing a conviction. This, they said, was not in accordance with British principles.

CALLED SUFFRAGETTE. HIGHLY INDIGNANT

Wife of Physician Was Fined For Slandering School Teacher.

Cologne, Mar. 19.—For calling a woman school principal a "suffragette," the wife of a physician in a neighboring village was to-day convicted on a charge of slander and fined, according to the Cologne Gazette.

The offence was committed in the course of a quarrel over the punishment by the school principal of the physician's daughter.

The complainant, in supporting the charge before the court, argued that the Suffrggettes had shown themselves to be scarcely normal. Educated people, she said, were enraged against them, owing to their outrages and nobody would entrust children to her if she were a Suffragette.

The defendant refused to apologize, and declared that the teacher had acted like a Suffragette. She thereupon ordered to pay a fine.

GATES OF DERRY ARE KEPT CLOSED

And Guards at the Military Barracks Have Been Doubled--Employ Bluejackets

London, March 19.—Further stories of drastic measures taken by the Government to quell any outbreak in Ulster are given in the Unionist press this morning. According to these stories, the guards at the military barracks in Belfast, Londonderry Enniskillen and Armagh have been doubled and the gates are kept closed. The garrison at Carrickfergus has been increased. It is stated that there are two stores of munitions in all these barracks, and the Government fears that the Orangemen will make raids to obtain arms and ammunition. It is alleged that a large quantity of ammunition has vanished mysteriously from one depot.

The Belfast correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "There is great irritation here at the constant surveillance by the policeof prominent men, especially members of the Ulster Volunteers, whose movements are dogged by detectives. The rooms of the Unionist Council are closely watched. An ugly feeling is spreading among the volunteers, and any sharp action by the authorities is likely to be followed by reprisals."

The Daily Telegraph asserts that if the Lords tie up the Army Bill the Government will dissolve Parliament, but will postpone a general election until the Home Rule Bill becomes law under the Parliament Act."

WILL EMPLOY BLUEJACKETS

In the event of strife in Ulster, it continues, the Government will let bluejackets handle the disturbance, employing the soldiers everywhere except in Ulster. This would be a violation of the law, as the Army Bill would not have been passed, but the Government would rely on winning the general election and carrying an indemnity measure to protect itself from the consequences.

It is extremely doubtful that the House of Lords will uphold the Army Bill. It is generally believed that if the Lords ever had any intention of doing so they have abandoned it.

The Unionist press is booming the debate on Bonar Law's motion of censure of the Government for not making its proposals on concessions to Ulster more formal as of the greatest importance. The motion will come up in the House of Commons today. Arthur J. Balfour, former Prime Minister, is returning from the Riviera where he has been playing golf, to take part in the debate. It is difficult to see how it can alter the situation.

FIFTEEN DOLLARS FOR FOR FOUR MONTHS BOARD

Toronto, March 19.—In November last Alfred Thomas left his wife and three children in Toronto to seek work in Collingwood. He gave Mrs. Thomas $15 before he went north, but since then, the police say, he has contributed nothing to her support. The Morality Department took action, brought Thomas back to the city, and charged him in the Police Court to-day with non-support. The accused is a tailor, and he pleaded lack of employment. He was handed over to Mr. Cohen, J.P., who will endeavor to provide him with a position.

MAGISTRATE STATES HAILEYBURY EDITOR ONLY GOT DESERTS

But He Was Sufficiently Punished and the Case is Dismissed--Lawyer Says Cold Was No Hardship

Toronto, March 19.—The last word in the C. C. Farr case has been said, and as a result of Mr. George Prior Deacon's application in the early Police Court to-day the charge of vagrancy against the proprietor and editor of the Haileyburian has been dismissed. The denouement of the controversy was as unexpected as it was dramatic. When the last case on the initial docket had been called and Mr. Peter Ellis was about to vacate the bench in favor of Colonel Denison, Mr. Deacon, a friend of Mr. Farr, asked for leave to address the junior magistrate.

"I wish to make application for the dismissal of the charge against my client, Mr. Farr?" he began.

"Do you want it re-opened?" asked the magistrate.

VERDICT NOT IN CALENDAR.

"Yes, I wish to point out that the verdict of the court—remanded till called on—is not provided for in the criminal callendar. The criminal law must be definite on this—must either be a conviction or adismissal. Though it may be a good idea to render such a decision, it sometimes works out to the detriment of the accused."

"We'll allow that you are right in that," said Mr. Ellis. "Are you within the time limit?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Deacon. "We are within one week."

"Very well, then," said the Magistrate. "Tell us what you want, but don't take up too much time."

ON MISSIONARY WORK.

Mr. Deacon then reviewed the history of the case. His client had disrobed himself in inclement weather in Leader Lane, he said, but to a north-countryman zero weather was not an unknown hardship. Mr. Farr was undertaking a little missionary work, he said, and he was merely preparing himself for a visit incognito to the British Welcome League. At the police station, counsel claimed that the police, had they wished, could easily have satisfied themselves as to Mr. Farr's antecedents. They had his watch, notes and papers. In court he had proclaimed himself as "Mr. C. C. Farr, of Haileybury," but no person had appeared anxious to accept his statement. Why had the police not investigated? Asked Mr. Deacon

THOUGHT HE WAS CRAZY.

"It would have been their place," to make investigations," observed Mr. Ellis. "They thought that the man was crazy."

TREATED QUITE PROPERLY.

"In expressing myself as I did at the last court," said Mr. Ellis, "I have found no reason to change my opinion. I am satisfied that the defendant was properly treated in the police station and in the jail. He brought his trouble on himself. However, I thought I had showed him some leniency in remanding the charge till called on. He has had some suffering, and if you want something definite the case is dismissed."

LONG-RUNNING ACCOUNT FOR INDIGENT PATIENTS SETTLED

St. Joseph's Hospital's Bill of $2113 Cleared Off the Slate for $1,000---City Official Will in Future Report on All Patients Seeking Free Treatment in Hospitals

The City Council met in Committee of the Whole last night, his worship Mayor Buller presiding. Aldermen Duffus, Anderson, Langford, McIntyre, Johnston, Saunders and Duncan.

Rev. Father McColl was present in the interests of the St. Joseph's Hospital, and submitted the hospital's account against the city for treatment of indigent patients from April 1, 1912, to date. The bill totalled up to $2,113. A settlement of this long-running account was made for $1,000, thus clearing the slate up to January 1st this year. Unfortunately it appears that in both hospitals the authorities and the city have been imposed upon by some patients claiming to be indigents, who in all reasonableness should have been able to pay for treatment.

Rev. Father McColl complimented the council for their keen business acumen and contended that if council makes as good bargain in all their dealings as they have with the two hospitals, the rate will soon be down to 12 mills.

In future, under agreement with both hospitals, the standing of all patients applying for free admission to the hospitals will be investigated by a city official and if reported as able to pay for treatment in lump sum or in course of a reasonable time, they will be classed as pay patients, and the city will collect, if necessary. The city pays one dollar a day for all indigent patients, resident in Peterborough. The council will, if possible, secure the services of Relief Officer F. W. Miller to investigate all cases claiming to be indigent to do the work in conjunction with his other civic duties.

WOMEN EVADED HOMESTEAD LAWS

One Reason Why They Are Not Given Free Land in Western Canada.

London, Mar. 19.—A spirited discussion concerning women's chances when they turn emigrants, which has already been referred to in previous cables, has brought forth a letter from J. Obed Smith, Canadian Emigration Commissioner, concerning one point.

"The reason Canada never gave free homesteads to unmarried women," writes Mr. Smith, "is because she learned a lesson from the United States, which, under homestead laws in force there, placed unmarried women on the same basis as men, and with the following result. In nearly every case there was a distinct evasion of the spirit of the law, which, so far as homesteading is concerned, is that the State shall provide a piece of free land for a family. The American girls took up their homesteads, so did their fiances. Then they married and had two homesteads contrary to the spirit of the law. Besides all this, it would take more than a few lines to satisfy anyone that a woman can conduct and do the physical work required on a farm.

"In the course of many years' dealing with this question, I have met one or two women who maintain that women can do farm work like men, but the preponderance of opinion is women, as well as men, is against that theory.

"It is quite true that in some of the provinces of Canada a man can divest his widow of his estate by making a will to that effect, but it is no worse in Canada than it is in the country where your correspondent writes from—namely England."

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

In Pitt's Day the Speaker Kept Himself Stimulated With Porter.

The speaker of the English house of commons holds an enviable position today, but it was not until comparatively modern times that the speaker ceased to be a partisan, nor was his position always one of its present dignity. In the time of Pitt the speaker was accustomed to solace himself with a draft of porter:

Like sad Prometheus fastened to the rock,
In vain he looks for pity to the clock,
In vain the effects of strengthening porter tries
And nods to Belamy for fresh supplies.

Manners were somewhat looser in those days than they are now. Pitt himself on one occasion showed signs of a too copious libation to the gods, and this gave rise to the celebrated couplet:

I cannot see the speaker, Hal. Can you?
What! Cannot see the speaker? I see two.

It is said that on one occasion Mr. Disraeli arrived at the house somewhat "under the influence" and was so indiscreet as to attack Mr. Gladstone, then prime minister, upon some point of foreign policy. Mr. Gladstone replied witheringly that "the right honorable gentleman evidently has sources of inspiration from which her majesty's ministers are debarred."—Argonaut.

AN HOUR OF THRILLS.

Shooting the Rapids of the Hodzu River, in Japan.

The rapids on the Hodzu river near Kyoto must fill even the most blase of tourists with excitement. A train from Kyoto climbs slowly and painfully upward until finally it deposits its passengers at a quaint little siding.

From here, says the Wide World Magazine, one goes to the river bank and embarks in a rude, flat bottomed boat, which is pushed out by four men into the middle of a broad river, reed edged and sleepy.

For a few minutes one glides dreamily along; then, rounding a curve, one suddenly hears the roar of water, and the boat tears down a rapid, just missing the rocks on each side. The high banks race past, death appears imminent, and then, with one mad swirl, it is all over and the boat is on the quiet, unruffled stream once more.

This happens again and again for about an hour. At first one's whole mind is filled with the conviction that an accident must happen, but gradually comes a delicious feeling of safety as one notes the marvelous skill these men show in piloting the boat through the seething rapids and one is able to appreciate the beauty of the scene.

Humors of "Hamlet."

William Davidge related in his "Footlight Flashes" that during his strolling days in England, when companies were small, he had on the same evening done duty for Polonius, the ghost, Ostric and the first gravedigger, and Edwin Booth remembered Thomas Ward dying in sight of the audience as the player king and being dragged from the mimic stage by the heels to enter immediately at another wing as Polonius, crying "Lights, lights, lights!" Hamlet in a one night town, swearing he loved Ophelia better than forty thousand brothers, has watched her through an open grave packing her trunk in the place beneath, while the ghost, her husband, waited to strap it up. There are more things in Hamlet's existence behind the scenes than are dreamed of in the philosophy of all his commentators and all his critics.—From the Green Book.

Corn and Water.

To those engaged in the handling of grain the natural shrinkage of shelled corn while in storage and in transit is a matter of prime importance and often a source of dispute because of shortage reported at time of receipt at warehouse and a further loss at date of final sale. In order to determine the amount of shrinkage or loss of weight occurring in corn the department of agriculture has conducted an experiment with 500 bushels of shelled corn. At the time of storage the moisture content was 18.8 per cent and at close of the test 14.7 per cent, or a loss of 4.1 per cent. The weight per bushel had decreased from 54.7 pounds to 50 pounds, and the total loss of weight was 1,870 pounds, or slightly more than 7 per cent.

Spiders and Whooping Cough.

"Will you please give mother a box to put a spider in, as baby's got the whooping cough?" This extraordinary request was made to a Tiverton shopkeeper the other day by a little girl whose mother believes that if she imprisons a live spider in a nutshell and ties it round her infant's neck the whooping cough will disappear when the spider dies.—London Mail.

Her Latest Luxury.

"Young man," said the heavy father, "do you understand the style in which my daughter has been accustomed to live? She has always had every luxury she wanted." "And now I'm the luxury she wants," murmured the suitor.—London Globe.

Time's Changes.

"Before we were married you said you'd lay down your life for me," she sobbed.

"I know it," he returned solemnly, "but this confounded flat is so tiny there's no place to lay anything down."—Harper's Bazar.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY PAVILION

PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., 1915.

The Grand Trunk Pavilion, which will occupy a prominent position in the railway plaza at the northeast corner of the grounds of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, will be directly opposite the mammoth machinery palace, adjacent to the passenger ferry slips, and overlooking San Francisco Bay. As will be observed the design is simple in outline and Spanish renaissance in character, making a handsome and ornate structure. The walls will be of stucco, rough finish and tinted a soft cream shade, relieved with an ornamental enriched band carried around the building under the eaves. Shields and fountains have been effectively placed to enhance the decorative effect of the building. The roof will be covered with a rich red Spanish tile. The design for this building was the one accepted by the Exposition Authorities as the standard for all the other buildings which will be erected on the railway plaza. This pavilion will house the exhibits of both the Grand Trunk Railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Messrs, Ross and Macdonald of Montreal, are the Architects.

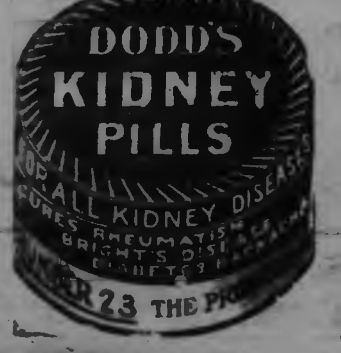
Dr. Arnold Hague shows that there is a strong contrast between the geological conditions connected with the geysers of Iceland and those of the Yellowstone park. Volcanic eruptions may be said geologically to be still going on in Iceland, while in the Yellowstone such action ceased many thousands of years ago. The Yellowstone phenomena as seen today represent a phase in the evolution of thermal springs. The tendency of a geyser is to develop a hot surface pool, after which explosive action may cease and the geyser, as such, become extinct, but this is a very slow process. Dr. Hague rejects the idea that the cessation of activity in a geyser indicates the dissipation of the original source of heat and ascribes it simply to a shifting of the channel of the ascending waters.



The young people who presented "The New Minister" at Knox church lecture hall, will repeat the performance in Lakefield next Tuesday night, under the auspices of the Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church. A special train may be secured for the trip.

The Courts have ordered Oakville municipality to pay $3,080 to the family of the late Mr. George Harker who was electrocuted last April in his stable in consequence of the crossing of the High power with the lighting wires.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the boRels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvener has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, leo a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅜ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Sanol BLOOD SALT

No Indigestion can exist if this remedy is taken according to instructions—and there is no known remedy to take its place.

This Blood Salt is a mixture compounded so as to resemble in essence and effect, the salty parts of the human blood. It is well known that our vitality is normally kept up by means of the natural blood salts.

Hence a lack of the latter will alway superinduce a loss of the former. It is also a fact that with each quart of urine we lose about 18 grams of blood salts. Accordingly we must gradually become weak and sick, unless we provide a substitute for these salts in the blood.

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion such as Dyspepsia, Gastric Catarrh, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, etc., and as an aid to digestion, in wasting and nervous diseases.

OUR POINT OF VIEW

You may have noted that spring is nearly here in the shop windows.

◆

Cambridge, Mass., has elected a Mayor named Good, and the citizens are hoping that there is something in a name.

◆

Discoursing of the suffragette mania, the Toronto Globe says 'Emotional insanity grows by what it feeds on, and it is maintained now chiefly by the reluctance of sane women to denounce it."

Well, the United States will be a-quiver with joy if that triple wedding takes place in the White House. There's something quite appropriate in the report of the doctor getting Miss Bones.

And now rumor says we are to have another moving picture theatre on George street, in the "Ten Cent" store. In all likelihood it will still be a "Ten Cent" affair for some time to come.

DIVISION AMONGST SEPARATE SCHOOL SUPPORTERS

The bi-lingual difficulty in Ontario is by no means over. In Ottawa, at a recent meeting of the Separate School Trustee Board, notice was given of a motion which asks for the separation of the French and English pupils, and the establishment of a purely bi-lingual as well as a purely English separate school by special legislation.

It is asserted, says The Christian Guardian, that the necessity for this complete division has been felt for many years, as in Ottawa the separate and bi-lingual schools have got along together only by having as much separation as possible. There was an agreement made years ago that there was to be one English and one French trustee in each ward nominated and elected exclusively by the electors of their own nationality, and a similar arrangement prevailed in regard to the appointment of teachers and the internal management of the schools. But the English electors claim that this agreement has not been kept and that somehow the French have usually managed to elect one of the English trustees and thus control the Board. Then it is claimed that while the French pay less than half the school taxes they have over fifty per cent. more children educated. And, finally, the French trustees are running their schools in open defiance of the Government, having posted up in every room of every bi-lingual school in Ottawa a resolution ordering the teachers to disobey regulation No. 17, and to refuse to submit to the inspection of a Protestant inspector. This jeopardizes the whole separate school system, and the English separate school supporters have reached the conclusion that they had better dissolves partnership and let their French co-religionists fight their own battles. The struggle is not a very edifying spectacle, and can hardly conduce to efficiency in the separate school system.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Beautify Your Hair! Make it soft, fluffy and luxuriant—Try the moist cloth

Try as you will after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25c bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment that's all.

Magical Effect on Neuralgia Throbbing Pain Goes Quickly

A YEAR'S SUFFERER CURED BY "NERVILINE."

No person reading this need ever again suffer long from neuralgia.

Nerviline will quickly cure the worst Neuralgia, and Mrs. G. Evans, in her strong letter written from Russel post office, says: "One long year, the longest in my life, was almost entirely given up to treating dreadful attacks of Neuralgia. The agony I experienced during some of the bad attacks was simply unmentionable. To use remedies by the score without permanent relief was mighty discouraging. At last I put my faith in Nerviline; I read of the wonderful pain-subduing power it possessed and made up my mind to prove it valuable or useless. Nerviline at once eased the pain and cured the headache. Continuous treatment with this magic-working remedy cured me entirely, and I have ever since stayed well."

Mrs. Evan's case is but one of hundreds that might be quoted. Nerviline is a specific for all nerve, muscular or joint pain. It quickly cures neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, lame back, neuritis and rheumatism. Forty years in use and to-day the most widely used liniment in the Dominion. Don't take anything but "Nerviline" which any dealer can supply in large 50c family size bottles or in a small 25c trial size.

THE ARTIST'S IDOL.

She Didn't Know Anything About Music; She Only Loved It.

The incident happened upon one of the great ocean liners during an autumn trip when a famous violinist was among the passengers. At first he firmly refused to play, but was finally persuaded, and upon the appointed evening the salon was crowded with eager passengers.

It was a most enthusiastic audience, intelligent, sympathetic and appreciative, yet as the evening wore on people began to notice that the violinist's glance went always in one direction, and after a time others followed it.

They saw a plain little woman, plainly dressed, with no marks of wealth or culture. But she was looking at the master with shining eyes, her face wet with tears, unmindful of everything except the magic of his violin. When the program was ended, pushing his way through the people who would have detained him, the musician went straight to the little shabby figure.

"Madame, I congratulate you—you are ze great artist!" he cried.

She looked up at him almost in alarm.

"I—oh—I cannot play a note," she stammered. "I don't know anything about music. I only—love it."

The violinist shook his big shaggy head impatiently.

"Is it not what I say? You have ze artist soul—ze artist to listen. What good to play to ze deaf—like ze rest?" with a disparaging gesture toward the crowded room. "It is to ze one wis ze heart to listen zat we masters play."

Holland.

Holland, known as North and South Holland, forms part of the northern part of the Netherlands. These provinces are composed of land rescued from the sea and defended by immense dikes. Holland was inhabited by the Batvi in the time of Caesar, who made a league with them. It became part of Gallia Belgica and afterward of the kingdom of Austria. From the tenth to the fifteenth century it was governed by counts under the German emperors. Holland was at one time a Dutch republic. It was created a kingdom in 1806, and Louis Bonaparte, father of Napoleon III., was declared king.

Toronto, March 19.—H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General, arrived in the city early this morning and spent a busy day. He leaves tonight on his return trip to the Capital.

During his brief stay he was the guest of the York Club. At eleven o'clock His Royal Highness, as Chief Scout of the Dominion, paid a visit to the club of the Provincial Scout offices. At noon he left the club to lunch with Sir Edmund Walker. In the early afternoon the Duke officially opened the Royal Ontario Museum, following which he officiated at the inauguration of the Howard Memorial Gateway. At all the places visited he received a popular welcome from the crowds assembled.

A SINGLE APPLICATION BANISHES HAIR FROM FACE

(Beauty Topics)

Here is a way to remove obnoxious hairy growths while you are preparing your toilette for the evening: Mix into a stiff paste enough powdered delatone and water to cover the hairs not wanted. Apply, and in about 2 minutes rub off and every trace of hair comes with it. Washing the skin to remove the surplus delatone leaves it soft, clear and free from blemish. To insure success be certain that you get real delatone.

Duty Paid.

Not All Sixes Will Do This

The average man thinks a Six is merely two cylinders added to a Four. The engineer knows better. Many baffling problems were solved by Howard E. Coffin and the Hudson engineers before the HUDSON Six was perfected. Not all designers of Sixes have been so successful. Not all Sixes will develop the marvellous smoothness, the amazing flexibility, the vibrationless motion that one enjoys in the HUDSON Six. It's worth your while to see the HUDSON before you decide.

Until you drive a HUDSON Six you cannot realize its great advantage. Its smoothness and flexibility are an insurance as well as a delight. HUDSON Sixes are preferred because of high quality combined with moderate price. The Six-54 has four forward speeds, 135-inch wheel-base, motor 4¼ x 5¼, developing 55 horse-power. Made in Phaeton at $2950 and Sedan at $4050. The Six-40 has 123-inch wheel-base, motor 3½ x 5, developing 47 horse-power, gives 13 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and is, we think, the easiest riding car on the market. The Six-40 in Phaeton and Roadster at $2300, and in Cabriolet at $2575. All cars, of course, are electrically started and lighted, left side drive, center control, gasoline tank in cowled dash. Mrs. Hart's purpose in becoming a policewoman is to endeavor to better conditions in Muncie for girls, she said: She has adopted a uniform that is distinctive. "Though I am wearing a uniform," said Mrs. Hart, "you may be sure the uniform is wholly feminine in its appearance."

Mrs. Hart desired to be clothed with full police authority, because she believes it may be necessary for her to look after male offenders, as well as women. Though in the matter of actually arresting a man Mrs. Hart might not be especially vigorous, she desires she says to be in a position to see that the laws of decency be enforced against men as well as women.

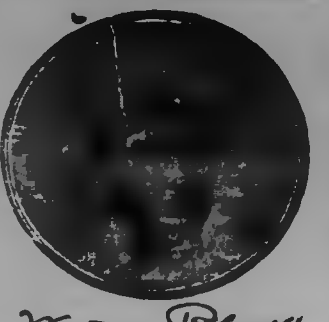
Light the Beacon Fires for Friends Who Drift

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service.



Winifred Black

THERE was a shipwreck out on the Pacific coast lately; a shipwreck in the wild storm and the beating waves.

The whole city knew that the ship was in danger, and no one could do a thing to help. Before the sun went down the news was abroad—there's a ship on the rocks—and the beach was black with people, watching.

But with nightfall the storm grew wilder and most of those who watched were driven home to warm suppers and snug fireplaces and pleasant company.

But a few there were who waited, and watched.

And some of these gathered driftwood—a sodden tree which had come in with the tide from who knows what far forest, a plank from some ship that sailed proudly in some forgotten day, a piece of an old wheelbarrow there was, too, they say, and all sorts and conditions of floating timber.

And they built a fire—the little handful of those who waited on the beach—a struggling fire it was, at first, and hard to keep aburning. But finally it blazed. And all night long it flamed upon the beach, a bonfire and a beacon.

And in the nearby cottages the housewives kept vigil, too, and made coffee and had the tables set, and watched, and waited. It was all that they could do, and they did it.

And in the gray dawn the ship broke in two and went down; and the sailors came ashore somehow—out of the wild waters.

Beacon Gave Them Hope.

Alive—all but one of them—bruised, beaten, spent, half-frozen, benumbed with their night of terror, but alive.

"It was the beacon fire that did it," said the captain, when they had pulled him up out of the waves and he was able to speak.

"That fire kept us alive all night. Once I thought it had gone out. 'They've given us up,' I said to the man in the rigging with me.

"'No, no,' he answered, and he spoke so loud that I heard him plain above the roar of the water and the pounding of the ship on the rocks.

"'No, no, they're putting on fresh wood'—and sure enough the flame leaped up again—the friendly flame that kept us all alive. I would have lost courage a dozen times and let go and dropped into the sea, but the flame kept telling me to hold on and wait—till daylight. So I did—and so did we all—and here we are alive, out of the cold sea—and it was the beacon fire there on the beach that did it."

The women who had watched all night hurried and found dry clothes, and the coffee was hot and strong and the bread and meat were ready, and there were a dozen anxious people to wait upon every worn and buffeted sailor, and, when the sun was fairly up, the storm was over and all was well with those who had been so little time before in desperate need and terror.

"It was the beacon fire that did it," said the captain. How true he spoke—how true.

It is the beacon fire of friendship and of love and of faith and of hope that keeps us all alive.

If it were not for that friendly fire, how many of us would last out the night of life—how many?

Oh, may I always have the courage and the kindness and the thought to keep the beacon fire burning on the beach, when the wind is high and some poor ship is beating on the rocks!

A Word Will Hearten.

The old friend of mine, how gay she used to be, how light of heart. I met her the other day. The color was gone from her face and somehow it looked gray and worn—on the rocks, the good ship youth, pounding hard on the cruel rocks. And I didn't say a word that was in my heart. I spoke to her carelessly and passed her by. How cruel of me, how bitterly cruel.

I'm going to write her a letter this very day, not a sad letter, not one that shows her that I saw the agony she was trying so hard to keep hidden—just a friendly letter telling how glad I was to see her the other day, though I didn't have time to say it then—and how much she has meant to me all my life and will always mean. I'm going to light the beacon fire.

I hope my friend will see it and take courage.

There is a man who has done something wrong, something weak and cruel and wicked, and he knows it and is ashamed of it, and no one will give him a chance to try again; oh, no, that would never do; people might think that we were weak and cruel and wicked, too, if we did that. So we must laugh at the man who has made a fool of himself and push him further into the cold sea of misery and disgrace. Look how white his face is; see the despair and loneliness in his eyes! Come, let's light the beacon fire upon the beach.

Let's go to the man and make a point of showing him by a look, by a word, by a warm clasp of the hand, that there's a chance for him yet.

Let's light the beacon fire.

Even with a Crutch

By Tom Jackson

THE tango now is all the rage—they dance it ev'rywhere. 'Tis full of steps, some on the floor, and others in the air. It hardly is the proper thing for persons who are fat. To tango, one should be quite thin—likewise an acrobat.

In tango one must glide, and slide, and run, and dip, and twist, indulge in ev'ry circus stunt that is upon the list. Woe to the maid with garments tight, who tries the tango dance, for soon indeed she'll quit the floor, or call an [illegible] tango craze is spreading fast; all hands are jumping in—from beardless youth, to Grandpa with white whiskers on his chin.

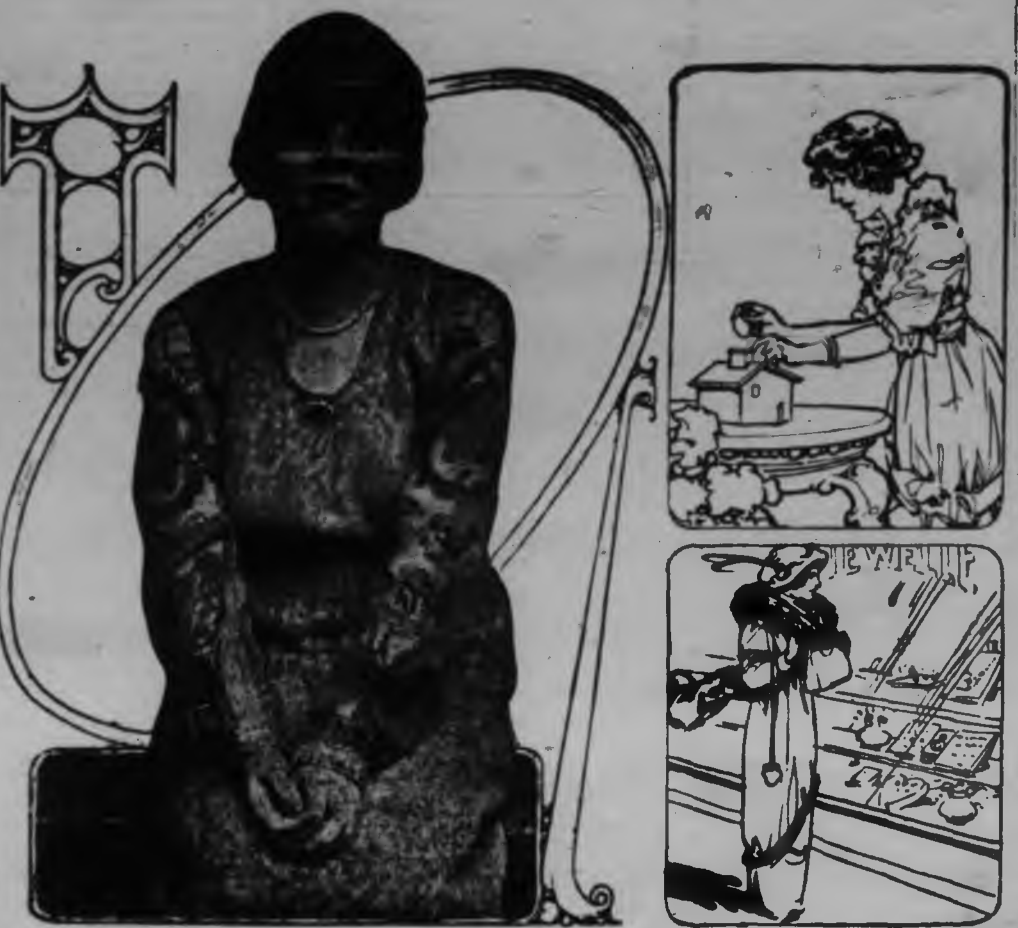
They jitsu-jitsu with the girls, declaring it is grand, and turn flip-flops and somersaults, to music of the band. They dislocate their ankles, but they do not worry much. A tango fiend will tango if he has to use a crutch. In ballrooms that are up to date soon signs like this we'll see:

"Music Furnished by Sig. Dago. Splints by Ima Quack, M. D."

"GET THE DAILY SAVING HABIT"



Blanche Sweet

Movie Star Advises Girls Who Work

By Cecile Manning

HERE are Blanche Sweet's 10 rules for saving money:

"Think twice before you open your purse.

"Have a specific reason for buying a thing. To be worth spending money for it must be useful or ornamental; owning it must give pleasure or service. When you can find no earthly reason for buying something which catches the eye, grab your purse tight and hurry along.

"Keep an expense account. When you read the entries you can judge of your business sense.

"Start a bank account. There is fascination in seeing the figure grow. There is also pleasure and sense in paying with a check. It makes you feel important, and where the change would slip through your fingers, you think twice before you write a check.

"Keep out of debt. Paying for dead horses is like having a skeleton for a chum.

"Learn to differentiate between what is necessary and what is superfluous.

"Cultivate financial prudence and learn the difference between it and stinginess.

"Don't borrow trouble, but remember that the rainy day is a cold, wet reality and that umbrellas cost money.

"Compare the time and energy required to earn a dollar with that which is necessary to careless expenditure.

"Get the saving habit."

Blanche Sweet has been a Mutual Film star for nearly three years. And she has yet to reach her 19th birthday. But she has saved money since the first day she went to work, and she says the average "movie" girl is a good business woman.

"Do you know the first and foremost requisite for a 'movie' girl?" she asked. "It is youth. Beauty and health are of minor importance. Health is next to youth and beauty is the third in importance. But the 'movie' star must be young. She must have a face free from lines, for make-up can't hide wrinkles on the screen. And her figure must be slim and girlish.

"First she has to be active. She has to run and jump and climb and be carried up and down stairs and rescued from 10th story windows and she simply cannot have any extra weight.

"Then she is the object of some one's heart devotion. There seems to be an unwritten law that romance and fat do not go together.

"Then to get the sympathy of her audience, the heroine must have the face of a very young girl.

"Of course, after one's youth passes there is character work and minor parts to play, but the 'big money' goes to the young girls. They all know this and there seems to be a concerted effort on the part of all 'movie' stars to make hay while the sun shines.

"They pay us salaries which seem tremendous. It is not at all unusual for girls of my age to earn from one to three or four hundred dollars a week. But we all know it will only last a few years, for when we begin to lose the freshness of youth some one younger will get the plums.

"I believe all business women ought to learn how to save. Every one who earns her living has to work hard for her money. How foolish she is not to appreciate that fact and save all she can.

"I think a good way to begin to save is to have a little bank and drop into it each day whatever you can afford. The result at the end of a month will amaze you. Get the habit."

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

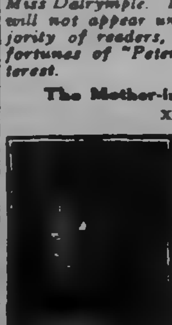
By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

The Mother-in-Law Problem.

XLV.



LEONA DALRYMPLE

I HAVE always read the newspaper accounts of mother-in-laws with a sense of impatience. For the life of me I cannot understand why the people, who ought to be closest to unfledged homemakers, should turn suddenly into bothersome problems. Yet I am learning that there is a real mother-in-law problem, and as yet I have been unable to understand its tantalizing subtleties.

Nothing comes into my house that has not been previously O. K.-ed by Mrs. Penfield, Mary's mother. Now, I do not object to Mary's consulting her mother about household problems—surely it is human and natural that she should—but here is the singular element in my mother-in-law problem that I can't understand. If I wish to consult MY mother, whose good sense and kindly instinct never fails, Mary is jealous.

"Peter," she said, "I don't see why you must run to your mother with everything."

"I don't," I said mildly.

"You stop in there most every night on the way home," complained Mary, "and it makes you late for dinner."

"How many times, Mary," I flared, "do I have to wait for you when you are with your mother? And if I don't stop in to see mother nights on the way home, when am I to see her? I notice, when we plan to go visiting, you always want to go to your mother's. You don't often want to go to mine."

Now this was brutally true. And there is more which I could have said and didn't. Though mother is unfailingly kind and affectionate to Mary, Mary, I regret to say, holds herself aloof. To be sure she listens with patient civility to whatever mother may say, but I know she is inwardly champing. Mother, I think, knows it, too, but she never loses her poise. I knew instinctively now that Mary is not the sort of girl mother wanted me to marry, but never by word or look has she even so much as hinted it.

On the other hand, I have had some uncomfortable sessions with Mary's mother, for Mrs. Penfield's attitude toward me is not always just or kindly. Tales of Mary's marvellous beauty and the match she should have made have taxed my patience severely.

"There's not a ghost of a doubt, Peter," Mrs. Penfield assures me with gracious inconsiderateness, "that, given the proper opportunity, Mary with her beauty could have married a duke. Beauty runs in my family."

"Opportunity," I retorted, a little nettled on one occasion, "is usually a blessing. In this instance it would have been a curse."

"Mary," flashed Mrs. Penfield, "was not made for sordid housework. She should have a maid. Look at the child's beautiful, tapering fingers."

"Mary," I replied, "was made to be a wife and a mother. Every woman was. It's nature's reason for the woman's existence."

"Then," bristled Mrs. Penfield, "you consider a woman merely a beast of burden?"

I side-tracked the subject. Mary's mother and I have nearly begun quarrels this way before.

Such is the mother-in-law situation in my house. Thanks to Mary's inexperience, my mother-in-law runs my house, but, though Mary wishes jealously to keep up her own home ties, she tries to force me to break mine. I am not in the least jealous of Mary's mother. Mary is frankly jealous of mine. My wife courts her own mother's advice and resents my mother's barest suggestion.

The man who said:

"Your son's your son 'til he gets him a wife,
"Your daughter's your daughter all your life," knew exactly what he was talking about. It's true. And it's the young wife's fault. I will not let my wife estrange me from my mother, but many another man has.

Maggie Teyte's Advice to Young Pianists

MAGGIE TEYTE, prima donna soprano of the Chicago-Philadelphia opera company, was asked by a well known piano teacher to write a few hints for pupils who are specializing on the playing of accompaniments. Miss Teyte hesitated, because at various times in her career as a concert singer she has suffered at the hands of inexperienced young musicians who attempted to play her accompaniments, but finally she wrote more in kindness than in anger, as follows:

Piano playing is done with the fingers, but that is no reason for one refusing to use his brains in conjunction.

While a piano has no conscience, the player should have one when performing very late at night or very early in the morning.

Don't play with a hard touch just because the piano keys are hard.

The piano bench may be made of wood, but does that give you a right to play as if made of the same material?

Prizefighting and piano playing both require muscle, but please do not fight your innocent piano.

Time flies. It can't help that. But keep your "time" perfect.

The piano has many keys, but try always to hit the right one.

While a quick passage is called a "run," I think slow practice will improve your playing of it.

Suppose the poor old composer is dead—does that give you the right to murder his music?

It is true that the Bible says: "Let not your left hand know what your right hand doeth," but when the Bible was written there wasn't a piano in the whole wide world.

Avoid sudden and violent changes in temperature, for the transition from a frost to a roast is exceedingly undesirable.

Advice is the only thing in the world that is more blessed to give than to receive.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Fingers Are Guide-Posts to Traits of Character

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

Copyright, 1914, by L. K. Hirshberg

DR. HIRSHBERG

WHAT would a fish do without fins? What would a whale do without a tail? What would a diamond merchant or a lecturer do without hands?

Really, it is more serious than humorous to say that many men would be speechless if their hands were cut off. For it is a fact, only of late disputed, that the dexterity of your right hand is symmetrically correspondent with the power of speech.

In fine, the precise area in the brain which controls your skilful muscular hand also directs your vocal ingenuity. To say that a man is making money hand over fist is synonymous with the phrase which says that money talks.

The hands are looked upon superstitiously by palmists; with a definite purpose by criminologists, and with a view to the knowledge of efficiency by psychologists and shop managers.

The idealistic hand with its delicate, long, tapering fingers is, in addition to the others to be mentioned, tested by savants with new psychological instruments.

The realistic hand has short, square fingers. The energetic hand is flat, firm and all aquiver. Rough fingers with knotted joints indicate a philosophic temperament.

A Sign of Strength.

Hypocrites, frauds, overestimated experts and common scolds often have highly polished, long, elegant looking hands.

In the pseudo-science of cheiromancy the character is supposed to be read from the lines, hollows and hills in the palm of the hand. The ball of the thumb is called the mount of Venus, the hollow of the palm is the plain of Mars.

Shaking hands to bind a bargain as well as a cheerful greeting, comes down to us as a sign of strength and health. The hand signifies strength and is accompanied by some healthful salutation—

"Let my hand——
This hand, lie in your own—my own true friend!
Hand in hand with you."

"Does its beauty refine, as its pulses grow calm,
Or has Sorrow new crossed the life-line in the palm?"

The well equipped, perfect hand must, to be sure, have four fingers and a thumb, which curves gracefully like the new moon. The middle finger must be as much longer than the ring finger and fore finger as the length of its whole nail.

Some Abnormal Hands.

The thumb in the open hand must not reach the first knuckle of the fore-finger. The little finger should just barely reach to the second, outer, knuckle of the ring finger.

Dr. Forster gives a sketch of a hand with nine fingers. There are several recorded instances of thirteen and a dozen fingers upon one hand. Two thumbs are not rare.

The influence of heredity upon such anomalies has given a serious impetus to the study of eugenics. Eugenics is an important branch of human knowledge on the side of suspending, checking or negativizing the wicked outcome of heredity in defective families. Upon its positive side, it remains to be tested in the dim and distant future.

Dr. Reaumur first showed the hereditary effects of these supernumerary fingers. In one family of Malta he showed the fingers to increase in five generations and then to recede and disappear by intermarriages with normal persons.

There should be rigid laws everywhere against marriages between cousins. Thus a family in the tribe of Hyabites, which lives in Arabia, are very numerous. All marriages are confined to the tribe. They all have 24 fingers and infants born with less are sacrificed.

The inhabitants of a village in France, at the end of the last century, had extra fingers. They lived in an inaccessible, mountainous region.

Double-length fingers, twice as large as the other fingers on the same hand, also occur.

Club-fingers, like club-foot, are also known. These are deformities which run in families and often skip several generations.

Answers to Health Questions

MRS. MARY A., Philadelphia, Pa.—I live with a family where there is a cancer. Is it dangerous?

Cancers of certain animals have been found by Drs. Murphy and Peyton Rous of the Rockefeller Institute to be due to ultra-microscopic parasites. It is therefore advisable to err on the safe side and assume that human cancers are also induced by germs.

If you can obtain individual china, linens, glassware and the like I believe you, with your youth and outdoor life, will be safe.

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

"WELL, upon my word!" exclaimed Brer Rabbit one evening, as he turned the page of The Woodland News. "Here is a story by my good son Jack."

"Read it to me," said Mrs. Rabbit, as she sat down to darn Billy's stockings.

Brer Rabbit put his pipe on the table and read:

THE GOOD FAIRY.
by JACK RABBIT.

"In the long ago there lived a Little Rabbit, and he wasn't a bit like other rabbits, 'cause his ears were short.

"Every day he used to go off in the woods all by himself, away from the other rabbits, and cry and cry so that it was strange he had any tears left.

"He was sitting on a mossy bank as the sun was going down one day, when his tears fell on a little violet.

"'Thank you,' said a tiny voice.

"The Little Rabbit thought it was the violet, for he knew the voice of all the flowers in Woodland.

"'Why do you thank me?' asked the Little Rabbit.

"'Because your tears sprinkled me like the rain, and it hasn't rained here in a long time,' said the violet.

"That pleased the Little Rabbit so much that he lay back on the moss and went fast asleep.

"He dreamed that a Good Fairy came out of the violet and said to him:

"'Why do you always cry, my little friend?'

"'Because my ears are so short,' answered the Little Rabbit.

"'Would you stop crying if I made them longer?' asked the Good Fairy.

"'Indeed I would,' replied the Little Rabbit.

"'Well,' said the Good Fairy, 'you must get up and turn around three times. Then I will touch your ears with my magic wand and you can then feel of your ears.'

"Up jumped the Little Rabbit and hurriedly turned around three times. The Good Fairy smiled as she touched his ears with her wand.

"The Little Rabbit then felt of them and they were long again.

"Just then he woke up and it was quite dark.

"He scampered home as fast as he could, but when he got home his mother didn't know him.

"The Good Fairy appeared suddenly and told his mother how she had changed his ears.

"The Little Rabbit stopped crying so much and they lived happily ever after."

Change of Propositions.

"Did I understand you to say that he was broken in spirits?"

"No. I said he was broken by spirits."

Decision Readymade.

"He said he could not decide whether to propose to the widow or her daughter. What did he do about it?"

"Oh, the widow decided for him."

Realistic.

"Was Mrs. Peck's portrait a success?"

"It is a talking likeness."

A Hard Campaign.

"He looks like a battle-scarred veteran. Where did he receive all those wounds?"

"He was a delegate to a peace conference."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months resident upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties.—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The Barefoot Burglar.

"Have you seen the barefoot burglar?" asks the Florida Times-Union. We have. We caught her in the act yesterday morning, the three-year-old miscreant, as she stole up to our bed, stole a kiss, shook her tousled head and said, "If you don't get up, dad, you won't get any bre'fas'."—Allentown (Pa.) FOR THE COMMON GOOD

It is the aim of The Times:

To exploit and advance the best interests of the people of the fair and fertile land wherein it is published, and to which it steadily devotes its efforts;

To stand for liberty and law, equal rights and good government, the greatest boon to a free people;

To foster and encourage private and public enterprise, and hold up the hands of every honest toiler, either with brawn or brain, in every field of activity;

To stand independently for the true interests of the city, the Dominion and the Empire, and for those policies only which make for the common good;

It aims to be excellent and not cheap.

SECTION 2, SEVERN DIVISION

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Section No. 2, Severn Division, Trent Canal," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon on Monday, March 23rd, 1914.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on or after this date at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa; at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont.; and at the office of the District Engineer, Public Works Department, Midland, Ont.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered bank of Canada for the sum of $36,000.00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railway and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderers will be held as security or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES,
Asst. Deputy Minister and Secretary
Department of Railways and Canals.

THE SPORTS COAT A COMFORTABLE FAD

Although many of our fashions are conceived with never a thought of the practical, for adornment alone, the sports coat, which is becoming more popular every day, is an exception.

This garment, I believe, originated with the mackinaw—a rough, heavy coat of plaid patterned after the garment of the same name worn by the Canadian woodsmen. It is now being made of all suitable coating materials, plain or plaid, and fills a very important place in the modern girl's and woman's wardrobe. A reversible coating is used with No. 8130; the outside is a soft, wooly fabric in dark blue; a narrow stripe of red runs through the reverse side and is turned back to form collar and cuffs. A stitched strip of the material forms the belt. The raglan shoulder, which shares honors with the yoke this season, is a feature, and the huge patch pockets are a convenience.

This garment may be copied in size 36 with 2¼ yards of 42 inch material.

A three-piece skirt accompanies this coat. It is developed in blue duvetyn and trimmed with bone buttons. The panel front is distinctive.

Size 24 in this design requires 2¾ yards of 42 inch material.

The tunic is literally a fairy godmother to the modern frock. By adding one in chiffon or plaited silk a plain little dress is entirely transformed. The shops are showing tunics of taffetas and satin which are suitable to wear with almost any dress. One or two of them in a wardrobe is like having that many extra gowns.

No. 8116 is blue silk poplin, with the second tunic of blue chiffon and the upper one of the poplin. A few dark red bone buttons are effective as trimming.

This frock may be copied in size 36 with 6¼ yards of 38 inch material.

No. 8130—sizes 32 to 44.
No. 7081—sizes 22 to 30.
No. 8116—sizes 34 to 42.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

THE APRON ONE OF THE NEWEST TUNIC EFFECTS.

Tunics have become so popular that designers have nothing to do but invent new arrangements; there are half tunics, full tunics, one-sided, even tunics and tunics pointed on the sides; the one illustrated in No. 8281 is the apron tunic. This is brought about by two gathered ruffles which narrow in front, and lengthen in back to form a double flounced overskirt. This costume is made up in mahogany charmeuse, with the two flounces in mousseline of the same shade. A most attractive feature of this frock is the bodice, which is held in at the neck and front with a ribbon forming a ruffle of the material. A shaped, pointed girdle is another distinctive point.

For size 36, this dress requires 6 yards of 36 inch charmeuse, which may be purchased from $1.50 a yard.

Frills and flounces are seen on many small frocks and coats; they lend a quaint, attractive note without being too fussy.

No. 8260 is a dress in drop-shoulder style, fastening in front and having an applied yoke. This little dress is developed in one of the new silky crepes in a soft shade of blue.

For a child of 6 this model requires 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8281—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8260—sizes 2 to 10.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

New Rifle Tested

King George was an interested spectator at Aldershot of trials with a new service rifle slightly longer than the one generally in use and having as an additional feature an aperture sight. The King thus saw a firing squad at work with the new rifle at 600 yards. The targets used were a foot square, made of solid steel, three eighths of an inch thick. One of them which had been in use was shown to the King and Queen. It had four bullet-holes in it, perfectly drilled as if the metal had been punched out with a machine tool.

Eight men of the Suffolk Regiment, who had been drawn from the same company, and were not picked marksmen, fired with the new rifle at twenty-four targets. Each man had twenty rounds, and when their ammunition was exhausted all but one of the targets had been brought down.

Lady's Share Deals

It was stated at a meeting at the London Bankruptcy Court of the creditors of Miss Cecilia Georgina Susan Lennox, of East Pallant House, Chichester, that in three years the lady had lost $100,000 in Stock Exchange dealings. Of her losses in speculation she had paid $75,000. Miss Lennox is a daughter of the late General Sir Wilbraham Oates Lennox, V.C., who died in 1897 and of Lady Lennox-Sinclair. She is a great-granddaughter of the Fourth Duke of Richmond.

MUTILATED CURRENCY.

Often Used In Attempts to Cheat the Treasury Department.

Many efforts are made to cheat Uncle Sam through the redemption division of the treasury department, which division has to do with redeeming partly destroyed government currency.

Once a man in a western state sent in half of a ten dollar bill, accompanied by an affidavit to the effect that while on a spree he had used the other half to light a cigar. The half he forwarded was nicely charred along the inner edge, and the story would have been accepted by treasury officials had it not been that within twenty-four hours there was received from a bank in the same state the other half of the note.

The theory of treasury officials was that while more or less intoxicated the man had struggled for possession of the bill with some one who had wrested half of it from him; that the despoiler had turned the half into the bank and received five dollars for it; that the intoxicated man, recovering his senses, had found the other half in his pocket and, not wishing to lose his money, had conceived the plan of singeing the edge of the note and claiming that the other half had been destroyed. So he committed perjury in an attempt to rob the government of $5.

A man in Cleveland sent an affidavit to the treasury department, accompanying the singed half of two twenty-dollar bills and one ten-dollar bill. This affidavit was typewritten and in perfect form. It set forth that the deponent was a commercial traveler; that after returning from a journey he had been cleaning out his traveling bag when inadvertently he had thrown into the fire an envelope containing $50 in bills; that in accordance with section so and so he would like to have the money restored to him, etc.

The clerk who brought this document to the officials commented on its lucidity and completeness, but to one of these the story seemed unnatural, and he ordered that the claim be held up for awhile.

Twenty-four hours later a big shipment of mutilated currency came from a subtreasury in the west. The official who had ordered the claim held up asked whether there were any half notes in this shipment. In four or five minutes a clerk brought him the missing halves of the bills the Cleveland man had sent in.

The attempt to defraud was plain. The matter was at once put into the hands of the secret service division, and a man was sent west to investigate. The man who had made the affidavit confessed at once. He had cut the bills in halves and for one-half of them obtained $25. The other half he singed and attached to his affidavit. The gross profit of the swindle could not have been more than $25, and for that trifling sum the man forfeited his liberty for a year and a half.—Washington Star.

Calais and Its Lighthouse.

Calais is rather an untidy place for a French town. The Place d'Armes, where the tower of the Hotel de Ville has remained since the fifteenth century, is the center spot. Here Calais meets its friends and has its cafe noir. In the square, towering out of the roofs of surrounding houses and dwarfing them, is the old watchtower. Since 1848 it has been superseded as a lighthouse by the magnificent one at present in use. Never shall I forget the effect of this lighthouse as I stood under it that night. The revolving spokes of light cast away into filmy space in all directions, looked like the ribs of a huge umbrella being turned by the white handle, which was the lighthouse tower. So tall is this that its revolving light can be seen from a distance of twenty miles at sea.—Wide World.

A Romantic Career.

The romantic career of a very remarkable man, John Gully, who seconded Cribb in his battle with Molineaux, is thus summed up in the "Dictionary of National Biography:" "Prizefighter, horse racer, legislator and colliery proprietor." Gully fought his first fight just before Trafalgar. He fought his last and retired from the prize ring in a blaze of triumph seven years before Waterloo. Gully rose to be a rich man and a member of parliament. He won the Derby three times and was the owner of a large and prosperous colliery. He died in 1863, the father of twenty-four children.

Compensation.

"I felt so sorry when I heard your house was burned down, Mrs. Jones," said Mrs. Hawkins.

"It was too bad," said Mrs. Jones, "but it had its bright side. John and I were both afraid to discharge our cook, but now that the house is gone of course we don't have to."—Harper's Weekly.

Why He Desired a Cannon.

It is related that an Indian chief once approached General Crook and wanted to borrow a cannon.

"Do you expect me to loan you a cannon with which to kill my soldiers?" the old veteran inquired.

"No," the chief replied; "kill soldiers with a club. Want cannon to kill cowboys."

Thermometer Down.

Little Willie—Say, pa, doesn't it get colder when the thermometer falls? Pa—Yes, my son. Little Willie—Well, ours has fallen. Pa—How far? Little Willie—About five feet, and when it struck the porch floor it broke.

Her Prize.

Daughter—Did you have to fish much, mamma, before you caught papa? Mother—Fish, my dear—fish! I was bear hunting.—London M. A. P.

During the cold weather when it is necessary to keep on extra fires there is always increasing danger of accidents happening from defective chimneys, defective stovepipes, furnaces, explosion of coal gas, accumulation of dust near heating appliances and numerous other causes.

THE GREATEST IRRIGATION DAM IN THE WORLD

NO. 1—Overlooking top of the Dam across Bow River. NO. 2—Panoramic View of Bow River. NO. 3—Showing the steps and irrigation ditches after the water has been diverted into the Main Canal. NO. 4—A picturesque view of the head gates and dam. NO. 5—Entrance to the Main Canal. NO. 6—View overlooking spillway toward head gates. NO. 7—Bassano Station.

The accompanying views have been specially taken to illustrate the greatest irrigation dam the world has ever seen. This Dam was erected by the C. P. R. across the famous Bow River, in the vicinity of Bassano, at a cost of several million dollars, in order to divert the water for the purpose of irrigating a million acres of land to provide ready made farms for incoming settlers. Recently the head gates were opened and the canals and ditches were quickly filled with water, and this Spring the land will be occupied by settlers for the first time. The low water surface in Bow River is raised approximately forty feet (40) by the Bassano Dam. It is a composite structure, the most notable portion being the concrete spillway, 720 feet in length. Extending easterly from the Dam is the main channel, five miles in length, partly in a deep cut of 70 feet bottom width. The most notable of the canal structure is the Brooks Aqueduct, 10,600 feet in length with capacity of 900 second feet across the broad low depression.

Local People Bereaved.

On Wednesday at Coe Hill, the death occurred of Mr. Alexander Watt, at the age of 82 years. He is survived by his widow and a family of nine children. His death is the first in the family. Mrs. W. Closson, East City, is a daughter, and Mr. W. Watt, of Perry street, is a son.

Mr. D. J. Lundy in Accident.

The many friends of Mr. D. J. Lundy will regret to learn that that gentleman, whilst boarding a street car in Toronto, slipped fracturing his ankle. He was removed to the General Hospital. In all probability he will be brought home to-morrow.

A Concert at Bridgenorth.

The C.O.F. of Bridgenorth, on St. Patrick's Day held a largely attended and successful concert in that village. A feature of the evening was a moving picture show displaying scenes in New Ontario, given by Mr. J. W. Stubbs of this city. Rev. Mr. Ireland moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Stubbs which was carried unanimously.

Reeves at Keene.

Mr. C. J. Darling, Warsaw, reeve of Dummer, Mr. Robt. Shaw, Lakehurst, reeve of Harvey and Mr. Chas Cohen, Kinmount, reeve of Galway, were at the Munro House yesterday. They left at 1.30 for Keene to inspect a bridge across the Indian river. It seems that the present bridge does not allow water to pass freely enough, thus causing local floods.

Good Vaudeville at the Royal.

Mr. Jules Simersen and his niece, Miss Amy Wagner of Melbourne, Australia, who gave a clever singing act at the Royal Theatre last night and repeat it to-day, are guests at the Montgomery House. Miss Wagner has just become convalescent after a serious operation performed by a specialist in New York. Still she pluckily performed to great advantage last night.

Lecture on Passion Play.

Last night St. Paul's Church Sunday School was well filled, the occasion being a most interesting and instructive lecture on the "Passion Play" at Oberamergau, Switzerland, by Rev. David Lang, of Toronto. This gentleman, who is a fluent speaker, personally witnessed a performance of the play, and obtained a large number of photographs, which added greatly to his discourse of last evening.

A Suspicious Character.

A West End grocer on Wednesday night had a member of the police force doing a Sherlock Holmes' stunt. The main evidence seems to be that a suspicious looking man the grocer saw near his store begged a meal at a house nearby. It is suspected that the man under suspicion may be a Montreal murderer or Harry K. Thaw in disguise. It is even suspected that this suspicious character, who gave, innocently, the police a run, may be the man who struck Billy Patterson or robbed the Bank of Monte Carlo.

A Puncture-Proof Tire.

Mr. W. E. Hezzlewood of 718 Crawford street, Toronto, was a guest at the Snowden House yesterday. Mr. Hezzlewood was here in the interests of the Simplex Sales Co., of Toronto who sell the Simplex Puncture-Proof automobile tires. Last summer Mr Hezzlewood travelled over 7000 miles in a car furnished with the above named tires. Not one of them had to be changed although over 300 nails had been driven into the tires, most of the nails being driven purposely for demonstration purposes. Owing to the formation of an Auto-Club in Lindsay Mr. Hezzlewood left for that burg last night.

Shy Local Troubadors.

A few nights ago some local young men serenaded a few of the Normal School girls who live in the North Ward. There were sounds of the lute, harp, psalter, dulcimer and mandolin. The party included a furniture man, a hardware man, a draftsman and a local scribe. It is understood the reporter disturbed the harmony by trying to sing. This latter, however, is not corroborated. The young ladies invited the troubadors in. The reporter, with that shy modesty that characterizes men of his profession, declined and the rest of the serenaders caught his timidness and all refused to enter the house. Can you beat that?

The Electric Steel and Metals Company, Limited

Much importance is attached by the directors of The Electric Steel & Metals Co., Ltd., to the fact that the company has renewed a special license for the use of the Heroult Furnace from the United States Steel Corporation who have the exclusive right for the use of this type of electric furnace in the United States and Canada. This is the most modern and economical of the various electric furnaces in use for the manufacture of liquid steel and ensures an exceptionally low productive cost. An offer of $200,000 cumulative preference stock in the company at par, with a bonus of 50 per cent of the common stock is being made by Rooke, Bickle & Co., 26-28 Adelaide St. West, Toronto, to provide funds for the completion of the plant being erected at Welland. It is calculated to begin manufacturing by May 1st, and earnings for the first year are estimated on a basis of production of 3000 tons out of a 4000 ton capacity plant of steel castings at $360,000, which will be amply sufficient to pay all operating costs, provide for depreciation, pay the preferred dividend and leave a surplus of $81,000. Canada is believed to be on the eve of a marked industrial revival so that the attractiveness of an offering of this kind to far sighted investors, will be at once apparent.

The Motto of Every Canadian Should be "What We Have, We INTEND to Hold"

In so far as it applies to Canada's national wealth, our forests, and more particularly the protection of our fur-bearing animals, which, however, would soon become but evidence of a great past unless husbanded by the foresight of man.

To the foresight of Prince Edward Island's practical men two of the most famous of Canada's fur-bearing animals, the Black and Silver Fox, have been saved to future generations—and as a consequence Canada will unquestionably furnish the world's great demand in future, for this princely fur exceeds its weight in gold!

Concerted action by shrewd Canadians now engaged in this industry in Prince Edward Island will shortly control all the available Black and Silver Foxes wherever found on this continent, a fact generally conceded by persons in authority—consequently this announcement is of great interest to the careful investor and believer in Canada's vast Fur Wealth.

Some Important Facts about the Silver Black Fox Industry

The first island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $4,000.00; in 1911 the price went to $6,000, a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000.00 was considered high but not unusual and at the time of writing (January 28, 1914) live breeders can bring any price from $15,000.00 to $35,000.00, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000.00 a pair.

About $10,000.00 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $3,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the Island contain 899 silver breeding foxes (441 males and 458 females). The total number of silver offspring for 1913 was 703, and the average assessed value was $4,992.52 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $3,349.449. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1,602.

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,628.00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company has TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND silver black foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option all are eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which in 1913 paid from 45 per cent to 900 per cent.

THE INDUSTRY

No industry in recent years has made such wonderful strides as the Black-Silver Fox Industry, and the reason is that it offers larger financial returns than any other business in the Dominion. Moreover, its future possesses unlimited opportunities, as the demand is constantly increasing, while the supply has reached almost a minimum until a few companies undertook the breeding and rearing of these valuable animals. Everyone who is alive to the opportunities of enormous profits without risk will readily appreciate the advantages of investing in the R. J. McNeill Black and Silver Fox Company, Limited. It is a fact that every bona fide fox company organized within the Province of Prince Edward Island has paid dividends of from 45 per cent to 300 per cent and some companies have even done better than this.

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a percentage of the production will be retained, placing the company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211-acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair and Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1912. This company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I. who were employed in the United States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $15,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $300 three years ago, and is now worth $45,000 directly from this source.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's, Limited, received $25,000 from an investment of $500 made in this business three years ago.

The Rosemount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1,000 per cent this year.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $500 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $3,500. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair for a year. The first litter consisted of seven pups. The seven owners have received $836,000 cash dividends since and the pair bought for $3,500 could be sold for $35,000 to-day. Mr. Austin Scales, of St. Eleanors, is a member of this Association.

Zam-Buk Does Cure Piles

Mrs. C. Hanson, wife of the proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, Poplar, B.C., suffered from piles for years. Went to doctor after doctor in vain. Finally went to Spokane and had an operation. Twelve months afterwards she was as bad again. She says "One day I read about Zam-Buk and thought I would try it. The first one or two boxes gave me more ease than anything else I had tried, so I went on with the treatment. In a short time I began to feel altogether different and better and I saw that Zam-Buk was going to cure me. Well, I went on using it and by the time I had used six boxes I was delighted to find myself entirely cured."

If you suffer from this painful ailment, or from eczema, ulcers, or any skin disease, don't waste time. Try Zam-Buk, 50c, all druggists and stores.

TROOPS GO TO ULSTER, BRITISH WARSHIPS ORDERED TO DUBLIN SIR EDWARD CARSON IN DRAMATIC ENTRY OF ULSTER CAPITAL

TWO MORE BODIES FOUND IN THE HOTEL DEBRIS

SIR ED. CARSON IN DRAMATIC ENTRY OF ULSTER CAPITAL

Lieut.-General Richardson Retired and Chief of Staff Out to Met Him

Belfast, Ireland, Mar. 20.—Sir Edward Carson, the leader of the Unionists of Ulster, made a dramatic entry into the capital of the Province today. His purpose in coming here is to consult with the other Ulster Unionist leaders and with the commanders of the Ulster volunteer forces.

The great activity displayed at Unionist headquarters and in the army barracks has caused considerable excitement among the people of Belfast who for days past have been momentarily expecting some decisive move on the part of the Unionist chiefs or on that of the Government.

Is Met By General Richardson.

Before landing this morning Sir Edward Carson received on board the steamer on which he had made passage from England, Sir George Richardson, a retired Lieutenant-General of the British Army, who is commander-in-chief of the Ulster Unionist forces, together with his chief officers.

As the party came down the gang way from the steamer to the pier, they found drawn up as a guard of honor the emergency force of picked men of the Ulster Volunteers who had been summoned to the Unionist headquarters at a late hour last night. A big crowd gave them a noisy welcome cheering wildly and firing salvoes into the air from their revolvers.

Almost on War Footing.

During the night automobiles had been kept busy moving stores and documents from the Unionist headquarters, apparently fearing a raid by the police who had been keeping close watch on every move made by the Unionists

Precautions of a particularly rigorous character have been taken at the Victoria Military Barracks here, where extra guards have been on duty day and night for several days past.

Urgent instructions have been sent to the military authorities in the South of Ireland to despatch reinforcements immediately to the garrison stations in Ulster.

SLAYER OF MARTIN WAITS FOR VERDICT

Ignores Plea of Parents to Plead Guilty and Save Trip to Death Chair.

New York, March 20.—Justice Vernon M. Davis in the Criminal brabch of the Supreme court at noon to-day charged the jury which had heard the case of Harry Schaeffer,19years the case of Harry Schaeffer, 19 years old, who is accused of participating in the murder of W.C. Martin, a Toronto milliner, whose parents tearfully besought him yesterday to plead guilty so as to save himself from the electric chair, maintained his stoicism in court to-day and refused to say anything. One or two cahracter witnesses were put on the stand and then the attorney for Schaeffer spoke in his behalf for fifteen minutes.

MAY CONTROL C.N.R. TO SAVE BOND-HOLDERS

Ottawa, March 20.—It is not yet definitely known what action the Government will take in regard to the C.N.R., but it is altogether likely the Government will act as liquidator of the railway. The Government is resolved not to aid, but may have to control to save bond-holders.

TWO MEN SHOT WIVES, MOTHER-IN-LAW ALSO FELL

One in Washington andOne in Georfia Town Run Amuck With Guns.

Washington, March 20.—Herman Kabansky, a grocer, ran amuck with a revolver to-day, shot three persons, one of whom may die, and was taken, wounded himself, after a pistol duel with a policeman. His wife, mother-in-law and brother-in-law fell before his fire and the wife was seriously wounded. Family troubles were the cause, the police says.

Oak Park, Ga., March 20.—J. A. Eubanks, afarmer, living near this place, early to-day killed his wife and two daughters as they slept, set fire to his home and several other farm buildings, and then fired a bullet through his forehead. Physicians say he cannot live.

Tokio, March 20. An elaborate exposition was opened with great ceremony here to-day in commemoration or the opening of the reign of Emperor Yoshibito, whose coronation is to take place next November. The exhibits displaythe progress of modern Japan.

FOUND TWO MORE CHARRED CORPSES IN FIRE DEBRIS

Body of the Pet Bulldog That Cost Two Men's Lives Was Also Recovered

Toronto, Mar. 20.—Two more bodies which were found this afternoon in the ruins of the Woodbine Hotel are believed to be those of Fred Levison and Max Cohen, of New York. That one body, the last one to be found, is that of Levison, there can be no doubt as a signet ring, bearing the initials of F.L. was found on one of the fingers of the right hand. The question which is now puzzling the authorities is, whose was the first body found. This has been shipped to New York as it was thought to be that of Cohen. Five bodies in all have now been recovered.

The man commenced searching at 7 o'clock this morning but it was not until about 11 o'clock that one of the workmen cried out that he had come across a body. The searchers made a general rush to the place and among the burnt scrap was plainly discernable a bone. Conjecture became rife as to whose it was, but closer inspection showed that it was only a ham bone.

Another cry of a body found gang out at 12 noon and from among the ruins was dragged the charred remains of the Boston bull terrier, Dandy, whom it is asserted Levison and Cohen went back to rescue and thus lost their lives.

The canine's body was pinned underneath a bed, where it had evidently cowered when driven into the room by the flames.

Found Two Corpses.

With the finding of the dog's body The searchers increased their efforts and at 1.30 p.m. a man's body was sighted. It was buried under a pile of rubbish and some time passed before this was cleared away. As it as expected that the only remaining body in the ruins was that of Levison. Mr. Stephen Speers, son of the managing director of the hotel, was called to see if he could identify the body as he was well acquainted with Levison. Mr. Speers, however stated that it was not the body of the man as it was far too large, Mr. Levison being a small man.

About ten minutes later the searchers came across another body, which was about the size of Levison. The corpses were found about a foot from each other and half a dozen feet away from the dog. While the first body was a shapeless mass the second was in better condition and it was possible to trace the outlines of the face. The corpse was partly clothed and a strip of what had been an overcoat was wrapped around it.

WAS FOUND STARVING ON THE STREETS

Toronto, Mar. 20.—Charles Reade, a grand nephew of the famous English mid-Victorian novelist, of the same name, was found, it is said, starving in the streets at Meredith, New Hampshire. He was taken care of by the police and is now on his way to friends in Toronto.

SENTINEL INVITES READERS TO SIGN IMPERIAL PETITION

Referendum on Home Rule Bill is Urged as Only Course

In an editorial on Home Rule, The Sentinel says, in part:

"It is evident that there is no use trying to persuade the Irish Protestants to throw away their arms and accept the compromise proposals offered them; these grim, determined men have counted the price and will not budge an inch. What then, of the measure which the Parliament of the United Kingdom is planning to force on the Irish minority? Is it certain that the electors of the United Kingdom, in full view of the consequences that will follow, heartily concur in the enactment of the Home Rule measure? Have they made it so patent that they wish the Irish Protestants coerced, that Parliament which exists merely to do their bidding, has no option but to lead the country headlong into ruin?

Danger of Civil War.

"These questions, we believe, suggest the only means by which an appalling situation can be averted. The present Home Rule proposals have never been submitted to the people unassociated with the many other important issues. Even if Parliament were dissolved to-day, and a general election were held, the voice of the people might be drowned in a babel of noises. Many electors who approve of the temperance, land, tariff, or insurance policies of the Government, could not bring themselves to vote against the Ministry, although they are against its Irish measure. Similarly, there may be some who would like to defeat the Government on general principles, who yet approve of the Home Rule bill. In view of all of the circumstances, it would be madness to plunge the Empire into civil war without submitting the cause of provocation to a vote of the British electors.

Repugnant Measure.

"The Home Rule bill is such a radical departure from the constitution as it has existed for a century, it is so intensely repugnant to millions of loyal subjects of the King, and it is so certain, if passed at this stage, to provoke a great Imperial tragedy that the historians of the future could have nothing but censure for the Government that refused to consult the people by means of a plebiscite. We admit this is a recourse which the conservative Mother Country has regarded as un-British, but an extraordinary emergency requires extraordinary action.

In conclusion The Sentinel invites readers to sign a petition which is being circulated in Canada, asking for a referendum on the Home Rule bill.

FOR FRECKLED, ROUGH OR SPOTTY COMPLEXIONS

The freckling, discoloring or roughening to which delicate skins are subject after exposure to wind or sun, often appearing in early spring, may be readily gotten rid of. Mercolized wax, spread lightly over the face before retiring and removed in the morning with soap and water, completely peels off the disfigured skin. Get an ounce of the wax at any druggist's There's no more effective way of banishing freckles or other cutaneous defects. Little skin particles come off each day, so the process doesn't even temporarily mar the complexion, and one soon acquires a brand new, spotless, girlishly beautiful face.

Wrinkles caused by weather, worry or illness, are best treated by a simple solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel. Bathing the face in this produces a truly marvelous transformation.

HIS LOVE WAS REJECTED HE TOOK HIS OWN LIFE

Despondent Frenchman Committed Suicide by Taking Carbolic Acid.

Toronto, March 20.—Despondent because his advances had been rejected, Gustave Jigou, a Frenchman, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid. His body was found early this morning at 275½ Queen street east, where he had roomed over night, by the landlord, Mr. Lewis Laundry, a barber. The latter informed the police that Jigou had told him that he intended committing suicide as a young French girl, Madamoiselle Boreaux, 69 Ontario street, where the unfortunate man formerly lived, had rejected his advances. Coroner Hardy decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Montreal, March 20.—The London correspondent of The Gazette, announces the death of Dr. George Robertson retired fleet surgeon of the Royal Navy. His wife is a granddaughter of the late Dr. William Robertson, the first principal of McGill College.

BRITISH WARSHIPS NOW IN BANTRY BAY ORDERED TO DUBLIN

Nationalist Parade Planned for Sunday Likely Abandoned as Two Dangerous

Dublin, March 20.—The fleet of British warships now lying in Bantry Bay, in the southwest of Ireland, is expected to sail to-morrow for Kingstown Harbor, which lies seven miles to the southeast of Dublin.

The proposed parade of Nationalist volunteers announced for Sunday at Londonderry, which was regarded in many quarters as likely to result in a conflict which would set the heather on fire in Ulster, will probably be abandoned.

Mr. John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, to-day telegraphed an urgent appeal to the promoters of the parade to cancel the affair, which was, he said, "calculated to inflict the gravest injury on the Nationalist cause, as it was playing the game of their bitterest enemies and affording them the pretext they were particularly looking for."

The house occupied by Sir Edward Carson and other Unionist leaders is guarded by Ulster volunteers in full service kit prepared to resist any attempt to execute any warrants which might be issued by the authorities.

SOME WORK OVERTIME OTHERS ARE LAID OFF

Toronto, March 20.—Controller Simpson stated to the Board of Control to-day that he had received aletter from the British Imperial Association of Earlscourt protesting that several of the men employed at the Canadian Foundry were compelled to work over time to as late as 10 p.m. on contracts, while others were laid off, with the result that there was not ehough work on hand.

On a motion by Controller Simpson the works Commissioner was asked to report upon the labor conditions of local firms handling city contracts.

REMOVAL HARMED GIRL'S MURDERER

Toronto, Mar. 20.—The condition of Isaac Eastrem, murderer of Annie Garlock, who was yesterday removed to the jail from the General Hospital, is causing the authorities some anxiety. The transfer has evidently had a bad effect upon the wounded man for he passed a restless night.

WILL REORGANIZE THE C. N. R. BEFORE GUARANTEE BY OTTAWA

Searching Investigation of Company's Affairs Called Instant Necessity

Ottawa, Mar. 20.—It is said that one outcome of the present investigation which the Government is carrying on into the affairs of the Canadian Northern Railway will be the complete reorbanization of the C.N.R. system. It is believed that the various subsidiary and interlocking companies will be consolidated into one big company and the whole method of financing of Mackenzie and Mann put on a new basis. It is doubtful if any assistance will be given until such takes place.

There are many members who believe that it will mean the partial elimination at least of the present dominating personal influence in the management. The demands of the Government may be summarized as follows:

1.—Searching investigation of the companies' affairs.

2.—Information as to the proceeds of past bond guarantees.

3.—Examination and appraisal of entire system, meaning probable reorganization.

4.—Agreement for interchange of traffic between the Canadian Northern and Intercolonial.

Liberal papers have settled the question, but there is no change in the situation. Nothing has been settled and will not be settled until the Government gets more information and has completed its inquiry. Before anything is definitely settled there will be another Conservative caucus.

DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE SELLS TREASURES, PAY DEATH DUES

Caxton's Shakespeare Folios and Sixteenth Century Plays Among Collection.

New York, N.Y., March 19.—A part of the famous library of the Duke of Devonshire, consisting of 4,000 volumes, of which twenty-five are from the press of William Carton, also four Shakespeare folios and fifty-seven quartos and a collection of sixteenth and seventeenth century English plays the British museum was anxious to obtain, have been purchased for Henry E. Huntington and will be added to his private library in his residence in this city.

Confirmation of the sale by the Duke of Devonshire was contained in London cable despatches last night, which stated that the money was to be used to meet the heavy burden of death duties.

Got Gutenburg Bible.

Mr. Huntington paid in 1911 at the Hoe sale $50,000 for the famous Gutenburg Bible the chief treasure of the collection of Robert Hoe. This is the record price for a single volume but it is said that there is at least one book in the Devonshire collection which exceeds it considerably in value This is a copy of the first edition of "Hamlet," printed in London in 1603 by Nicholas Ling and John Trundell. is known to exist and that is believed is known to exist and that is in the British Museum. It is believed that this copy of "Hamlet" could be sold by itself for more than $100,000.

A part of the Devonshire collection has already been shipped and is in storage in this city. The remainder of the library will reach this city in a few weeks.

Contemporaries of Shakespeare.

Next in value to the Caxtons and the early editions of Shakespeare is the collection of the play-bills and volumes of plays by predecessors, contemporaries and successors of Shakespeare which was made by John Philip Kemble, who was for nearly forty year, until his retirement in 1817, the most famous figure on the British most famous figure on the English stage.

The sale of the Chatsworth Caxtons removes from Great Britain almost the only remaining series in private hands in the monuments of the first English printer.

Montreal, March 20.—The Harbor Board has received advices from pilots and river men that the ice will move out of the river about April 15th. The ice this year is exceptionally thick

Grape-Nuts

This excellent food, made from whole wheat and barley, supplies the strength-giving, blood-making properties which Nature stores abundantly in these grains and which are often lacking in ordinary foods.

A morning dish of Grape.Nuts is a wonderful fortifier against shivery winds. It is easily digested and its vitalizing elements are quickly transformed into rich, nourishing blood.

Grape-Nuts comes ready to eat from the package.
Add cream or good milk. Delicious!

Afterward.

He was not great in any way,
He did not do a noble deed
Nor lend a helping hand to aid
A luckless creature in his need.

Yet he was missed far more than if
Mankind was better for his ken,
Since, though his way led through the world,
He never bored his fellow men.
—Charlotte Becker in Puck.

Modern Improvements.

Patient — Doctor, I'm having an awful lot of trouble with the gas in my stomach. Doctor — Yes, yes; I know. Those old fashioned fixtures are giving people a lot of unnecessary trouble these days. Just step into the next room, and I'll have my engineer wire you for electric lights.—Puck.

Secret Cameras.

A number of secret cameras have been seen at the Royal Photographic Society's exhibition at Prince's Skating Club, London. One resembles a pair of field-glasses. While the photographer is apparently looking at a distant view he is in reality snapping the unsuspecting person at his side.

Our National Game.

"The raw American citizen," says Ellis Parker Butler in Success Magazine, "who takes his seat at a ball game for the first time feels as he would should he drop into the Metropolitan Opera House and find himself hearing Wagnerian opera from a seat in the midst of seasoned German opera goers. He hears a language that is new to him. The man at his right can tell more about the first baseman's peculiarities than he could tell about the manners of his own wife. The man at his left has trouble remembering the size collar he wears, but he can name every man in every club of both major leagues, tell the age of each, give the complete table of batting records offhand and recite, item by item, every feature of every game played on the home grounds during the last five years. That is why baseball is our national game. We love the game not because we are Chicagoans and the Chicago nine wins nor because we are Pittsburgers and the Pittsburg nine is winning, but because we are educated in baseball and like to see a good game played by the best men in their field that can be found in the world."

Her Father's Job.

The young daughter of a popular Chicago clergyman some time ago manifested a quick wit. Her father had gone on a brief holiday with a business parishioner and associate, and the talk of the children turned on the problem of which father needed the rare rest most sorely

"Well, I think my father works the hardest," said little Miss Business, "and his work keeps him stirred up and anxious most of the time."

"Your father may work the hardest in one way," was little Miss Clergyman's answer, at once thoughtful and diplomatic, "but I think he gets more rest as he goes along. You see, he can let down a little evenings and Sundays, and if he gets cross and nervous nobody says anything. But my daddy has to be better than ever Sundays and evenings, because then everybody's taking notice and the whole lot of us children are around."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Magnetic Needle.

There are two places on the earth's surface where the magnetic needle must point due south. They are not easy places to reach. One is in the arctic regions north of the northern magnetic pole, on the line between that pole and the geographical north pole. The other is in the antarctic regions, south of the southern magnetic pole, on the line between that spot and the geographical south pole. In the first case the point of the needle is attracted to the northern magnetic pole. In the second case the other end of the needle is attracted to the southern magnetic pole.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY PAVILION

PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., 1915.

The Grand Trunk Pavilion, which will occupy a prominent position in the railway plaza at the northeast corner of the grounds of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, will be directly opposite the mammoth machinery palace, adjacent to the passenger ferry slips, and overlooking San Francisco Bay. As will be observed the design is simple in outline and Spanish renaissance in character, making a handsome and ornate structure. The walls will be of stucco, rough finish and tinted a soft cream shade, relieved with an ornamental enriched band carried around the building under the eaves. Shields and fountains have been effectively placed to enhance the decorative effect of the building. The roof will be covered with a rich red Spanish tile. The design for this building was the one accepted by the Exposition Authorities as the standard for all the other buildings which will be erected on the railway plaza. This pavilion will house the exhibits of both the Grand Trunk Railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Messrs. Ross and Macdonald of Montreal, are the Architects.

On Wednesday at Coe Hill, the death occurred of Mr. Alexander Watt, at the age of 82 years. He is survived by his widow and a family of nine children. His death is the first in the family. Mrs. W. Classon, East City, is a daughter, and Mr. W. Watt, of Perry street, is a son.

Shortened His Wait.

"Experience," said Mark Twain once, "makes us wise, but it also makes us hard. Consider the old, experienced man in the busy restaurant. He took a seat, looked round him and, pointing to a well dressed gentleman who had not yet been served, said to the waiter:

"'Waiter, how long has that gentleman been here?'

"'About twelve minutes, sir,' the waiter answered.

"'What's his order?'

"'Porterhouse and French fried, sir, with mince pie and coffee to come.'

"The old man, hardened by experience, slipped a quarter in the waiter's hand.

"'Waiter,' he said, 'I'm in a hurry. Put on another porterhouse and bring me his.'"

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always effects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4830, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Sanol BLOOD SALT

No Indigestion can exist if this remedy is taken according to instructions—and there is no known remedy to take its place.

This Blood Salt is a mixture compounded so as to resemble in essence and effect, the salty parts of the human blood. It is well known that our vitality is normally kept up by means of the natural blood salts.

Hence a lack of the latter will always superinduce a loss of the former. It is also a fact that with each quart of urine we lose about 18 grams of blood salts. Accordingly we must gradually become weak and sick, unless we provide a substitute for these salts in the blood.

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion such as Dyspepsia, Gastric Catarrh, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, etc., and as an aid to digestion, in wasting and nervous disease.

A Quaint Inscription.

An old churchyard near London is famous for the inscriptions on its tombstones. There is one on the memorial of Susannah Barford, died 1652, aged ten years and thirteen weeks. The concluding lines beneath the skull and crossbones on her monument are:

Her stage was short, her thread was quickly spunn,
Drawne out and cutt, got heaven, her worke was done
This world to her was but a tragedy play,
Shee came and saw't, dislik't and passed away.

PENITENTIARY LABOR

Referring to an editorial in The Mail and Empire on more productive employment for penitentiary prisoners, the Louisville Courier-Journal expresse surprise that Canada has not gone in for utilizing prison labor in road-making, a work for which it is especially adapted. It is true that convict labor in Canada has not been extensively employed in road making. The clearing of the land for the new Thunder Bay District provincial prison was done by prisoners, and a little road-making, but the hiring out of convicts to contractors for genera road-building is not yet a Canadian practice. It is questionable if penitentiary prisoners could safely be employed in suc' a way. Their terms are at leas three years, and most of then considerably longer. In Kingston penitentiary—or, in deference to Kingston's feelings, we should say Portsmouth Penitentiary—there are forty-eight "lifers." It would hardly be practicable to give more than a small percentage of penitentiary prisoners the freedom and opportunity for escaping that road making in remote districts would offer. Their work should be more productive of value than it is, but it ought to be kept within bounds. It may be urged that there are many penitentiary prisoners who are first offenders and whose crimes were not really more vicious or indicative of moral turpitude than those of provincial prisoners who get the benefit of humanitarian methods at Guelph. This is a reason for a much better system of classification and differential treatment, but not especially for the use of chaingangs at road construction. The matter of more enlightened methods of penitentiary administration has come prominently before the Minister of Justice who is favorably disposed toward such advance as may be sensible and practical.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA, GAS OR INDIGESTION

Each "Pape's Diapepsin" digests 3000 grains food, ending all Stomach misery in five Minutes.

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach surely within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large fifty-cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapepsin" to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.

THE GOLDEN PELT OF P. E. ISLAND

"Did you ever see such a skin?"
quoth he;
"There's naught in the world so fine—
Such fulness of fur as black as the night,
Such lustre, such size, such shine:
It's life to a one-lunged man like me;
It's London, it's women, it's wine
"For look ye, the skin—it's as smooth as sin
And black as the core of the pit.
"And a prize likewise in a woman's eyes
Is a McNeill's SILVER BLACK FOX SKIN.
Dr. James B. Champion.

On a small island in the north-east corner of Canada live a people who have realized the fondest dreams of Jason, business men, farmers, and fishermen who have put the Midas touch to pelt production.

Here you will find a man whose credit some years ago, was not "good" for a months supply of flour, nor worth an assured million dollars. Clerks working 60 hours for $10 a week, who have made $40,000 and over, inside four years. Three sisters sending home their savings and getting an average return of $15,000 a year. A company owned mostly by working women paying 900 per cent dividend. A common tabby cat, valued at 25c mothering $25,000 worth of Island black foxes—there—I've let the secret out.

This almost fabulous wealth—making truths that are stranger than fiction—is the reward of Prince Edward Island fur farmers for the successful domestication of black silver foxes.

PELTS OF GOLD

The nobility of Europe, the far Eastern potentate, the millionaire of the United States, the cattle king of the Argentine, in fact, wherever there is the ability to purchase an exclusive fur will be found the silver black fox fur of Prince Edward Island.

This wonderful little animal bids fair to revolutionize in part the conditions existing on the Island.

There is bound to be a great rush from all quarters of the earth to locate on the Island for a number of reasons—the desire to get in on the ground floor of the fox business which is bound to make many extraordinary fortunes in the next five years; to enjoy the unusual summer climate that is the wonder of the tourist, and the ability to have a beautiful home on a picturesque island that abounds in rich farming land, bordered by numerous beautiful bays and inlets.

DIVIDENDS 200 TO 900 PER CENT

From the time you arrive on the Island your estimate of the silver black fox business undergoes a change. Due to the scarcity of good breeders, the pedigreed, guaranteed fox brings a price which might be thought exorbitant. You are naturally skeptical when you hear in Montreal that a company formed on the Island to promote the breed of the black fox had declared a dividend of 200 per cent., another 300 per cent., another 400 per cent. and still another 900 per cent. Not counting other companies who averaged 75 per cent. You cannot and will not understand that it is possible that a business of this kind in its infancy, a business handling the pelts of an animal that has a diamond value, has the chance of declaring big dividends for about the first four years of its existence or until the capital of other countries pours in and puts it on a watered basis of from 10 to 20 per cent. It seems possible that with the depletion of the fur-bearing animal the time will come when a silver black fox pelt will be worth $5,000, and that not a very far off possibility. The organizing demons of the "trust" will then arrive and a pair of known breeders will figure as an asset of $100,000. There are those who claim that within five years the present price of pedigreed silver black foxes will be higher—than top price has now been reached. They reckon without any figures. When the business settles to an absolute pelt basis and the island is dotted with fox ranches, the time elapsed will probably be about five years. By that time the price of the high class pelt will naturally be much higher than to-day, and as a consequence the pedigreed high class breeding foxes will bring a higher price. Do not be fooled by the alarmist or the ultra-conservative.

ONLY FUR TO TAKE GOLDEN TIP

Mr. Leo Frank, visited many of the Fox ranches and is himself interested in one of the largest ranches on the Island being an officer in the R. J. McNEILL BLACK AND SILVER FOX COMPANY, LIMITED, he also talked with those who have the good of the country at heart. One of these gentlemen—The Premier of the Island—Mr. J. A. Mathieson, after a resourceful study of the industry declared it was hard to see where the possibility of failure came in. Continuing, he said "The pelt of the silver black fox of Prince Edward island has peculiar qualities that make it unique and more desirable. It is the only fur known that will take a golden tip, and its fine texture and glossy coat is not found on any but Island bred silver black foxes. The fur recommends itself to the fastidious people of all countries.

REPORT OF MR. J. E. B. McCREADY

Perhaps one of the best reports on fur farming, its profits and possibilities, is the following article written by Mr. J. E. B. McCready—the Government publicity agent:—

A single pelt of a silver fox from a ranch in Prince Edward Island, Canada, was sold by C. Lampson & Co. of London, in April, 1910, for £540 ($2,700). Other pelts from the same ranch were sold to the same purchasers at the same date for £530 and £500 each, respectively. Twenty-seven skins, including the above, brought £7,601 ($38,005) an average price of $1,400 each.

Since 1910 practically no pelts have been sold from the Prince Edward Island ranches, excepting of foxes that died from accident or disease, or such as had grown too old to breed. The reason for this is obvious. The profits from fox breeding had proved to be so exceptionally large that many desired to enter the business and the demand for breeding foxes absorbed all that were produced. Breeding foxes were sold in 1910 for something more than their pelt value, and today a good pair of breeders are selling as high as $35,000 a pair.

A booklet on the fox industry will be given free to the readers of the Peterborough Times by addressing Dr. Leo Frank, 2nd Vice-President of the R. J. McNeill Black and Silver Fox Company, Limited, 517 New Birks Bldg., Montreal.

Are You One Of The Unfortunates

WITH BACKACHE, HEADACHE AND THAT TIRED FEELING.

If So Listen to the Story of George F. Stander, and Use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Handsworth, Sask., Mar. 20.—(Special).—If you are one of those unfortunates who suffer from sore back, headache and that tired, listless feeling that makes work a hardship and life not worth living, the story of Geo. F. Stander, a well known young man of this place, will interest you.

"For nearly ten years," Mr. Stander says, "I suffered from sore back and headache. I had a bad taste in my mouth in the morning, and I was always tired. I finally decided that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble, and decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I got half a dozen boxes, and before I had finished taking them I was completely cured.

"I advise anyone suffering as I did to use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Healthy Kidneys strain all impurities, all the seeds of disease, out of the blood. Weak Kidneys leave these impurities in the blood, and the result is nervousness, tired feeling and pains and aches that often develop into Diabetes and Bright's Disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills make weak Kidneys strong and healthy.

Dangerous Throat Troubles Prevented by Nerviline

IT ENDS MISERY OF COLDS QUICKLY.

Don't wait till night.

Get after your cold now,—this very minute, before it grows dangerous you should apply old-time "Nerviline."

Rub your chest and throat, rub them thoroughly with Nerviline. Relief will be immediate.

Nerviline will save you from lying awake to-night coughing, choking and suffering from congestion in the chest and acute pain in the throat.

Nerviline will break up that dull neuralgic headache—will kill the cold and chill at its very beginning—will save you from perhaps a serious illness.

To take away hoarseness, to break up a grippy cold, to cure a sore throat or bad cold in the chest, you can use nothing so speedy and effective as Nerviline. For forty years it has been the most largely used family remedy in the Dominion. Time has proved its merit, so can you by keeping handy on the shelf the large 50c family size bottle; small trial size 25c., sold by any dealer anywhere.

Wayside Fruit Trees.

Fruit trees are planted by the roadside in several parts of Germany, but passersby are not permitted to help themselves to the fruit. The trees are closely watched, and at the end of the season the fruit is sold. At intervals along the road signs are placed bearing the statement, "A Good Man Injures No Tree." But little fruit is stolen, it is said.

Don't Say "Rabbits."

To mention the word "rabbits" on board a Cornish fishing-smack arouses the ire of the crew. Should the hated word be uttered as the boat is leaving the harbor on a pilchard expedition, the speaker would stand a fair chance of being hurled overboard. The mere mention of "rabbits" destroys all chances of a "catch."

Duty Paid.

Not All Sixes Will Do This

The average man thinks a Six is merely two cylinders added to a Four. The engineer knows better. Many baffling problems were solved by Howard E. Coffin and the Hudson engineers before the HUDSON Six was perfected. Not all designers of Sixes have been so successful. Not all Sixes will develop the marvellous smoothness, the amazing flexibility, the vibrationless motion that one enjoys in the HUDSON Six. It's worth your while to see the HUDSON before you decide.

Until you drive a HUDSON Six you cannot realize its great advantage. Its smoothness and flexibility are an insurance as well as a delight. HUDSON Sixes are preferred because of high quality combined with moderate price. The Six-54 has four forward speeds, 135-inch wheel-base, motor 4⅛ x 5¼, developing 55 horse-power. Made in Phaeton at $2950 and Sedan at $4050. The Six-40 has 123-inch wheel-base, motor 3½ x 5, developing 47 horse-power, gives 13 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and is, we think, the easiest riding car on the market. The Six-40 in Phaeton and Roadster at $2300, and in Cabriolet at $2575. All cars, of course, are electrically started and lighted, left side drive, center control, gasoline tank in cowled dash. Hints on Beauty

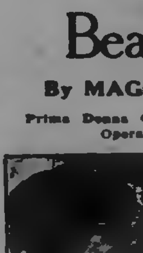
Cheer and Fresh Air Beauty Aids

By MAGGIE TEYTE

Prima Donna Chicago-Philadelphia Opera Company



MAGGIE TEYTE

"FRESH air and happiness," was the answer I received from a woman who is as healthy as she is attractive, when I asked her for a beauty secret.

"We do such a lot of talking about the breath of life' and seem to have such a vague idea of what it really is," she continued. "Fresh air is the very essence of life. Yet we go on shutting it out of our lungs and taking drugs for what ails us. We really starve for air. If air were costly, I think we would have a better appreciation of it. We are all prone to undervalue what is free. No one may dare hope to be beautiful or well who has not the knowledge of breathing.

"And no one can be really lovely without a happy heart. Happiness is the supreme beautifier. It is a glorifier."

I add a hearty indorsement to this woman's opinions.

Until we learn to breathe we are wasting time trying to achieve beauty. This is most particularly the time of the year when we need to clear our lungs of all impurities and fill them with fresh fuel.

Science has figured that each and every adult needs 3000 cubic feet of air each hour. Less than that means breathing over stale air and storing the system full of poisons. It means making the nicest k'nd of a nesting place for germs. It means dulling our minds and weakening our bodies and making us generally inefficient.

It means having bleary eyes and sallow skins and pimples and red noses and colds. There is no beauty lotion made strong enough to undo the damage worked by breathing bad air.

There are many rules for what is known as "rhythmic breathing." Of them, I think the best is to inhale during the time of seven heart-beats and hold the breath during four. Then exhale during seven and rest, relaxed, during four. If you will try this a few times, you will catch the fascination of it. It will give you the sensation of new life and energy and set your being in harmony. Don't think to snort in a whiff of air and use muscular contraction to pouch out the chest means deep breathing. Real breathing means gradually filling every cell of the lungs and getting the effect of the breath way down in the waist muscles

As for happiness, it is a beautifier because it sets the body and mind in tune. It stops worry. It aids digestion. It changes the expression of the face. Perhaps it is not possible for all of us to be perfectly happy, for the gift of perfect happiness is not given to many, but I do contend we can all make the effort to be cheerful.

Advice ✕ ✕ to Girls

By Annie Laurie

My Dear Miss Laurie:

I think you are the one who can help me most in this affair.

I am deeply in love with a man several years my senior and he says age does not matter. I feel that way about it, too. I believe he thinks a lot of me, for he tells me so himself, and I just think the world of him.

Does it do any harm if I show him my regard? I am afraid if I don't show it he will think I want to be clear of him, and he might leave me.

Please do advise me how to act.

Sincerely yours, BROWN EYES.

P. S.—He is 25 years old and I am 18.

WHY, Brown Eyes, you gave me quite a shock. I was just going to write you a deep, deadly serious letter all about December and May and how terrible it was for them to try to marry each other, when I happened to see your little whispery postscript.

"He is 25 years old and I am 18."

What fearful difference do you think eight years makes between you, in the name of common sense? Most men are younger at 25 anyway than a girl is at 18. Men are never much more than grown-up boys—sh-h, that's a secret and a very valuable one; don't ever let a man know that you know it. And 25, why, I thought by the way you spoke he was 70 at the very least.

Don't you know that most men don't know their own minds at all until they're at least 25, and haven't you heard that in most highly civilized communities the girls do not marry these days until they are somewhere between 25 and 30? What on earth would you want with a boy of 18, tell me, pretty maiden?

Why shouldn't you show him you like him, if you do like him; if he is in love with you why shouldn't you be with him—if he intends to marry you?

But I wouldn't do too much present-giving if I were you; that's the man's part of the courtship. Let him do the giving and you do the thanking. Don't be worried—he won't "leave" so easily as you fear. Love is just about the strongest chain there is, and where it binds there is little that can be loosened.

"IN THE SPRING"— :: :: :: By Michelson

OH, YES! "In the spring the young man's fancy"—as if it didn't ALWAYS "turn to thoughts of love"! The point is that HER fancy is not free from the same call when the spring comes—and HE KNOWS IT! So it happens that a beautiful harmony is established—Us and Spring, with birds and all the first signs of the coming summer gayly entering the partnership. She has her little coquetries quite as usual. They don't go by season. But all the same something—something very sweet—tells her that Spring is a wonderful time, whether it is "backward" or "forward," because it is the time of PROPHECY.

Leona Dalrymple's Own Recipes for Menu Features

Miss Leona Dalrymple, whose striking series of real life character studies, "Peter's Adventures in Matrimony," is now appearing on this page, has won more than a local reputation as a cook. In fact, she spends almost as much time in her kitchen as she does in her library. The following recipes, which she has selected from the long list of her culinary successes, are certain to interest the housewife who looks for "something better—and different."

CREAM OF CHESTNUT SOUP.

Shell and blanch a pint of chestnuts, cover them with a quart of boiling water; add some chopped celery, a slice of onion, a bay leaf and half a teaspoonful paprika. Boil gently for 30 minutes, then press through a colander and add a pint each of chicken stock and milk. Bring slowly to the boiling point and stir into it two rounding tablespoonfuls of butter and one of flour rubbed to a smooth paste, then stir until the mixture is very smooth. Add a level teaspoonful of salt, strain through a fine sieve and serve with croutons.

DATE PUDDING.

Stone and chop very fine one pound of dates, also mince a quarter of a pound of suet, removing all bits of skin. Mix the dates and suet together with just enough water to moisten. Add a quarter of a pound of brown sugar and some grated nutmeg. Sprinkle with a quarter of a pound of flour, thoroughly kneaded; press into a buttered basin, tie down with a floured cloth and boil for four hours. Enough for five or six people.

SILLIBUB.

One pint thick, rich cream, sweetened to taste, after the sugar is melted add one-half pint of good wine; pour into a large platter and beat with a wire spoon egg-beater—our ancestors, be it said, used a bunch of clean broom straws or peach tree twigs. As fast as the foam rises skim it off into large glasses; continue beating and skimming until the mixture is quite used up. Serve in goblets.

BOUILLABAISSE.

There are recipes so famous that they are sometimes celebrated in verse. Such is "Bouillabaisse," which Thackeray has made immortal. Bouillabaisse may be made in the casserole. To make it, it is best to use three or four different kinds of fish, selecting enough to make one pound of each after it has been boned and cut into small pieces. Fry in olive oil about a dozen shrimps and the meat from a boiled lobster until lightly browned, then mix them with the fish. Add two tomatoes or a cupful of canned tomato, one lemon cut in slices, one diced onion, one carrot cut very fine, a bay leaf, several sprigs of parsley, and about a third of a saltspoonful of saffron. Mix all these ingredients in the casserole, cook for about 10 minutes, then stir the mixture thoroughly and add a coffee cupful of water or soup stock. Cook 15 or 20 minutes longer, season to taste, and, just before serving, thrust several pieces of toasted bread into the casserole, being careful to cover them so well that they will absorb the juices of the stew.

STRAWBERRY VINEGAR.

Over four quarts of berries pour three quarts of white wine vinegar. Cover and allow to stand for three days, mash the berries, strain, and add one pound of loaf sugar. Then boil, skim and bottle for use. This is sometimes mixed with sweet grape wine. It is delicious, and a drink very nourishing for invalids.

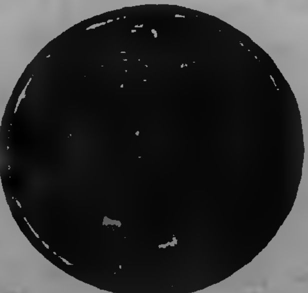
PEANUT CREAM SOUP.

Remove the skins from one quart of roasted peanuts and chop fine; add one quart of milk and water, equal parts of each, and one-half teaspoonful of salt, and simmer until the nuts can be rubbed through a sieve. Return the nut mixture to the fire, add a quart of thin cream, a tablespoonful of butter and flour rubbed together, a palatable seasoning of pepper and salt and simmer for half an hour. Serve with tiny toasted wafers.

Earning the Right to Live and Be Happy

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service



Winifred Black

THE Viscount Charles Enguerrand de Marigny snatched a purse from a woman in Paris the other day—so that he could be sent to jail and get something to eat and a place to sleep.

The viscount is a man of brains, position and courage; he was a real hero in the last Morocco campaign—he rode straight into the face of a mob of howling fanatics and laughed when he did it; a dozen times he distinguished himself for gallantry upon the field of battle. And yet he couldn't earn enough money to buy himself a dinner.

Poor viscount. I'd rather be named John Smith and never go beyond the back of the grocery counter than to be cursed with a heritage like his.

I suppose sometime his mother smiled and told her friends proudly what a "dreamer" her little boy was. And all the friends wished that their bullet-headed little boys at home were dreamers, too.

And now the bullet-headed little boys are grown up, I presume; and some of them sell wine for a living, and some command broad acres, and some sit in cages and cash checks for other people. But, whatever they do, they have a right to live and be happy, because they know how to earn that right.

What One Dreamer Does.

Oh, these dreamers we hear so much about—what is it the verse says, "The dreamers live forever while the workers die in a day."

I'd rather live one day as the worker lives, making by right honestly to live in an honest world, than to live forever with my head in the clouds and somebody walking the floor somewhere trying to think of some plan to get a little common sense into my dreaming head.

I knew a boy once who used to sit and watch the clouds float over the sky. He was very little and very beautiful, and he had large dreamy blue eyes, and we used to watch him lying flat on his straight little back watching the white clouds—sailing—sailing.

He will be a great poet, we said—see what a dreamer he is; and when his plain little sister tried to make him get up and play horse with her we told her to run away and not bother him.

I saw the "dreamer" who used to watch the clouds the other day.

He was sitting in front of a splendid fire, watching the flames turn from yellow to red and from red to rose and from rose to magenta. Dreaming was he, and his eyes were as beautiful as ever—but there was something selfish and cruel and very weak about his mouth.

His plain sister was out in the kitchen getting dinner for the dreamer, and I'm very much afraid that she had paid for the food and for the roof over their heads and for the very wood that made such a beautiful fire for the dreamer to sit by and do his dreaming.

If He Knew Something Useful.

He married early, did the Dreamer. He was in love with three different girls when he married and had a dreadful time deciding which one to take.

One of the girls that he didn't marry almost died of humiliation and chagrin when she found that her dreams were not the same as his.

I saw her the other day, a rosy, happy wife and mother. She ought to thank Heaven every day of her life upon her knees for her escape from "The Dreamer." And from the look in her eyes, when some one happened to mention his name, I think she does.

The girl the dreamer married? Oh, she's at work somewhere earning a living for her little boy.

The Dreamer is very fond of the little boy. He writes beautiful verses about him, but he never sells the verses. He feels that that would be commercializing his dreams and that would grate terribly upon his sensibilities.

The Dreamer's wife says she's going to educate her little boy to be a plumber. Plumbers have no time for dreams.

I'm afraid I think she's rather a sensible woman.

I wonder if the Viscount Charles Enguerrand de Marigny doesn't wish that his mother had had him taught how to make wash tubs, or the best way to clean a kitchen sink.

If she had, he wouldn't have been obliged to snatch a woman's purse and get sent to jail in order to find a decent meal and a place to sleep.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

If Common Sounds Annoy, Your Hearing Is Imperfect

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

Copyright, 1914, by L. K. Hirshberg

DR HIRSHBERG

THERE is no doubt that everybody is intensely concerned with his hearing. If a crust of wax, a particle of dirt, a bug bacteria, or a "noise" interferes with your sense of hearing, Old Nick is in a fair way to seize you for your evil thoughts.

The perceptions and impressions received through your ear differ from those received by your neighbor. No two people hear exactly alike, even when a clock tolls the hour.

Sweet is every sound, saith the poet. Sweeter the voice, but every sound is sweet, myriads of rivulets hurrying through the lawn, the moan of doves in immemorial elms and murmuring of innumerable bees.

Perhaps there is nothing that appeals and saddens more by night, as well as day, than an enormous silence without a sound to break the lifeless splendor of the whole.

Mirth and music depend for the cheer they give upon a clean auditory sense and perfect hearing. Even Orpheus, whose golden touch could soften steel and stones, make tigers tame and make huge leviathans forsake unsounded deeps to dance on sands, needs make no sweet music for the deaf.

In some persons the sense of hearing differs in one ear from that in the other. Dr. Heidmann of Vienna treated two musicians, one of whom always perceives in the affected ear, especially during damp weather, tones an octave lower than in the other ear.

Other musicians under like conditions perceive tones an octave higher. Dr. Cheyne reported a patient whose veins, when he heard drums beaten, would spurt blood with great force.

Other physicians report sufferers with deafness who are relieved only when base drums are banged.

There are instances of strange auditory idiosyncrasies, which resemble those of sight. Just as the sight of a mouse, a black cat, or a white-robed figure at night, sends some women into hysterical convulsions, so the rustling of oiled silk, the sharpening of pencils, squeaky wheels, shrieking infants and grate-like noises affect many.

A gentleman at the court of the German Emperor has nose-bleeding whenever he hears a cat mew. La Mothe Le Vayer, according to Dr. George M. Gould, could not endure the bland sounds of music, although he experienced pleasurable sensations when he heard a clap of thunder or some of the passages in Tristan and Isolde.

When a certain chaplain in England hears the 53d chapter of Isaiah, as well as verses in the Kings, he always has a sensation of icy frigidity at the top of his head.

It is no unusual thing to find certain people aroused to violent behavior at the sound of a tenor voice or a cornet. To these the filing of a saw or the scraping of a soap-stone slate pencil are harmonious.

Dr. Pope could not imagine music producing pleasure, and Dr. Fischer, as well as Mr. William Sweeny, tells of frenzy in elephants as the result of musical provocation. Church organs are particularly obnoxious to certain animals.

Any of these unusual conditions if not dependent upon an association of sounds with personal experience, means some trouble in the auditory ravine.

S. W., Indianapolis—Several doctors say I have chronic indigestion. Am very gassy and nervous.

Suppose you eat your heaviest meal at breakfast. Go lightly at lunch and eat very little—absolutely no meats—at supper. Never eat at night. Instead of tea and coffee or liquors, drink milk.

Exercise out-doors several hours a day three times a week. Take tablets of lactic acid bacilli three a day.

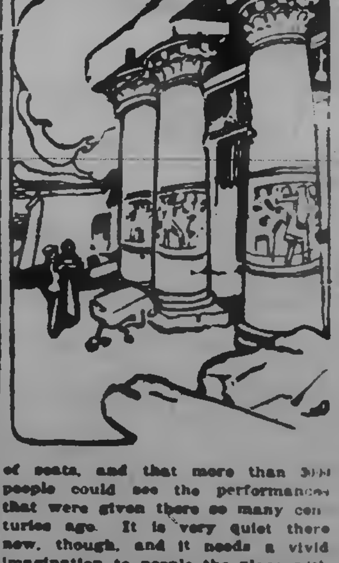
Three Minute Journeys

A City Hewn Out of Rock

By Jonathan MacFarland



YES, I admit it; this is a wonderful age of engineering. Our tall buildings are remarkable achievements, and they have a certain artistic value that is supplied by nothing else in the world. But the most wonderful buildings I ever saw were in Asia Minor, in the ancient city of Petra.

Now Petra is not what you would call a tourist town, for although it is hardly more than 100 miles in a straight line south of Jerusalem, the trip from the Holy city, there and back, takes at least 13 days. The railroad doesn't go all the way, by any means, and a good part of the journey has to be made on horseback.

If you had to go to Petra on foot it would be worth while, for you find there a collection of great temples, palaces and theatres, as well as houses that were used as dwellings, carved out of solid rock. Two thousand years ago, when this city began, the builders used chisels instead of bricks and mortar, and what remains of their work shows how skilled they were in the use of their tools. The very magnitude of the work strikes awe into the beholder, but it is very beautiful as well, which the pyramids and some others of the seven wonders of the world are not.

Think of a facade like that of an old Roman temple, 102 feet high, carved in perfect proportion in the face of a rock cliff. And to add to the amazement that is caused by this building, known as Pharaoh's treasury, it is in an almost perfect state of preservation. There is one room in the treasury that is 40 feet square.

Not far from this great building is the amphitheatre, carved in a semicircle out of solid rock. I simply can't give you any idea of the place, except to say that there are 33 tiers of seats, and that more than 3000 people could see the performances that were given there so many centuries ago. It is very quiet there now, though, and it needs a vivid imagination to people the place with an applauding audience.

I don't know what the performances were, but I suppose that when the Romans ruled there they were entertainments made up of combats and pageants such as the Cæsars gave their seal of approval.

There are excavations, houses and tombs without number, and some of the sepulchres are splendid examples of architecture. The city must have been the most wonderful place in the world when it was in its heyday. Even now, depopulated, marred by time and the elements, and overgrown with weeds, it stirs and fascinates as nothing else I have ever seen.

And I doubt if we'll ever carve a 50-story building out of a precip

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months resident upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties.—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

Fresh Discovery of an Old Truth.

Helen's enjoyment of the party given in honor of her ninth birthday was nearly spoiled by the ill tempered outbreaks of a very pretty and well dressed little girl who was among her guests. A peacemaker appeared, however, in a plain and rather shabby child, who proved herself a veritable little angel of tact and good will.

After her playmates were gone Helen talked it all over very seriously with her mother. She summed it up in this piece of philosophical wisdom:

"Well, I've found out one thing, mamma. Folks don't always match their outsides."—Woman's Home Companion.

SECTION 2, SEVERN DIVISION

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Section No. 2, Severn Division, Trent Canal," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon on Monday, March 23rd, 1914.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on or after this date at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa; at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont.; and at the office of the District Engineer, Public Works Department, Midland, Ont.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered bank of Canada for the sum of $36,000.00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railway and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderers will be held as securitв, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

TWO FROCKS THAT MAY NOW BE WORN UNDER A HEAVY COAT AND LATER FOR THE STREET

As soon as the holidays are over we begin to look forward to spring and new clothes. Everywhere we see charming little frocks of serge, taffetas or of the new novelty fabrics, many of them trimmed with a touch of bright contrasting silk or material, others absolutely plain except for a cluster of buttons or frills at the throat and wrists.

The frocks illustrated are suitable to be worn now under heavy coats and later will serve as smart little street costumes after the wraps have been discarded.

No 8074 is of taffetas in dark blue, the undersleeve and vest is of blue chiffon the frills of cream net.

These taffetas run an average of 36 inches in width and range in price from $1.25 to $3 a yard.

This frock may be copied in size 36 with 5½ yards of 36 inch material and ¾ of a yard of allover lace or net for frills and undersleeves.

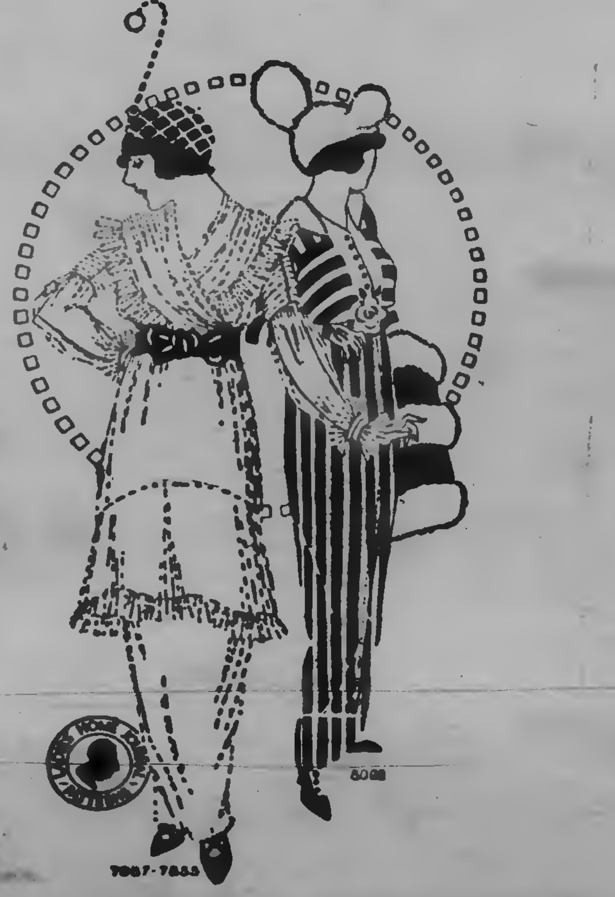
No. 7827 is a dark blue serge dress for a young girl; it is in bolero effect, has a tuck over each shoulder, diagonal closing and a four piece skirt.

Serge ranges from 50 cents to $1.50 a yard.

To copy this design for a girl of 16 it requires 4½ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8074—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 7827—sizes 14 to 18.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.	No. .... Size .... Name .... Address ....



THE COLLAR AN EMPHASIZED FEATURE OF NEW SUITS AND FROCKS

The collar is especially important to the simple little untrimmed frock which has been so popular for the past season and promises to be so much favored for spring.

Draped and fichu effects vie for favor with the small round flat collar and the Medici design. The Japanese collar, which extends away from the neck in back and in some extreme cases flares considerably on the shoulders, seems to be approved also.

The separate vests and collars of white organdy are exceedingly smart and becoming. When worn with a dark serge or silk frock a wonderfully fresh crisp strong note is imparted to the design by the sharp contrast.

No 7967-7855 is fashioned of sheer white cotton crepe. The fichu and the shaped trimming band on the skirt are outlined with a frill of net. The close fitting drop shoulder and the fulled undersleeve which fits into a tight frilled cuff is attractive; the bowed girdle of black velvet gives an unusually smart contrast.

These crepes and novelty cottons range in width from 27 to 45 inches and in price from 45 cents to $2 a yard.

To copy this design in size 36 it requires 3⅝ yards of 36 inch material for the bodice (7967) and 3½ yards of 36 inch material for the skirt.

The material used in No. 8092 is a decided novelty and very modish. It is a crepe with a velvet stripe. The vest is of white cotton duvetyn and the collar is of fur.

This design requires for size 36 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 7967—sizes 34 to 42.
No 7855—sizes 22 to 30.
No 8092—sizes 34 to 46.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.	No. .... Size .... Name .... Address ....

Welsh Stone for Halifax

Some time ago Mr. Lloyd George was asked to obtain a slab of Welsh stone to be built into a memorial to be erected at Halifax, Nova Scotia, to commemorate the opening of the first Parliament Assembly in British America. The Chancellor of the Exchequer laid the matter before Mr. Haydn Jones, M.P., who agreed to supply a slab from his quarry. The slab was completed and engraved with the red dragon of Wales.

ERRATIC SCIENCE.

Some Wonderful Answers by Schoolroom Small Boys.

"Mushrooms always grow in damp places, and so they look like umbrellas," wrote a small boy in the science examination. Other examples of the "howler" are compiled by a writer in the Scientific American:

"Air is the most necessary of all the elements. If there were no such thing as air I would not be writing this essay now, also there would be no pneumatic tires, which would be a sad loss.

"Electricity and lightning are of the same nature, the only difference being that lightning is often several miles in length, while electricity is only a few inches.

"Air usually has no weight, but found to weigh about fifteen pounds to a square inch.

"The axis of the earth is an imaginary line on which the earth is supposed to take its daily routine.

"The difference between air and water is that air can be made wetter, but water cannot.

"Gravity is chiefly noticeable in the autumn when the apples are falling from the trees.

"Things which are equal to each other are equal to anything else.

"A parallel straight line is one which if produced to meet itself does not meet.

"The blood is putrefied in the lungs by inspired air."

Salt and Tobacco.

Many smokers have adulterated their own tobacco. Parr sprinkled his pipeful with salt to make it last longer. And it does. Parr, one of the most leisurely of smokers and longest of livers, made his salted pipe last an hour. There is a faint crackling as the salt burns, but no difference in the taste. And it was Lamb who, disdaining adulterants, sat opposite and smoked in furious clouds. When Parr asked gently how he had attained this fierce dexterity the reply was characteristically Lamb's. "By-by t-toiling after it, sir."—London Standard.

Salt and Health.

Few persons understand the therapeutic value of salt. A little salt in one's drinking water is "good medicine." Salt applications to the skin are wonderfully soothing and wholesome. There is nothing better as a wash for the throat and the nasal passages to prevent or to cure catarrhal troubles than a solution of common salt in plain water—the cheapest remedy one can find. Many persons give their eyes a daily bath of cold salt water with satisfactory results.

BURNING THE DEVIL'S BOOKS

Text: "And many that believed came, and confessed and showed their deeds. Many of them also which used curious arts brought their books together and burned them before all men; and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thousand pieces of silver."—Acts XIX: 18-19.

• • •

Let the smoke ascend, for these books ought to be destroyed. The phrenological mountain of destructibility is not out of place here. There are some things which the fire engines ought to let burn. Yes, onlookers ought to pray that the wind fan the flames when the devil's books are being burned.

It all happened in old Ephesus, the ruins of which you may see to-day as the unsightly tombstone of a civilization which deserved to perish. But the very ruins of that ancient city show the enterprise of its people. It had a great gymnasium, a grand theatre and stadium six hundred and eighty-seven feet long. But the temple, Diana, was its chief glory. One of the seven ancient wonders of the world, it was the proud boast of the Ephesians that the sun shone on nothing more glorious. Alexander the Great offered all the gold he had taken from rich King Croesus for its rebuilding, if he could put his name upon it. But the offer was refused, and the temple was rebuilt at a tremendous cost, raised by popular subscription. One hundred and twenty-seven rulers each sent the price of a stately column sixty feet high.

One would think that such grand architecture should have good effect on a city's morals. On the contrary, that magnificent pile was the ruin of Ephesus. Great buildings, to be effective, must stand for truths, not lies. This temple stood for a great big lie! It was the home of a little image, rude and unshapely, which, according to the crafty priests, fell down from Jupiter. Is it surprising that a temple built around a lie should breed all sorts of deceptions and frauds?

Some sins travel in fraternal groups. They are constellations around a central star. They are never found alone, but show their consanguinity by keeping together. Does gambling consume a neighborhood? The drinking resort and the dive will appear at once. Here in Ephesus, the central lie was soon surrounded by clever fakirs. Some established little idol factories and shops. Everybody was exhorted to take home a little fac-simile Diana to keep the ghosts away. Others told fortunes by the stars or by the palms of fools' hands. Another class of plunderers sold charms to bring back lovers, cure diseases or win athletic contests. Of course, where such opportunities for deception existed, there soon arose an army of exorcists and sorcerers, priests and priestesses, developing a population of cunning grafters who, conscious of their common deceptions, soon lost all shame and sank into the deepest mire of degradation.

Into this reeking community, Paul entered. He came with a hero's spirit. He recognized it as a great door opened to him. The adversaries but added to the zest of the conflict. Great miracles fitted to the occasion were wrought by him in the name of his Lord. The lying conjurors endeavored to imitate the stranger, and adjured an evil spirit, "by Jesus whom Paul preacheth," to come out of a man. The evil spirit tore them and overcame them till they fled, naked and bleeding. Fear fell upon all the workers of iniquity. The colony of evil-doers under the temple's shadow was stirred mightily. There was a tremendous religious awakening. They came and confessed and showed their deeds. They brought their bad books, which taught the Black Arts of Satan, and put them on a pile, in view of all men, and set fire to a library of wickedness, worth $10,000 to them. In the mighty revival which followed, was established the Ephesian Church notable in the apostolic era.

True conversion always means the prompt forsaking of wrong. Men must cut off their connection with sin. The mission of the pulpit must be to point out the sins oft the age. Mr. Gladstone said that the criticism he had to make against the clergy of his day was that they did not denounce wrong as fearlessly as they should. There were too few among them like the preacher whom Lord Melbourne heard and criticised by saying: "Why, this clergyman's ideas are monstrous; he even had the temerity to say that religion should touch a man's private life."

In view of all that Divine truth tells us, how God must despise a religious profession that does not leave the selfish ways of sin! Over and over we are exhorted to rend our hearts and not our garments. Mr. Moody used to tell of two drunken men who at 8 o'clock in the morning set out in a row boat to cross a bay to their home. They made feeble attempts at rowing till daybreak, when, now being sobered off they discovered that they were still at the wharf from which they had started, for they had forgotten to unmoot the rope! There is but one recipe for a good life: "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him, and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon."

These men made frank confession. "They came and confessed and showed their deeds." The confession was public because the sins had been public. Now I think we ought to clear away some misconceptions about the class of sins that demand public disavowal. We have too often tried to make every kind of repentance fit the case of notorious sinners. For example, some evangelists have insisted on having women publicly asking prayer for husbands addicted to drink, insinuating that some good would come from dragging all the private burdens of a poor wife to the proud pillory of the mourners' bench. A protest against the exaction of such humiliating acts of mortifications is over-due. A man I knew used to rise in public meetings and declare that he was converted in the county penitentiary, cell No. 246, where he was locked up for thirty days by some rather disgraceful offense. The first time I heard that testimony I was rather pleased with it, but the hundred and first time he told us the circumstance in the presence of his good little wife and his two children, I awoke, rather belated, I confess, to the fact that the man was uselessly subjecting his family to continual mortification, and I lost no further time in convincing him that while his testimony might be appropriate in a down-town midnight meeting for men, it was useless and harmful in his present surroundings.

But a certain type of sin demands public renunciation. Here was an idol maker, whose trade had been vicious, or a soothsayer who habitually deceived. The situation demanded that they openly renounce their old life. Some lines of business must be given up when a man attempts to begin a new life. He who lives by his cupidity and others' ignorance, he who professionally encourages habits which if followed universally would change the world into hell, he who lives by the weakness of men, causing women to fall into sin and children to go in rags, cannot come into the church by a back door and easily assume the outward duties of the Christian life without a word of repentance. Neither can a man who has flaunted his unbelief omit making amends before the people whose religious faith he has tried to shatter. Down at Binghampton, N.Y., lived an old man whose retired years were spent in attacking every form of revealed religion. He discussed creeds, churches and preachers, whenever he could get a few hearers. He would sit in a store and ridicule the Scriptures in the presence of children. He would circulate infidel books among young men. But when death tapped him on the shoulder and bade him get ready for the long journey the old man sent for the pastor of a neighboring church and said: "Sir, I have done wrong, I am just discovering how sorely people wanted a little faith in the future life when they come to die, and I have spent twenty years in robbing people of their faith. I want to let all the people to whom I have spoken know that I renounce my former belief. I want you to officiate at my grave. Have them place all my infidel literature on the grave, and put fire to the pile then and there, while you express to the people my bitter regret." It was done. Now that was but fair, for while people have a right to their honest doubts, they have no right to cast their doubts at other folks and shatter their faith, unless they have something better to substitute for that faith.

Sins that draw public attention should be openly abandoned. Public men whose acts set powerful examples for the masses to follow should lose no time in recalling harsh words or deploring improper acts. A few years ago a famous preacher of New York found himself in a rather pitiable dilemma on the morning after a banquet at which he had made the leading address. Whether the fact that he had not turned down his glass had anything to do with his foolishness I cannot tell, but he certainly used words and sentiments which, when put into the cold type of the papers next morning, rather shocked the good sense of his fellow citizens, as well as his own good judgment of what a minister of the Gospel should be. But the manhood within him came to the front at once. He called in a stenographer and dictated a retraction, which he sent to every newspaper of New York, and to the Associated Press. In a few short sentences he expressed regret that he should have forgotten himself and his public duty to his parish and his city. That apology won all hearts. He had more friends than ever before. From all hands came congratulations for doing a manly thing.

How grand is an apology! Next to the ability to keep from blundering is the nobility that prompts the amende honorable. How surprising that so many people are too narrow to confess their wrongs. I recall a case of a business man, a professing Christian, who we found making improper entries in an inventory which he was preparing to show how successful a year the firm had had. By this financial exhibit he hoped to persuade his partner to invest more money into the business. The partner caught him fairly, and the culprit had not a word to say. Now what did he do? Admit his error and express regret? Alas, he instead added anger to his deceit, slammed the ledger about, got a dissolution of the partnership and walked out without a word of reconciliation. But he went to church next Sunday and partook of the communion without a blush. He took charge of the Sunday School as usual. He walked up the church aisle, seating the people. The wonder is that he didn't faint when he passed the collection plate to his former partner, who sat modestly in a pew. Now that man endured his own brazen hypocrisy for years rather than bear the momentary humiliation of making an apology, which would have redeemed his manhood in his own eyes in the twinkling of an eye. Much of his time, when walking on the main street of his town, was spent in watching whether his old partner was coming up the same side of the street. He would walk a dozen blocks out of his way rather than go through the ordeal of meeting him. Now see the way society sometimes meets such sins. First, the rogue's pastor was wretchedly silent, and allowed the injured business partner to leave the church in which he had been a quiet unprofessing adherent, rather than shoulder the responsibility of bringing the two men together and trying to settle their differences, even though the partner's version of the story had been given to him and his officiary. Second, the great majority of the people took the Sunday School superintendent's brazen boldness as a sign of his innocence, and took him into their sympathy, and said that he bore the cross of discipleship and the falsehoods circulated about him with the heroism of a martyr. Third, at a church meeting shortly afterwards, when poor John Tompkin's case came up, and it was proven that John had disgraced the church by using too much of the sidewalk as he endeavored to walk up Main Street, the Sunday School superintendent joined in voting that the name of John Tompkins be struck from the rolls. The wonder is that the earth did not quake and swallow up that church meeting instanter.

A safe rule is that the confession should be as prominent as the sin had been. Has a man been a notorious sinner? Has he polluted youth, ravaged virtue, trampled down public decency? He shall not come to the preacher or the priest and merely say, "I want to make amends to you privately, for my sins." He must try to dig up his bad seed or pull up the stalk sprouted from it. A man cannot libel the cause of Christ openly and then retract secretly. The law will not allow a newspaper to publish libelous statements about a man and then retract them verbally in the injured party's office. The retraction must be as public as the libel.

Sometimes the taking on of new life costs a man something in dollars and cents. Beginning a decent life meant a momentary sacrifice to those people at Ephesus. They had to abandon their means of livelihood. But the sacrifice was an ethical necessity. The pulpit should absolutely refuse to recognize a pretension to piety which clings to corrupt ways of money making. The preacher has a right, aye, a duty, to ask how much the shop girls are paid in the store of a merchant who is giving his thousands to missions. As long as a man argues, like Demetrius: "For ye know that by this craft we have our wealth," he is not fit for the lowest office in God's house. The drunkard has moral precedence over him. If it is proved that a man is in a commercial conspiracy to ruin competitors, corner markets and arbitrarily control prices by tinkering with the law of supply and demand, he should be compelled to forsake his ways of industrial buccaneering before availing himself of the sacraments of the church. Otherwise the church is but a poor nest of hypocrites and its pulpit a refuge of frightened puppets.

But, thank God, many men do make the sacrifice of money. Many do burn the devil's books. The other day there came a man to my study to say, "Pastor, I have illegally and wickedly sold cigarettes to boys. I have stopped it forever." There was a manliness about that assertion which was a reward in itself. "Burn the bridges behind us; we'll not need them," cried Grant when he crossed the Rappahannock in his famous Hammering campaign. So should we burn the bridges behind us when we resolve to lead new lives. It pays to commit ourselves to a right policy with a holy abandon, and then abide by the decision.

Overcome by Cigars

At Swansea, Wales, a young man was taken to the hospital in an unconscious state, the medical man stating that he had been overcome by smoking. He had smoked a good many cigars.

Tight-fitting Lid

Lids on tin and other pails can be taken off easily by tying a strong cord around the pail just below the lid. Then place a nail under the cord, twist it, and tighten it up evenly, which loosens the lid.

Oddfellows' Field Night.

Field night was fittingly observed by the Peterborough Oddfellows on Thursday evening, when lodges from Havelock, Pontypool, Millbrook, Lakefield, Norwood, and representatives from the outlying districts were entertained. The various degrees were also conferred upon a number of the visitors.

St. George's Society.

Last night the monthly social of St. George's Society well attended. An interesting feature of the programme was the singing by Mr. Edward Jones of a song written and composed by the local organist Mr. Herbert Treneer, who gave two instrumental solos. The following artists were in the list: Mrs. B. Read, Miss Ada Lee, Mr. T. Ward, Mr. F. Wainwright, Mr. Carter, Mr. C. Thorp, Mr. W. A. Greenslade, and Mr. G. Brooks.

Former High Priced Singer.

Yesterday Mr. W. Morrison, of Toronto, was a guest at the Snowden House. He had business at the De Laval factory. Some few years ago Mr. Morrison was paid $500 a week for singing at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. His voice when a boy was a rich soprano, his high notes being clear and bell like in tone. Unfortunately when manhood arrived his voice changed.

Local Man's Untimely Death.

General sympathy is extended to Mr. Walter Libby, of Parnell street, who as stated in yesterday's issue, received word that his oldest son, Walter, had perished in the Detroit fire. The unfortunate young man was employed on the fifth floor of the building in the Wilson-Sharp machine shop and the fact that he was on the fifth floor no doubt lessened his chance of escape. The deceased, who was 24 years of age left Peterborough about four years ago. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 to the Little Lake cemetery. Service at the house at 2 o'clock by the Rev. H. J. Keith, of Knox church.

Col. Sam Praised.

Lindsay Warder, in its report of the Grand Orange Lodge in that town, says the "Grand Master replied in fitting terms, and in a very able manner to the deputation. The address of welcome from the town was also referred to by W. Bro. Duncan Munroe, P.G.M., who spoke very highly of Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia and Defence, who was a resident of Lindsay. He paid him a high compliment when he said, "Although not agreeing with him in politics, yet he is by far the best man at the head of the Militia of this country that Canada has ever had. A man to be proud of, who is doing a splendid work for his Government and for the people of Canada."

Orange Day.

Now that the seventeenth of March is safely over, Californians are releasing something which they have been holding in store for some time. The wearers of the green are to be shocked by an "Orange Day." As Californians will have it, there will be nothing in evidence on Saturday, March 21st, save orange. For the purpose of furthering the exportation and the use of the orange, the great product of the State, they have set aside this date as a "fete des oranges." Various American railways are co-operating with the State officials of California and on these systems oranges will be the order of the day. The Canadian Pacific Railway have responded to a request made to one of the executive heads by those in charge of the movement by stating that the day will be recognized over the company's lines by the evidence of oranges in all the dining cars.

"TIZ" EASED TIRED SORE, SWOLLEN FEET

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "TIZ" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "TIZ" bath.

When your feet feel all tired out just try "TIZ." It's grand—Your feet will dance with joy; no more pain in corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel. You can wear shoes a size smaller if you desire.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

Miss Violet Moncrief.

The death occurred on Thursday at Nicholl's Hospital of Violet Moncrief, daughter of Mr. George Moncrief, at the age of 17 years. Deceased had been living with her sister, Mrs. G. Innes, 573 Patterson street, and employed at the Bonner Worth Co. She leaves to mourn her loss her father in Saskatchewan, three brothers and four sisters.

The funeral will take place from the residence of Mrs. Innes, 573 Patterson street this afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery. Service at the house at 2.30 by Rev. R. B. Grobb, of All Saints' church.

The Motto of Every Canadian Should be "What We Have, We INTEND to Hold"

In so far as it applies to Canada's national wealth, our forests, and more particularly the protection of our fur-bearing animals, which, however, would soon become but evidence of a great past unless husbanded by the foresight of man.

To the foresight of Prince Edward Island's practical men two of the most famous of Canada's fur-bearing animals, the Black and Silver Fox, have been saved to future generations—and as a consequence Canada will unquestionably furnish the world's great demand in future, for this princely fur exceeds its weight in gold!

Concerted action by shrewd Canadians now engaged in this industry in Prince Edward Island will shortly control all the available Black and Silver Foxes wherever found on this continent, a fact generally conceded by persons in authority—consequently this announcement is of great interest to the careful investor and believer in Canada's vast Fur Wealth.

Some Imporaant Facts about the Silver Black Fox Industry

The first island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $4,000.00; in 1911 the price went to $6,000, a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000.00 was considered high but not unusual and at the time of writing (January 28, 1914) live breeders can bring any price from $15,000.00 to $35,000.00, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000.00 a pair.

About $10,000.00 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $3,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the Island contain 899 silver breeding foxes (441 males and 458 females). The total number of silver offspring for 1913 was 703, and the average assessed value was $4,992.52 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $3,349.449. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1,602.

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,628.00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company has TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND silver black foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option all are eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which in 1913 paid from 45 per cent to 900 per cent.

THE INDUSTRY

No industry in recent years has made such wonderful strides as the Black-Silver Fox Industry, and the reason is that it offers larger financial returns than any other business in the Dominion. Moreover, its future possesses unlimited opportunities, as the demand is constantly increasing, while the supply has reached almost a minimum until a few companies undertook the breeding and rearing of these valuable animals. Everyone who is alive to the opportunities of enormous profits without risk will readily appreciate the advantages of investing in the R. J. McNeill Black and Silver Fox Company, Limited. It is a fact that every bona fide fox company organized within the Province of Prince Edward Island has paid dividends of from 45 per cent to 300 per cent and some companies have even done better than this.

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a percentage of the production will be retained, placing the company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211-acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair and Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1912. This company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I., who were employed in the United States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $15,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $300 three years ago, and is now worth $45,000 directly from this source.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's, Limited, received $25,000 from an investment of $500 made in this business three years ago.

The Rosemount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1,000 per cent this year.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $500 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $3,500. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair for a year. The first litter consisted of seven pups. The seven owners have received $836,000 cash dividends since and the pair bought for $3,500 could be sold for $35,000 to-day. Mr. Austin Scales, of St. Eleanors, is a member of this Association.

ULSTER SYMPATHIZERS THREATEN THE CABINET; LONDON WAR-INFLAMED

Ministers in Danger When They Proceed to Buckingham to Hold Council With King—Heavy Guard of Police and Troops Thrown About Palace

London, March 21.—The war flame which is sweeping Ireland over the Home Rule question, spread to London to-night. Sympathisers of Ulsterresistants threatened to attack cabinet ministers when they went to Buckingham Palace to hold a council with King George. A heavy guard of police and troops was thrown about the palace.

King George held a long conference with Field Marshal Lord Roberts, the foremost officer of the Imperial Army and later it was reported that Lord Roberts will be put in supreme command if civil war comes.

Irish Nationalist leaders in Londonderry to-night, called off the proposed home rule demonstration set for to-morrow, fearing it would furnish the fatal clash which would precipitate war.

Sir Edward Carson, chief of the anti-home rulers, is in Belfast conferring with his lieutenants, and while he says he is trying to placate the radical Unionists, he is preparing for hostilities.

The Orangemen are preparing to mobilize 110,000 volunteers. The British Government has about 30,000 regulars in Ireland, but the reserves are being mobilized. A ring of armed troops has Ulster Province isolated on the south, and warships are watching the north coast for filibusters.

CIVIC DEVELOPMENT EXHIBITION TO BE HELD AT ARENA GARDENS

First Show of Its Kind to Be Put on at Toronto—The Huge Plaster Relief Model of Toronto Will Show the Public Buildings and Improvements

Toronto, March 21.—Toronto is to have a city development exhibition, held under the auspices of the Civic Guild—an exhibition that is unique in that it is the first of its kind to be held in eastern Canada—an exhibition that will graphically illustrate the schemes completed, underway and proposed for the development and improvement of the cities of Canada, from St. John, N.B., to Victoria, B.C., as well as in many of the cities of the States, in a general way, and Toronto in particular.

A huge plaster relief model of Toronto, thirty-two feet in length by twelve feet in height, is being constructed for the Exhibition by Mr. J. T. Edwards. All the public buildings and improvements constructed, under construction and proposed, including the Waterfront, Boulevard and Park development scheme, the Union Station and Viaduct to-be, the proposed Federal Square and diagonal streets, and the Bloor street Viaduct, will be stepped out in strong relief.

All phases of city development will be strikingly depicted by means of models, illustrations, relief maps and paintings, the various municipal departments are arranging exhibits of the work they are doing and plan to do. The harbor board will have a comprehensive display of the work it has in hand, as will also the Hydro-Electric by way of showing not only what it has contributed, but also what it has to contribute to civic development. Several hundred pictures are on the way from New York alone, illustrative of city planning in all of its ramifications. These pictures are being loaned to the Exhibition by the City Planning Exhibit of New York City.

ABDUL HAMID ILL.

London, March 21.—Abdul Hamid, the deposed Sultan of Turkey, is said to be in a critical condition, according to an Exchange Telegraph Company's despatch from Constantinople. The former ruler, who has been ill for some time, is in such a condition that his physicians fear his malady may terminate fatally.

OUTRAGEOUS LIBEL ON CANADA WHAT A JESUIT CAN DO

The following editorial from last week's Catholic Register, of Toronto, ought to open the eyes of the public to the danger of allowing people "who know it all," the privileges of Canadian hospitality:

"When we received the cable here that Rev. Bernard Vaughan, S. J., was knocking Canada and advising his countrymen to emigrate to the United States instead, we were inclined to doubt the statement, and said in Register-Extension that something must be wrong, for when here he was an ardent Imperialist and pro-Canadian to a fault. As such he was introduced to the Empire Club, where he made one of the strongest Imperial-Catholic speeches ever heard. Now, the Manchester Courier is sent to us, blue pencilled, with the Father's speech on the 23rd of February given in detail—at least as far as the matter in discussion is concerned. The Father is quite unfair to Canada when he says: 'The conditions in the Northwest, where people were told to go, were terrible—three months of good weather and nine months of bad.'' He should have reversed the statement to be even slightly correct. The Northwest has no more than four months of winter and for the other eight the climate is as good as in any part of the world—indeed better than in the corresponding northwestern portion of the United States, he was booming. Proof of this is manifest in the inrush of American colonists—comfortable farmers who leave American farms to settle by the tens of thousands in Canada yearly The joke about the English farmer who advertised in this country for a ploughman and got 2,000 applications is certainly weak and sickly. Father Vaughan has told so many of these yarns so often that he believes them now himself. Canada is not afraid of the competition of any country, much less the United States, as a home for colonists, but it does the Catholic Church in Canada, which is striving to settle these vast plains with good, honest, industrious farmers, harm to be told by the quondam advocate and admirer of Canadian settlement that the condition of settlers in the Northwest of Canada is 'terrible,' and that there are 'nine months winter and three months of good weather' to be endured there. Father Bernard should have a care and not give out wild statements of this sort. He would not take away a man's character, why a great country's, in his new-found admiration for the American eagle?

JACK CANUCK ON OUR LOCAL MEMBER

Under the heading "Who's Who," Jack Canuck of last week says:

In the last year or two a new star has appeared in the political firmament and his name is Burnham, his stamping ground being Peterborough. When he entered Parliament, Mr. Burnham immediately began to talk. That wasn't unusual of course; nearly everybody who goes to Ottawa tries to talk. The strange part was that Ham Burnham said something. He didn't say anything very great, and neither side of the House, at first, took him very seriously, but the fact remained that he had said things which made people sit up and listen. Watch Mr. Burnham; he's going to make a home run one of these days. One of the best things he moved, even if it didn't get by, was the proposal that the practice of bestowing titles on fossils and back numbers should be stopped. That should have been received with acclaim; it will be when the Government gets time to consider it seriously. The other good act, just recently, was when Mr. Burnham read the Riot Act to the women who were butting in about cigarettes. "Go home and learn how to dress yourselves properly before you want to dictate to men what they shall or shall not smoke," said Ham Burnham—or words to that effect. And right here we're tossing up out hats for the man from Peterborough. Watch him; he's going to make a noise before long.

WOMAN SHOPLIFTER IS CAUGHT IN THE ACT

Woman Arrested When She Attempts to Slip Articles in Her Muff.

Toronto, March 21.—Caught in the act of slipping several articles from the counter of a local departmental store into her muff, Janes Henderson, a well-dressed woman, was arrested on Saturday afternoon by Detective Montgomery. The woman had been watched for a considerable period as a suspicious character, and it is thought that several other thefts may be traced to her. When searched several articles thought to have been stolen were found on her.

A LARGE QUANTITY OF AMMUNITION FOUND

Port of Spain Police Raid a House and Discover Hiding Place of Gen. Castro.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Mar. 21.—Gen Cipriano Castro, former dictator of Venezuela, whose whereabouts has been unknown for several months was discovered here in the course of last night.

A party of detectives late last evening raided an hotel inhabited almost solely by Venezuelans, and found there 40,000 rounds of ammunition and a few revolvers.

This discovery led to a further raid The police proceeded to a house which had been occupied for several months by Gen. Carmelo Castro, a brother of the former president, and, armed with a search warrant, went over the place. Among the effects of the occupants they found one revolver and a few cartridges.

On entering one of the rooms, however, they made a much more important discovery, for they found it occupied by Gen. Cipriano Castro himself.

THIRTY ARE GOING TO ULSTER FROM LONDON, ONT.

London, Ont., Mar. 21.—Thirty Londoners and possibly more are preparing to go to Ulster to fight for the Carson forces should the threatened civil war break out. Secretary Harry Bennett of the Ulster Defence Fund says that definite action will be taken following a meeting called for Monday evening.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Cloudy and unsettled with little higher temperature.

OUTLOOK FOR ULSTER OF EXTREME GRAVITY NEARS WAR FOOTING

SIR EDWARD'S STATEMENT.

London, Mar. 20.—"I desire at the earliest opportunity after my arrival in Ulster earnestly to appeal to our followers to maintain the same dignified attitude of calm and peace which has hitherto prevailed to the honor and credit of the community."

The above message was published by Sir Edward Carson in Belfast to-day, such intimation being made in view of the effect of Mr. Churchill's speech and rumor that the Government intended action.

London, March 21.—With startling suddenness the outlook in Ulster has become one of great gravity, and predictions are freely made to-day that the long threatened war is now only a matter of days. A rumor was current last night that the British Government is preparing for the military occupation of the province.

The atmosphere in Ulster itself has grown suddenly electrical. Important developments may occur there at any moment, and sinister rumors abound.

All Garrisons Strengthened.

There are several signs and portents indicating early and momentous action on the part of the Government The guards have been doubled and the garrisons strengthened at the military barracks, in accordance with the intentions announced early in the week with a view to preventing possible raids for munitions of war by the "covenanters," and it is persistently reported that the arrest of the leaders of the Ulster Volunteer force is imminent.

Meanwhile there is unusual activity among the Ulster Volunteers. Forty members of the Motorcycle Corps left Belfast yesterday under secret orders.

Floods Ulster With Troops.

Unionists are convinced that the authorities are contemplating some coup. It is stated in military circles that the Government has a comprehensive scheme for pouring extra troops into the Province within 24 hours, and for holding all strategical points by an overwhelming force. The officers commanding in the different districts received their instructions a month ago.

The acerbity of yesterday's debate in the House of Commons was largely responsible for precipitating the acute situation which now undoubtedly exists. Unionist disappointment in failing to detach a portion of the Government's Parliamentary support was also a perceptible factor.

Peace or War?

A more dramatic debate has not been heard there in recent times. The topic nominally under discussion was the demand made by the Opposition for the formulation of the Prime Minister's recent suggestions as to Ulster before the resumption of the debate on the second reading of the Home Rule Bill, but by common consent the vital issue of peace or war in Ireland formed the burden of the speeches.

Movements of Troops.

Belfast, Mar. 21.—In response to instructions from army headquarters, a detachment of 200 infantry arrived at Newry, in the course of the day, from the Curragh and another 300 from Mullingar. The garrison of Londonderry was also reinforced by 300 men from Mullingar and two warships arrived in Dublin Bay.

Feeling among the people in Belfast has become much more tense since yesterday's debate in Parliament and soon after his arrival here Sir Edward Carson issued an appeal to his followers to preserve calm.

SUICIDED WHILE HER HUSBAND LOOKED ON

Mrs. James Mitchell, 23 Vanauley, Took Carbolic Acid in Fit of Despondency.

Toronto, March 21.—Supposed to have followed a fit of despondency, Mrs. Jas. Mitchell, aged 43, took carbolic acid at her home at 23 Vanauley street in the presence of her husband at noon Saturday. Dr. Yolles, of 190 Spadina avenue was called, and on his arrival the unfortunate woman was unconscious. She was removed in the police ambulance to the Western Hospital, but died shortly after her arrival without regaining consciousness. Her husband is an employe of the Toronto Electric Light Company.

THAW DUBS JEROME A PARANDIAC OF A MALIGNANT TYPE

Concord, N.H., Mar. 21.—Harry K. Thaw has issued another statement with regard to the proceedings instituted by the State of New York for his return to Matteawan and asking for public support of resolutions in the Assembly in his interest. The statement follows:

"Mr. Jerome, with his customary capacity of trying to blind the people on the eve of the vote, has given the newspapers a slam in answer to Dr. Pankhurst's voluntary statement to stop this persecution, prefacing his remarks by stating that the public should have no sympathy for me. In my statement of Saturday I particularly stated I did not ask for sympathy but only justice, and by justice I mean that the United States does not record a case of homicide under such provocation, where a man has served longer than seven years of punishment. I have been imprisoned eight, then I ask the people of the State of New York why I should be signaled out for this cruel discrimination which has been levelled at me? Only one reason, and that is to enrich the pockets of my adversary—this man who in his unbridled audacity not only receives in 1913 from the State treasury $10,603, for my habeas corpus proceedings, but now seeks to further enrich himself by $25,250 more.

"I submit to fellow citizens that the only question involved in the present proceedings is the question of my sanity. I have now been forced to endure two examinations by men appointed by honorable judges, the commissions appointed by Justice Fitzgerald of the New York Supreme Court, and by Judge Aldrich of the United States Court two months ago. Both these commissions unanimously reported me sane, yet this persecutor who falsely stated yesterday that he always believed I was insane, has the effrontery to attempt to force his individual egotistical opinion upon the public to the prejudice of my rights against the opinion of the two duly appointed commissions.

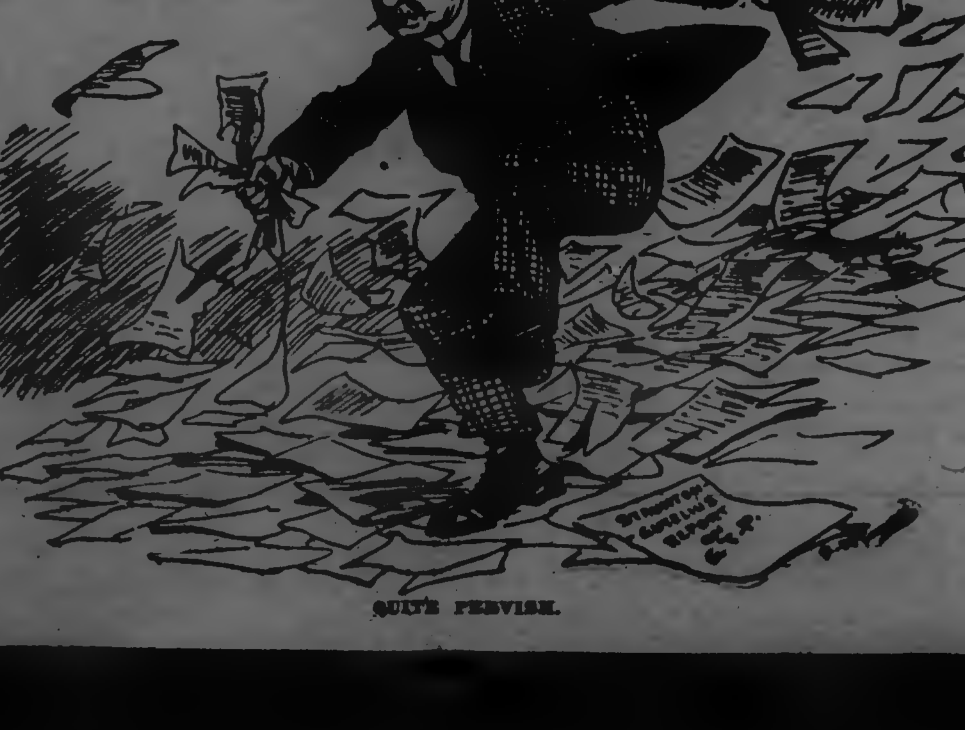
"How much more must I endure? But lest his hypocrisy might not be unfolded to the people to whom I have appealed, I draw their attention to the undisputable fact that this man in 1907 dared to attempt a judicial murder by protecting a man whom he now says he always believed to be insane, when his duty was to hold the scales of justice even."

WAS CALLED A CHEAT AWARDED DAMAGES

Toronto, March 21.—Because William Quinn, of Sophiasburg would insist in telling all his friends that Jas. F. Carter tried to cheat his customers he was ordered to pay $200 damages by Judge Britton in the Supreme Court on Saturday.

Carter operates a cheese factory in his home town, and Quinn was one of his patrons who supplied large quantities of milk to the cheese factory. Quinn stated that shortages occurred in the milk weighed by Carter, and it was only right that he should warn others against him.

That such strong words as rogue, cheat, robber and thief, alleged to have been noised by Quinn, are not usually termed as fit to include in "a warning" was held by Judge Britton in awarding damages.



QUITE PEEVISH.

AID TO C.N.R. IS LIKELY COUNTRY CANNOT AFFORD FALL DOWN ON LAST LAP

Grand Trunk Pacific Also Wants Help—Negotiations Still Under Way at the Capital—What Will Liberals Do in Case of Both Applications

Ottawa, March 21.—The tension that has been existing in Ottawa for the past fortnight in regard to the railway situation has been somewhat lessened, partly because of the continued conversations between the Government and the Canadian Northern chiefs and partly because the situation has been widened by the appearance of the Grand Trunk Pacific on the scene also with a request for financial assistance for the completion of their line from Edmonton through British Columbia to the coast.

The best information would indicate that the Government is coming to the conclusion that some kind of assistance to both these schemes is necessary in the public interest and to uphold the general credit of the country. The situation in which the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk find themselves is not the creation of the Borden Government but altogether the result of the policy of their predecessors, and was more loss predicted by the Conservatives when they were in opposition. But being in office they must assume responsibility for carrying out the affairs of the country and as both railways are asking for assistance in order to complete these enormous undertakings, and as both say they cannot get money in any other way, it is up to the Government to do something and to do it almost immediately.

What Railways Want.

The Grand Trunk, it is believed, want something like a loan of $15,000,000 and the Canadian Northern, according to current reports, want about $90,000,000 to complete and equip their lines—$50,000,000 of which they have in sight from bonds already arranged for, provided they get $45,000,000 additional, and they hope to raise this latter amount from securities guaranteed by the Dominion. Whether bonds are guaranteed by the Dominion will be secured by some kind of mortgage on the whole of the system and by deposit with the Government.

DAMAGE ESTIMATED AT $50,000 IN PEARL STREET FACTORY FIRE

Top Floor of Allen Building, Occupied by R. D. Fairbairn Whitewear Company, is Gutted and 500 Girls Are Thrown Out of Employment

Toronto, Mar. 21.—Fire, probably caused by a defective heating plant, broke out on the top floor of the Allen building at Pearl and Simcoe streets on Saturday afternoon and did damage estimated at $50,000 to three firms occupying the building. The R. D. Fairbairn Whitewear Manufacturing Company which occupies the two top floors, received damage estimated last night by Mr. Fairbairn at $40,000, principally to stock, of which a large part was water damage.

The east end of the top floor was gutted and will cost probably about $10,000 to rebuild, while the damage to the other firms in the building, the Allen Manufacturing Company, and the Swiss Laundry, will be trifling.

The stock of the Fairbairn Company according to Mr. R. D. Fairbairn, was worth $135,000, while the machinery which was practically undamaged, is valued at $60,000. The damage was confined almost entirely to the east end of the building and although the stock on the lower floors was spoiled by water, it is expected that the entire loss will not be much over $50,000, almost fully covered by insurance.

The fire is attributed to a defective heating plant, as when the fire broke out both electricity and gas were turned off and the building was unoccupied.

The fire broke out in the southerly portion of the top floor shortly after 2 o'clock, and had spread over the entire floor before the fire department arrived on the scene.

In order to lose no time the firemen carried the first line of hose up the fire escape, but they could not enter the building owing to the density of the smoke.

Fumes Hindered Firemen.

As the Fairbairn Company manufacture whitewear goods, the fumes played havoc with the fire department, and while several firemen were forced to come to the windows for air. Daniel Follis, of Adelaide street was so badly overcome that he had to be carried down to the street by his comrades and given artificial respiration.

WELL-KNOWN MEN IN FLORIDA

Referring to two well known local citizens, the South Florida Banner, of Homestead, Dade County, Fla., says:

"When you want to make a real live booster for the Redland district just pull a half frozen "Canuck" out of a snow drift, bring him down here and let him get a taste of what the finest climate in the whole United States is like, and the job is done.

"If you don't believe it, just ask Mr. Milton A. Hunt, of Havelock, Ont. Mr. Hunt showed himself a real enthusiast by bringing the following gentlemen with him on this trip.—Messrs. O. A. Brooken, Havelock, Ont.; W. Y. Cannon, Sharbot Lake, Ont.; A. O. Sawyers, Lakefield, Ont., Dr. T. Collard, Peterborough, Ont.; N. Ressor, Locust Hill, Ont. and [illegible] Savigny, Peterborough, Ont., the Water street grocer.

"Mr. Hunt and his friends were all very much pleased with the country and very enthusiastic over the future of Homestead and the Redland District in general. All of them bought land through Mr. W. D. Horne's real estate office, Mr. Hunt alone buying 435 acres of good grove land, well located, for himself and friends. Several of the party intend to return in the near future and make this their permanent home, while others will develop their property, but will not move here permanently just yet. These are the kind of men Homestead needs, and you will go a long way before you find a better class of people than they are. They made friends with all they met and will meet with a hearty welcome whenever they return."

No Toadying.

Among the good old ways of "merrie England" is the tendency to democracy prevailing in her boys' schools. Parents can be assured, it is said, that no pampering will fall to the lot of their sons, however exalted may be their rank or great their possessions. An English paper tells the story of an Indian official of high rank calling upon the house master in a famous public school, where a young prince, son of a rajah, was being educated. This official brought a special message from his master, the rajah, to the effect that he wanted no favors or exceptional treatment of any sort extended to his son on account of his exalted birth.

"You may set the mind of the rajah at rest on that score," said the house master, struggling to keep back his smile before the dignified anxiety of the Indian official. "If the authorities were inclined to discriminate in the prince's favor, the boys of the school would set the matter right. Among them generally the rajah's son answers to the name of 'Nigger,' and I understand that with his intimates he is familiarly known as 'Coal Scuttle.'"

Wonderful Victoria Falls.

"It is well nigh impossible to describe a scene of such wonder, such wildness," says Lady Sarah Wilson in her "South African Memories" of the Victoria falls. But she gives this graphic description: "Standing on a point flush with the river before it makes its headlong leap, we gazed first on the swirling water losing itself in snowy spray which beat relentlessly on face and clothes while the great volume was noisily disappearing to unknown and terrifying depths. The sightseer tries to look across, to strain his eyes and to see beyond that white mist which obscures everything, but it is an impossible task, and he can but guess the width of the falls, slightly horseshoe in shape, from the green trees which seem so far away on the opposite bank and are only caught sight of now and then as the wind causes the spray to lift. At the same time his attention is fixed by a new wonder—the much talked of rainbow. Never varying, never changing, that perfect shaped arc is surely more typical of eternity there than anywhere else."

AFRICAN LIONS.

They Often Hunt in Couples to Start and Capture Their Prey.

Lions in Africa go hunting often in couples and then rather systematically. When, for instance, a couple of lions have traced out a kraal—that is to say, a place fenced by small cut thorn trees, where flocks of asses or oxen, goats or sheep are shut up for the night—the lioness approaches cautiously, profiting by every tree or bush to hide herself. At the same time the lion himself lies watching on the opposite in the distance.

Now the lioness exerts herself to arouse the cattle—which is not difficult, as they become excited merely by smelling a beast of prey—till the cattle are tormented to the utmost by fear and horror, break through the kraal on the side opposite to the lioness and thus fall an easy prey to the lion.

The lion chases his victims and throttles it by springing on its neck or breast and biting his teeth into this part. The hunted animal falls, and the lion now tears open the flanks. The lioness appears and has her share of the meal. Very often they cannot devour their victim in one night; then they come back to the place where the remains are on the following or the second night.

The lion's favorite food is zebra, quagga (of which there are few left in Africa) and wild ass. The meat of these three kind of animals is something alike in taste.

English Clay Pipes.

The clay pipe, which is vanishing from the Fleet street chophouse, was the only variety smoked in this country until quite recent times. The clay pipe made its appearance in England in the later years of the sixteenth century. Writing about a century later, a French author remarks that the English "invented the pipes of baked clay which are now used everywhere."

"Broseley, in Staffordshire, has been famous for its pipes and clay from the days of Elizabeth," writes W. A. Penn in "The Soverane Herb." "Now all the clay of which white pipes are manufactured comes from Newton Abbot and Kingsteignton, in Devonshire. It is sent to all parts of England and the world in rough lumps about the size of quartern loaves, weighing some twenty-eight pounds each."—London Spectator.

A Heartless Interruption.

A young Parisian, noted for his grace and readiness as a second in many duels, was asked by a friend to accompany him to the mayor's office to affix his signature as a witness to the matrimonial registry. He consented, but when the scene was reached forgot himself. Just as the mayor was ready for the last formalities he broke out: "Gentlemen, cannot this affair be arranged? Is there no way

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY PAVILION

PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., 1915.

The Grand Trunk Pavilion, which will occupy a prominent position in the railway plaza at the northeast corner of the grounds of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, will be directly opposite the mammoth machinery palace, adjacent to the passenger ferry slips, and overlooking San Francisco Bay. As will be observed the design is simple in outline and Spanish renaissance in character, making a handsome and ornate structure. The walls will be of stone, rough finish and tinted a soft cream shade, relieved with an ornamental enriched band carried around the building under the eaves. Shields and fountains have been effectively placed to enhance the decorative effect of the building. The roof will be covered with a rich red Spanish tile. The design for this building was the one accepted by the Exposition Authorities as the standard for all the other buildings which will be erected on the railway plaza. This pavilion will house the exhibits of both the Grand Trunk Railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Messrs. Ross and Macdonald of Montreal, are the Architects.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always effects a cure. Sanol BLOOD SALT

No Indigestion can exist if this remedy is taken according to instructions—and there is no known remedy to take its place.

This Blood Salt is a mixture compounded so as to resemble in essence and effect, the salty parts of the human blood. It is well known that our vitality is normally kept up by means of the natural blood salts.

Hence a lack of the latter will always superinduce a loss of the former. It is also a fact that with each quart of urine we lose about 10 grams of blood salts. Accordingly we must gradually become weak and sick, unless we provide a substitute for these salts in the blood.

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion such as Dyspepsia, Gastric Catarrh, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, etc., and as an aid to digestion, in wasting and nervous diseases.

General sympathy is extended to Mr. Walter Libby, of Parnell street, who as stated in yesterday's issue, received word that his oldest son, Walter, had perished in the Detroit fire. The unfortunate young man was employed on the fifth floor of the building in the Wilson-Sharp machine shops and the fact that he was on the fifth floor no doubt lessened his chance of escape. The deceased, who was 24 years of age left Peterborough about four years ago.

EMIGRANT FAMILY-DESERTERS

One of the deep-seated evils the poor law authorities of many British cities have to contend with is the care of the families of the men who have emigrated to the dominions. In Glasgow alone, since 1908, 340 families left behind by emigrants have appealed to the parish for relief. A year or two ago the plaints of the municipal officials induced the President of the Local Government Board, Right Hon. John Burns, to try to enlist the help of the dominions in tracking the deserters, and in making them contribute to the support of those at home. Nothing was accomplished at the time, there being no suitable machinery for such a a project. Now that a President of the Government Board is coming in, succeeding Mr. Burns the civic authorities are renewing their agitation.

The problem is an exceedingly knotty one. What assurance is there, if effective arrangements existed in the dominions for deporting wife or family-deserters from the Mother Country, that the deserters would not emigrate to non-British countries? After a British subject has passed the immigration officers, and has been domiciled for a while in Canada, deportation would have to be ordered in the Courts. The Canadian Criminal Code, as recently amended, provides heavy penalties against a husband or father who fails to provide the necessaries of life for his dependents, but the evidence in such cases is local and easily procured. There would be grave difficulties about getting proper evidence from Britain. It is desirable that wife-desertion through immigration shall be checked, because if that were checked, cases of bigamy in the dominions would be fewer. But the Motherland can first help herself, it she wishes, by regulating the emigration of such deserters.

Joint and Muscle Pains Banished By Nerviline

IT CURES RHEUMATISM.

Thousands of people, chock full of the joy of living—happy, glad, bright people, that Nerviline has cured of their pains, all tell the same wonderful story of its power to drive out the aches and tortures of rheumatism and kindred ills

"My goodness, but Nerviline is a miracle-worker," writes Mrs. Charlotte Chipman, mother of a well-known family residing at Mount Pleasant. "Last month I was so crippled up with sciatica and muscular rheumatism as to be almost unable to do a bit of housework. My joints were so stiff and the muscles so frightfully sore that I even cried at times with the pain. For years we have used Nerviline in our family and I just got busy with this wonderful, good old liniment. Lots of rubbing with Nerviline soon relieved my misery and I was in a real short time about my work as usual."

No matter where the ache is, no matter how distressing the pain you can rub it away with Nerviline. For forty years it has been curing lumbago, sciatica, back-ache, colds, chest trouble and all sorts of winter ills. Keep a large 50c family size bottle handy and you'll be saved lots of trouble and have smaller doctor bills. Small trial size 25c., at dealers everywhere.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN

"AN OLD FAVORITE IN A BRAND NEW WAY."

The Kibble & Martin revival will appear at "The Grand" on Thursday next, March 26, matinee and night. It is an undisputed fact that there is no better production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" on the road to-day than that made by Kibble and Martin several years ago and improved with each season since. It is the largest company with possibly few exceptions, such as special revivals, ever used in the production of the play, it is claimed, for it contains a company of the original "Georgia shouters" who play the negroes in the cotton fields, and who are seen in plantation dances and heard in plantation songs in scenes showing the quarters of the negroes on a plantation where the master was a human man. There are solos, quartettes and choruses in which the old-time songs as well as the new ones are sung by voices having the peculiar negro sweetness. There are a number of excellent dancers and they dance among others the latest shuffle, called the "S'wanee Shine." There is a pack of genuine bloodhounds, gaunt and ugly looking beasts, such as were used to track escaped negro slaves and such as are now used to track escaped criminals in the south. These bloodhounds brought from the South are a part of the pack used by a prison contractor at his convict pen in Georgia and are used in the scenes where the escaped slaves are followed, and with their deep-mouthed baying and impressiveness to the escape of Eliza and of George Harris. There are also horses, donkeys, and ponies and altogether the live stock exhibit is extensive. The scenery is a special feature of the production. Some of the most notable scenes include the humble cabin of Uncle Tom, and an old Southern road, Skinner's tavern, the ice-gorged Ohio River by moonlight, the home of Phineas Friend, the wild rocky pass in Southern Ohio, and the transformation called "The Holy City."

PUBLIC OPINION LIKELY TO BACK GOVERNMENT

Delay of Decisive Action Till Extent of Disaffection in Ulster is Known is Approved in London

London, March 21.—Without warning events in Ireland have developed that have brought the Ulster situation within measurable distance of a crisis. For many months the Government has allowed the preparations for armed resistance to the operation of an imperial act of parliament to proceed unmolested. These have been frequently of a character which seems to have been premeditated in order that it might be premediated in order that emplary patience the cabinet has been frequently commended. Now that it is being replaced by movements indicating a determination to maintain order at all costs, ministers are being blamed for not nipping Ulster insurgency in the bud.

Bonar Law's Offer a Surprise.

No serious observer but has realis that there are strong sections in Ulster to whom the fear of domination by a Roman Catholic majority in an Irish parliament is very real and serious. The misfortune has been that this prejudice has been used to further the schemes of the Unionist opposition in the Imperial Parliament and to coerce government into either withdrawing the home rule bill or consenting to a dissolution. Mr. Bonar Law's offer to accept a referendum came to the prime minister as somewhat of a surprise. It represented an unexpected concession on the part of the Unionist leaders, but if Sir Edward Carson maintains the attitude he has hitherto occupied, it would in no way better the situation. For he has repeatedly declared that Ulster would continue to resist, even if the government be sustained at a general election. A referendum could do no more.

Dangerous Sport.

First Lady (reading a newspaper)—This golf seems to be a very dangerous game. Did you see what happened to a man named Taylor? He went into bunker and was in two when he came out.

Second Lady—How dreadful!

"Yes; here are the words: 'Taylor getting out in two, Braid secured a half.'"

"Does it say what happened to the other half."

"No, but there was worse to follow. According to the report, Taylor then fell altogether to pieces."—Word of Golf.

The Irishman Had Him.

John Tolmie, who represents North Bruce in the House of Commons, tells among his good stories, of the time when the joke was neatly turned on him.

An Irishman, who knew that Mr. Tolmie was Scotch and that he had been a politician for a great many years, asked why it was that Scotchmen showed such great ability in opposite directions "Scotchmen are either preachers or politicians," said the Irishman

"The Irish are just as remarkable," said Mr Tolmie. "They are either policemen or—". The remainder of the remark was drowned by the laughter of the listeners

At a gathering of the Bruce Old Boys' Association in which most of the people were Scotch, Mr Tolmie told how he had got back at the Irishman. But an Irish Old Boy at the gathering turned the laugh on Mr. Tolmie Said the Irishman "I must admit that it takes about half the Irish as policemen to keep the other half out of jail, but Mr Tolmie mustn't forget that it takes half the Scotch as preachers to keep the other half out of Hades."

Two Smart Actors.

In a popular historic drama the actor who takes the part of Napoleon is required to read aloud a document of considerable length which is brought to him by General Berthier. This being written at length, is seldom committed to memory A short time ago, however, the property master at an English theater mislaid the document, and Napoleon, who was new to the part, received instead a blank sheet of paper. For a moment he was aghast; then, eager to escape from his predicament even at the expense of a fellow actor, he handed the paper to General Berthier, saying, "Read it to me."

The other actor was not in the least confused. "Your majesty," he said, handing it back, "I am only a poor soldier of fortune, and you must excuse me. I do not know how to read!"

The Hudson Six-54, $2950
(f. o. b. Detroit, Mich.)
Duty Paid.

Cost of Running HUDSON Six is Less Than a Four

Prove it for yourself. Make the best record you can with your Four. Don't deceive yourself. Be fair about it. Then come to us and ask us to show you what we can do with the HUDSON Six of proportionately the same class and horse-power. We will show you that it will cost you less to own and run a HUDSON Six than to continue the use of your Four. This may surprise you, in view of the vehement assertions of dealers who want to sell Fours. Nevertheless it is a fact capable of easy demonstration.

Until you drive a HUDSON Six you cannot realize its great advantage. Its smoothness and flexibility are an insurance as well as a delight. HUDSON Sixes are preferred because of high quality combined with moderate price. The Six-54 has four forward speeds, 135-inch wheelbase, motor 4½ x 5¼, developing 55 horse power. Made in Phaeton at $2950 and Sedan at $4050. The Six-40 has 123-inch wheel-base, motor 3½x5, developing 47 horse power, gives 13 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and is, we think, the easiest riding car on the market. The Six-40 in Phaeton and Roadster at $2300, and in Cabriolet at $2575. All cars, of course, are electrically started and lighted left side drive, center control, gasoline tank in cowled dash. Catalog on request. Demonstrations as arranged. Prices f. o. b. Detroit, Mich. Duty paid.

JULIAN HAWTHORNE says that the penal system of the United States is all wrong.

"When I was in the penitentiary down South," says Mr. Hawthorne, "I became acquainted with men serving long terms who had no business at all to be in prison.

"When I came out and left them behind, it made me unhappy, for they were no more guilty of any serious crime against society than I was.

"The prison is a relic of the dark ages—and so is the whole prison idea. That belongs back in the time when men considered revenge a noble sentiment; a prison ought to be there to reform men, not to punish them. What it really does as it is carried out today is to punish men and not reform them. What good does that do? How much further do we get along the road of civilization by clinging to that barbaric and antiquated point of view?"

Every time I go to a prison I think the same thing. But what are we going to do about it?

When a man makes his living by picking pockets, what ought we to do with him?

A man got into my house the other night and scared us almost to death. He didn't get much money, because there wasn't much in the house, but what there was he got.

One Criminal's Viewpoint.

I've seen a good many burglars and thieves of various sorts—both in and out of prison—and I never yet could find myself quite in sympathy with their point of view.

I knew a thief once who told me all about it.

He was a murderer, too. That didn't bother him in the least.

"I wanted the dough," said my friend, the thief, "and I just walked into the bank at the noon hour when I knew everybody would be gone and held up the cashier. The fool guy hung on to the money and so I shot him.

"He'd ought to be dead, a gink like that—it wasn't even his own money that he hung on to."

My friend, the thief, never once had even the vague shadow of a thought that the cashier ought to be honored for his courage and his fidelity to his trust.

My friend, the thief, was quite a good looking chap, with very clear blue eyes and a fine rosy skin. And the ladies sent him flowers and said that he ought not to be hanged because he was "abnormal," or "subnormal," or something equally interesting.

But I happened to know the bank cashier, too, and his sweet mother, and the dear girl he expected to marry; and every time one of the ladies who thought my friend, the thief, ought not to be punished for murder because he was "abnormal" came to me with a petition to sign I kept thinking of the bank cashier's mother and how she looked when they told her that her only son was murdered.

Are Prisons Antiquated?

I never signed one of the petitions; I couldn't somehow. The face of the cashier's mother always came between me and the point of the pen. And when my friend, the thief, was hanged, somehow I couldn't quite go into mourning over him.

Lots of people who are not in prison—yet—look at things the same way. I know a man who will break up a family and crush every individual in it to get some little thing that he happens to want.

He's quite religious, is this particular man, and it is very edifying to hear him talk about fate and "what is mine shall come to me."

That man isn't in prison—yet. He will be, if he lives long enough. He belongs in a striped suit behind the bars just because of his criminal point of view.

And I'm afraid I shan't send him any wreaths of violets and lilies-of-the-valley when he finally does get into his cell.

So the prisons are barbarous and antiquated, are they, Mr. Hawthorne, and the prison idea ought to go?

I suppose it ought, but what are you going to have in the place of it?

What are you going to do with the thieves and the tricksters and the murderers? It would be so interesting and so edifying and so encouraging to know.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

Dear Miss Laurie:

I read your article this morning and thought it good advice to young girls.

I am a girl [illegible] years old, and am away from home. I have been going with a young man for about four months. He is getting too serious, and talks of marriage. I do not care for him, only as a very good friend, and have told him so. He becomes very angry if I go out with other young men. He says it isn't fair to him.

I can't see why it isn't, for I am not engaged to him, and, in fact, he is getting to be a bore. I am ashamed to go out in company, for he always gets mad. I have been thinking about this for some time, and I don't feel that I ought to give up all my friends just for one fellow. Please tell me what you think best, for I haven't any mother to ask advice from. THANKS.

SO he always gets "mad," does he, whenever you go out with company.

Let him get so mad that he'll never speak to you again—if you can't get rid of him any other way. Don't worry about him—he's just a stubborn, bad-tempered, self-willed young man who needs a good lesson the worst way in the world, and you are just the person to give it to him.

If he wants you for a sweetheart and will not be contented to have you for a friend, you'll just have to let him go, that's all.

Show him in every possible way that there isn't the least use of his trying to make you fall in love with him. Be very nice indeed to some one else, and let him see you being nice. Introduce him to the prettiest girl you know, and tell her for goodness sake to get him to fall in love with her—for a few minutes, while you get a chance to catch your breath.

Don't be "bullied" into a love affair that you don't mean. A man who tries to make a girl love him will never succeed in doing anything but making her hate him. It's all very well for him to fall in love with you, but why should he imagine that he has any right to compel you to pretend to fall in love with him?

So he's very angry if you go out with other men? Well, you just tell him that he has no more right to be angry with you for going out with other men than you have to be angry with him for buying picture post cards, or wearing ready-made neckties, or doing anything else that is entirely and absolutely his own affair.

If you don't break with this persistent young man without an open quarrel—good luck be with you. In six months he'll be pursuing some other unfortunate and you will be free to choose your own companions.

There's only one thing worse than a balky horse, and that's a sulky man; get rid of either of them if you have them in the family.

That's my advice.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her care this office.

THEIR WEDDING DAY :: By Michelson

THOSE early spring wedding days require no airship or aeroplane to give a buoyant line to the going forth. Actually the journey may start in a village hack; at best in an auto. But these things mean nothing at all. "They're off!" The effect to THEM is skyward. All the commonplace things melt and vanish. In that hour there are only two realities—and these have just been linked together by the representatives of the Church. It is the mating time and mates KNOW. All nature testifies to the wonder of their wisdom—in being as happy as they can. Nothing that may happen after can rob them of the sweetness of that memory.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Science for Women

LEONA DALRYMPLE

I AM putting on weight steadily and surely. Presently I shall be that over-fed, sleek, complacent suburbanite type that I detest. There's no use my denying my over-plus of weight, as most people do. I'm some [illegible] pounds heavier than I ought to be, and, since neither my father nor my mother is inclined to over-weight and I'm not the type that fattens up at the corner cafe, I must cast about and find a more plausible reason for it than hereditary predisposition.

Now that I come to think of it, Mary is not quite so slender either as she was.

I broached the subject to her with the brutal directness of the much-married man. Oh, yes, I have bromidic faults of my own and likely my conversation is punctuated with boorish marriagisms like any other commonplace individual. Marriage digs certain thought grooves into a man's brain from which he never escapes.

"Mary," said I delicately, "you're getting fat."

Did you ever watch a woman shy at the word fat? If she tips the scales at [illegible] pounds and you'd have to blast with dynamite to find her bones, the word seems to send a chill of resentment cannonading up and down her spine.

Mary fairly shuddered the whole esthetic length of her.

"Peter," she exclaimed, "how horrid of you! And such a vulgar, common way of saying it, too."

"Well, Mary," I said calmly, "there's no denying it that I can see. I'm putting on weight and so are you. Moreover, I can't see any particular reason for it unless—"

"Unless what, Peter?" Mary's chin pointed north with ominous defiance.

"Unless," I asserted firmly, "you're not putting the care and thought into the selection of food-stuffs that you ought to. That does make a difference."

"I'm sure I try hard enough to please you," sniffed Mary. "I think of everything you like."

"Certainly you do," I agreed. "That's likely the trouble. You pamper my tastes too much. You know, dearie, there's a scientific proportion of starch and all that sort of thing to every well balanced meal. Do you try to keep the proportion of healthful acid and starch scientifically balanced? Some women do."

"If you wanted a chemist, Peter," said Mary stiffly, "I don't see why you didn't marry one."

"Don't be foolish, Mary. This is only sense. We're both too young to get fat. I know a family who have a mighty thoughtless assortment of excellent food every night—rich, heavy stuff—and the result is no member of that family weighs less than [illegible] pounds. That's what will happen to us if we don't watch out."

"Peter!" squealed Mary.

"It's true," I insisted. "I imagine if a woman kept definite memoranda she'd find her family's weight fluctuating up and down, according to the diet. People ought not have to run to the doctor for a diet. The housekeeper should see to it. The wise woman if she sees her family putting on useless weight will begin to analyse the family menu and eliminate the fat producers. Isn't that true?"

"I don't know," said Mary caustically. "I never thought of it."

"There you are! Why shouldn't Mary think of the scientific side of her job? Here we are eating heavy puddings night after night. Some nights we have two fried things—and of all deadly food-stuffs commend me to the kind that's fried. One such dish will work havoc. Two have untold possibilities.

I insist that if a woman knows her job she knows the relative values of muscle and fat-building food. Most men when they are committed to a life-time job—providing they are honest—try to ferret forth the most scientific and efficient way of doing things. Women accept responsibilities pretty carelessly.

Wit of the Little Folk

The eye of little Elsie was attracted by the sparkle of the dew at early morning.

"Mamma," she exclaimed, "it's hotter'n I thought it was. Look here, the grass is all covered with perspiration."

Two little brothers, aged respectively 4 and 6 years old, fell in with a stray kitten, which, suffering by the hands of some cruel person, had of its tail scarcely half an inch remaining.

"Poor little kitten," said the younger one. "Who has cut off its tail? I wonder if it will grow again?"

To which the elder gravely remarked: "Of course it will! Don't you see the [illegible] is there?"

"Popper," said little Willie, "did you tell a story at the story-tellers' night at the club, Tuesday night?"

"Yes, my boy, I did. Why?"

"Did they spank you for it, as you do me when I tell a story?" asked Willie.

A Scotch mother was assisting her little boy with his geography when they came to the word "desert," which he could not understand. She explained that it was a barren place—a place nothing would grow. The boy's face brightened up at her words, and feeling sure that he had solved the difficulty she asked him to explain the meaning, and the prompt answer came:

[illegible]

Johnny—May I wake the baby, mamma?

Mamma—Why do you want to wake the baby?

Johnny—So's I can play on my drum.

Edna wants a baby brother.

"A baby would be so nice to wheel around in a carriage, mamma. Dolls are always getting broken when the carriage tips over."

A little 4-year-old went to Sunday school for the first time and heard the children singing.

"Once I was blind, but now I can see."

That afternoon her sister heard her sing, "One side was blind, but now it [illegible]

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Violent Emotions Give You a High Fever

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

Copyright, 1914, by L. K. Hirshberg.

DR. HIRSHBERG

LIVES there a man who has never had fever in his head? There may be some grown-ups who do not recollect ever having had a fever, but if they could remember their infancy, there would be a different story to tell.

Before the eyes of the fever-stricken brain, there arise sad, dark, noisome things. There appears a lazar-house wherein are laid all sorts of far-from-pleasant shapes. Numbers of sickly creatures and phantasmagorical scenes and events rack and torture the feverish, tissue-sick body.

There may be, as the poet sings, other causes for fever than chemical, or "enzymic," changes in your anatomy. Malice, jealousy, envy or another's success does perhaps work chemical actions in your human texture to cause a fever. The general is disdained by him one step below. He by the next. That next by him beneath; so every step, exampled by the first that is sick of his superior, grows to an envious fever of pale and bloodless envy.

What mighty magic is there that can assuage a bigot's rage? If fever is caused by mad and flabby jealousy, your very best friends have a fever-making tincture in their friendship.

Effects of Envy.

When you receive honors and praise from others your friends and acquaintances who say, "Huh! I know him better than any one else," will ascribe the distinctions and hero-worship to motives of self-interest or glamour.

The "fevers" of love, envy and other emotions are not the sort of fevers detectable by instruments of precision or by physiological devices.

It is, nevertheless, a sad commentary upon medical practice that it overlooks the incendiary origin and tissue-destructive effects of the fevers of hot-blood, hot-headedness, anger, passion and, particularly, envy.

Envy eats into the health. Women become as bitter as a persimmon; men shrink into flabby, disappointed "little old men"; girls fall into wicked habits, and youths become friends because of this smoke of low estate, which ascends foully against the fortunate.

The fevers which, strangely enough, interest the doctors are those which are due to the microbic rioters of typhoid, diphtheria, plague, tuberculosis, pneumonia, arthritis and the other related battalions.

Such feverish maladies rise and have their being in a dramatic manner. Unless an ailment contains a dramatic element, neither the dear public nor physicians deign to worry much about it. The fevers of Asiatic cholera, the black plague and smallpox stir up more excitement than measles and whooping cough, yet these contemptuously regarded distempers kill more in each generation than do the other more feared scourges.

Remedies for Fevers.

Just as your "central" or telephone exchange co-ordinates your mouthpiece and receiver with some one's else, so a certain little station in your brain links up and regulates the heat exchanges of your flesh and blood.

Every sort of collapse, each invasion of your structures by germs, each injury or violent chemical activity within irritates this "thermo-regulator" central station in the brain. Fever, however, is not caused by the brain; it is only switched back and forth by it.

Fever is caused or removed by certain chemical doings and "carryings on" of strange living units from without, or even those made inside your blood stream, muscle juices, skin material, or body.

If the susceptibility of the brain heat station and these chemical agencies is lowered or increased, the physiologist adopts some neutralizing chemical to offset this.

Cold water and other "cold" producing fluids applied to the outside surface will at times work to this purpose.

Answers to Health Questions

G. T., Philadelphia—What causes psoriasis?

The cause of psoriasis is not known. The treatment is a plain diet, with the application of salve, made of chrysarobin, resorcin, tar, pyrogallic and a little arsenic internally. All these should be prescribed by a physician.

Miss A. J. K., Irondiquoit, N. Y.—I'm bow legged. Not heavy but very tall. What shall I do?

Have your legs massaged on the outer, convex side. Eat lots of dried vegetables and limy food. Drink lots of milk and keep in the fresh air. If this does not help, consult a surgeon and have a little bit of wedge removed from the bone.

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

THE windy days of March came and the henhouse began to look deserted. Over in one corner sat Mrs. Golden-Rod on seven tiny white eggs, and in another corner sat Mrs. Plymouth Rock on 13 brown eggs. In fact, almost all the hens were sitting. Mrs. Speckle, however, was out in the yard eating little shoots of the green grass which were peeking out of the ground.

The Bantam Rooster was walking beside her when they both heard a little voice.

"Peep, peep! Peep, peep!"

"Well if it isn't a new born chick!" exclaimed Mrs. Speckle. "Where in the world did you come from?"

"I don't—peep, peep—know," answered the little one.

"Come right under my wing this minute," said Mrs. Speckle, ruffling up her feathers and making a great fuss.

"Yes, Fluffy, hurry up!" said the Bantam Rooster, strutting around and looking very important.

"Where did you get that name?" asked Mrs. Speckle, after she had settled herself comfortably on the ground.

"Doesn't that little thing look fluffy? Then its name is 'Fluffy,' that's all," began the Bantam. "I look like a rooster and they call me a 'rooster.' You look like a hen and they call you a 'hen.' I am small and bantam means small. You are black all over except for the white spots and I call you 'Mrs. Speckle.'"

"My! but you are bright," exclaimed Mrs. Speckle, snuggling down on the chick.

"Now, there's Rover—he looks like a dog and so they call him 'a dog,'" started the Bantam Rooster.

"You don't mean that Rover is coming, do you?" asked Mrs. Speckle, looking around in alarm.

"No, no, no!" exclaimed the Rooster. "I was just telling you how things get their names."

"Now, there's a worm—"

"Where's a worm?" asked Mrs. Speckle.

"I just meant to ask you if a worm doesn't look like a worm and that's why they call it 'a worm,'" said the Bantam Rooster.

"Don't talk about so many worms, it makes me hungry," said Mrs. Speckle, snuggling close to Fluffy.

Pitiful Sales.

Kits of sailors lost at sea are sold regularly at auction at the Albert docks in London. The sale provides many a pitiful sight. Most of the lots are contained in the regular sailor's sea chest, all marked with the name of the ship from which they come. It is not unusual for those who have lost friends or relatives at sea to attend these auctions, and there are times when the first news of such a loss comes through the recognition of familiar objects.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties.—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The Usher Woke Up.

At a certain county court the judge is in his private capacity a kind hearted man. The usher of the court is aged—very aged—but as he had been a faithful servant for many years he was retained in that capacity. One morning he fell asleep in court and began to snore. The noise he made naturally disturbed court proceedings, but the judge displayed great tact in dealing with the matter.

"Usher Jones," he called out loudly, "some one is snoring."

The usher woke up. He jumped to his feet and glared ferociously round.

"Silence!" he roared. "There must be no snoring in court!"—Exchange.

FOR THE COMMON GOOD

It is the aim of The Times:

To exploit and advance the best interests of the people of the fair and fertile land wherein it is published, and to which it steadily devotes its efforts;

To stand for liberty and law, equal rights and good government, the greatest boon to a free people;

To foster and encourage private and public enterprise, and hold up the hands of every honest toiler, either with brawn or brain, in every field of activity;

To stand independently for the true interests of the city, the Dominion and the Empire, and for those policies only which make for the common good;

It aims to be excellent and not cheap.

"Doctor, what disease is the most prevalent among the poor?"

"An alarming condition in which the nerve terminations in the stomach stimulated by accumulated secretions of the gastric glands send irritations to the spinal cord by way of the pneumogastric nerve."

"Goodness! How awful! And to think that we rich people can do nothing for those unfortunate sufferers!"—Cleveland Leader.

Goldwin Smith, whose "Reminiscences" have been skilfully edited by Mr. Arthur Haultain, was a Superior Person, even to a fuller extent than Horsman reached, or a more modern instance has attained. Looking around him, commentating on men and matters, he found little that was good. His memory of the Duke of Wellington is limited to the veteran's appearance in connection with the Oxford Commission appointed by Lord John Russell, when "he seemed to proclaim his inauguration by making false quantities in reading his Latin speech and wearing his Academical cap wrong side before." Lowell he dismisses in a word. Of Emerson he writes: "I heard him read his own poetry aloud, but it remained as obscure to me as before." I note these characteristics without prejudice, rather in despite of grateful acknowledgment of rare personal compliment. Goldwin Smith quotes with approval two little japes, long since passed into currency, which, in the exuberance of youth, I fastened, one upon Disraeli, the other upon Robert Lowe. With many other authorities he accepts as a matter-of-fact a parentage of which those eminent persons were innocent. He is at his best in his early reminiscences, where the intellectual austerity of the man is mellowed by the memories of boyhood. Other interesting passages are found in the chapter devoted to the American Civil War. Outside academic circles, Goldwin Smith is perhaps best known as "the Oxford Professor" introduced by Disraeli into "Lothair" as "a social parasite." This gratuitous attack deeply wounded Goldwin Smith. "Your expressions," he wrote to Disraeli, "can touch no man's honor. They are the stingless insults of a coward." All the same the sting remained to the end. In his "Reminiscences" he finds it as difficult to keep out reference to his old enemy as did "Mr. Dick" to avoid illusion to the head of King Charles the First when drafting his memorial. In spite of, perhaps because of, certain foibles on the part of the diarist the book is full of interest.

TWO FROCKS THAT MAY NOW BE WORN UNDER A HEAVY COAT AND LATER FOR THE STREET

As soon as the holidays are over we begin to look forward to spring and new clothes. Everywhere we see charming little frocks of serge, taffetas or of the new novelty fabrics, many of them trimmed with a touch of bright contrasting silk or material, others absolutely plain except for a cluster of buttons or frills at the throat and wrists.

The frocks illustrated are suitable to be worn now under heavy coats and later will serve as smart little street costumes after the wraps have been discarded.

No. 6974 is of taffetas in dark blue, the undersleeve and vest is of blue chiffon, the frills of cream net.

These taffetas run an average of 36 inches in width and range in price from $1.25 to $3 a yard.

This frock may be copied in size 36 with 5½ yards of 36 inch material and ⅝ of a yard of allover lace or net for frills and undersleeves.

No. 7827 is a dark blue serge dress for a young girl; it is in bolero effect, has a tuck over each shoulder, diagonal closing and a four piece skirt.

Serge ranges from 50 cents to $1.50 a yard.

To copy this design for a girl of 16 it requires 4½ yards of 36 inch material.

No 6974—sizes 34 to 42.
No 7827—sizes 14 to 18.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

THE COLLAR AN EMPHASIZED FEATURE OF NEW SUITS AND FROCKS

The collar is especially important to the simple little untrimmed frock which has been so popular for the past season and promises to be so much favored for spring.

Draped and fichu effects vie for favor with the small round flat collar and the Medici design. The Japanese collar, which extends away from the neck in back and in some extreme cases flares considerably on the shoulders, seems to be approved also.

The separate vests and collars of white organdy are exceedingly smart and becoming. When worn with a dark serge or silk frock a wonderfully fresh crisp strong note is imparted to the design by the sharp contrast.

No 7967-7956 is fashioned of sheer white cotton crepe. The fichu and the shaped trimming band on the skirt are outlined with a frill of net. The close fitting drop shoulder and the frilled undersleeve which fits into a tight frilled cuff is attractive; the bowed girdle of black velvet gives an unusually smart contrast.

These crepes and novelty cottons range in width from 27 to 45 inches and in price from 45 cents to $2 a yard.

To copy this design in size 36 it requires 3⅞ yards of 36 inch material for the bodice (7967) and 3½ yards of 36 inch material for the skirt.

The material used in No. 8088 is a decided novelty and very modish. It is a crepe with a velvet stripe. The vest is of white cotton duvetyn and the collar is of fur.

This design requires for size 36 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

No 7967—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 7956—sizes 22 to 30.
No. 8088—sizes 34 to 44.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

When Rinsing Chamois Gloves

If a few drops of olive oil be added to the rinsing water your chamois or doeskin gloves will be much softer and more pliable than when rinsed in clear water. The fingers may be shaped with an ordinary curling iron if a glove stretcher is not at hand.

Use Hot Vinegar

When making mint sauce if hot vinegar is used instead of cold it will greatly improve the flavor and give the sauce better color.

Gipsy Women's Gold

Two gipsies were fined $20 each at Reigate for assault. They fought with a farmer and his men for the possession of two horses. The court was crowded with gipsies of both sexes, and the fines were paid in gold by some women.

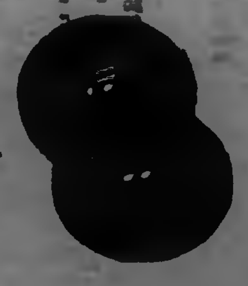
Columbia

Double Disc Records are guaranteed to have five times the usual record's life



The Incomparable Tone is Indelibly Engraved on these Durable Low Price Records

WHEN great artists sing for the Columbia—when Ysaye or Hofmann plays—when the famous bands render their inspiring music—the living tone is caught and perfectly engraved in hundreds of minute sound grooves on Columbia Records.

The material from which Columbia Records are made is the most perfectly adapted to the purpose—and, incidentally, the most expensive.

We pay more for the material and skill used in producing our records—and charge less for the perfected result. Columbia Records are made five-ply—with a reproducing surface so superior that we guarantee them to wear five times as long as any other. Read our guarantee on the record envelopes.

When Columbia Records are played on a Columbia Grafonola you hear, perfect and flawless, the actual voice—or violin—or piano—or orchestra. Even when played on other than Columbia instruments the perfection of these records is such as to produce music almost free from criticism. "It's in the record."

How to Detect the Alum Baking Powder

"Which are the alum baking powders; how can I avoid them unless they are named?" asks a housekeeper.

Here is one way: take the can of a low-priced powder in your hand and read the ingredient clause upon the back label. The law requires that if the powder contains alum that fact must be there stated. If you find one of the ingredients named alum, or sulphate of aluminum, you have found an alum baking powder.

There is another and a better way. You don't have to know the names of the alum powders. Use Royal Baking Powder only; that assures you a cream of tartar powder, and the purest and most healthful baking powder beyond question.

A Small Lindsay Fire.

Lindsay Warder: The G.T.R. car repair shop was set on fire by a spark from a passing engine about 2 o'clock this afternoon. The fire caught in the roof at the north end of the building and the damage will be slight.

A Popular Car.

The Ford Motor Co., of which Ald. J. J. Duffus is the local representative, in January turned out the record number of cars of its history. The new record is 23,937, and the best previous mark, 22,049 made in June last.

Mr. Gordon's Kick Went.

A young man who had been selling brushes was charged at yesterday's police court with a breach of the Transient Traders' Act. The Magistrate imposed a fine of $20. For the defendant, Mr. G. N. Gordon entered a vigorous kick. The fine was reduced to $10.

Changes at City Hall.

The staff of the City Engineering Department has been reduced. Miss Adamson, who has been stenographer, retired in favor of Mr. G. T. Quartermaine. The latter will undertake the duties of Miss Adamson in addition to his own. It is understood that the present staff will be kept intact for this year at least.

Change in Local Firm.

The William English Canoe Co., the "daddy" of all Peterborough canoe building, has possibly been responsible for more free advertising of this city in sporting journals all over the world than any one firm ever gave any city of similar population. The business of this company has been reorganized and will be hereafter operated by a joint stock company who will still retain the same trade name. Mr. Sam English will remain with the firm.

Old Landmark Going.

On Saturday the roof of the former Sheriff Hall Homestead, on Hunter street, was ripped off. This left the rafters bare. They had been in position for some 70 years. One could not now buy such timber for love or money, unless one spent a good deal of money. A Times scribe happened to notice that the bricks in this house which is now being torn down are thicker than the commercial brick of to-day, which averages 9x4x2 inches in size. The old bricks referred to are 2½ inches thick.

Will Dine the Ministers.

Arrangements are proceeding for the dinner to Hon. Robt. Rogers and Hon. Arthur Meighen, by the local Conservative Association, and for the meeting afterwards to be addressed by the Hon. Robt. Rogers, Hon. Arthur Meighen and J. H. Burnham, M.P., in the Grand Opera House on March 30th, when the issues of the day will be discussed. There will likely be a large attendance. The Mayor will preside.

Our Northern Forests.

An Ottawa despatch says that the Trent Watershed Survey by C. S. Howe and J. H. White, serves to exhibit the consequences of the old system of timber licenses, consequences which the commissioners declare warrant a discontinuance of that system. At the present time the pine has practically all been taken from the Trent Watershed, and fires have repeatedly swept the remaining timber growth so that it is of little commercial value, and a man-made desert has resulted over much of the area. In the townships of Methuen, Anstruther and Burleigh alone, nearly 150,000 acres of desert exist.

Did He Dope the Beer?

Lindsay Warder: Lester McGillivray came up for trial this morning after a week's remand. A further remand was given the prisoner until Tuesday, March 24th, when he will receive a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Jackson. As the offence was an indictable one, bail could not be granted according to his counsel's remarks.

The case arose out of an occurrence which transpired in a local hotel, where the accused was drinking with another party and is alleged to have put some dope in the man's beer, which fluid on examination proved to be of such a nature as to bring about sleep, or probable death.

A Narrow Escape.

An accident occurred on the "Cage Hill," Haliburton, last week, that might have been much more serious than it was. Wm. Spiers was driving down the hill, which is very steep and covered for about 40 or 50 yards with a snow shed, with a heavy load of saw-sawn hardwood lumber, when the chains broke. The top of the load and the teamster were thrown clear over the horses, while the main part of the load slid forward and buried the horses. There they remained until help was brought from the village. To the surprise of all neither man nor team was at all seriously injured, all being able to resume work the same afternoon.

An Old Local Relic.

Possibly the oldest boards with an authentic local history in Peterborough to-day are two planks now used in a fence at the home of Mr. Dave Johnston at Crawford's Grove. These planks are 30 feet long by 8x1½ inches and of spruce. They came from the deck of a steamer named the "Maggie Hales," built by Mr. Hales of Hale's Bridge. She was wrecked by an accident in the steering gear at Yankee Bonnet, near Crawford's Grove in 1834. This was the second steamer plying between Peterborough and Rice Lake. The first steamer was a "Calameran" or double hulled boat built in 1833 by Captain May, near Boswell's Distillery, near Wolfe street, and called the "Maggie May." Mr. John Johnston of Dublin remembers seeing the boiler of the "Maggie Hales" recovered from the wreck 55 years ago.

YOU'RE BILIOUS AND COSTIVE!--CASCARETS

Sick Headache, Bad Breath, Sour Stomach, means Liver and Bowels Clogged—Clean up tonight.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing too.

Some Important Facts about the Silver Black Fox Industry

The Motto of Every Canadian Should be "What We Have, We INTEND to Hold"

In so far as it applies to Canada's national wealth, our forests, and more particularly the protection of our fur-bearing animals, which, however, would soon become but evidence of a great past unless husbanded by the foresight of man.

To the foresight of Prince Edward Island's practical men two of the most famous of Canada's fur-bearing animals, the Black and Silver Fox, have been saved to future generations—and as a consequence Canada will unquestionably furnish the world's great demand in future, for this princely fur exceeds its weight in gold!

Concerted action by shrewd Canadians now engaged in this industry in Prince Edward Island will shortly control all the available Black and Silver Foxes wherever found on this continent, a fact generally conceded by persons in authority—consequently this announcement is of great interest to the careful investor and believer in Canada's vast Fur Wealth.

The first island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $4,000.00; in 1911 the price went to $6,000, a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000.00 was considered high but not unusual and at the time of writing (January 28, 1914) live breeders can bring any price from $15,000.00 to $35,000.00, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000.00 a pair.

About $10,000.00 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $3,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the Island contain 899 silver breeding foxes (441 males and 458 females). The total number of silver offspring for 1913 was 708, and the average assessed value was $4,392.52 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $3,349,449. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1,609.

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,628.00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company has TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND silver black foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option all are eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which in 1913 paid from 45 per cent to 900 per cent.

THE INDUSTRY

No industry in recent years has made such wonderful strides as the Black-Silver Fox Industry, and the reason is that it offers larger financial returns than any other business in the Dominion. Moreover, its future possesses unlimited opportunities, as the demand is constantly increasing, while the supply has reached almost a minimum until a few companies undertook the breeding and rearing of these valuable animals. Everyone who is alive to the opportunities of enormous profits without risk will readily appreciate the advantages of investing in the R. J. McNeill Black and Silver Fox Company, Limited. It is a fact that every bona fide fox company organized within the Province of Prince Edward Island has paid dividends of from 45 per cent to 300 per cent and some companies have even done better than this.

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a percentage of the production will be retained, placing the company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211-acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair and Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1912. This company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I., who were employed in the United States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $15,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $300 three years ago, and is now worth $45,000 directly from this source.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's, Limited, received $25,000 from an investment of $500 made in this business three years ago.

The Rossmount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1,000 per cent this year.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $500 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $3,500. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair for a year. The first litter consisted of seven pups. The seven owners have received $626,000 each dividends since and the pair bought for $3,500 could be sold for $35,000 to-day. Mr. Austin Scales, of St. Eleanors, is a member of this Association.

From the above it will surely be seen that the R. J. McNEILL BLACK AND SILVER FOX COMPANY, LIMITED, are engaged in business at a most opportune time and under most favorable circumstances. Take into serious consideration that our company is established, and that we have the FOXES AND THE RANCH, and not prospective. YOU ARE ENTITLED TO SEPTEMBER, 1914, DIVIDENDS; you don't have to wait for your dividends until 1915. In 1915 another dividend will be awaiting you.

REMEMBER, the average cash dividend of the above companies is 175 per cent., and there is absolutely no excuse why we cannot repeat the same.

We offered for public subscription the remaining allotment of $70,000, $30,000 has already been subscribed, $40,000 remains to be sold.

NOTICE.—Should the shares of stock not be allotted, the money paid by you will be refunded by return mail.

MR. BASSIL HALL ELECTED PRESIDENT BOARD OF TRADE

Enthusiastic Meeting Last Night Dominated by Young Blood --New President Assumes Office With Vigor and Energy--Optimistic Outlook Organization That Was All But Dead

Peterborough's Board of Trade has been resurrected and incorporated into an energetic association, dominated by young blood calculated to advance the interests of Peterborough generally. At the annual meeting last night some 60 odd enthusiastic leading citizens were present, and all pledged themselves to active co-operation with the officers this year. Mr. Bassil Hall, a young and enterprising professional man, was the meeting's unanimous choice for president the ensuing term, and his propaganda for the year 1914-15 gave ample ground for desirable activity, and enfused the assembly with a spirit of optimism which promises big Board of Trade results for this year. In fact, figuratively speaking, the members left the Council Chamber with a live determination to take their coats off and get busy.

The Board met punctually at eight o'clock, and retiring President C. H. Pennefather pointed out that while the Board of Trade had been in existence 17 years, unfortunately it had not had the solid support of Peterborough's business men. At the meeting of the Associate Boards of Trade, held in Toronto, and attended by some 160 delegates, Peterborough he regretted to announce, was lamentably lacking. But he hoped for better conditions in the future. He suggested that a permanent secretary be employed at a fixed salary Mr. Pennefather approved of. Berlin pays their Board of Trade secretary a salary of $1800 a year, which for a young and energetic man, has been proved to be money well spent. Last year Peterborough's Board of Trade, while not as active as desirable, had co-operated in introducing considerable amount of capital into Peterborough and securing early delivery of the Toronto morning papers. Mr. Pennefather here expressed his earnest conviction that the Board is about to enter upon a new and progressive regime, as evidenced by the meeting in the Bank of Montreal Chambers a few days ago, when some 24 pledged their support to the Board's reorganization (Cheers.)

SECRETARY QUARTERMAIGE RESIGNS.

Secretary T. Q. Quartermaine here resigned office, which resignation was accepted.

Mr. Pennefather thanked Mr. Quartermaine for his 16 years' faithful services and while regretting his resignation, contended that it would be in his own interests, as the services of a young man capable of devoting his whole time to the duties, in cooperation mayqe with the Retail Merchants Association, the Add Club, and other sister business organizations, is necessary.

BALANCE IN HAND.

Treasurer Jas. Hamilton's report showed a satisfactory balance in hand, consistent with the scope of business and enthusiasm prevalent last year.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Mr. Bassil Hall was here elected President for the ensuing term.

His official colleagues are;

Vice-President, W. C. Ackerman; Treasurer, Jas. Hamilton (re-elected); Secretary, A, N, Allison (until a permanent officer is secured).

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL.

The following are the nominees for Executive Council—D. W. Worth, J. John, F. L. Roy, R. F. Glover, H. P. Morgan, W. H. Munro, E. N. McWilliams, Rolans Deane, C. H. Pennefather, Gerald Rackham, G. O. Cameron, Mayor Buller, T. F. Matthews, W. O. Myers, J. J. Turner, Jr., Dr. Morrison, V. Eastwood, W. H. Bradburn, Geo. H. Gillesp e, J. J. Duffus, R. G. Sturgeon, Dr. Amys, Campbell, E. B. Boswell, W. R. Breyfogle, J. McNabb, W. H. Denham, Frank Dawson, Dr. Sutton, John Dynes, E. E. Patterson, and A. E. Coulthard.

On motion of V. Eastwood and Ald. Duffus, the Council will consist of 20 members.

The selection of 20 members from the foregoing nominees to compose a Council was left with the President, Vice-President and Secretary to report at next meeting.

REGULAR MEETING NIGHTS.

On motion of Messrs. Ackerman and Pennefather, the board will meet regularly once each month.

NEXT MEETING.

The next meeting will be on Tuesday evening, March 31st (next week).

MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN.

A five days' membership campaign will be inaugurated.

THANKS TO RETIRING PRESIDENT.

On motion of Jas. Hamilton, a vote of thanks was tendered to Retiring Pres dent Pennefather for his services last year. Mr. Hamilton said Mr. Pennefather had made many visits and accomplished much business at his own expense; but with very little support, however.

TRADE COMMISSION.

The following communication speaks for itself:

"To the Members of the Board of Trade:

"Gentlemen,—Through correspondence with the Canadian Manufacturers Association, we have made application to have the Canadian Trade Commissioner, H. P. Pousette, call on us in regard to Canadian trade. There may be manufacturers in Peterborough not members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, who may find it to advantage to have Mr. Pousette's views on foreign trade. We understand tnat he is thoroughly familiar with the requirements of different foreign centres. He is coming to Peterborough in the near future and if the Board of Trade consider it advisable, doubtless any af the members who have any export business in view would benefit by conferring with Mr. Pousette with reference to these matters.

"Yours truly,
"B. F. ACKERMAN."

PRESIDENT HALL'S PROPAGANDA.

President Bassil Hall submitted the following propaganda for the year's work, which went to the Executive Council to report on:—

We are here to resurrect the Board of Trade and to unite the forces of many men to advance the interests of business in this city. You have splendid organizations of business men, notable among which are the Retail Merchants, Manufacturers, Commercial Travellers and Trades and Labor Associations, to carry on particular branches of the work we hope to assist encourage and develop. An active Board of Trade, and by active I mean one composed of busy, successful men, filled with enthusiasm for the work being done or to be done can accomplish much for a growing city such as ours. And can be one of the chief factors in the development of the city. It can give a great deal of help to merchants, manufacturers and workmen and others, and indeed fill a long-felt want in providing a channel through which different bodies, organizations and individuals can pull together.

At the annual meeting the Board may elect twelve members to form a Board of Arbitration, and any three of such members have power to arbitrate upon and make their award in any commercial case or difference voluntarily referred to them by the parties concerned; and have power to examine on oath any of the parties or witnesses. The award of the arbitrators is binding on the parties according to the terms of the submission which they are required to make.

The Board may also appoint five persons as a board of examiners to examine applicants for the office of inspector of flour and meal or any other article subject to inspection.

The Council has power to license weighers in grain elevators in the municipalities. Those functions are seldom exercised.

The objects of the Board as stated in its by-laws are to promote just and equitable principles of trade, to correct abuses, and generally to protect the rights and advance the interests of the mercantile classes.

These general objects, as you will note, are wide, and under them may be reasonably included a number of ancillary and similar aims and objects which have occurred to me and which I will endeavor to tabulate and explain:

First—We should collect and keep recorded all kinds of information relating to the affairs of the municipality, familiarizing ourselves with the work and difficulties of the City Council and County Council; and being able to assist them when necessary and to advise them and also our government representatives of the needs of the citizens as a whole, or of organizations of citizens or individuals.

Secondly—To advise with and look after the needs of merchants, manufacturers or others, acting for them as an association of merchants, manufacturers, &c., as the case may be, met together for their common welfare. I would like to suggest in this connection that the retail merchants, manufacturers, commercial travellers, builders and labor associations become affiliated with the Board and nominate and elect representative members of their bodies to the Council with the idea of becoming branches of the board and working through it to accomplish their objects. Or that the managers of all industries be made ex-officio members of the Council.

The third aim I have in mind is to adopt and carry out a scheme for advertising the advantages of the municipality. There is a great need for some organization to take up this work. The City Clerk has been very active in this respect, but to carry on the work as it should be done requires a great deal of time and perseverance—more than one man can possibly give. And besides this, a work in which every citizen is vitally interested, and which will be more successful the more people there are engaged in it. There is lots of room for us to work w.th Mr. Armstrong to help this matter along. I would suggest that as a start we undertake the publication of a booklet or pamphlet containing a modern map of the city, together with information showing its growth, its low assessment, power advantages, business openings, rail and water facilities, manufacturing and residential advantages, its summer resorts, etc. And if the funds are available to advertise these advantages in some widely circulated advertising medium.

Fourth—To open an office where trade periodicals, architects plans and other valuable information could be kept for use of the members of the Board and the public generally.

Fifth—To establish a fund for procuring new industries which by reason of their being already located in the Province cannot be bonused by the municipality and for beautifying and improving the city generally.

Sixth—To urge the establishment of parks and public play-grounds and to encourage and promote athletics and outdoor exercise. There are numbers of vacant lots in and around the city lying idle until they are required for building. If the owners of these lots would send to the secretary particulars of their size, location and condition of surface, with an expression of their willingness to let them be used for playground or ball fields until required for other purposes, the board could undertake to see that they were put to such uses by distributing the information to the parties interested.

Seventh—To take up with the proper authorities such questions as unfair freight rates, changesin time tables of railroads, boats, improved mail, passenger, express or freight service and all mattersof a public or partly public nature.

To accomplish these object we require to have a numerically strong organization. It is only through force of numbers that we can carry sufficient weight to make the resolutions of our board the active agents we all wish them to be. It is proposed we have a campaign to enroll two thousand members for the Board of Trade this year. Surely there are two thousand business and professional men and property owners in this city of nearly twenty-five thousand people who have the interests of the city and their own interests sufficiently at heart to subscribe two dollars each for this work. With four thousand dollars in the treasury we can have an active, energetic competent secretary and carry out a number of the objects we will set ourselves to accomplish. We can open an office and lay the foundation or a fund for acquiring new industries I am informed that we have lost several very active industries owing to the fact that the city was unable to offer any financial aid to them in moving their plant from other Ontario cities where they have been located and are under disadvantages which

MEMBERS CANADIAN HOUSES INTERESTED IN ULSTER QUESTION

Ottawa, Mar. 23.—Members of the House of Commons are keenly interested in the Ulster (Ireland) situation, and trouble is feared. The Liberal side of the House here is composed of over 70 per cent. Roman Catholics, while the Conservative benches' number about 25 per cent. Catholics. Feeling in regard to the critical situation now facing the British Isles evidences itself in keeping with the foregoing percentages. Cardinal Gibbons' war-like declaration intercepts the situation.

THE HARVEY TOWNSHIP RURAL MAIL ROUTE INTERRUPTED

There has been a serious interruption of the rural mail route to Lakehurst. The courier complains of the impassible condition of the Gannon's Narrows bridge. Warden Shaw got instructions from the County Council to repair the bridge. It was expected at one time that the two Governments would contribute and the Ottawa Government had, as a matter of fact, agreed to do so. But the Council generously assumed the expense and are now up against the courier's complaints.

HARVEY PEOPLE INDIGNANT.

Mr. Scollard, of Ennismore, who has the contract for carrying the mail daily from Peterborough to Lakehurst and return, has stopped his trips. He complains that the Gannon's Narrows bridge is unsafe. He will not risk the ice, which though thick enough, is over running water and is liable to dangerous air-holes. Meanwhile Harvey is without its western mail and the people along the road from the bridge are without it also. If the township, the County, the Dominion Government and the Provincial Government had all been asked to contribute there would have been built this winter a fine new bridge, but as it is now, the result is a bad bridge and no mail. To build a bridge in winter is easy. In summer it is expensive. It looks as if it was up to Harvey to get going.

BRITISH WOMAN HINDU SPOUSE?

Registrar-General of Great Britain Warns Canadians as to Odd Laws

Ottawa, Mar. 23.—The Canadian Government is in receipt of a communication from the Registrar-General of Great Britain, dealing with the question of marriages contracted under the English law, between women of English nationality professing the Christian religion and Moslems, Hindus and other subjects or citizens of countries where polygamy or concubinage is legal. He points out that the subject is imperfectly understood by British women and it is in their own interests they should apprehend fully the risks and responsibilities attendant upon such marriages.

OTHER PRISONERS JEALOUS OF MADAME

Paris, Mar. 23.—The re-appearance before the investigating Magistrate of Madame Caillaux, assassin of Gaston Calmette, editor of The Figaro, again roused great interest in Paris today. She was taken from the St. Lazare Prison to the Palace of Justice in custody of a number of detectives and strong guards were placed in the vicinity of the law courts to prevent demonstrations.

REPORT MUTINY IN CELLS.

A mutiny was said to be simmering to-day among the 800 women incarcerated in the St. Lazare prison all of whom objected to the granting of so many privileges to Madame Caillaux. The punishment cells of the jail were reported to be filled with refractory women who continued to shriek protests against any discrimination being made. Attorneys representing a number of the prisoners awaiting trial in the penitentiary made representations to-day to the Ministry of Justice demanding that the cells should be heated and that better food should be supplied to their clients.

DISMISSED APPEAL OF MR. JUSTICE CLEMENTS

Ottawa, Mar. 23.—The Supreme Court gave judgment to-day dismissing the appeal of Mr. Justice W. H. P. Clement from the decision of Mr. Justice Cassels, of the Exchequer Court, finding the appellant guilty of having illegally collected expense accounts through charging living expenses at Vancouver when his official residence was declared to be elsewhere The Exchequer Court found that Mr. Justice Clements should have declared his official residence to be Vancouver and should not have collected expenses on the ground that he was still domiciled at his original residence. The Supreme Court this morning dismissed the appeal without costs, Justice Brodeur dissenting. Judges Duff, Anglin and Bradeur found that no fraud had been established, but on question of law the decision of Justice Anglin and Brodeur found that no Mr. Justice Clements since 1907 for expense account, aggregated several thousand dollars should be returnable to the Crown, was sustained.

LIBERAL PLAN TO FORCE FIGHT IN ULSTER EXPOSED IN HOUSE

Mr. Bonar Law Read Letters Showing General Sir Arthur Paget Had Said Actual Fighting Was Unavoidable

London, March 23.—The interest in the disaffection in the army arising out of the newest phase of the Home Rule situation was displayed in the House of Commons this afternoon when the House was crowded to listen to a statement from Colonel Seely, Secretary for War.

The communication made by Colonel Seely was very brief and utterly vague. The gist of it was that some officers had informed General Sir Arthur Paget, commander in Chief in Ireland, that they could not serve in certain eventualities. There was, he said a misunderstanding and these officers had been ordered to rejoin their regiments. The movement of troops, he concluded, was solely in order to protect the stores of Government arms and ammunition.

DISCUSS IRISH SITUATION.

Both Premier Asquith and Mr. Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, recognized the widespread anxiety for an exhaustive debate on the subject, by agreeing to a motion for the adjournment of the House immediately after the Secretary of War had spoken in order to discuss the Irish situation.

The leader of the Opposition declared that the Government's procedure was a most amazing instance of paltering with the House of Commons. The danger of the British army being destroyed before the country's eyes had, he said, come on the Government like a bolt from the blue. He had, he declared, received proof from other quarters apart from the cavalry regiments that resignations of officers had occurred.

EXPECTED INSTANT FIGHTING.

Mr. Bonar Law then read a letter stating that officers who would not fight against the Ulstermen would be dismissed from the service.

The action of the Government in moving troops. Mr. Bonar Law declared, was foolish as there was no new situation in Ulster nor any threatened outbreak.

The Opposition leader read a letter in which General Sir Arthur Paget had stated that active operations were to begin against Ulster and that it was expected the country would be in a blaze by Saturday. The Irish commander-in-chief wrote that he was in close communication with the War Office and had received instructions from headquarters.

PART OF CONCERTED PLAN.

Mr. Bonar Law asserted: "It will be difficult for the Prime Minister to convince the House that with or without his knowledge some of his colleagues did not make these movements of troops as part of a concerted plan to provoke or intimidate Ulster."

LIBERAL SENATORS VEXED WITH HON. FRANK COCHRANE

Characterizes the Canadian Ministers Attendance at Luncheon in Honor of Sir Edward Carson as Treasonable ---Government However Confident in Hon. Frank Cochrane's Loyalty to Empire--Liberal Tempest in a Teapot

In the Senate recently, Senator Choquette read a press report stating that Hon. Frank Cochrane had been among those who recently attended a function at which Sir Edward Carson was presented with an infantry fighting sword in a silver scabbard.

Senator Choquette said he was surprised to learn that a member of the Canadian Government had gone to a demonstration against the Home Rule proposals of the British Government. Especially was he surprised when it was reported that Hon. Mr. Cochrane was sick. Senator Choquette asked if the Canadian Government was against Home Rule and if Hon. Mr. Cochrane was in England representing that view for the Government. He wanted to know if the Government favored the views of those who proposed to fight against the British constitution. Senator Choquette thought that Canadians generally were loyal and would be displeased with their minister who had gone to England and associated himself with those who proposed to fight against the soldiers of the King.

CONFIDENT OF LOYALTY

Hon. Mr. Lougheed—"The government has no official information as to the movements of the Hon. Frank Cochrane, who has gone abroad in search of health, but the Government is confident of the loyalty of the Hon. Frank Cochrane and believes that the loyalty of Mr. Cochrane would be found equal to that of the Senator from Grand Mere (Choquette).

"The Government may have confidence in Hon. Frank Cochrane, but we in the Senate, the country and the Empire have no confidence in the Hon. Frank Cochrane, who left Canada on the pretence of ill-health and crossed the Atlantic to join the rebellious movement," said Senator Cloran. He added that Hon. Mr. Cochrane should be recalled by cable and disciplined.

Senator Cloran said Sir Edward Carson did not represent the views of the people of Ulster, but merely the views of a few students in Dublin. He held that it was vexatious to Canadians to find a leading Canadian minister joining hands with a man of that sort, and joining hands with him across a sword. He wanted the government to declare that it did not approve of the action of Mr. Cochrane.

AN ACT OF TREASON

"I maintain that under the present circumstances the action of Hon. Mr. Cochrane is a crime and an act of treason." It was the duty of the Government to speedily investigate, and if the facts were found to be as reported to ask Mr. Cochrane for his resignation.

This matter was also brought up in the House of Commons by Liberal members.

WANTED TO KNOW.
The Truth About Grape-Nuts Food.

It doesn't matter so much what you hear about a thing, it's what you know that counts. And correct knowledge is most likely to come from personal experience.

"About a year ago," writes an Eastern man, "I was bothered by indigestion, especially during the forenoon. I tried several remedies without any permanent improvement.

"My breakfast usually consisted of oatmeal, steak or chops, bread, coffee and some fruit.

"Hearing so much about Grape-Nuts, I concluded to give it a trial and find out if all I heard of it was true.

"So I began with Grape-Nuts and cream, soft boiled eggs, toast, a cup of Postum and some fruit. Before the end of the first week I was rid of the acidity of the stomach and felt much relieved.

"By the end of the second week all traces of indigestion had disappeared and I was in first rate health once more. Before beginning this course of diet, I never had any appetite for lunch, but now I can enjoy the meal at noon time."

Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read "The Road to Wellville," in Pkgs. "There's a Reason."

The British postmaster general is what Londoners call a universal provider, a regular department store of public functions.

He will insure your life, give you a little bank to hoard your pennies in, take care of your savings, sell you an annuity, a postal order or a foreign draft, invest your spare capital in a nice little government bond and pay a weekly pension to your aged mother or aunt.

He carries letters and other mail matter, transmits telegrams, cablegrams and wireless messages, maintains an enormous staff of messenger boys and conducts an express company business for every sort of parcel, from a halfpenny packet up to shipments of eggs, dressed poultry and fresh fish.

He collects all the worn copper coins for the British treasury. He has factories for making his supplies and an electric central station of his own in London for lighting his offices, sending the current through his cable ducts. He will sell you a license for a dog, a carriage, a motorcar or a family coat of arms, or he will put in your telephone and take care of your bellon.

At a dinner the other night the postmaster general confessed that he sometimes doubted whether he had any human personality at all. When he thought of his own functions, he said, he was appalled by them. In his official capacity he is responsible for more property than anybody else in the United Kingdom, employs far more people than any individual or corporation, prosecutes more malefactors every day than the public prosecutor and sends out every week more apologies for himself and explanations of his actions than all the rest of the British population combined.—Telephone Review.

WESTERN INDIAN BEST.

The Horse Indians Always Superior to the Forest Men.

In the early days of the C. P. R. surveys, through forests, across plains and over mountains, the Aborigine was always a factor to be reckoned with and sometimes a serious one.

The harmless eastern brand of Indians had been reduced to a tribe of mendicants. When not too lazy to breathe, an occasional muskrat or mink skin furnished a precarious existence. And when the white man came along, the crumbs that fell from his table were not despised by his red brothers, and they would often camp alongside of him and laboriously move along.

With their well-known instinct of true gallantry they would kindly permit the squaws and a small retinue of dogs, never absent, to pack heavy loads of their belongings, while the haughty chieftain strode along in the lead with nothing heavier to carry than an old musket.

Of course, this class of Aborigine, principally of the Cree persuasion, "cut no ice." He was simply regarded as an indolent, improvident, dirty, unreliable lying son of the forest. All Cooper's fairy tales fade away when you encounter the real child of nature, so different from the tall, lordly savage portrayed by the novelist, marching along, arrayed in a bunch of feathers and a coat of red paint, with his lovely consort by his side, whose simple toilet, inexpensive, but effective, consists of a string of beads; a coiffure made up with the aid of bacon grease; buckskin leggins and embroidered moccasins.

Alas! how all is changed. The wretched old ragged, pock-marked, unsanitary, insect repository who follows along your trail now, with his wrinkled old sore-eyed squaw and numerous offspring, picking up the white man's leavings, tells a pitiable tale, and shows only too plainly the decadence of the redskin.

On the Western plains, of course, different tribes are encountered. Horse Indians are invariably superior to those other decaying specimens.

Many a fine, tall, straight, upstanding, unsophisticated savage might one have encountered a few years ago, clothed simply in his right mind, mounted upon the [illegible] little well-equipped cayuse.

The different tribes were seldom, if ever, friendly, and in the old days any plains Indian would kill a Cree on sight.

The "Stonies" inhabited the Rocky Mountain ranges and seldom if ever came east of Swift Current Creek. then there were "Sarcees," "Blackfeet," "Bloods," "Pagans," and many other hard varieties.

The Hudson Six-54, $2950
(f. o. b. Detroit, Mich.)
Duty Paid.

Cost of Running HUDSON Six is Less Than a Four

Prove it for yourself. Make the best record you can with your Four. Don't deceive yourself. Be fair about it. Then come to us and ask us to show you what we can do with the HUDSON Six of proportionately the same class and horse-power. We will show you that it will cost you less to own and run a HUDSON Six than to continue the use of your Four. This may surprise you, in view of the vehement assertions of dealers who want to sell Fours. Nevertheless it is a fact capable of easy demonstration.

Until you drive a HUDSON Six you cannot realize its great advantage. Its smoothness and flexibility are an insurance as well as a delight. HUDSON Sixes are preferred because of high quality combined with moderate price. The Six-54 has four forward speeds, 135-inch wheelbase, motor 4⅛ x 5¼, developing 55 horse power. Made in Phaeton at $2950 and Sedan at $4000. The Six-40 has 123-inch, wheel-base, motor 3½x5, developing 47 horse power, gives 13 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and is, we think, the easiest riding car on the market. The Six-40 in Phaeton and Roadster at $2300, and in Cabriolet at $2575. All cars, of course, are electrically started and lighted left side drive, center control, gasoline tank in cowled dash. Catalog on request. Demonstrations as arranged. Prices f. o. b. Detroit, Mich. Duty paid.

Prince's New Nickname

"Dirty Bertie" is the latest addition to Royal nicknames. It has been bestowed upon Prince Albert by his fellow-middies on board the "Collingwood" because of his fondness for the engine room. It has been decided however, that he shall enter Trinity College, Cambridge, this autumn as an undergraduate. In Court circles it is an open secret that he looks upon this decision with great disfavor; his whole desire is to be a sailor Prince, like his father before him.

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulveney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ¼ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulveney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always affects a cure. Further information free. Send stamped envelope, telephone Parkdale 4020, or call at 167 Dundas street, Toronto. Open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Sanol BLOOD SALT

No Indigestion can exist if this remedy is taken according to instructions—and there is no known remedy to take its place.

This Blood Salt is a mixture compounded so as to resemble in essence and effect, the salty parts of the human blood. It is well known that our vitality is normally kept up by means of the natural blood salts.

Hence a lack of the latter will always superinduce a loss of the former. It is also a fact that with each quart of urine we lose about 18 grams of blood salts. Accordingly we must gradually become weak and sick, unless we provide a substitute for these salts in the blood.

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion such as Dyspepsia, Gastric Catarrh, Sour Stomach, Heart Burn, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, etc., and as an aid to digestion, in wasting and nervous disease.

Madagascar's Two Climates

The island of Madagascar has two distinct climates, two classes of natives and two classes of fauna and flora. The island is about the size of France. Along the coast it is tropical and malarious, and the natives are darker than in the interior. The interior is a high tableland and mountainous. There the climate is cooler and the natives smaller and lighter in color than on the coast. But in the interior they are more intelligent, and they rule the island.

OUR POINT OF VIEW

It is an uneventful week when a new newspaper is not launched in Montreal, and when fresh charges of graft are not made against some citizen.

SAFEGUARDING THE MAPLE SUGAR INDUSTRY

At present Canada manufactures about 22,000,000 pound of maple sugar and its equivalent in syrup, but during recent years instead of developing the industry has declined to the extent of about 2,000,000 pounds. In the industry about 50,000 farmers are concerned, but there are throughout the country thousands of maple groves which, if properly cared for, extended and worked would immensely increase the industry. The demand for the syrup is an active, and should be a growing one. It may be that lack of farm labor has hampered this industry along with others, but it seems probable that, as the farmers assert the sale of maple compounds has also had a very injurious effect, and it is hoped that during the present session of Parliament there will be passed legislation forbidding the use of the word "maple" in reference to either syrup or sugar which is not the product of the maple tree Apart altogether from the protection due to the industry itself, it seems to us that the consumer has a right to be protected against imposture, and to sell as "maple" compounds, either sugar or syrup in which the maple has no part is surely perpetrating a fraud upon the unsuspecting consumer. Better restrict the use of the term "maple" to the pure, unadulterated product of the maple tree and let syrups and sugars of other parentage stand or fall upon their own merits.

DID CHILD WAKE UP CROSS OR FEVERISH?

Look Mother! If Tongue is Coated Give "California Syrup of Figs" To Clean the Bowels.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figgs," then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Counterfeits are being sold here. Don't be fooled!

THE DEATH OF BERTHA M. CLAY

Bertha M. Clay is dead, leaving a gap in literature that will not soon be filled. In private life Bertha masqueraded under the name of Thomas W. Hanshew, and was of the sex that the Christian name implies. To many persons who had formed a mental picture of their favorite author as a somewhat soulful person attired in flowing robes the real Bertha M. Clay would have been a shock. He was, in fact, says the Mail and Empire, an extremely business-like person, well past middle age, who made novels just as another man might have made shoes. He did not wait for inspiration. but diligently turned out four books a year. and at the time of his death was hard at work to keep up with his engagements to the publisher. To the credit of Bertha M. Clay stand 200 volumes of fiction, probably a larger output than can be claimed by any author, living or dead, who was not a writer of dime novels. May Agnes Fleming and Laura Jean Libbey, who belong to the same class of literary workers, have also numerous books that bear their names, but there is some suspicion, from which the late Bertha M. Clay is not wholly free, that these names are merely publishers' symbols, that once the name of Bertha M. Clay, for instance, had become valuable, publishers would attach it to works by other and unknown authors, paying the bearer of the name for its use. Of Bertha M. Clay it has been said that he took advantage of the popularity of Charlotte M. Braeme, and adopted a name the initials of which merely reversed those of the more noted English writer. The important fact, however, is not the sex of the author, nor whether the novels of the class under discussion are the work of the persons whose names they bear. The tremendous popularity of May Agnes Fleming, Laura Jean Libbey and Bertha M. Clay is a much more important fact. That these works, trashy as they must be pronounced by even the most lenient of literary judgments, have had a wonderful influence upon tens of thousands of persons is not to be gainsaid. Their moral tone is good. They represent vice foiled and punished, and virtue triumphant. They preach the doctrine of "kind hearts are more than coronets." and "a man's a man for a' that." And though dukes and viscounts figure somewhat unduly in their pages they are as apt to be villains as heroes, and if they are of the villain class their rank and wealth do not save them from the consequences of their misdeeds. Because of the basic soundness of their moral teaching it is probably better to read these novels than to commit crimes, and if it were not for the fact that there is no great scarcity of Bertha M. Clays and May Agnes Flemings, the death of Mr. Hanshew would be regarded as even more regrettable.

Painful Swellings Reduced Muscular Strains Ended

Such Troubles Now Quickly Rubbed Away by Powerful Remedy.

If you have any muscles that are strained and weak, that are frequently subject to rheumatic pains; if you have any painful swellings that refuse to go away—get busy with Nerviline. This is the very sort of trouble that Nerviline is noted for curing quickly. "I have proved Nerviline simple a wonder in reducing a hard painful swelling. It followed an injury I received in my leg and caused me great pain and discomfort. The muscles were strained and sore, and no other remedy gave the ease and comfort I got from rubbing on Nerviline. There is a soothing, pain-relieving power about Nerviline that touched the root of my trouble. Nerviline reduced the swelling, it destroyed the pain, it brought my limbs back to perfect condition." The experience of Mr. Bowen, whose home is in Middlesex, is not unusual. Thousands are proving every day that muscular pains of every kind, chronic rheumatism, lumbago, neuralgia and sciatica will yield to Nerviline when nothing else can possibly cure. Nerviline is an old-time family pain remedy, used nearly forty years with great success. The large family size bottle costs 50c, trial size 25c. at all dealers.

MR. BASSIL HALL ELECTED PRESIDENT

a move to Peterborough would have removed. These were good industries employing many men Some of them went to towns whose boards of trade gave them the necessary help. Our board could do nothing; we had no money. Opportunities such as these will come again, and I'd like to see the Board of Trade in a position to take an active part for the advancement of the city when they do come.

I would like to see an office opened where plans of this city, information about the city's natural advantages, factory sites, power, transportation, labor and other items of interest to employers of labor would be readily accessible to any such men when they are in the city. Also it has been suggested, and wisely, that a committee should be formed to receive, entertain and escort these men on behalf of the board while here. Personally, I heartily endorse this proposal as I believe such a committee could be a great help to our already over-worked Industrial Commissioner, and would give a decided impression that Peterborough is a wide-awake enterprising city, where any manufacturer would be advancing his own interests in locating.

I should like to see a permanent secretary secured, who, on payment of a sufficient salary, could devote his whole time to the affairs of the board; or if the city appoints an assistant Industrial Commissioner, who would be able to perform the duties of secretary. I should like to see a first-class man appointed who could fill the two positions.

HEARTILY ENDORSED.

The foregoing propaganda was heartily endorsed by Mayor Buller, who amongst other things contended that a live Board of Trade could assist the City Council in many ways.

Ex-Mayor Bradburn also expressed his approval, and suggested that the Board's membership should include mechanics who are clever men with bright ideas.

Mr. W. H. Denham expressed his pleasure at the number of young men an enthusiasm in evidence, and took occasion to point out that baseball had proved an excellent advertising medium for Peterborough. The City Council, however, has as yet, contributed nothing toward the support of the team.

The Motto of Every Canadian Should be "What We Have, We INTEND to Hold"

In so far as it applies to Canada's national wealth, our forests, and more particularly the protection of our fur-bearing animals, which, however, would soon become but evidence of a great past unless husbanded by the foresight of men.

To the foresight of Prince Edward Island's practical men two of the most famous of Canada's fur-bearing animals, the Black and Silver Fox, have been saved to future generations—and as a consequence Canada will unquestionably furnish the world's great demand in future, for this princely fur exceeds its weight in gold!

Concerted action by shrewd Canadians now engaged in this industry in Prince Edward Island will shortly control all the available Black and Silver Foxes wherever found on this continent, a fact generally conceded by persons in authority—consequently this announcement is of great interest to the careful investor and believer in Canada's vast Fur Wealth.

Some Important Facts about the Silver Black Fox Industry

The first island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $4,000.00; in 1911 the price went to $6,000, a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000.00 was considered high but not unusual and at the time of writing (January 28, 1914) live breeders can bring any price from $15,000.00 to $35,000.00, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000.00 a pair.

About $10,000.00 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $3,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the Island contain 899 silver breeding foxes (441 males and 458 females). The total number of silver offspring for 1913 was 703, and the average assessed value was $4,992.53 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $3,349,449. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1,602.

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,628.00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company has TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND silver black foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option all are eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which in 1913 paid from 45 per cent to 900 per cent.

THE INDUSTRY

No industry in recent years has made such wonderful strides as the Black-Silver Fox Industry, and the reason is that it offers larger financial returns than any other business in the Dominion. Moreover, its future possesses unlimited opportunities, as the demand is constantly increasing, while the supply has reached almost a minimum until a few companies undertook the breeding and rearing of these valuable animals. Everyone who is alive to the opportunities of enormous profits without risk will readily appreciate the advantages of investing in the R. J. McNeill Black and Silver Fox Company, Limited. It is a fact that every bona fide fox company organized within the Province of Prince Edward Island has paid dividends of from 45 per cent to 300 per cent and some companies have even done better than this.

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a percentage of the production will be retained, placing the company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211-acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair and Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1912. This company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I. who were employed in the United States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $15,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $300 three years ago, and is now worth $46,000 directly from this source.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's, Limited, received $35,000 from an investment of $600 made in this business three years ago.

The Rossmount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1,000 per cent this year.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $500 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $3,500. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair for a year. The first litter consisted of seven pups. The seven owners have received $236,000 cash dividends since and the pair bought for $3,500 could be sold for $35,000 to-day. Mr. Austin Scales, of St. Eleanors is a member of this Association.

HOW TO LOOK YEARS LESS THAN YOUR AGE

The most aged face will look years younger after the use of ordinary mercolized wax for from ten days to two weeks. This remarkable substance, because of its peculiar absorptive power, actually removes the thin veil of faded or withered outer cuticle, a little at a time. Gradually the fresher more youthful skin underneath is revealed. This absorption process being a purely hygienic one, an entirely natural complexion is acquired—quite different from the artificial complexion, which appears anything but girlish, though often bearing painful evidence of childishness. An ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is sufficient to rejuvenate any complexion. It is put on like cold cream at bedtime and removed mornings with warm water.

To eradicate such age marks as wrinkles and furrows, make a wash lotion by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel. This has wonderful astringent and tonic properties. It quickly effaces all kinds of wrinkles, no matter how caused, making the skin firm, smooth and young looking.

YOUTH AND AGE.

As when a floating cloud obscures
The morning sun with sable pall,
That swift disrupting in soft floods
Fair summer's transient showers fall

A moment's gloom enwraps the sky,
Then darksome shadows disappear;
And soon with brighter beams on high
Shines forth the sun in radiance clear.

So from the careless heart of youth
Earth's deepest shadows soon decay,
And rankling wounds, all pain in sooth,
Are wept in welling tears away.

But age knows not the blessed balm
Of tears that bring a sweet relief;
Condemned to hide 'neath outward calm
The tortured soul's corroding grief.

Tho' swept by fortune's adverse blast,
That lays life's hopes and prospects low;
Or pierced by slander's venomed shaft,
Yet solace ne'er shall tears bestow.

Aye copious tears soothe trifling woe
Throughout youth's sunny, thoughtless years;
In age, alas, we only know
The bitter grief without the tears.

New, Attractive Ways to Use Left-Over Meats

By Ann Marie Lloyd

THE problem of how to serve left-over meats is one which requires knowledge of cooking to solve with palatable satisfaction to the family at large.

When the roast appears the second day in the same form (only lessened) in which it was first welcomed, the man of the house instinctively loses interest in his dinner. Cold sliced roast beef or lamb or veal is very delicious for a supper or luncheon, but no matter how daintily it may be arranged, there is something about a platter of cold meats on the dinner table which is not appealing to the masculine appetite.

There are so many simple and delicious ways of serving meats which are left-over every housekeeper should learn some of them.

There is scarcely any man who does not like hot roast beef sandwiches. And the chances of his realizing that they are part of the roast of the day before are not great.

Make a rich brown sauce and when it is cooked add to it one tablespoonful of sour pickle chopped very fine. Slice the roast beef thin. Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter and add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of made mustard. Spread the bread with this. Dip each slice of beef in the boiling hot sauce and put it on a slice of bread, sprinkle a bit of crisp diced bacon on it and add the top slice of bread. Arrange the sandwiches on a platter and pour the boiling sauce over them.

SHEPHERD'S PIE

This very delicious dish is made with alternate layers of minced roast beef and mashed potatoes, with potatoes at the bottom and the top. Pour plenty of very rich gravy over each layer of meat to moisten without being sloppy. Dot the layers of potatoes with butter. Brown in the oven.

BEEFSTEAK PIE

This is equally good made with roast beef. Use about two cups of beef cut into inch squares. Put it in a medium size baking dish, which is usually the quart size, and season with half-teaspoonful of salt, a little pepper and half a cup of cooked tomatoes. If tomatoes are not liked, omit them and use enough extra gravy to make up the moisture. Some like a finely sliced small onion in place of the tomatoes.

For the gravy use the regular cold gravy of roast beef diluted with an equal quantity of hot water. Use a full cup.

For the crust make a rich baking powder biscuit dough. Here is the right proportions for a quart dish pie: Half a cup of flour into which is sifted a teaspoonful of baking powder. A tablespoonful of butter, a little salt and milk enough to mix. Cover the crust over the meat and bake until it is done. Then serve at once.

VEAL CROQUETTES

One of the most delightful ways of using up bits of cold veal is in the form of croquettes.

Take two cups of veal, one cup of stock, two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice, a dash of cayenne and salt and pepper. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter and cook four tablespoonfuls of flour in it. Season the meat with the salt, pepper and lemon juice. Add the stock gradually to the flour and butter. Put the meat in the mixture and let it come almost to the boiling point. Then remove from the fire and set aside to cool. Shape into small rolls.

If the mixture should be too moist add fine bread crumbs. Roll in crumbs, then in egg, then in crumbs and fry two minutes in smoking hot fat. It is well to use the frying basket for croquettes. Be sure the fat is smoking hot, or the grease will soak into the food.

This recipe is equally good for lobster and chicken croquettes.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Miss Laurie:

I am only 16, but I have the nicest sweetheart that ever was. He is so good to me, and I wear his fraternity pin.

His mother rings me up repeatedly to plead for him that I should come and see him, as he has a broken knee. My guardian is so cross and huffy I hate to ask her, so will you help me?

His mother says she will stay in the room all the time.

A SCHOOLGIRL.

WELL, well, well—what a lot of worry over nothing, Little School Girl. I don't see how you can have such a thing as a real sweetheart at your age—but you can have a real friend, and what in the world should keep you from going to see a real friend when he is ill and his mother is right there in the room with him every minute?

A girl should never visit a man—never, never, never—don't let anything get that one rule out of your head—unless the circumstances are just exactly what the circumstances are in this particular case. Then I don't see how you can help going to see him—and be a real friend. Put on your prettiest frock, set that little red tam o'shanter of yours on one side of your curly head—oh, yes, your hair is curly, I can tell by the curly letters you write—pin that wonderful fraternity pin on the most conspicuous place on your coat, buy him a nice red rose and go and see your sick friend.

Take a friend of your own with you, an older girl—if possible a married woman; anybody you know will be glad to go with you. There's nothing dangerously exciting about a 10 minutes' visit to a sick room; telephone your friend's mother that you are coming, give her plenty of time to have son's hair combed and his face washed and to be sitting right by his bedside when you come in.

Don't stay long and don't talk much—and you'll be none the worse for the visit. But don't you dare go a step without an older person with you and without telephoning the mother so that she will be sure to be there.

Happy days, Little School Girl, and many of them.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her care this office.

The Kind of Girl a Man Likes

BY NORVELL ELLIOTT

The Girl with a Sense of Humor

AS we rang the bell at the Gladstone my bachelor friend and I repeated, almost with one thought: "Poor Kate—she's certainly up against it!"

Three minutes later Kate's mother had welcomed us into their little apartment and Kate, looking very thin and tired after her three weeks at a local infirmary, held out her frail little hands to both of us.

"You blessed creatures," she exclaimed, "to run in for a chat with poor little appendicitis me!

"Positively I feel as though I had turned to an appendix—an appendix of my former self anyway. A whole year of anxiety fearing the operation—that frightful scare when I knew it couldn't be put off longer—those weeks at the hospital and even now—honestly, people—you don't know what it means to think, live and be appendicitis for 12 faithful months. It's fierce!"

But, somehow, in spite of its "fierceness," Kate's unlimited sense of humor had stood her in good stead and, for a half-hour, she kept both my bachelor friend and myself in a constant state of laughter over the droll episodes which occurred at the hospital. When she described fat old Dr. Shepherd in his operating robes we positively "exploded," and it was not until afterwards that we realized the sense of humor it must have taken for Kate to keep a clear head when the little white funnel was administering its dose of unconsciousness.

"Kate has cultivated that sense of humor," said my bachelor friend, as we climbed into his waiting car. "Don't you remember the time when she took everything seriously and wept if a lock of hair got out of place? She's a different girl now—and gracious! but she's ten million times better company!"

"She certainly is," I agreed. "You men all like her, and as for her girl friends, well, to say we're crazy over her is putting it mildly."

"And it's the sense of humor that [illegible] it all," answered the driver of the car, as he steered the machine smoothly through the crowd of other vehicles. "It really is, lass. A sense of humor is one of the greatest gifts of God, and one of the queer things about it is it can be cultivated. At best, life is a pretty strenuous thing. Women as well as men live at a rapid pace nowadays and friction in one way or another is coming up at every corner. The girl who can see the humor in an otherwise nerve-racking situation has a trump card up her sleeve which will save the game.

"You can't make things better by being serious. A long face only tends to awaken pity—and that is something nobody on earth wants. The girl with a sense of humor not only feels happier herself, but makes everybody around her feel better, too. It's contagious.

"I can't tell you the number of times this last year Kate has been a perfect blessing to me. You know my hot temper and the scrapes it is always getting me into. But, just let Kate hear about some incident which, to me, seemed tragic and the way she handled it took all the seriousness off in a second. One remark, one droll look from her eyes, one expression on her face, and I would see the situation in its true light.

"That's the way it is with the other men; all of us admit her popularity is dependent upon her ability to see things from a truly humorous standpoint. She never tries to be facetious or witty; just says what she thinks. The bottom of it all is she thinks humorously.

"The truth is, lass, the serious girl is out of date, don't you think? There are times when she must be serious, but, on general principles, the girl people like to have around is the girl who takes them out of themselves with her gift of humor. A man feels he is perfectly safe in marrying such a girl. He knows she won't go into hysterics if the cook does not show up some morning, or weep when he tells her expenses must be cut down. For the girl with a sense of humor isn't that kind. Her trump card will win the game for both and every [illegible] her partner."

BEAUTY'S BEST AID IS LAUGHTER

Audrey Maple, of the "High Jinks" Company

Yawns and Sneezes Also Valuable, Says Actress

By CECILE MANNING

"A LAUGH, a yawn and a sneeze," said Audrey Maple, when some serious-minded person asked her for a beauty rule.

"Laugh away your troubles, yawn away your bores, and sneeze away your fears. But don't take it for a good obesity cure. The chances are, if you try the rule persistently, you will have to let your waist measure out. When the average American woman has no worries and no fears and is not bored she is so deliciously happy she promptly celebrates her blessedness by adding to her weight.

"However, if you want to have a mind free from unhappiness and store up the reputation of sweetness in the minds of all who know you, it is a grand rule to follow.

"If you will laugh when, by all the regular beliefs you should be worrying yourself into a wrinkled, premature old age, you will find the way out of your troubles. All of a sudden the sun will break through the clouds, and the way will be cleared of all obstructions. If you carry your heart on your sleeve and your cares on your face you'll have a lonely life. The daws may peck at your heart till their curiosity is satisfied, but they will soon tire of it, and when folks see your long, narrow, woebegone countenance headed their way they'll have errands in another part of town.

"But everybody falls for the laugh. And if you laugh with your heart as well as your mouth, and put more infection than noise into it, others will laugh, too, and then when you tell them you laugh because the mortgage on the old farm is going to be foreclosed and you have no place to go and nothing to eat, and you never were in quite such a desperate plight in all your life—you just can't help laughing when you think how funny you will look sitting out in the park with your belongings tied up in a sable scarf and the parrot and poodle keeping you company—oh, dear, isn't it perfectly killing to think of? Why, the chances are the farm will be saved, for fear you'll laugh yourself to death if it isn't, and you'll be sitting by the grate fire with all your friends singing 'She's a jolly good fellow.'

"As for bores, a yawn, if made sufficiently strong and prolonged, and repeated at frequent intervals with allopathic generosity, there are few bores so callous they won't flee. At any rate, they will catch the yawning spirit and won't be able to talk. Besides, yawning is perfectly beautiful for a beautifier. Yes, indeed, I really owe much to yawning. It exercises muscles of the face which would otherwise become atrophied. It clears your mind of cobwebs. You can think better after a good yawn. Try it.

"Then sneezing away fears. It is the best way in the world to get rid of false fears. Whenever I have a fear of anything I sneeze—on the stage or off. If it is right in the midst of a song and I have a fear that I can't reach a note or have forgotten the words I find a sneeze is good stage business. Almost anything that gets a laugh in an act is valuable.

"There is some real good reason for sneezing. I believe the doctors say it liberates germs. Then it must be humane. For isn't it kindness to set the little germs at liberty?

"Seriously, the sneeze will give you courage. It seems to drive your funk away. I suppose it relieves mental tension. We all have too much of that. Relaxation is what the whole American nation needs to cultivate."

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Are Women Cheats?

LEONA DALRYMPLE

I SUPPOSE most men build certain air castles about women. The feminine sex is a subtle one, and we male beings, I take it, frequently attribute virtues to the daughters of Eve that they do not possess.

For instance, I have always believed that there were certain petty forms of cheating in which a woman—being a woman and therefore something a little finer than mere man—would not indulge, but I am learning differently.

"Peter," said Mary one twilight, "do smell this. Isn't it wonderful? Some new kind of sachet. Mrs. Winter sent it over and asked me to see if I like it."

I sniffed it casually. I hate fussy things like sachets and bags of scent, and I don't see why women like them. But they do.

"It's all right as that sort of stuff goes," said I cautiously.

"Mrs. Winter said if I liked it she would buy me some. It's a dollar a pound. She gets it at a very special place."

"Do you like it?" I asked.

"Yes," said Mary with enthusiasm, "I'm just crazy about it. Shall I get some, Peter?"

I wonder how many dollars slide out of a woman's pocket over such fuss and frivol as this? Like any other man, I assented. It was enough for me that Mary wanted it.

For a week or so afterward everything I drew forth from my bureau drawers smelled of that accursed sachet. It was perniciously penetrative, too. [illegible] my socks were faintly perfumed, and I took to surreptitiously airing my things out the bedroom window before I put them on.

One morning at the office I became suddenly conscious of that insidious, sickening perfume and colored guiltily. The air fairly reeked with it. I was pretty sure it was either my linen collar or my shoes, for everything else had been aired unless—horrible thought! Mary had taken to sprinkling it in my coat pockets. I turned to a nearby window in some disgust, sniffing as I did so. The warm air that came in bore in it a more wholesome scent of flowers. One of the stenographers smiled demurely.

"Don't you like my new sachet, Mr. Hunt?" she inquired.

"So that was it," I laughed.

"Well, frankly," said I, smiling, "I don't mind it so much on somebody else. I thought it was on myself."

"Seventy-five cents a pound!" she boasted pleasantly, "and very reasonable, too, I think. It's brand new, and we're all crazy about it."

"Mary," I said that night, "just how much did Mrs. Winter charge you for that new sachet she got at—er—a very special place?"

"A dollar a pound," said Mary, "and she gets some sort of discount through her husband. I was very fortunate."

I snorted.

"One of our stenographers," I suggested bitingly, "bought the self-same thing for 75 cents."

Mary colored furiously.

"Do you know, Peter," she confided after an embarrassed interval, "I—I wouldn't be the least surprised if—if it's true, horrid as it seems. Mrs. Winter sent her Johnny over this morning to ask me if I would lend her some of my sachet because all of hers was gone, and I sent the bottle over to her. Peter, dear, it did honestly have quite a little in it, but do you know almost before I realized it, Johnny was back with the bottle, and he fairly shoved it at me. 'Mother,' he said, snickering in a horrid way, 'mother says just dump that out on a paper and see what you call quite a little!' Just as if there were only a grain, Peter, and she was insulted. There was fully a tablespoonful. If—if she was horrid enough for that she'd likely cheat me, too!"

So Mrs. Winter had charged Mary a dollar for 75-cent sachet, and then, balked in her desire to borrow considerable back, had grown slightly acidulous. Who says women are not guilty of petty forms of cheating and dishonor?

Sayings of Children

Boarding school teacher—And now, Edith, tell me the plural of baby.

Edith (promptly)—Twins.

Little Johnny—I made 5 cents, dad.

Brown—That's right, my boy. I like to see traits of industry in the young. How did you make it?

Little Johnny—That boy next door bet me a nickel I couldn't take my new watch to pieces.

Flossie had been presented with a box of French candy.

"Now, Flossie," said her mother, "you have eaten all that you ought to. You can have one piece more, and then we will put the box away until tomorrow."

"Can I have any piece I like?" asked Flossie.

"Yes; take the kind you like best."

Flossie hesitated. "Well, mamma," she said finally, "if I take the kind I [illegible] can I have two pieces?"

"Freddie, why did you drop the baby on the floor?"

"Well, I heard everybody say it is a bouncing baby, and I wanted to see it bounce."

Little Bess (who is so much accustomed to see baby creep that she thinks it is his normal mode of travelling)—Oh, mamma, come quick! Baby is standing on his hind legs.

Terse Answers to Readers Who Seek Health Advice

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D., (Johns Hopkins).

Copyright, 1914, by L. K. Hirshberg.

SO great a number of readers of this paper have written Dr. Hirshberg asking for advice that the customary space allotted daily for his replies has proved inadequate. Where stamped, addressed envelopes have been enclosed, he has answered direct, but the great majority has asked for answers in these columns.

Today, in order that he may advise more than a fortunate few of his "reader-patients," and in place of his regular article, Dr. Hirshberg gives his entire attention to as much as possible of his delayed correspondence.

G. L. F.—I have a shiny, greasy skin. My nose is red and oily.

In many cases indigestion and constipation are the causes of a greasy skin and a red nose. The skin should have at least one vigorous scrubbing daily with warm water and a rough washcloth. In addition to this, it is often well to sponge off with alcohol.

* * *

Mary G.—Will you kindly advise what to do for my hair? It is so oily that I can never arrange it properly.

Powdered bicarbonate of soda, one-quarter ounce; borate of soda powdered, one-quarter ounce; distilled water, 20 fluid ounces. Use this daily.

* * *

Mrs. E. H.—How should a woman of 60 who weighs 216 live? "Systolic" blood pressure 25 and "diastolic" 75. What will reduce this pressure?

If you are in good health, as seems to be the case, do nothing. Your blood pressure is just right. Eat about half as much as you used to.

* * *

D. J. W., Philadelphia—My nose drops a funny fluid and I always have headaches. What shall I do?

The frontal bone in your forehead is no doubt choked up with mucous. This causes your headaches. Go to the nose department of the University Hospital and have a little channel made which will drain that matter out. Go at once.

* * *

W. C. M.—I am 61 and suffer with lumbago. What do you advise?

Lactic acid bacilli in tablet form and the application of hot boracic acid water and mustard plasters.

* * *

L. S., Bridesburg, Pa.—Two blister-like swellings on both upper eyelids. What shall I do?

Go at once without delay to the eye clinic of Jefferson Medical College. Do not neglect the condition.

* * *

F. H. W.—A wart on the end of a finger is bothering me. What shall I do?

Bathe your finger in hot vinegar two or three times a day and paint collodion on it at night. To one ounce of collodion there should be added 10 grains of salicylic acid.

* * *

H. Q. H., Philadelphia—Can blood pressure be increased if it is below normal? I'm 40. What habits and diet are good for over-acid stomach? What is good in emergency of heart affecting the stomach? What causes wind bags under eyes?

Yes. Tonics, physical culture, dancing and tennis playing will do this. Muscular, outdoor industry, plenty of sleep, no smoking and no drinking. Heavy breakfast and hardly anything else the rest of the day. Charcoal. Dissipation, loss of sleep, overeating.

* * *

Mrs. Macd., Toronto—My son, 12 years old, has nasal catarrh. Is there a home cure?

There is no home remedy. He, no doubt, has some spongy tissue growing in his nose. This can be safely and quickly removed at the University Hospital.

* * *

Mr. J. H., West Toronto—Your excellent lecture on shock leads me to ask whether, in the case of two teeth to be filled, this local anaesthetic can be used.

There is no doubt but that you can now with novocain have your teeth filled in comfort and without shock. Kindly request your dentist to use it?

* * *

B. S.—What can be done as I sleep with my mouth open? My tonsils and adenoids were removed some time ago.

Have your nose perfectly clear at night. If necessary, irrigate it with warm water in which there is half a teaspoonful of salt to a tumbler of water. Then put two thick straps of adhesive plaster over your teeth or lips and thus hold them closed every night for two months.

* * *

M. R.—Is it safe to remove blackheads with keys, metal instruments with holes in them, or to press them out with the finger nails?

No, that is what makes pimples, boils, acne and blood poison. It is better to dissolve them out with glycerine and benzoin, or massage them out with sterilized surgical gauze.

* * *

V. S.—What is a good sulphur ointment for the hair?

One dram of sulphur, half an ounce of petrolatum and half an ounce of lanolin is a recognized sulphur ointment.

* * *

R. F. Van D., Evanston, Ill.—Do dark rings about the eyes indicate derangement of health? Are they undesirable in young girls or women and in one who looks toward matrimony?

Dark rings around the eyes are never a serious trouble. Nor are they undesirable in one who looks toward matrimony. On the contrary, they are here a sign of life and vigor.

Excitement, worry, loss of sleep, late hours and emotional exaltation all produce them.

* * *

H. E., Sheridan, Ind.—Three professors and other doctors have pronounced my case chronic indigestion. They [illegible] all good at naming it, but no good in helping me. I'm in fear and worry all the time. Can I be helped?

Yes. Drink kumyss, locak or one of the other cloverlike sour milks. Take imported French charcoal and oxide of magnesia whenever you are anxious or feel badly.

Change your occupation of the last 10 years and do outside work on a farm or in the sunlight for two years. Play golf, swim, row, dance and eat a mixed diet. Chew all meat 30 chews before you swallow it. Chew everything in proportion.

* * *

W. A. R.—What will stop stuttering?

You can only learn to stop stuttering as you learn to do finger exercises on the piano. That is, by three or four years' practice. People are patient enough to learn the piano, but they do not try with equal ardor to learn to speak properly.

Before you speak, before you open your mouth, you must think slowly and carefully of what you wish to say. Then drone it or hum it as a cantor in a synagogue, a grand opera singer in his speaking parts, or a priest in the cathedral does.

Do not sing, mark you, but just intone the words without melody or pitching the voice. It will take three years possibly, to learn these "Czerny exercises" of the tongue.

* * *

L. H. K.—

1—How can I know when I eat too much meat?

2—Isn't the body provided with means to get rid of all excess foods?

3—Should indoor workers eat less starch?

4—Edison says 16 ounces of food daily is enough. Is this true?

5—What is the minimum amount of nitrogenous food?

6—Is it true that people generally do not eat enough fat?

1—Too much meat may keep you thin, raise your blood pressure, keep you irritable, nervous and excited.

2—Persons in good health [illegible] care of all kinds of harmful foods.

3—If indoor workers are active, they can burn up all the starch eaten.

4—Thomas A. Edison is a great inventor, but one inventor's eating habits will not make a universal rule for young, hard working people.

5—The minimum amount of "nitrogenous" food differs for different people, different ages, different occupations, different sexes and other different things.

* * *

J. A. D.—What is good on a red nose?

Do not eat fats, greases or fried victuals. Cut out all liquors and tobacco and apply menthol camphor ice to your nose before you venture out of doors. Also stop all sweets, seasoning and salts.

* * *

W. H. T.—I have pains and aches which are called "rheumatism." I doubt this.

Massage, baths, osteopathic manipulation and electric treatments will help you. One pound of food a day is enough for a man of your age, who is not at work outdoors. Cut down your pabulum.

* * *

W. J. F.—What is good for falling hair in a dry scalp?

The head should be massaged by moving the scalp with the ends of the fingers. Apply resorcin ointment twice or three times a week.

* * *

Ida I.—Does biting and puckering the lips hurt the complexion?

It does not exactly injure the complexion, but it permanently deforms the lips and nose. It makes the lips [illegible] and it pulls the tip of the nose down in a parrot fashion.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties.—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

Bathing Machines.

Somebody has inquired why "bathing machines," the comfortable privacy of which for ocean bathing has never attracted bathers in this country, are called machines, remarking that there is nothing of a machine about them except the horse which draws them to the beach. The answer has been found in the new Oxford Dictionary. It appears that a "machine" was originally a "structure of any kind, material or immaterial," and has nothing to do with machinery, a later word. Ships were called machines, and it would have been proper to speak of a pulpit as a machine.—Argonaut.

FOR THE COMMON GOOD

It is the aim of The Times:

To exploit and advance the best interests of the people of the fair and fertile land wherein it is published, and to which it steadily devotes its efforts;

To stand for liberty and law, equal rights and good government, the greatest boon to a free people;

To foster and encourage private and public enterprise, and hold up the hands of every honest toiler, either with brawn or brain, in every field of activity;

To stand independently for the true interests of the city, the Dominion and the Empire, and for those policies only which make for the common good;

It aims to be excellent and not cheap.

A COAT IN DROP-SHOULDER STYLE

Tunics are becoming to nearly every figure unless it be short and unusually stout, and even then there are styles of the tunic that would be becoming, so it is deservedly popular. These tunics or overskirts are long or short, draped or pointed and often they are merely applied bands cleverly arranged to look like an overskirt. All is fair this season as long as the effect is obtained.

No. 9034 is an attractive example of the applied circular trimming band, which gives the effect of a tunic. The smartly draped sash adds to the impression. For this costume tete de negre bengaline is used with trimmings of the same colored satin.

It requires 4⅞ yards of 36 inch material to copy this gown in size 36.

The drop-shoulder is a fashion feature favored by almost every one. It gives a smart air to the simplest frock or suit and is, as a rule, becoming.

In this instance (9060) it appears on a coat. Black velveteen fashions the suit, and the collar and cuffs are of ermine.

To copy this coat (9060) in size 36 it requires 3⅜ yards of 42 inch material. The skirt (7807) requires 2¾ yards of 36, 40 or 54 inch material, without up and down, for any size.

No. 9034—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 9060—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 7807—sizes 22 to 30.

A HANDY COAT MODEL FOR SPORTS OR MOTORING WEAR.

A loose coat of warm, light weight material will be found very convenient even in the midst of summer to slip on over a light suit or frock. They are especially practical for out of doors sports or motoring.

Golfine, Duvetyn or one of the numerous other velours which come in so many delightful shades are perfectly suited to these coats, and they are most becoming. No. 8227 shows a raglan shoulder and a belt, which forms a pocket on either side of the cutaway front. It is fashioned of an apricot velours with collar and cuffs of plaid in which there are several other darker, harmonizing shades. This coat requires for size 36 3⅝ yards of 42 inch material.

The suit displayed in No. 7810-7811 shows one of the new short coats and a straight lined skirt with a shaped band at the bottom corresponding with the one at the bottom of the coat. A light weight wool crepe was used in this suit in a soft shade of green.

To make this suit in size 36 the coat requires 2⅜ yards of 36 inch material and the skirt about 4 yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8227—sizes 32 to 44.
No. 7810—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 7811—sizes 22 to 30.

CAMEL POLICE OF EASTERN AFRICA

They Resemble North West Mounted Police in Their Duty

Curiosity has been expressed as to what are the functions of a camel corps. In reality the camel corps is a force of military police whose "beats" extend over hundreds of miles of desert land beset with hidden dangers. They are the hardest worked and the bravest guardians of law and order in the world.

The corps, to the number of nearly 800 men, is composed entirely of blacks—splendid types of British East Africans, chosen specially for their strength and endurance. These men are commanded by eight British officers. Officially their duty is to patrol the 1,000 miles of coast line from Suez to the Gulf of Aden, to suppress native disorders.

An officer of the Egyptian army gives some interesting details of the camel corps and its work. "British officers who join the camel corps are men who want excitement and danger and plenty of it," he says. "The official headquarters of the corps are at Cairo, but the men are seldom or never seen there. They work principally from Aden, but have no set instructions.

"Whenever there is trouble or sign of trouble among the native tribes there the camel corps goes. Always they ride with their rifles ready to hand, alert and on the watch for the dusky enemies who know so well how to hide in the desert." The duties of this splendid force are, in fact, analogous to those of the famous Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

A LOGICAL INVESTMENT
For the Small or Big Investor, Because

Your investment is in the heart of Toronto, at 88 Yonge St., just adjoining the new Royal Bank Building, the highest building in the Empire, on the corner of King and Yonge Streets; also, people must always eat, and again you see the actual operation of your money. Hundreds of people hold stock in our Company, and the balance should be quickly taken up. Everybody knows the profits in the restaurant business. The biggest financial men in the States are putting their surplus earnings into them. Why not you?

The present Company, capitalized at $250,000, is expected to cover the needs of Ontario, as it is estimated that five restaurants will be enough for this purpose, divided approximately as follows:

Toronto 2
Hamilton 1
London 1
Ottawa 1

This, of course, is subject to any change that the Board may think expedient.

It must be borne in mind that this Company is the Parent Company, and after it is established it is our intention to form subsidiary Companies in each one of the Provinces.

PROGRESS OF AVIATION

Passenger Machines Are Proving Successful

Big aeroplanes are the most striking development in aeronautics—six-passenger, eight-passenger, and even ten-passenger machines having made successful flights. Many theorists have recently declared that there are physical limits to the size of successful aeroplanes, and that these limits have nearly been reached; but on the practical side the development continues.

One Russian aviator has made long flights with a machine having a wing-span of more than 100 feet. The latest model in Wright machines, in contrast, has a span of only 36 feet; and the span of the highspeed French machines is much less. The Russian aeroplane carries ten passengers, all seated comfortably in an enclosed car. Four hundred horsepower is used to turn four propellers.

A tandem biplane recently tried out on the Seine in France, adapted to rise from the water, weighs more than three tons loaded, and is driven by three engines developing 400 horsepower. Two sets of wings have a span of 66 feet each. Machines are now being constructed to carry twelve and fourteen passengers.

Germany's Population Grows

Germany will have 80,000,000 inhabitants in 1930, twice its population when the empire was founded in 1871, according to an estimate based on the final statistics for the Empire for 1912. The non-Prussian states have come to the rescue with 2,000 more births than in 1911, offsetting the decrease of 3,040 in births in Prussia, on which such gloomy assumptions of Germany's stagnation in population were based when the Prussian statistics were published last.

DECORATED MOTOR CARS

Pictures and Bric-a-brac Used in the Interior

A new mode has been started in Paris for decorating the inside of closed motor cars with tiny but exquisite oil paintings, mounted in suitable frames. There is, in fact, a marked tendency in Paris at present to evolve what may be called the drawing room car. Any fine afternoon will show one a dozen cars in the Bois, many of them painted in such unusual shades as heliotrope or lilac, of which the interior has been fitted to resemble as much as possible a tiny boudoir. This fashion, which began with one or two well known actresses, is spreading through society.

The windows of the cars are draped with little silk curtains and dainty gauze blinds. Instead of the ordinary leather seats there are gilded armchairs of silk tapestry and brackets for scent bottles, dainty powder boxes and lip pencils. There are inlaid writing tables that draw out from the wall. Flower baskets are everywhere and a tiny bookcase holds a miniature set of leather-bound volumes or light novels to beguile odd moments of waiting outside shops. There are footstools to match the chairs, and a hassock and cushions for the pet Pekinese of the car's mistress.

To Turn Balloon

A series of hangars for the British army's dirigible balloons is proposed that will radiate from a central turntable, like a railroad roundhouse, the turntable being provided to receive a balloon from any angle.

To Move Pianos

For transporting pianos a California dealer has built a two-wheeled trailer to be towed behind his automobile.

DANISH EEL FARM

Breeding Eels For Market Proves Very Profitable

There has been established on the coast of Denmark an eel farm, which is proving a profitable undertaking.

Within an embankment there are 300 acres of water, most of it about two feet deep. The surface of the water is a few feet above the level of the fiord, which lies on the other side of the embankment, and which has practically no tidal changes. The water of the lake is fresh, and the fiord water is fairly salt.

When the eel-fry put in an appearance in the fiord, at the end of their long journey from the breeding grounds in the Atlantic ocean, the owner lowers a rough crate heaped full of water weeds across the front of the sluicegate. He then raises the gate so that a stream of fresh water flows through the crate and down a sloping channel to the fiord. The elvers, in search of fresh water, make their way up stream into the crate, and remain entangled among the weeds, which every now and then are lifted, spread out, and shaken over a piece of very fine-meshed net.

Mr. Nielsen collects the elvers in this way, instead of letting them have a free run to the lake, in order that he may know exactly how many he puts in every year.

NEW LUTHERAN BIBLE

Result of Seven Years' Work But Has Few Real Changes

A new edition of the revised Lutheran Bible of 1892 has now been published. It is the result of seven years' work and was undertaken at the suggestion of the German Bible Societies, which held a conference at Halle in 1906.

The difference between the new edition and the revised version is in the main purely literary, but a few alterations of sense have been made in unimportant passages.

After consultations between the Bible societies and the Evangelical Church committee the principal work was done by an expert committee of six, including Prof. Kawerau, the well known church historian of Berlin, and the German scholar, Prof. Bremer, of Halle, which was appointed by the church committee in 1906 and worked under the supervision of Dr. Ackermann, the chief court chaplain of Dresden.

The experts' task, as prescribed by the Eisenach Church conference in 1906, was simply to modernize the spelling and punctuation and to remove "confusing archaisms." The revisors were recommended to be tender in their treatment of archaisms, many of which it was considered, "could not be removed without damage being done to the peculiar power and sanctity of Luther's Bible."

Subsequently more systematic revision was suggested, so that they considered it their task also to pay regard to rhythm and euphony, and in particular to the distinction between plain narrative style and the elevated diction of poetry.

COUNT TEN! BAD COLD RELIEVED FIGURE THREE HOURS--COLD CURED

Never a Failure with Catarrhozone; It Cures Completely.

Don't sniffle and sneeze with a nasty cold. Kill it at once by "Catarrhozone." It's the surest thing on colds ever known; simply knocks them out in no time. The medicated vapor of CATARRHOZONE spreads through all parts of the breathing organs, and its beneficial action is felt instantly. Doesn't matter whether the cold is in the head, chest or lungs, Catarrhozone will reach and cure it quickly.

Easy to use—you bet it is—not a single drug to take because you simply breathe in the most healing and soothing of piney vapors that come from the wonderful Catarrhozone inhaler.

"I can cheerfully testify that Catarrhozone is simply a magical cure for colds," writes P. F. Clement of Augusta. "For days last winter my head was completely filled up with cold. My eyes ran water. I sneezed and coughed constantly. I took many medicines. I was sick of the sight of them. Finally, I tried Catarrhozone. Its effect was magical. It soothed the inflamed membranes, stopped the sneezing, and cured in no time. I never met anything to kill acold like Catarrhozone."

Get the complete $1.00 outfit; it does the work quick. Small size 50c; trial sample size 25c. at dealers everywhere.

Former Local Man Home.

Mr. William Taylor, the man who sustained several accidents here, whereby he lost both legs is back to the city for some two weeks. He has recently been operator in a moving picture house in the little horse-show and Yankeeized town of Cobourg. Mr. Taylor, two years ago was operator in the Crystal Theatre, now the Red Mill.

Good Vaudeville at the Royal.

Yesterday, one of the cleverest slack wire acts ever seen in Peterborough was on at the Royal Theatre. This was that of the celebrated Barriers. A man and his little dainty assistant, who has a form that would appeal to any live and up-to-date sculptor, do marvelous stunts on the slack wire. Monocycle, bicycle acts and club swinging of high class are shown. The pair certainly "got the hand" through their entire act.

Lindsay Didn't Like Her.

Lindsay post: The young woman sent to the Mercer Reformatory on Thursday by Police Magistrate Jackson and who was found on G.T.R. property with a local young man, is a married woman, and her husband is a wel,-to-do resident of Toronto, visited Lindsay recently in order to ascertain how the woman was conducting herself. He received sufficient information to convince him that she was not walking the straight and narrow path, and on his return to Toronto he engaged the services of a detective, who came to Lindsay and traced her on to the G.T.R. property where she was in company with the aforesaid young man.

TELLS HER SUFFERING SISTERS TO FIND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Mrs. Jas. B. Roy was Ill for Two Years and the Doctor Could Not Help Her—Now She Found a Cure.

Tremblay Settlement, Gloucester Co., N.B., Mar. 23.—(Special).—Mrs. James B. Roy, an estimable lady, well known here, has made the following statement for publication:

"For two years I suffered from an extreme weakness and an awful pain in the back. Sometimes my back was so weak I could hardly walk. I was always nervous, I had no appetite and I was failing very fast. I took medicines from a doctor, but continued to grow worse.

"Then I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and soon began to improve. By the time I had finished the third box I was completely cured. I know I owe my cure to Dodd's Kidney Pills and I want all sufferers to know that they also may be cured."

Mrs. Roy's symptoms showed that she had Kidney trouble. That's why she found speedy relief and complete cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are a Kidney remedy, pure and simple. The reason they cure so many suffering women is that nine-tenths of women's troubles come from sick Kidneys.

MANY SKIRT LENGTHS IN THIS NEW LOT OF "MILL ENDS" AT $1.25 AN END

THOSE WHO COME AT A QUARTER PAST EIGHT on Wednesday morning, will find at their disposal one of the best selections of Mill Ends that the Annex has ever shown. What will be particularly noticeable about them is that there are many Ends which serve capitally for dress lengths. These are in 54 inch wool fabrics and measure from 1½ to 2 yards long; while many Ends of 40 x 42 inch width are still longer. And seeing that a choice assortment of good cloths is to be found, it is small wonder that Mill Ends in the Annex always make a strong appeal to every woman who makes her own or her children's clothes. Such splendid value is there in this new lot of Ends that we are placing a display of them in our show window early in the week. The price per End is $1.25.

Ladies' Home Journal Patterns are an excellent guide for the home dressmaker. Price 15c on the Main Floor.

"KINGCOT" SHIRTINGS, 11½c YARD

Without stating that 15c is the ordinary price the name "Kingcot" is recommendation enough where shirtings are concerned. And these are procurable in good colors and patterns, at the Annex price, per yard 11½c

FEATHER PILLOWS, 44c EACH

Nothing but sanitary feathers fill these Bed Pillows, which are of regulation size, and covered with art ticking. Good value anywhere at 60c and therefore extra cheap in the Annex at 44c

MERCERIZED BLACK SATEENS 11½c

Who could number the uses to which Black Sateen can be put? Blouses, Aprons, Underskirts, and so on; a big list of things that could all be made from this 15c quality that is selling on Wednesday for, per yard 11½c

JAPANESE BED ROOM MATS 2 FOR 25c

There is only one bale of them; the size being 18 by 36 inches, in the customary bright colors, that the Japanese use on their reed work. These mats are useful alike for bedroom, bathroom, hall or verandah, and are never cheaper than now, at 2 FOR 25c

GINGHAMS AND CHAMBRAYS AT 9½c YARD

These are 12½c and 15c materials in an almost endless assortment of colors and patterns, a good percentage of plain Chambrays being found in the selection. All one price per yard on Wednesday, namely 9½c

A SUPERIOR INDIAN HEAD SUITING AT 14½c YARD

It is our special 20c value, and measures 36 inches in width, while it possesses the splendid texture so well adapted to the many needs of women and girls in white outer garments. There are three pieces only, and wise people will be on hand at 8.15 to secure the amount they want 14½c

TWILLED COTTON SHEETS 58c EACH

They are of twilled cotton, hemmed and ready for instant use, and are in size 63 x 90 inches. More over they compare most favorably with most 75c lines. Wednesday, each 58c

A. J. McLEAN, MANILLA NOT IN THE WOODBINE FIRE

Toronto, Mar. 23.—The rumor that Mr. A. J. Maclean, aged 23, a real estate dealer from Manilla, Ont., had perished in the fire at the Woodbine Hotel, was proved to have no foundation when Mrs. Maclean was got in communication over the long distance telephone and she stated that her husband was well and hearty and in fact only left this morning for a business trip in the east. Several business acquaintances of Mr. Maclean's also stated that they had seen him on Thursday.

The question which is now puzzling the authorities is whether the body which was thought to have been that of Max Cohen and which was buried in New York with Hebrew funeral rites on Friday, is really that of Charles Thurston. Such is generally considered to be the case and as a result a meeting has been called for 6 o'clock this evening when Coroner McCallum, Inspector Dickson, Morris Cohen, a brother of the New York victim, and others will attend, and it will be decided whether there is substantial reason for issuing a certificate to the New York Board of Health asking for the exhumation of the body.

IF MEALS HIT BACK AND STOMACH SOURS

"Pape's Diapepsin" Ends Indigestion Gas, Dyspepsia and Stomach Misery in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.

AUTO PIRATE IS SENT TO KINGSTON PENITENTIARY

Toronto, Mar. 23.—Two years in the Kingston Penitentiary was the sentence imposed by Colonel Denison in Police Court to-day on William Carveth 1001 Eastern avenue, a self-confessed auto pirate, whose activities in stealing motor cars have plagued owners for some time.

Arraigned with Carveth in the prisoner's dock, were two other youths, Ernest Lomas and James Lane. They pleaded not guilty and were remanded.

REMEMBERED NUMBER.

Carveth's arrest was due to Constable Crowe who recognized the number of the auto in which he was riding as one belonging to a car reported to have been stolen. Meeting the accused in the street, subsequently, he arrested him and took him to Pape avenue station. The other two suspects were gathered in by Detective Nursey, but the police decided that neither had taken an active part in the thefts. In each case the cars are said to have been stolen from the theatres.

Irish Nationalists Will Not Accept Home Rule Without Rich Ulster--Fail to Coerce That Province

London, March 24.—Col. John Seely, Secretary of State for War, to-day promised in the House of Commons that he would to-morrow lay on the table all the material and written documents which he said would clear up the mystery of the recent crisis among the officers of the army in Ireland. He gave this promise when he was asked by a member to confirm or deny the statement that a written assurance had been given to Brigadier-General Hubert Gough that the troops would not be used to force Home Rule upon Ulster.

GOVERNMENT SURRENDERS.

London, Mar. 24.—The dissolution of the British Parliament has been hastened by the events of the last few days and by the surrender of the Government to the officers of the army who declined to serve against the Ulstermen according to the opinion generally expressed to-day in political circles.

The Irish Nationalists, it is pointed out, will not accept Home Rule with Ulster permanently excluded, while the Government has found it impossible to compel Ulster to come under a Dublin Parliament.

ELECTION ONLY WAY OUT.

It is argued that the only way out of the difficulty is to hold a general election, and none would be surprised if the Government during the second reading of the Home Rule bill next week should offer to dissolve Parliament on condition that the Home Rule, the Welsh Disestablishment and the Plural Voting Bills be passed.

The dissatisfaction of the rank and file of the Liberals with the Government's treatment of the army officers is another factor which is likely to hasten a general election.

Many radicals would like to join forces with the Labor members and make an appeal to the country on the refusal of officers to act against the Ulstermen compared with their readiness to act against striking workmen.

THE GUARDIAN ASHAMED.

The Provincial Liberal papers as is usual are even more outspoken on the subject of the Government's surrender to the officers than are their London contemporaries. The Manchester Guardian says it is with the deepest regret and some shame it has heard of Premier Asquith's even partial acceptance of the doctrine that officers have the right to lay down for themselves the condition under which they will continue to serve the King. It continues: 'They ate so continues: "They are so treated because they are rich men and because they had the prejudices of their class. Not only then is there one law for the rich man in the army and one for the poor, but there is one standard for the Tory officers loyalty to his oath, and another standard for the private soldier with sympathies for the laboring man."

Similar comments appear in the Liverpool Post also a strong Liberal paper.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

Toronto, Mar. 24.—The Private bills committee this morning granted power to the trustees of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough, to sell lots twelve and thirteen on the north side of Brock street, in the city of Peterborough, and to use the money for the benefit of the church.

THE WEATHER.

BULLETS FLEW FAST IN BUFFALO RIOT

Four Men Were Shot, One Fatally in Clash Between Strikers and Deputies.

Buffalo, N.Y., Mar. 24.—Four men were shot, one fatally, and several were injured to-day in two clashes between rioters and special deputies guarding the plant of the Gould Coupler Works at Depew where a strike has been in progress for some weeks. Stanislaus Skolonski, claimed by his friends to be an innocent bystander, was shot in the head during the first and most serious trouble early in the day when a mob of 300 men held up a train bearing workmen to the plant and fought a half hour's pitched battle with the deputies. He died at the hospital last night.

The first outbreak occurred when a Lackawanna train of eleven coaches bringing about eight hundred workmen was within a mile of the plant early in the day. A mob of about 300 threw obstructions on the rails and when the train came to a standstill poured a fusilade of revolver shots and stones into the windows of the cars.

Half a dozen special deputies returned the fire, and it is claimed that several of the mob were hit and at once carried away by others in the crowd. The men in the train were ordered to lie flat on the floor, and all who did so escaped injury.

ULSTER IS STILL UNBEATEN BRITISH ARMY HER FRIEND

Asquith Government Placed in Ludicrous Position by Colossal Blunder

London, March 24.—The Times confirms the announcement to-day that General Gough has resumed his post and comments on the written assurance that his troops are not to be used to coerce the people of Ulster into acceptance of the Home Rule bill.

The Times declares it can vouch for the absolute accuracy of Mr. Bonar Law's version of General Paget's statements to the officers, and adds: "The truth seems to be that the frank soldier artlessly blurted out the whole project to his brigadiers, instead of deftly disguising the Government's real intentions."

London, March 24.—"The Government may pass the Home Rule Bill," says the Daily Mail, "but the rock of Ulster will remain, and on that rock the Government will shatter its strength even though it follows John Redmond's advice of 'Full steam ahead.' Ulster stands armed, unconquered, and unconquerable. She cannot be fooled. She will not be sacrificed, because the Ministers have not the power to sacrifice her."

This is a fair sample of the comment of the Unionist morning papers. On the other hand the Liberal press voices the indignation felt by the bulk of the Government coalition.

The Liberal Daily Chronicle contains some sharp raps at the Government. It describes the Ministerial explanation in the House of Commons as "the sort of solution which any hushing-up policy would require, but it is not a solution at all commensurate with the problem. It is no good telling us that the officers concerned did not strike, as we all know that they did."

ARMY REFUSED LIBERAL AID.

Triumphant shouts by the Unionist and bitter anger by the Government's supporters are the immediate results of the Ministry's handling of the army crisis. The Unionists are not convinced by the Ministerial declaration in the House of Commons that the movement of the troops was merely a precautionary measure to safeguard the depots of arms, ammunition, and stores. They have no doubt that the forcible coercion of Ulster was determined upon, but that the action of a number of officers in resigning had convinced the Government that the army could not be employed for that purpose. For this reason the unconditional reinstatement of the officers is treated as an ignominious climb down on the part of the Government and attempts to explain the matter away are ridiculed as a miserable shuffle.

HOW YOU CAN REMOVE UNSIGHTLY HAIR OR FUZZ

(Boudoir Secrets)

By having a small package of delatone handy, you can quickly banish ugly, unsightly hairs wherever they may appear. Just enough paste to cover the hairy surface is made with some of the powdered delatone and water. This is applied for about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed. This simple method not only banishes every trace of hair or fuzz, but leaves the skin firm, smooth and free from blemish.

THREE CHILDREN PERISH

Mount Pleasant, Tenn., March 23.—Three children were burned to death near here early to-day in a fire that destroyed the home of Burt Fly. Fly and his wife escaped when awakened by the screams of the children, whom

CORNEA OF PIG'S EYE GRAFTED ON TO CHILD

Baltimore, Md., March 24.—What is believed to be the first operation of its kind in this country was performed yesterday at the local hospital when the cornea of a pig's eye was taken off and grafted on the sightless eye of a three months' old boy. It was said previous operations in which rabbits eyes had been used were unsuccessful, but that experiments with pig's eyes had led scientists to believe that they were more adaptable. Two cases are said to be on record where the grafting of human corneas gave sight to totally blind eyes.

In to-day's operation, the pig was chloroformed, the eye ball taken out and the cornea cut from it. An extraordinary fine needle and fine silk were used in putting the cornea in place until it has grown to the child's eyeball. The eye will remain bandaged for about a week.

UPSET OIL LAMP AND WAS BADLY BURNED

Flames Ignited Man's Clothing and Set Fire to Dwelling.

Toronto, March 24.—Ernest Wilkinson, 159 Spadina Avenue, was badly burned last night by the upsetting of an oil reading lamp in his room. His face, arms and legs were burned, but he refused to be taken to a hospital. His condition is not regarded as critical as yet.

Wilkinson was reading in his room and in some manner upset the lamp. He attempted to pick it up and throw it out of the window, but the flames ignited his clothes and also set fire to the room. Other occupants extinguished his burning apparel and rang in an alarm. The injured man was given first aid by the firemen.

DESPERATE FIGHT ON AT TORREON

Outer Positions Taken by Rebels in Sharp Assault During Night

Juarez, Mexico, March 24.—Although desperate fighting was still in progress at Gomez Palacio, at the gateway of Torreon at 11 o'clock last night when the last despatches came through, Gen. Villa felt so confident of victory that he returned to the main base at Bermejillo to telegraph to Chihuahua and other points about the handling of supplies and the movement of troops.

ONLY TORREON REMAINS.

The rebels are reported to have Torreon closely invested and last reports were that the whole army was confident of the early fall of the Federal stronghold. The occupation of Lerdo almost without resistance, and the expected victory at Gomez Palacio and Monterey is taken for granted by the rebels once the main federal force under Gen. Velasco at Torreon is conquered.

In official circles here, although hispatches ceased, it was felt that Villa would triumph at Gomez Palacio which is only three miles from Torreon before the day was over. The defence of the city came as a surprise to the rebels who assumed that only a nominal resistance would be made by the Huerta forces. The reinforcements reported to have been rushed into the city by Gen. Velasco were unexpected and when the last reports were received last night, it was not known definitely on which banner victory would perch.

ITALIANS ARRESTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Are Said to Have Attempted to Lure Belleville Girl to Toronto.

Belleville, March 24.—Two Italians were arrested here yesterday as vagrants, but they are being held on a charge of attempting to entice a young girl away for immoral purposes.

They gave their names as Alfredo Resso, aged 24 years, and Frank Walters, aged 26 years. A letter is in the hands of the authorities which it is alleged was written by one of the accused to the girl. She was promised unlimited luxuries if she would but leave the city and go to Toronto to live. The accused gave their addresses as Pearl and Richmond streets, Toronto.

DRAMATIC SCENE AS MAYOR ORDERS POLICE TO EJECT MR. CHURCH FOR OPEN REBELLION

CONDEMNED GUNMEN APPEAL TO PUBLIC

Allege Unfairness in Being Sent to Death Chair.

New York, March 24.—Convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, and sentenced to die in the electric chair in the week beginning April 13th, the four gunmen in the Sing Sing death house issued a statement "to the public" to-day. Alleging that they were left to die unjustly while former Lieut. Charles Becker obtained a new trial, they had their counsel, Charles G. Wahle, give out their appeal for "justice" and "fair play" which they had already prepared when he visited them yesterday. They reiterated their innocence and charge Harry Vallon and "Bridgie" Webber with the Rosenthal murder.

"Lefty Louie" Rosenberg 22 years of age, the youngest of the four wrote the statement in pen and ink in a clear, firm hand and it was signed by the others through the heavy bars of their cells as the guard held it for them.

"Dago Frank" Cirofici added a statement of his own in pencil, controverting a particular point in the opinion of the Court of Appeals. The others who signed the document are Muller, otherwise "Whitey Lewis," and 'Gyp the Blood," whose name is Harry Horowitz.

Controller Charges Interference by Mr. McCarthy With Treasury Board and Stubbornly Refuses to Retract

THE ULSTER SITUATION

Yesterday the following lines were handed the Times by a well known local citizen, who requested us to publish the same:

Vain are our ships of iron frame,
And vain her shattering guns,
Unless proud England can retain
The hearts of her Protestant sons!

A German officer wronged the honor of a brother officer, provoked a duel and slew him. Upon the blackguardly murderer has descended the frightful punishment of thirty months imprisonment, and dismissal from the German army. Hereafter in Germany dueling will be looked upon as almost as serious offence as making a face at the Kaiser.

Toronto, Mar. 24.—"Officer, remove the Controller."

Occupants in the Council Chamber balcony crowded to the rail; citizens on the floor of the Council room half rose in their chairs; Aldermen held their breath, as P. C. Robertson (233) walked slowly from his position by the door past Aldermen Whetter and Smith and stopped beside Alderman Meredith on his way to remove Controller Church at the command of Mayor Hocken.

Council has seen no more dramatic scene. The silence for a moment was painful. Then it was broken with muttering protest and exclamations of excitement. The officer stood, undecided, plainly hoping that the order might not be repeated. For five minutes the issue was in doubt. Indications were not wanting that any effort to carry out the demand would precipitate a free fight between the different aldermanic factions—but the minutes passed. The Mayor relented. The officer retired to his position by the door.

It occurred during the discussion upon the bill to abolish the Treasury Board. Mayor Hocken had made an interesting statement regarding the relation between the city and local bankers. Controller Church rose to criticize the loan negotiations last year. He charged Controller McCarthy with having interfered with officials in the Treasury Department.

DENIED BY MR. McCARTHY.

The charge brought Controller McCarthy to his feet, denouncing it as "a positive untruth," and demanding a retraction.

"I rise to a point of order Mr. Chairman, and I ask that Mr. Patterson, City Treasurer, be asked to make a statement to Council upon Mr. Church's statement," he said, "and that Mr. Church retract."

Controller Church—(angrily) "I will not let Mr. Patterson speak while I am on the floor."

Mayor—"You must come to order. Mr. McCarthy has demanded a retraction. Sit down."

Then for minutes the incongruent Controller bandied words with the Chief Magistrate. Mayor Hocken repeatedly called for Order, thumping his gavel on his desk, like a journeyman blacksmith, in an effort to silence the Controller. Finally came the threat. "Sit down, Controller, or I will have the officer remove you."

Controller Church persisted in attempting to explain his charge of interference on the part of Controller McCarthy.

Why Not?

While waiting for the speaker at a public meeting a pale little man in the audience seemed very nervous. He glanced over his shoulder from time to time and shifted about in his seat. At last he rose and demanded in a high, penetrating voice: "Is there a Christian Scientist in this room?"

A woman at the other side of the hall got up and said: "I am a Christian Scientist."

"Well, then, madame," requested the little man, "would you mind changing seats with me? I'm sitting in a draught."

Brantford's tax rate this year will be 22½ mills.

HEROINE WEARING A GREEN WIG PARADED THE TORONTO STREETS

Citizens Stared and Some Followed Her---Noble Deeds Compared---Lady Godiva Totally Eclipsed

Toronto, March 24.—In olden days there were wigs on the green. To-day there was green on the wig. Toronto stared. ~~A street car shied at~~ the corner of Yonge and King streets, but was controlled by the nervy motorman who stuck to his post. An office boy gazed so hard that his eyes bulged right out and were ready to be picked up and poached. The C.P.R. building apparently swayed nearly one foot. In fact to make a long story short, Miss Reta Gould of Loews theatre left the King Edward Hotel shortly after eleven o'clock this morning and decorated with a green wig paraded the streets of Toronto.

It was splendid superb. Lady Godiva will now be forgotten. After all she made but a half-hearted attempt to defy convention, and even then insisted on all the people remaining within their homes and pulling down their blinds. But Miss Gould is made of sterner stuff. In order that her bravery and perfect sang froid may be appreciated, it will be as well first to outline the story of Lady Godiva.

THE PRICE OF RUBBER.

Coventry is the centre of the cycle industry. Lord Coventry was annoyed with the people about some trifle so he threatened to put up the price of rubber. Lady Godiva, his wife, had shares in a bicycle factory, ~~but had sold out all her holdings in~~ Putumayos. So she pleaded with her lord and master. He consented to renew existing contracts if Lady Godiva would ride over the villainous roads of Coventry without a tire.

Such a journey would bump out any person's teeth. But Lady Godiva accepted the terms, told all the people to keep within doors, and rode through Coventry without attire. Her hair was draped round her, but it was just ordinary tow color. Not green.

A BOLD ENTERPRISE.

How different was the heroism shown by Miss Gould to-day. She did not trouble to discard what is left of a lady's costume between the slit of the skirt and the decoltage. It hardly seemed worth while. She did not ask the people to remain within their houses and pull the blinds down. In broad day light and within sight of all and sundry Miss Rita sallied forth in a green wig. The last words should be pronounced in a hoarse whisper.

WILL SEARCH ARCTIC FOR STEAMER KARLUK

San Francisco, March 24.—To search the Arctic Circle for the lost Canadian Exploration ship Karluk is the mission of the steam whaler Herman, which left San Francisco to-day for the Far North. The Canadian Government is sending the whaler, to the relief of the Karluk, which with the greater part of her crew, has been missing for several months. Explorer Stefansson, commander of the expedition, who with three of the crew left the Karluk, which was fast in the ice, to hunt caribou, could find no trace of the vessel when they returned. The ice had been broken up by a gale and the ship, it is supposed, drifted eastward.

LOCKED AMONG ICEBERGS.

Capt. C. T. Pederson, master of the Herman, believes he will find the Karluk somewhere between Point Barrow and Herschell Island, locked among icebergs. By the time the whaler reaches the Arctic, it is expected the ice will be sufficiently broken up to permit the ship to search the wastes.

The Herman is carrying a stock of provisions and fuel that will enable her to remain in the North, if necessary, until the season closes again. Even if the Karluk has escaped destruction, fear is expressed for the safety of the crew, as the winter has been unusually severe.

MISSING SINCE SEPTEMBER.

The Stefansson expedition left Nome last July the explorer intending to traverse the northwestern passage.

The Karluk became frozen in the ice in September. Latest reports from Stefansson were that he had arrived at Fort McPherson on February 3rd. Weeks had been spent by the explorer and his men in a futile search for the lost vessel.

Ex-Alderman T. N. Piper, of Fort William, is dead.

Archives at Regina.

Lisle, M.P.P., in the Saskatchewan Legislature, brought an interesting matter before his fellow-members of the Provincial House the other day. He wants his Government to start an archives department. He is right. What country has ever been great without some history to sentimentalise over? Saskatchewan has history—the story of missionaries who went sky-piloting among the redskins; explorers who lived to tell the world of its great heritage; fur-traders who proved what the explorers had to say. Until very recently Saskatchewan had no respectable temple to enshrine her sacred records. No excuse now. As Lisle, M.P.P., pointed out, the palatial House of Parliament in Regina stands waiting in splendid magnificence. There is much room in that building for the precious written records of the early days of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, the Hudson Bay Co., the missionaries, explorers and fur-traders. It is satisfactory to note that Mr. Haultain and the leading members of the Legislature, both Government and Opposition, are favorable to the archives project.—Courier.

Sir Wilfrid's Joke.

No one enjoys a joke more than Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The Premier's sense of humor is keenly developed, and when anything happens in the House which tickles his fancy, he throws back his head, gives a musical chuckle, and allows the famous sunny smile to shine out. When the joke is a very good one, in addition to the above-mentioned performance, Sir Wilfrid pokes his desk-mate, Hon. William Paterson, vigorously in the ribs, and out of courtesy the veteran Minister of Customs always laughs heartily, whether he sees anything funny in it or not.

After Mr. Foster's characteristic attack on the reciprocity agreement, in which the man from North Toronto spilled the vials of his sarcasm over the Fielding-Taft pact, turned it inside out, jumped on it, set it up again, and immediately dealt it a swift upper cut, Sir Wilfrid met the Tory orator in the lobby, at the door of the chamber. The Premier tapped him genially on the shoulder and said smilingly:

"Why, George, you don't seem to think much of reciprocity!"—The Mace in Saturday Night

---

Those who have followed the downfall of the Farmers' Bank will remember that the beginning of the end was certain litigation before the High Court sitting at Lindsay, Ont., in which three former employes of the bank were prosecuted for conspiracy, but who were honorably acquitted.

In those proceedings, and in the later one, a principal witness was the chief accountant of the bank, named Fitzgibbon. The presiding judge complimented him upon the transparent candor and unquestionable honesty of his testimony. The witness, said the judge, ought to be an honest man from the fact that his forebear was the hero of Beaver Dam, who, with Laura Secord, ought to be held in the highest honor. That generous reference by Mr. Justice Harding recalls two remarkable and very important events in Canadian history, and one of the most interesting characters of which that history contains an account.

The victory at Beaver Dam that made Colonel Fitzgibbon famous, is too well-known to need recital here, and the memory of that remarkable affair has been renewed by sketches of Laura Secord published during the past few months. It will be remembered that, in the early summer of 1813, the Americans were in possession of Fort George, situated at the mouth of the Niagara River on the Canadian side. An advance was made towards Hamilton, but it was checked by the night attack at Stoney Creek in which 1,400 Americans were defeated by 880 British-Canadian troops, who captured two generals, four cannon, and 120 men. The American advance party then fell back towards the Niagara River.

Shortly after that victory a British outpost on this frontier was a stone house at Beaver Dam, about 17 miles west of Fort George, held by Fitzgibbon and forty-seven men reinforced by a number of Indians, the entire force of regulars, militiamen and Indians making all told 310. Laura Secord, whose maiden name was Ingersoll, and whose husband was then lying wounded in his home at Queenston, hearing that the Americans intended to surprise Fitzgibbon, tramped at night alone through the forest to warn Fitzgibbon of the impending attack. The warning was turned to good account. The Americans were surrounded, and so confused did they become in the wilderness that they surrendered to a force very much smaller than their own. The heroine of Beaver Dam was Laura Secord, but great credit is due Fitzgibbon for the manner in which he made use of the information carried to him by the brave woman, for the resourcefulness displayed in meeting the crisis, and for the courage and dash with which he carried out his plan, and whose successful issue made Beaver Dam one of the most brilliant events of the war.

The Hudson Six-54, $2950 (f. o. b. Detroit, Mich.) Duty Paid.

Cost of Running HUDSON Six is Less Than a Four

Prove it for yourself. Make the best record you can with your Four. Don't deceive yourself. Be fair about it. Then come to us and ask us to show you what we can do with the HUDSON Six of proportionately the same class and horse-power. We will show you that it will cost you less to own and run a HUDSON Six than to continue the use of your Four. This may surprise you, in view of the vehement assertions of dealers who want to sell Fours. Nevertheless it is a fact capable of easy demonstration.

Until you drive a HUDSON Six you cannot realize its great advantage. Its smoothness and flexibility are an insurance as well as a delight. HUDSON Sixes are preferred because of high quality combined with moderate price. The Six-54 has four forward speeds, 135-inch wheelbase, motor 4½ x 5¼, developing 55 horse power. Made in Phaeton at $2950 and Sedan at $4650. The Six-40 has 123-inch wheel-base, motor 3½x5, developing 47 horse power, gives 13 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and is, we think, the easiest riding car on the market. The Six-40 in Phaeton and Roadster at $2300, and in Cabriolet at $2575. All cars, of course, are electrically started and lighted left side drive, center control, gasoline tank in cowled dash. Catalog on request. Demonstrations as arranged. Prices f. o. b. Detroit, Mich. Duty paid.

How People Feel When They Have Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, also a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ½ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no danger, is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always effects a cure. OUR POINT OF VIEW

Our notion of a level-headed preacher is the one in New York who said: "The need of the day is not new-fangled women with votes, but old-fashioned mothers with voters."

◆ ◆ ◆

In the opinion of the New York World "there have been few more ridiculous spectacles in modern government than that of Great Britain terrorized by petticoats."

◆ ◆ ◆

The Earl de la Warr, of England, is visiting the United States to see the State that was named after his ancestors, but he will probably be grieved to find that the family spelling of the name has been changed.

◆ ◆ ◆

A Kansas paper says: "You will see calves higher this spring than ever before." If so, let the responsibility rest with the split skirt and do not try to charge it up to the tariff.

The fire department of Philadelphia has notified two preachers of that city that they must cease to overcrowd their churches on Sunnay morning. This is a welcome change from the usual story that we read of empty pews.

When Mr. Taft met Mr. Bryan in Washington the other day the secretary of State saw fit to praise the ex-President by saying that he was "the most magnificent loser in the history of the country." "I thank you" answered Mr Taft. "This is a great compliment surely—from a man of your experience."

NO HOME RULE

In a brief article our esteemed contemporary, The Toronto News, refers to Home Rule, and asks, "Why should Ulster consider concessions?"

Why Home Rule at all? For twenty years Ireland has been the spoiled child of the Imperial Household. More has been done for Irish tenants than for land occupiers anywhere else in the world. The cost has been borne chiefly by the British taxpayers.

If the Irish majority suffered political grievances years ago they have been removed, Ireland has been the beneficiary of such indulgence as has been experienced by no other portion of the Empire. Still a group of agitators demand Home Rule because that is the business to which they were born and reared. Ulster refuses to be separated from the United Kingdom.

Irish Protestants want to remain within the Empire. They ask for no special consideration. They seek no privileges. They simply refuse to be placed under the heels of a hostile religious and national majority. Mr. Winston Churchill in a speech which he has just delivered said: "The first British soldier or coast guard who is attacked and killed by the Orangemen will raise such an explosion in this country as the Tories little appreciate, and it will shake the foundations of society."

This is as true as it can be. But Ulster will not have Home Rule. If it it is attempted to put the measure into effect "Ulster will fight and Ulster will be right." As sure as the sun shines there will be civil war before Ulster will submit to a Dublin Parliament. Moreover, if the people of Ulster submitted the would lose their place in history and earn the contempt of mankind.

Lumbago's Misery Ceases, Every Aching Muscle Cured

"JUST RUB ON OLD-TIME "NERVILINE"

Not necessary to drug inside!

That awful stiffness that makes you yelp worse than a kicked dog will be cured—cured for a certainty, and quickly, too, if you just rub on Nerviline.

Rub Nerviline right into the sore spot, rub lots of it over those tortured muscles, do this and the pain will go. You see Nerviline is thin, not oily. Therefore it sinks in. It penetrates through the tissues, it gets right to those stiff, sore muscles' and irritated nerves that make you dance with pain.

You'll get almost instant relief from muscle soreness, stiffness, aching joints lameness, or rheumatism by rubbing with Nerviline. It's a soothing liniment, and doesn't blister, doesn't burn or even stain the skin.

It's the most harmless cure in the world for Lumbago, Back Strain or Sciatica. It takes away the ache at once and ends your misery quickly.

Now quit complaining—don't suffer another day—Nerviline, that good soothing old-time liniment will limber you up mighty quick. Get busy today, the large 50c. family size bottle is the most economical of course, the trial size costs but 25c. Any dealer anywhere can supply Nerviline.

THE MOCKING BIRD

Editor Morning Times:

Will someone give the reader of The Times the three verses of the song, "The Mocking Bird?"

Smith, March 23. M. A.

I am dreaming now of Allie, of Allie, of Allie,
I am dreaming now of Allie.
The thought of her is one that never dies,
She's sleeping in the valley, in the valley, the valley,
She is sleeping in the valley—
And the mocking bird goes singing far and wide.

Listen to the mocking bird, listen to the mocking bird,
The mocking bird is singing o'er her grave;
Listen to the mocking bird, listen to the mocking bird,
Still singing where the weeping willows wave.

Ah, well do I remember, remember, remember,
Ah, well do I remember when the mocking bird was singing far and wide;
'Twas in the mild September, September, September,
It was in the mild September,
When we gathered in the cotton side by side.

When the charms of spring awaken, awaken, awaken,
When the charms of spring awaken;
And the mocking bird is singing on the bough,
I feel like one forsaken, forsaken, forsaken,
Since Allie is no longer with me now.

LAXATIVE FOR OLD PEOPLE—"CASCARETS"

Salts, Calomel and Pills act on Liver and Bowels like pepper acts in Nostrils—Danger!

Get a 10c box now.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

NOT THE BODY OF CHARLES THURSTON

Toronto, March 24.—The mystery surrounding the identity of the Woodbine hotel victims is growing deeper. The first body to be recovered from the ruins and which was buried in New York as being that of Max Cohen, was exhumed yesterday and returned to Toronto, arriving at the Morgue this morning. It was inspected by the sister and two brothers-in-law of Charles H. Thurston, of Brampton, whose body it was thought to be, but to the amazement of the authorities the relatives stated that it was not Thurston.

They could not distinguish the features of the man, as he was so badly burned, but they say that Thurston had no back teeth, whereas there is a fine set in the jaws of the dead man. The other corpse which is at the Morgue, has been identified as that of Cohen, while the one shipped away to New York on Saturday was positively identified as Levison's.

Either one of the bodies which was identified as that of Graham and Wilmot was in reality Thurston's, or the Thurston was not one of the victims of the fire. Where then is Thurston? is the question puzzling the authorities and if he was burned, which is his body? The case is much complicated.

GIRL RECOGNIZED THE BANK ROBBER

Tells Morden Jury the Outlaw Was the Accused Man, Jack Krafchenko,—Many Saw Him Running.

Morden, Man., Mar. 24.—The prosecution in the case of Jack Krafchenko, charged with the murder of H. M. Arnold, manager of the Bank of Montreal at Plum Coulee, on December 3, 1913, has drawn from many witnesses the story of the crime. Residents of the Village of Plum Coulee, transients and school children, who witnessed the murder or the flight, or both, have told what they saw, and all have described the criminal as a man wearing a black overcoat, a black cap or hat, and a false beard. But the face remained unidentified.

To-day the Crown called one of its star witnesses, a child of 11, Mary Doerksen, and she amid intense silence offered what the crown considers an important link in connecting John Krafchenko with "the man in black." Mary had been returning from school with Susie Bergen and other school children. They had seen a man "wearing a black overcoat and a cap." She described his passage along the lane behind the bank and his passing them. She had seen his face. He had a black moustache. She got a good look at the man and she had seen him before, but not with whiskers. She knew the man.

"Who was it?" slowly and deliberately the question came. There was an intense silence, and the child's voice shrilled out clearly, "John Krafchenko."

"You say it was John Krafchenko?" said the Crown Prosecutor a moment later. "Had you ever seen John with a moustache?"

"No," she replied.

"Then how did you know it was him?"

"By his eyes."

Then the court adjourned.

MUTILATED CURRENCY.

Often Used in Attempts to Cheat the Treasury Department.

Many efforts are made to cheat Uncle Sam through the redemption division of the treasury department, which division has to do with redeeming partly destroyed government currency.

Once a man in a western state sent in half of a ten dollar bill, accompanied by an affidavit to the effect that while on a spree he had used the other half to light a cigar. The half he forwarded was nicely charred along the inner edge, and the story would have been accepted by treasury officials had it not been that within twenty-four hours there was received from a bank in the same state the other half of the note.

The theory of treasury officials was that while more or less intoxicated the man had struggled for possession of the bill with some one who had wrested half of it from him; that the despoiler had turned the half into the bank and received five dollars for it; that the intoxicated man, recovering his senses, had found the other half in his pocket and, not wishing to lose his money, had conceived the plan of singeing the edge of the note and claiming that the other half had been destroyed. So he committed perjury in an attempt to rob the government of $5.

A man in Cleveland sent an affidavit to the treasury department, accompanying the singed half of two twenty-dollar bills and one ten-dollar bill. This affidavit was typewritten and in perfect form. It set forth that the deponent was a commercial traveler; that after returning from a journey he had been cleaning out his traveling bag when inadvertently he had thrown into the fire an envelope containing $50 in bills; that in accordance with section so and so he would like to have the money restored to him, etc.

The clerk who brought this document to the officials commented on its lucidity and completeness, but to one of these the story seemed unnatural, and he ordered that the claim be held up for awhile.

Twenty-four hours later a big shipment of mutilated currency came from a subtreasury in the west. The official who had ordered the claim held up asked whether there were any half notes in this shipment. In four or five minutes a clerk brought him the missing halves of the bills the Cleveland man had sent in.

The attempt to defraud was plain.

Holland.

Holland, known as North and South Holland, forms part of the northern part of the Netherlands. These provinces are composed of land rescued from the sea and defended by immense dikes. Holland was inhabited by the Batvi in the time of Caesar, who made a league with them. It became part of Gallia Belgica and afterward of the kingdom of Austria. From the tenth to the fifteenth century it was governed by counts under the German emperors. Holland was at one time a Dutch republic. It was created a kingdom in 1806, and Louis Bonaparte, father of Napoleon III., was declared king.

Rattled.

He—I trust you have forgiven me for not recalling your name the other evening, although I remembered your face perfectly.

She—Oh, yes; but my name is such a plain one I should think you would have remembered it quite as readily.

He—Not at all. Your name isn't half as plain as—er—beg pardon; your face is much more aristocratic than your—I mean to say that your name is harder than—

Two Smart Actors.

In a popular historic drama the actor who takes the part of Napoleon is required to read aloud a document of considerable length which is brought to him by General Berthier. This, being written at length, is seldom committed to memory. A short time ago, however, the property master at an English theater mislaid the document, and Napoleon, who was new to the part, received instead a blank sheet of paper. For a moment he was aghast; then, eager to escape from his predicament even at the expense of a fellow actor, he handed the paper to General Berthier, saying, "Read it to me."

The other actor was not in the least confused. "Your majesty," he said, handing it back, "I am only a poor soldier of fortune, and you must excuse me. I do not know how to read!"

COWBOYS OF SPAIN.

Splendid Horsemen, but They Use Their Spurs Without Mercy.

The perfection of Spanish horsemanship is to be seen among the vaqueros, ganaderos and garrochistas, by which various names the mounted herdsmen of the Andalusian plains are known—in brief, what we should call a cowboy. Every farm seems to maintain a large number of these, for each herd, flock or drove has its own herdsman goatherd or swineherd, as the case may be. The vaqueros are a fine looking lot of men. Tall, thin, light and loosely made, they look ideal horsemen, as, in point of fact, they are, though their mounts are poor.

The vaquero rides very high on a huge saddle, with a long stirrup and straight leg, using a single rein and a very heavy curb, but he has such beautiful hands that, although using this barbarous bit, he never cuts his horse's mouth about. It is different with the animal's sides, however, for he uses his spurs without mercy, and the white horses—of which there are a large number—all have ominous red stains behind the girths.

All the herdsmen who look after cattle carry a long lance, called a garrocha, of thick and heavy wood, which, except when standing still, they always carry "in rest" and not "at the carry," presumably on account of its great length and possibly its weight. With this weapon, in the use of which he acquires amazing dexterity, the garrochista is able to control the most unruly brutes in the herd, not excepting the savage fighting bull.—Wide World Magazine.

BIRTH OF A WING.

Evolution of the Aquatic Pupa Into the Dragon Fly.

Says a writer in the Scientific American: "A wonderful spectacle is presented by the sudden apparition of an insect's wing at the completion of its metamorphosis. The transformation of the grub into the butterfly, though familiar, is none the less amazing, but the evolution of the active and gossamer winged dragon fly from its ugly and sluggish aquatic pupa is still more impressive. Early on a May morning the pupa emerges from its cocoon at the bottom of a ditch, swims on its back by paddling with its long haired paws to the stem of an aquatic plant and climbs up out of the water. Then, after a momentary pause, the skin suddenly bursts open and the perfect insect appears, with closely folded wings, which soon unfold and assume their final form.

"The older naturalists thought that the insect 'swallowed air,' with which the wings were inflated. In reality the air is absorbed in the digestive organs, causing an increased blood pressure, which mechanically expands the wings. The presence of dew is also necessary; hence the first flight is always made at dawn.

"This spectacle of the birth of a wing may be observed in dragon flies reared in an aquarium, the atmosphere of which should be moistened with an atomizer when the pupa rises to the surface."

Ego.

An ego is a Latinized I. All men are created egos and endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable some things of which neither statute, ukase, edict, injunction, beggar, magnate, book agent nor promoter can deprive them. He who steals my purse steals trash, but he who filches from me my ego takes that of which he already has enough and makes me not at all.

Women without votes have egos and, strangely enough, would still have them if they secured the votes; hence egos are not a political issue.

An ego is what a man is when be has nothing and is nothing else; that is to say, he is then first person singular and no particular gender.

An ego is neither soul, body, spirit, family, country nor race. It is neither moral nor pathological. A criminal has just as much ego as a parson and no more. Some egos are better than others, chiefly our own.—Life.

Cockney Chivalry.

There was a crush in the pit, and the anaemic looking girl stood with the late comers behind the last bench. The young man in front of her, comfortably seated, was not too absorbed in the musical comedy to note that the girl looked tired as she doggedly stood out the first act. He rose when the curtain fell. "Would you," he asked, pushing past her, "like to mind my seat while I go out for a drink?" The age of chivalry is not past.—London Chronicle.

"Wolf Moneth."

January, the month with the Latin name, had a grimmer name in Saxon England. Richard Verstegan in his "Restitution of Decayed Intelligence in Antiquities," a curious book published in 1673, writes: "The month which we now call 'January' our Saxon ancestors called 'wolf monat'—to wit, 'wolf moneth'—because people are wont always in that month to be in more danger to be devoured of wolves than in any season else of the year, for that, through the extremity of cold and snow, these ravenous creatures could not find other beasts sufficient to feed upon."—London Chronicle.

FORGETTING—or trying to forget—yesterday, and its vexations, the reader of the morning newspaper obtains from it the impressions, ideas, and impulses, which will shape and influence much of to-day's thinking, talking and DOING. The wise advertiser knows the value of getting his proposition to the housewife at the day's beginning, before the day's routine has dulled her interest in what he may want to say, therefore he advertises in The Morning Times.

PETERBORO LAUNDRY
W. P. Hetherington, Prop.

Surprised Her.

A gentleman who had spent the greater portion of his life in Canada relates an amusing experience which befell him.

He had been on a hunting expedition for several days in the backwoods, roughing it rather severely, and on taking a seat in a railway train returning homeward he looked as begrimed and weather beaten a trapper as ever brought his skins into a settlement.

He happened to find a seat next to a young lady, evidently belonging to Boston, who, after taking stock of him for a few minutes, remarked:

"Don't you find an utterly passionful sympathy with nature's mountains and the dim aisles of the horizon touching forests, my good man?"

"Oh, yes," replied the apparent backwoodsman, "and also I am frequently drawn into an exaltation of rapt soulfulness and beatific incandescent infinity of abstract contiguity when my horse stumbles."

"Indeed!" said the young lady, much surprised. "I had no idea the lower classes felt like that."—Chicago Record-Herald.

New Brunswick Amendments.

J. K. Pinder, one of the present members of York County in the N. B. House of Assembly, once did some work for the old Conservative Government on Grand Island Bar in the River St. John, which was very severely criticised by his political opponents.

Some years later Mr. Pinder was making some remarks in the House which rather ruffled the temper of a member on the opposite side, who called out "What about Grand Island Bar?"

"I do not wonder at the question," replied Mr. Pinder, "for all of the honorable member's troubles in life have sprung from the work on 'bars,' but there is this difference, that there is plenty of water on Grand Island Bar."

Sensitive Meredith.

The house at 17 Red Lion square, W. C., London, was once occupied by William Morris, Burne-Jones and Dante Gabriel Rossetti. George Meredith in the days of his extremest penury joined with those other three young men in their bachelor establishment. The state of his boots, we are told by one of the biographers, at length aroused the solicitude of his fellow tenants, who one night stealthily replaced them by a new pair. But Meredith was so much piqued by what was meant in all kindness that he withdrew from the fellowship the next day.—London News.

A Political Placard.

John B. Thompson of Kentucky, who served in both houses of congress, was a master of the art of ridicule. Here is his characterization of the contempt in which party platforms are held after elections:

"The two or three last platform presidents we have had when they got in the car of state and safely seated all around everywhere you could see, 'Do not stand on the platform when the cars are in motion.'"—McClure's Magazine.

Spring Styles Display Many New Features

By Madge Marvel

COMBINATIONS of two, and sometimes three, materials are noted in the newest spring models. In one gown of dull green Ninon brocade the pannier and bodice are of the plain Ninon in the same shade, and the sash of velvet in a deeper shade.

The bodice and pannier might also be made of taffeta. The crossed straps in the front which apparently hold the collar in place are seen on some of the most exclusive importations. The little vestee is of cream net. The hat shows the front trimming, which will be much used this spring.

The fulness on the hips continues to be the distinguishing feature of the newest frocks. Also, for evening wear, the scarf is greatly liked.

At a recent social function I noticed that the few women who did not wear a scarf of some kind really attracted attention because they made the exceptions.

One lovely gown was of the large flowered silk which is offered in such exquisite colors this spring. It was pale violet with roses of deeper hue outlined with gold. The placing of the brocade directly against the skin in the decolletage, with no softening effect of lace or net, is new but apt to prove trying to one who has not great beauty of shoulders and neck.

A single rose used at the waist is of gold. The crushed belt is of velvet, the shade of the violet in the brocade. The scarf is changeable gauze showing the faintest hues of pink and violet.

Lace was never used with more charming effect than in the present styles.

The skirt of one gown is of Egyptian crepe in rose pink. The bodice and pannier is of the new velvet, which is called "summer velvet" because it is so soft and supple and light. It is deeper rose, almost a red.

The lace forms the wired Medici collar, outlines the decolletage, forms the deep sleeve ruffles, and is used for the full flounce, which comes from under the tunic, crossing in front with the much favored surplice effect.

Advice to Girls

By... ANNIE LAURIE

Dear Annie Laurie:

A young man came to town, a stranger, just about six weeks ago, and now all of the girls are crazy about him, and won't pay any attention to the boys they've known all their lives. This young man is very handsome, and he wears such good clothes, and seems to know just how to wear them. He can sing and play the piano, and he is a dandy dancer. The only thing is he's always saying things that are embarrassing—things he ought not to say, and that no girl ought to hear. We don't know what to do about it. THREE GIRLS.

I'M very much afraid that your friend, the young man from town, needs nothing in the world so much as a perfectly good thrashing.

Handsome, well dressed, wears his clothes so delightfully; well, I'd give more for the little finger of a decent, manly fellow, who never had but one "best suit" in his life at one time than I would for the whole body, brain, heart and soul—such as they are—of a creature like that.

He should at least know enough to keep his evil thoughts to himself, or save them for the sort of company which appreciates them.

What would you think of a handsome, well dressed young man who came to dinner at your home in his pajamas, or who took off his well polished boots and put his stocking feet on the dinner table? You'd think he was either crazy or an insulting boor.

Don't be afraid of being "countryfied" by being self-respecting.

This fellow knows perfectly well what he is doing. Nine chances out of ten he thinks you are so "jay" that he can say or do things in your presence that he wouldn't even dare think of in town. Just give him a good lesson—he needs it.

Annie Laurie

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her care this office.

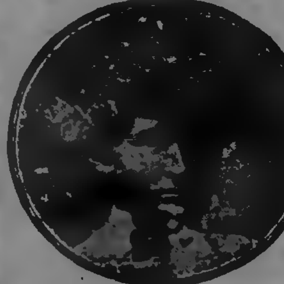
LIKE mistress, like maid," is a venerable saying, never truer, it may be, than in this democratic land where dividing lines are not expected to be so sharply drawn as in the old world.

Certainly the feminine heart is pretty much the same, when it comes to a question of CLOTHES, whether it beats under a Poiret waist or under an upstairs girl's apron. And when one is supposed to have a boudoir to herself what harm in trying the effect of a spring hat such as one never could really OWN? No harm at all, so long as one is not caught at it. When the real owner unexpectedly appears it is another matter. Do all hearts really understand when the circumstances are like this? Try putting yourself in both places.

Her Common Sense a Girl's Best Protection

By WINIFRED BLACK

Copyright, 1914, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.



Winifred Black

THEY are forming Girls' Protection Committees out in San Francisco now, getting ready for the big fair a year ahead of time. The Girls' Protection Committees are made up of ladies who are very much worried for fear that girls who come to the fair will get acquainted with the wrong people and have the wrong sort of things happen to them.

So the ladies on the committee are going to go down to all the trains and meet all the boats coming into San Francisco for the next twelve months, early and late, at midnight or at dawn, and tell every girl they see to be good.

Highly commendable, this idea, isn't it?

One of the members of the committee told me all about it the other day.

"Five thousands girls dropped out of sight at the World's Fair in St. Louis," said my friend of the Girls' Protection Committee. "We don't propose to have anything like that, or anything near like it, happen at the San Francisco fair.

"Girls are so ignorant, so innocent, that they don't know how to take care of themselves at all. They let any sort of stranger, man or woman, scrape acquaintance with them, and don't seem to have the faintest idea of the hideous danger therein.

"Somebody has got to take care of them, and we of the Girls' Protection Committee are going to do it, if it takes every minute of our time from now on until the fair is over."

My friend of the Girls' Protection Committee is a fine woman, a good woman, a kind woman and a public-spirited woman.

Who Are the Unfortunate Ones?

I have for her the deepest and most profound respect and admiration, but I wonder if she isn't worrying just a little bit too hard about the girls who are going to run such frightful danger the minute they step off the train in San Francisco, from now on till the fair is over.

I wonder if the kind women and the good men of this country aren't all of them worrying a little more about what's going to happen to the girls and what is happening to them right now than is really quite necessary.

Where do all these girls come from who are going to be drugged and kidnapped on trains and in boats and along the public streets of a great city?

Who are they, and what's the matter with them anyway?

I hear so much about these "ignorant" and "innocent" girls who are dragged into the most hideous cesspools of vice right in broad daylight. But, somehow, I have lived in large cities all my life, and I have never heard a single girl scream for help either by day or by night. Have you?

Has nobody ever told them anything about how to take care of themselves at all?

If I had a daughter 16 years old who didn't know enough to walk fast when a leering brute tried to keep up with her and get her to talk with him, I'd lock her up in a kindergarten and keep her there the rest of her life.

If I had a little sister, anywhere from 12 to 40 years of age, who didn't have sense enough to keep away from strange women who tried to get her to dine or to lunch with them at strange hours in strange restaurants in strange parts of the city, I'd have a guardian appointed to keep her out of trouble.

I never saw a girl 11 years old, in my life, who didn't know enough to know that she was doing a silly thing and a wrong thing when she talked with strange men or allowed men to talk with her.

I know from one end of this country to the other some thousand or so of girls who work for a living.

Pretty girls, young girls, attractive girls—they go out about their business alone at all hours of the day and night, and I have never yet heard of one of them being kidnapped or "abducted."

I have never known of an instance in my own personal experience of a single girl of all the thousands of girls I know in every rank of life who has ever had to cry aloud for help in any public street in any city in the United States of America.

Associations Not Infallible.

I've a friend, an elderly woman with a charming, graceful, girlish figure and an air about her.

She went out the other night to post a letter, and, as she approached the letter box, two men stepped up to her and lifted their hats.

"Oh, you beautiful doll!" said one of the men.

"Aren't you lonesome out alone so late, honey?" said the other.

Did my friend scream and call for the police; did she rush wildly through the streets palpitating with terror?

She did not.

She lifted the flap of the letter box, dropped her letter where she wanted it to go, turned so that the light fell upon her gray hair, and said: "Skat—I'm old enough to be your mother."

She missed a great abduction story, didn't she?

The women I know who are always afraid somebody is going to kidnap them are three.

One of them is over 60, and never was good looking in her life.

One of them is cross-eyed and has absolutely nothing about her which could interest the most hardened abductor in the world.

And the other is a young person who never saw a man pass even on the other side of the street without giving him a look which said "follow me" as plainly as any look ever said anything in the world.

There's no doubt in the world that young girls going alone to a big city need some sort of protection. So do young girls going about alone in the country.

All hired men are not graduates of the school for angels—nor are all Sunday school superintendents saints, even if they live a thousand miles from the bright lights.

But there is just exactly one protection for a young girl that really protects, and that is in her own heart and in her own brain and in her own good, plain, common sense.

If she is not so protected, all the protective associations in the world will not keep her out of the market.

Good luck to you, ladies of the Girls' Protection Committee. I hope you'll do a whole lot of good work out there in San Francisco between now and fair time. But, whisper, I hope that good work of yours isn't really needed half so much as you think it is.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Why Birth Marks Occur; Pre-Natal Theory Fiction

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

DR. HIRSHBERG

DO you believe in fairies? Lots of grown-ups do. There are very few of the human kind who do not believe in signs, even though they stoutly hold forth that they are "not a bit superstitious."

Experimental psychology nowadays takes advantage of this human frailty. The very tricks which charlatans and frauds use to play upon mankind's credulity are now utilized with scientific precision for practical effects.

You have heard of crystal gazing! Just as poets read words in running brooks and see visions in flowers, so a lot of foolish people "see things" when they gaze into crystals.

Psychologists have taken over this folly for a better purpose. A splotch of ink, blood or mercury is dashed upon white paper, or a crystal is looked at intently.

Some people see faces, others animals, others landscapes, others gallows, and so on. Those who believe in occultism take what they see seriously. Experimental psychologists thus test the accuracy, reliability and honesty of the individual's senses and thoughts.

These lines and dots are locks and keys,
In narrow space to treasure thought,
Whose precious hoards, where'er you please,
Are thus to light from darkness brought.

In much the same way strawberry marks, birth spots, moles and skin blemishes of one sort or another, present at birth, are explained by superstition and by actual knowledge.

Force first made conquest, and that conquest law,
Till Superstition taught the tyrant awe,
Then shared the tyranny, then lent it aid,
And gods of conquerors, slaves of subjects made;
She, 'midst the lightning's blaze and thunder's sound,
When rocked the mountains, and when groaned the ground,
She taught the weak to bend, the proud to pray
To Power unseen, and mightier far than they;
She, from the rending earth and bursting skies,
Saw gods descend and fiends infernal rise,
Here fixed the dreadful, there the blest abodes,
Fear made her devils, and weak hope her gods.

Months before the new baby arrives in the expectant family the head of the prospective mother is filled with old nurses' tales and seventh-sons-of-seventh-sons' superstitions.

All of this is utter rot. The truth is not in it. No matter what a woman eats, wishes, feels, sees or dreams it has absolutely no influence upon the skin or tissues of the unborn babe.

The so-called wine marks, strawberry moles and other signs which have perpetuated these foolish fancies are now thoroughly explained on rational grounds. In other words, all women have these idle experiences, but only one baby in a thousand has the strawberry marks.

Darwin was one of those who said: "When I have a fixed belief in my mind that such and so is the explanation of anything my opinion like everybody else's goes unswayed by the ninety and nine per cent. of contrary evidence."

In order not to fall into the errors of positiveness, self-opinion, superstition, Darwin always carried a note book in which he jotted down the exceptions to the popular view.

Thus it is proved that wine spots, strawberry marks and birth blemishes are not due to sayings, feelings and thoughts. Thus it is proved universally and for all time that these things are mechanically brought about, just as burns, scars and wounds are after birth.

Chef of the Hotel McAlpin, New York.

PUDDING METTERNICK.

Fill up little puffs with chocolate cream, to which add a piece of butter. Four yolks of eggs, one quart of milk, four leaves of gelatine, one vanilla bean and sugar. Make a cream with this, which you finish when almost cold with whipped cream.

Garnish the bottom of a mould with paper, arrange the little puffs, cover with the cream, repeating the operation until all the puffs and cream have been used, then put on ice.

When ready to serve, take off the mould, put on dish, sprinkle over some chopped pistachios and arrange nicely cherries soaked in sugar.

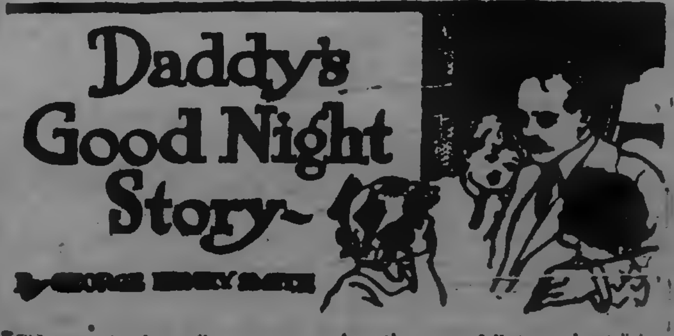
CRAB FLAKES EXQUISITE.

Requirements—Catsup, chili sauce, two finely minced shallots, tarragon, chervil, two spoonfuls puree of red pepper, one-half pound of butter, four egg yolks, cream, whole white pepper and cayenne.

Put the shallots in a pan, together with some good vinegar, crushed white pepper, the stems of the tarragon and a little chervil, place on the fire till the vinegar evaporates; then add the catsup, chili sauce and red pepper puree.

Allow to cook until reduced to half of the original volume; then add some of your fish broth and bind with the egg yolk. Finish your sauce with good butter, strain and serve.

Daddy's Good Night Story



By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

IT'S pretty hard to tell a story as good as those you fellows made up," began Billy. "But I will try.

"In the Great Forest there lived a Little Tree which was very, very lonesome. Beside the tree grew a Forget-me-not and the Little Tree used to talk to the Forget-me-not and try not to be lonesome.

"'Some day you will grow to be great and grand,' the Flower used to tell the Tree.

"'I suppose so,' said the Tree, 'but it will take a long time and I get so tired standing here all day long. I want to see the great big ocean over there. I want to feel the waves dash against me.'

"'Some day you will get your wish,' answered the Forget-me-not.

"Years went by and one day some wood choppers came. The Little Tree had grown quite tall and its topmost branches were above the other trees and looked out upon the ocean.

"'Here is the tree we have been looking for,' said one of the woodsmen. With that they set to work and chopped down the Tree. As it lay alongside the Forget-me-not the little Flower said:

"'Now you will get your wish.'

"Sure enough, the woodsmen were from a ship yard and the tree was taken down to the ocean and made the keel of a big vessel.

"One day the ship slid into the ocean and the Tree felt the swish of the waves and——"

"Got its wish," broke in Sammy Squirrel.

"Of course," answered Jack.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not Sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties.—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

Digging for Fish.

The natives of certain parts of India are in the habit every year in the summer of digging the dry river banks for fish, which they dig out by hundreds, just as they would potatoes. The mud lumps are broken open, and the fish, perhaps eight inches or ten inches long, will always be found alive and often frisky, as if just removed from its supposedly native element—the water.

Reciprocity.

There is one word which may serve as a rule of practice for one's life. That word is "reciprocity." What you do not wish done to yourself do not do to others.

FOR THE COMMON GOOD

It is the aim of The Times:

To exploit and advance the best interests of the people of the fair and fertile land wherein it is published, and to which it steadily devotes its efforts;

To stand for liberty and law, equal rights and good government, the greatest boon to a free people;

To foster and encourage private and public enterprise, and hold up the hands of every honest toiler, either with brawn or brain, in every field of activity;

To stand independently for the true interests of the city, the Dominion and the Empire, and for those policies only which make for the common good;

It aims to be excellent and not cheap.

LITTLE SORREL.

The Favorite Battle Charger of Stonewall Jackson.

Among the many battle steeds ridden during the war between the states by the celebrated Confederate Corps Commander Stonewall Jackson of Lee's army his favorite was a charger affectionately named Little Sorrel by the Second corps of the Army of Virginia. He was about fifteen hands and, as General Longstreet said to the writer, strongly resembled, except in color, President Zachary Taylor's Old Whitey of the Mexican war. Jackson rode him at Bull Run, Winchester, Cedar Mountain, Manassas, Antietam, Harpers Ferry, Fredericksburg and on many other battlefields. He mounted Little Sorrel for the last time at Chancellorsville May 2, 1863, and in the battle was mortally wounded by his own men and died a week later.

General Bradley T. Johnson of Maryland in a letter to the present writer remarks: "Jackson was an ungainly horseman, and when he rode by the troops Little Sorrel would strike off on a run. The general would pull off his cap and ride bareheaded at full speed past miles of shouting Confederates. The saying was when you heard that yell before or behind you on the march, 'There goes old Jack or a rabbit.' When the soldiers started a rabbit they'd scare him to death with yelling."

Little Sorrel died at the Soldiers' home near Richmond at the age of thirty-six years and is now to be seen, like Sheridan's Winchester, carefully preserved in a glass case after being prepared by a skillful taxidermist at Lexington, Va.—James Grant Wilson in S. P. C. A. Bulletin.

One Thing He Could Not Have.

Although there was no sort of toy which could be bought and for which Harold had expressed a desire that was not in his possession, he still had his unsatisfied longings. "I know what I wish I was, mother," he said one day when his own big brother had gone away and the little boy across the street was ill.

"Yes, dear," said his mother. "Perhaps you can be it, Harold; mother will help you. Is it to play soldier?"

"No, indeed!" said Harold scornfully. "I just wish I was two little dogs, so I could play together."—Youth's Companion.

JOHNSON'S SPEED REALLY MARVELOUS

Accurate Test Showed His Ball Travels Faster Than the World's Fastest Train

Walter Johnson throws a baseball faster than the Twentieth Century Limited travels. If he could propel a ball along the course followed by the world's fastest train, the ball would travel from New York to Chicago ahead of the train—because the "Century" moves at an average of 120 2-3 feet per second and Johnson's fast ball hops along 122 feet per second.

The exact speed of Johnson's fast ball has always been a matter of discussion. He has been compared to Rusie, and old-time fans say the Hoosier demon had it on Johnson, but there was no way to prove this. Men who have seen Johnson at his best are willing to swear the ball goes so fast it cannot be seen with the naked eye. Often the plunk of the ball in the catcher's mitt precedes the batsman's futile swing.

The question came up in New York one day when Washington was playing in the metropolis, and to settle it the big Swede was taken to Bridgeport, Conn., in an automobile, and a mathematically accurate test of his speed was made in the trial room of one of the big arms factories. A device used to test the speed of bullets was used. The apparatus consists of a screen of fine wires set up in front of a steel-faced plate; the distance between the screen and the plate is five yards. An electric connection to a register gives the exact time consumed by the projectile traveling between the screen and plate. As the projectile passes through the screen it snaps one or more of the fine wires starting the timer, which registers until the projectile strikes the steel plate.

After Johnson warmed up he took his stand before the apparatus and pitched ball after ball. He had difficulty in locating the "plate"—the screen—at first. But he finally managed it, and the registering device commenced to ring off the astounding speed. He reached 122 feet per second and stopped. "Nap" Rucker, the Brooklyn southpaw, who was also in the party took a turn at the indicator and registered 113 feet per second. Nap expressed his firm belief that Johnson could reach 150 feet per second if conditions were favorable—in fact, he asserted that on the ball field Johnson does that well. But Walter seemed satisfied to have beaten the speed of the Twentieth Century.

The speed of a high power bullet from an automatic pistol that is supposed to go through steel plates and heavy planking is but 800 feet per second.

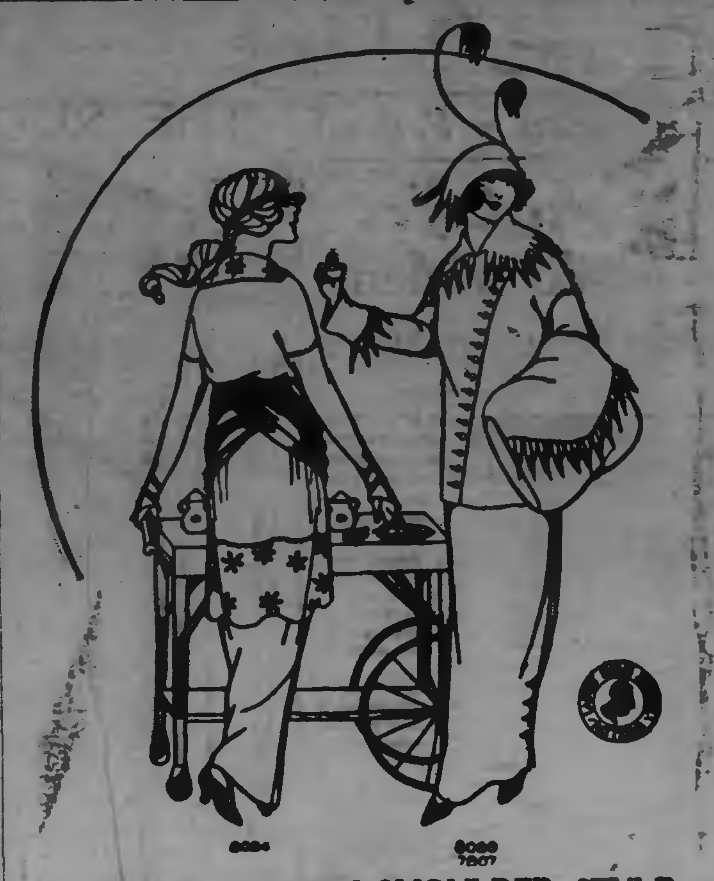
Where Clergy Are Scarce

In the whole of British Columbia and the Yukon Territory there are only 170 clergy. The region is rapidly opening up, and the new railways are bringing in an enormous stream of new settlers which it is far beyond the power of the Church to cope with. This immigration will speedily reach still greater developments, and the various agencies working in England on behalf of the Church on the Pacific Coast have decided, therefore, to federate together, so as to promote at once a greater unity and a greater strength. The British Columbia and Yukon Church Aid Society, in view of the importance of buying land for church sites while it is cheap; for establishing an ecclesiastical training college; and for the promotion of a campaign among Indians and Orientals on the Pacific Coast, states that an income of at least $275,000 a year will be required for the next fifteen years.

English Geisha Girl

An Englishwoman presented herself at the Yokohama Municipal Office and applied for a licence to become a geisha not long ago.

Such an application from a foreigner was so unusual that the officials at first paid no attention, believing her to be deranged. However, the request was sent in again, and the license was issued, and the new geisha was formally introduced to the neighboring geisha houses from Yamadoya. Her geisha name is [illegible]. Having lived for many years in Japan she is well acquainted with things Japanese, and is an accomplished player of the samisen. For a white woman to become a geisha is unique.



A COAT IN DROP-SHOULDER STYLE

Tunics are becoming to nearly every figure unless it be short and unusually stout, and even then there are styles of the tunic that would be becoming, so it is deservedly popular. These tunics or overskirts are long or short, draped or pointed and often they are merely applied bands cleverly arranged to look like an overskirt. All is fair this season as long as the effect is obtained.

No. 8084 is an attractive example of the applied circular trimming band, which gives the effect of a tunic. The smartly draped sash adds to the impression. For this costume tete de negre bengaline is used with trimmings of the same colored satin.

It requires 4⅞ yards of 36 inch material to copy this gown in size 36.

The drop-shoulder is a fashion feature favored by almost every one. It gives a smart air to the simplest frock or suit and is, as a rule, becoming.

In this instance (8080) it appears on a coat. Black velveteen fashions the suit, and the collar and cuffs are of ermine.

To copy this coat (8080) in size 36 it requires 2⅞ yards of 40 inch material. The skirt (7807) requires 3⅞ yards of 36, 40 or 54 inch material without up and down, for any size.

No. 8084—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8080—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 7807—sizes 22 to 30.

A HANDY COAT MODEL FOR SPORTS OR MOTORING WEAR.

A loose coat of warm, light weight material will be found very convenient even in the midst of summer to slip on over a light suit or frock. They are especially practical for out of doors sports or motoring.

Golfine, Duvetyn or one of the numerous other velours which come in so many delightful shades are perfectly suited to these coats, and they are most becoming. No. 8227 shows a raglan shoulder and a belt, which forms a pocket on either side of the cutaway front. It is fashioned of an apricot velours with collar and cuffs of plaid in which there are several other darker, harmonizing shades. This coat requires for size 36 3⅛ yards of 48 inch material.

The suit displayed in No. 7810-7811 shows one of the new short coats and a straight lined skirt with a shaped band at the bottom corresponding with the one at the bottom of the coat. A light weight wool crepe was used in this suit in a soft shade of green.

To make this suit in size 36 the coat requires 2⅛ yards of 36 inch material and the skirt about 4 yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8227—sizes 32 to 44.
No. 7810—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 7811—sizes 22 to 30.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

False Family Bibles

In a prosecution under the Old Age Pension Act at Lowestoft, the pension officer was asked if a family Bible was produced as evidence of age. He replied, "No, we are very chary of accepting them now. I believe they are manufactured now."

Owner of the Doone Country

The death is announced of Mr. Nicholas Snow, of Oare House, West Somerset, owner of most of the Doone country, the setting of Blackmore's novel, "Lorna Doone." The property has been in the Snow family for a thousand years.

A Terrible Death

David Sim, thirty-two, a pit inspector, met a terrible death at the Francis Pit, Dysart. Sim was going on duty about eleven o'clock at night, and after being served with his lamp proceeded to the pit-mouth. Under the impression that the cage was at the pit-mouth, Sim opened the gate, and stepping into the shaft, was precipitated to the pit bottom, a distance of 840 feet. The unfortunate man was literally dashed to pieces.

An autograph poem of forty-nine lines by Robert Burns was sold for [illegible] at Sotheby's. The opening line of the poem is: "This day Time winds the exhausted chain."

Chelsea Draghounds

Some Chelsea artists have arranged to start a small pack of draghounds, the hunt to be called the Black Hat Hunt. It is stated that several hounds have already been secured from one of the provincial packs.

Hatpin Danger

The Cardiff City Council passed a by-law ordering that all hatpins worn in public must have the points protected by suitable guards. A councillor produced a hatpin 11 inches long, and said ladies did not like walking down Duke street on a Saturday morning, as it was positively dangerous.

RACING ETIQUETTE

The novice in the world of racing often finds himself "up against" all kinds of little points of etiquette rendered customary by long usage, but not generally known outside the regular devotees of the sport.

For instance, the equine patricians who have passed the post first in "classic" races are always, on being led back to the paddock, treated by the onlookers with a mark of courtesy generally rendered to reigning Sovereigns, that is, a general doffing of hats. The man who fails to bow solemnly to the Derby winner after the races gives himself away at once as unversed in racing etiquette.

Except at Ascot, where there is a state procession, it is an unwritten law that no notice shall be taken of royalty at race meetings. The King or any other member of the royal family on the course is treated just as an ordinary commoner. In fact, you would often see the late King Edward in the paddock at Epsom, taking his chance with a whole crush of minor notabilities of the racing and social world in their anxiety to view the horses as they were being led out. The observance of the royal incognito, indeed, is said to have been originated by his late Majesty, when Prince of Wales, for his devotion to the sport of racing was such that he openly expressed his intolerance. While indulging in it, of tiresome ceremony.

In the case of the Derby, the Oaks, the One Thousand and Two Thousand Guineas, the St. Leger, the Manchester Cup, the Liverpool Cup, the Ascot Gold Cup, the Ascot Vase, the Chester Cup, the Jubilee Handicap, the Lincoln Handicap and the Goodwood Cup, the winner is always "led in" by the owner. If he is unavoidably absent this duty must be performed by a relative of his, or a personal friend deputed by him.

GERMAN AIRSHIP STATION

A North Sea Island Is the Great Naval Centre

Heligoland, the tiny island in the North Sea which Germany proposes to turn into a great station for her airships, is one of the most curious islands in the world.

Its towering cliffs, for instance, are largely artificial. Some years ago there was grave fear that the island, which was steadily growing smaller, would soon be eaten away entirely by the waves from the southwest. But $5,000,000 has been spent on raising a massive cliff of granite on this exposed side.

On those parts of the coast where the red, porous rock of the genuine cliffs has been too badly honeycombed by the seas, hundreds of thousands of tons of cement have been used to strengthen the face.

Heligoland has long been an important naval centre. It is defended by the most powerful guns, and is said to be prepared for a siege lasting three years. It is, indeed, the North Sea storehouse of the German fleet. Visitors are only allowed in the tiny port, the high plateau that forms the rest of the island being carefully guarded from the public.

Curfew Still Rings

It is not generally known that a curfew is still rung in London, Eng., at the present day, in Lincoln's Inn, although the hour of ringing has been changed from 8 to 9 p.m., and the lights are not extinguished. The bell which is now rung was brought from Cadiz by the ill-fated Robert Devereux, Earl of Essex, in 1596. The ringing of the curfew is looked upon as a very important part of the chief porter's duty, and at 8.45 each evening he makes his way to the tower of the Lincoln's Inn Chapel, and as soon as the last stroke of nine has sounded he strikes the curfew fifty times.

RECALLS EARLY DAYS

Interesting Find Made Near Banff of Famous Men's Initials

To carve one's initials on a tree trunk is a great and passionate desire of all school boys, and to this habit the world is perhaps indebted for the interesting discovery of initials on a fallen giant of the forest in the Canadian Rockies believed to be those of Sir George Simpson, at one time Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, and of his guide, James Roland. When Mr. John M. Gibbon was at Banff, B.C., endeavoring to locate records of David Thompson, who was the geographer in the early days of the West to the North West Trading Company, the great rival of the Hudson's Bay Company, he was referred to a Mr. James Brewster, a rancher, as a person well versed in local history, and he found the latter gentleman had made a discovery of great interest. He had been investigating Simpson Pass, hoping to discover some trace of Sir George Simpson's historic passage through the Rockies, and, halting to examine the under side of a large fallen tree trunk, found some carving which read: "G.S. I.R. 1841." It is evident that these initials are those of Sir George Simpson and his guide, James Roland. The year 1841 is that in which the famous explorer made his trip through the Rockies, choosing the pass which has been named after him.

Slab of Wood Bearing the Initials

The life of Sir George, the veteran king of fur traders, is one of the most picturesque in Canadian history. He went to the Canadian North West from Scotland in 1820, to take charge of the affairs of the Hudson's Bay Company. In 1841 he took up his tour of the world, leaving London on March 3rd of that year. With canoe and pack horse he crossed the continent, took ship from Fort Vancouver for Siberia, and reached London on his return journey in exactly 19 months and 26 days from his time of starting.

ITCHY NOSE AND RUNNING EYES CURED IN FIVE MINUTES BY "CATARRHOZONE"

BRONCHIAL DISTRESS AND BAD THROAT TROUBLE RELIEVED AT ONCE

Every day comes news of wonderful cures made by Catarrhozone. Cases are reported and personal testimony is given that proves beyond question the marvellous merit of Catarrhozone.

Bad colds and running eyes it stops in a few minutes.

Irritable throat and dry bronchial coughs are helped in a jiffy— always cured—if Catarrhozone is used as directed.

Chronic catarrh in the nose and throat, the sort that keeps the breath rank and maintains a vile, sickening discharge—even that type of catarrh yields completely to the power of Catarrhozone.

Just think of it!

Not a drug to take, not an hour to wait for relief—you just simply inhale the pleasant, piney vapor of Catarrhozone and get well quickly.

"What Catarrhozone did for me in one week was simply a miracle," writes Malcolm R. McIntosh from Sydney. "I gad a frightful attack of Catarrh. My ears buzzed and my head was full of noises. The end of my nose was red and itchy—on the inside it was sore and encrusted. I had vile droppings from my throat and was very sick. Relief came so quick—so I kept up the treatment and was absolutely cured by Catarrhozone."

Nothing else will so effectively and quickly cure you as Catarrhozone. Get the $1.00 outfit; it always does the trick. Small size 50c, sample trial size 25c, at all dealers.

The McDonald Lumber Co. have just completed a very successful year at the lumber camp on Squaw River. Here they turned out some 33 000 pieces. The camp was in charge of Mr. David Godfrey and all the gang speak well of their treatment in the camp.

Liquor Case (?) Dismissed.

Yesterday afternoon a special session of the police court was held. Mr. Alex. Elliott the George street liquor dealer was charged with selling to a minor. The evidence, however, seemed to show there was no justification for the charge which was dismissed.

Knights of Pythias.

Last night Grand Chancellor Rumpell of Berlin, Ont., paid an official visit to Marathon Lodge, Knights of Pythias. Members of the order were here from Lindsay, Port Hope and Havelock, and one of the biggest nights that Marathon Lodge has put on was that of last night.

Successful Basket Social.

Last night the Basket Social held in the Woodmen of the World Hall, under auspices of L.O.L. No. 50 was well patronized and a great success. A good musical program was rendered by the White Coon Concert and Orchestra Troupe. The ladies supplied ample refreshments brought in baskets.

The New Empress Hotel.

The name chosen by Mr. Geo. Graham for the former "National" Hotel, is the "Empress" Hotel, and in its appointments will be the best hostelry between Toronto and Ottawa. One of the improvements includes a complete house telephone system with a 'phone in each room, and a local switch-board in the rotunda.

Peterborough Baseball.

Manager Blount of the Peterborough Ball Club, is still signing players for the Petes and the Youngstown Vindicator gives some details of several new men whom he has grabbed up. The recruits include another catcher by the name of Miller, who will likely be the first string backstop, and a pitcher by the name of Zoleski, who hails from Hubbard, Pa.

Local Man Bereaved.

A Rochester, N.Y., despatch says: Alfred N. Bailey, brother of James Bailey of Peterborough, died on Monday night at Rochester, N.Y., after an illness of months. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. H. A. Epstein, Rochester and Mrs. Louis Poole, Lockport, N.Y., one sister, Mrs. Frances Reed, Rochester, and another brother Amos Bailey, of Rochester. The interment will take place this afternoon to Mount Hope cemetery, Rochester.

Local Production in Lakefield.

Last evening the Young People's Society of Knox church journeyed to Lakefield to present their successful comedy sketch, "The New Minister." A large number of friends and relatives of the young people accompanied them, a special car having been chartered. The production scored another big success in the neighboring village and the trip was a most enjoyable one.

Our Local Lights.

The 6th Annual report of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission on page 125 of the report gives two half page pictures of the "Old System of Street Lighting, Peterboro," and "the New Magnetite Street Lighting, Peterboro." The pictures were both taken by night, and demonstrate that the City has a lighting system second to none in the world.

Change in Bible Class Name.

The Men's Bible Class of the George St. Methodist S. S. formerly known as the "Inthon" Class, feeling that the name Inthon did not convey the real meaning of the workings of the class, decided that a change of name would be in the interests of the same. Therefore it was resolved that in future the class should be known as the "Men's Social Bible Class." A hearty invitation is extended to all men in the city to meet with us in the church parlors at 3 p.m. Sunday March 29.

He is Not Guilty!

Yesterday a local hotel clerk quoth thusly to a Times' scribe: "Look here you have got me into all kinds of trouble over that story you had a few days ago about some local troubadors serenading some normal school girls. I have had a hundred people ask if I gave that story to The Times. Now I was on duty that evening, and anyhow had I been out with the musicians that night I'm no stool-pigeon." The clerk did not give us that story. A little bird told it.

Grand Old Timber.

Yesterday Mr. Hickey with a gang of men, busily engaged in tearing down what is left of Sheriff Hall's former homestead on Hunter street, removed solid beams of pine 4 feet long by 12 inches square. Such timber could not be procured in this part of the country now under, possibly, $70 a thousand. The beams were purchased by Mr. J. T. O'Connell, the Hunter street real estate man, for use in a barn he is building.

CLEVER ACT AT PRINCESS.

One of the cleverest musical comedy sketches seen here for many a month is that now playing at the Princess Theatre. The team in question are May and Brown. They do a clever musical stunt with sparkling comedy and witty sayings interspersed. Mr. May puts on a song of his own, entitled, "The Noted Man," which is very catchy.

McLean Not Burned

Mr. A. J. McLean, a wealthy Manilla, Ont., real estate man, is said to have been burned by the Woodbine Hotel fire, by a Toronto paper. This however, is denied by the Lindsay Warder as follows: "Of late he has been seen selling Toronto real estate, and as usual making a success of his business. On last Thursday he arrived in Lindsay and on Friday took up several business matters with local would-be or prospective buyers. He interested them in Toronto property. Having been in Lindsay on Friday he most assuredly was not a victim. He has since returned to Lindsay."

GIRLS! STOP WASHING THE HAIR WITH SOAP

Soap Dries the Scalp, Causing dandruff, Then Hair Falls Out—Try This Next Time.

After washing the hair with soap always apply a little Danderine to the scalp to invigorate the hair and prevent dryness. Better still, use soap as sparingly as possible, and instead have a "Danderine Hair Cleanse." Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair taking one strand at a time. This will remove dust, dirt and excessive oil. In a few moments you will be amazed, your hair will not only be clean, but it will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness and lustre.

Besides cleansing and beautifying the hair one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff, stimulates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

Men! Ladies! You can surely have lots of charming hair. Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it.

The Motto of Every Canadian Should be "What We Have, We INTEND to Hold"

In so far as it applies to Canada's national wealth, our forests, and more particularly the protection of our fur-bearing animals, which, however, would soon become but evidence of a great past unless husbanded by the foresight of man.

To the foresight of Prince Edward Island's practical men two of the most famous of Canada's fur-bearing animals, the Black and Silver Fox, have been saved to future generations—and as a consequence Canada will unquestionably furnish the world's great demand in future, for this princely fur exceeds its weight in gold!

Concerted action by shrewd Canadians now engaged in this industry in Prince Edward Island will shortly control all the available Black and Silver Foxes wherever found on this continent, a fact generally conceded by persons in authority—consequently this announcement is of great interest to the careful investor and believer in Canada's vast Fur Wealth.

Some Important Facts about the Silver Black Fox Industry

The first island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $4,000.00; in 1911 the price went to $6,000, a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000.00 was considered high but not unusual and at the time of writing (January 28, 1914) live breeders can bring any price from $15,000.00 to $35,000.00, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000.00 a pair.

About $10,000.00 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $3,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the Island contain 899 silver breeding foxes (441 males and 458 females). The total number of silver offspring for 1913 was 703, and the average assessed value was $4,892.52 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $3,349,449. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1,602.

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,626.00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company has TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND silver black foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option all are eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which in 1913 paid from 45 per cent to 900 per cent.

THE INDUSTRY

No industry in recent years has made such wonderful strides as the Black-Silver Fox Industry, and the reason is that it offers larger financial returns than any other business in the Dominion. Moreover, its future possesses unlimited opportunities, as the demand is constantly increasing, while the supply has reached almost a minimum until a few companies undertook the breeding and rearing of these valuable animals. Everyone who is alive to the opportunities of enormous profits without risk will readily appreciate the advantages of investing in the R. J. McNeill Black and Silver Fox Company, Limited. It is a fact that every bona fide fox company organized within the Province of Prince Edward Island has paid dividends of from 45 per cent to 300 per cent and some companies have even done better than this.

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a percentage of the production will be retained, placing the company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211-acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair and Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1912. This company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I. who were employed in the United States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $15,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $300 three years ago, and is now worth $45,000 directly from this source.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's, Limited, received $25,000 from an investment of $500 made in this business three years ago.

The Rosemount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1,000 per cent this year.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $500 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $3,500. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair for a year. The first litter consisted of seven pups. The seven owners have received $336,000 each dividends since and the pair bought for $3,500 could be sold for $35,000 to-day. Mr. Austin Scales, of St. Eleanors, is a member of this Association.

SPANISH SWINDLER IS ACTIVE ONCE MORE

This Time He Wants Money to Help Defend a Canadian in St. Petersburg

Montreal, March 24.—The manipulator of the old Spanish prisoner fraud has now adopted a new means of attempting to get money from the easily beguiled. Instead of, as heretofore, promising a share in a hidden fortune for help sent him in jail, he now asks for money to assist in the defence of a Canadian charged with murder in St. Petersburg. A letter, asking for assistance along these lines was received by E. A. Curwood, 121 Mansfield street, to-day. The letter, which is dated from Madrid, is believed by the police, to whom it was sent by Mr. Curwood, to be one of thousands sent to Canada.

CRISIS IN IRELAND CAUSES DISRUPTION OF LIBERAL BRITISH MINISTERS

BRITISH OFFICERS NOT OBLIGED TO ACT IN ULSTER

Official White Paper Sent by Col Seely to Commons Bares Facts

London, Mar. 25.—Documents made public to-day disclose officially the fact that the British Government gave officers in Ireland a written undertaking that there was no intention of using the army to crush Ulster's political opposition to the Home Rule Bill. The correspondence, however, points out that the Government retains its right to use the army to maintain law and order.

The order issued by the War Office in respect to the duties of the army in Ireland, chiefly in connection with the protection of Government stores, arms and ammunition are given very completely. The correspondence, however, omits the verbal communication made by Gen. Sir Arthur Paget to the officers at the Curragh Camp, which led to their resignations and which the Government argues was the result of a "misunderstanding."

MR. BONAR LAW WAS CORRECT.

That the version of Gen. Paget's communication read by Mr. Bonar law, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons on Monday, was substantially correct, seems clearly indicated. Mr. Law on that occasion read a letter in which Gen Paget stated that "active operations were to begin against Ulster and that it was expected the country would be in a blaze by Saturday." The Irish commander-in-chief wrote that he was in close communication with the War Office and had received instructions from headquarters to notify his officers that those of them domiciled in Ulster would be allowed to disappear and be afterwards reinstated. They must, however, give their word of honor not to fight for Ulster. In the published correspondence Brigadier-General Hubert Gough underlines phrases such as "active operations" when asking for further information and it appears evident that he was quoting the remarks of General Paget.

CANNOT VERIFY RESIGNATIONS

After a protracted Cabinet council this morning the rumor was started that the entire ministry had decided to resign. Other reports were current that Col. Seely, Secretary for War, and Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, had handed in their resignations to Premier Asquith. No confirmation of either of these reports was obtainable.

WHAT THE TRENT CANAL REPORT HAS COST

Ottawa, Mar. 25.—According to the Citizen, the Acting Minister of Railways and Canals, in his reply to Mr. Pardee, said that G. H. Ferguson, M.L.A., was appointed Oct. 14, 1912, to investigate irregularities concerning a certain shipment of explosives on the Trent Valley Canal. A month later his commission was enlarged to include all cases of theft and fraud. Mr. Ferguson's bill was $555.00 for his work as investigator, $370.00 for expenses and $60.-00 for preparing his report. Owing to the report not being returned to the House by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, it is not yet printed as ordered by the House. 2,500 copies will be printed for the use of the House and Senate. It is not likely that there will be more than a passing reference to the matter in the House, as the question is not regarded as political.

AN ELECTION IN TROUBLE ZONE

London, March 25.—The Unionist member for East Belfast, Robert Jas. McMordie, died to-day at the age of 65. He had been a member of the House of Commons only since 1910.

"Postum for Mine"

Many a man and woman with tea and coffee troubles has found that Postum is a sure and pleasant way back to health. A doctor writes:

"I have been using Postum for the last seven or eight years, and think it has a good deal to do with my looking younger than 55 years o age.

"I recommended it to all my patients, and those who have been using it have only praises for its taste and its good effects on their nervous systems; like me they have given up tea and coffee altogether."

Postum is a pure food-drink made of wheat and a small proportion of molasses—roasted and skilfully blended. It is absolutely free from the drugs, caffeine and tannin in tea and coffee—common causes of heart, stomach, liver, kidney and nerve disturbance.

Some people marvel at the benefits from leaving off tea and coffee and using Postum, but there is nothing marvelous about it—only common sense.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be boiled. 15c and 25c pkgs.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder, requires no boiling. A spoonful stirred in a cup of hot water makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

NANAIMO STRIKERS WILL BE RELEASED

Ottawa, Mar. 25.—On the recommendation of Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, 22 of the Nanaimo (B.C.) coal mine strikers, who were sentenced to long terms of imprisonment several months ago, are to be released as soon as the necessary papers reach the governor of the penitentiary in New Westminster, B. C., where the strikers are serving their terms.

Hon. Mr. Doherty's recommendation was placed before H.R.H. the Governor-General this morning, who accepted it and signed the papers for the release of the men.

LETTERS SENT HOME CUT IMMIGRATION

London, Mar. 25.—Emigration returns for the last few months show a remarkable decrease compared with last year in the number leaving for Canada; 1,866 left in December, 1913, against 3,070 in the previous December. There were 1,[illegible]06 in January, 1914, against 3,571 the previous January; 4,458 in February, against 8,359 the previous February.

Figures for Australia and New Zealand show even more remarkable reductions. It is probably gloomy letters to the press on experiences or prospects of emigrants which have been common recently which are largely responsible for these reductions.

CLAIMS R. C. CHURCH INFLUENCE IS NOW AN NATIONAL PERIL

North Bay Methodist Preacher Has Warm Reply to Bishop Scollard of the "Soo"

North Bay, Mar. 25.—In an address on "National Perils," Rev. I. G. Bowles, pastor of North Bay Methodist Church, referred to the published statement attributed to Bishop Scollard, of the Sault Ste. Marie Roman Catholic diocese, that the public schools were godless and the teachers lazy.

Rev. Mr. Bowles said: "I have been a public school teacher myself and I can tell his Grace that I know them better than he does.

"Assuming that the press report of the bishop's remarks three weeks ago at the Soo was correct—and thus far it had not been denied—such statements are glaringly inconsistent and untrue and could only be conceived in bigotry, born in jealousy, nursed in calumny and developed in abuse. The Roman Catholic Church is a national peril when it assumes the role of an emissary to influence the press, direct politics and control legislation. Canadian citizens should be aroused to the danger of church interference in state matters which is becoming very pronounced in Canada, now, after European countries have resolutedly divorced church and State."

ONTARIO LEGISLATORS PROBE INDUSTRIAL FARM MATTERS

Little Capital for Liberals Found in Model Institution--Few Masons in Jail

Toronto, Mar. 25.—Prison farm affairs occupied the attention of the Accounts Committee to-day. Mr. S. R. Armstrong, Assistant Provincial Secretary, gave figures to show that prisoners in the Central cost the Province 50 cents a day, while at the Industrial Farm they cost 70 cents a day. The fact that prison labor was let to contractors in Toronto, while in Guelph the prisoners were employed on the farm explained the difference.

Mr. Armstrong gave some flattering statistics regarding the mason trade. That was practically the only trade, he stated, where there was not a large enough number of prisoners to do the labor needed. The result was that in this line outside men had to be employed. It was one trade from which few men found their way inside prison walls, and to prove this he quoted figures from American States.

BEST SYSTEM EMPLOYED.

The morning's hearing was confined chiefly to going over the items of outlay at the Prison Farm, C. M. Bowman and J. C. Elliott, being the Liberal inquisitors. A general description of the various industries was given by Mr. Armstrong, and also a detailed account of the different buildings, which have cost $949,000 since May 1910. The assistant secretary, backed by Mr. Thomas McGarry, of Renfrew, maintained that the best possible system was employed, that the farm was up-to-date in every particular, and was able to supply other institutions even with such produce as vegetables. Nothing was purchased by contract, he added, all buying being on the open market. The actual cost of maintaining the 2,300 prisoners had been $186,000, the balance representing new buildings.

Mr. Elliott became interested in the comparison of accommodation provided prisoners, and that accorded inmates of other institutions, but was checked up by Mr. McGarry declaring there could be no fair basis of comparison.

Mr. Armstrong stated that the standard of living was better, since the men needed muscle producing food, but the housing, while sanitary, was much poorer. One hundred and seventy-five prisoners slept in one room, while inmates of other public institutions have rooms to themselves.

NATIONALISTS VOTE WITH LIBERALS ON THE FRENCH LANGUAGE QUESTION BEFORE HOUSE COMMONS

Ottawa, Mar. 25.—In a forceful appeal to-day in the House of Commons against the Speaker's ruling on the French question, the Nationalists, as usual voted with the Liberals.

JUDGE HUYCKE AND POLICE COMMISSIONERS

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—At a meeting of the Ministerial Association held March 24th, 1914, it was resolved to send to you and to the Secretary of the Police Commissioners, the following extract from the Review of Saturday, Feb. 21st.

"It is my duty to use my own best judgment in the same way as in the trial of an action, civil or criminal. A judge should be absolutely independent, uninfluenced and uninfluenceable, should not regard or be subject to or even listen to, any outside influence or interference. I tried to hint or even state this to the Ladies' Deputation, but it was certainly either misunderstood or ignored. This being my duty as judge, and ex-officio Police Commissioner, I propose doing my duty as I see it, and refuse to move even a hair's breadth from the line of duty, notwithstanding deputies and petitions, coarse abuse and brazen falsehood, yellow pulpiteers and deeper yellow irresponsible scribblers,—any or all of these do not move me one iota. I try to make them of no effect; but if they have any effect at all it must be to injure and destroy the object they so unwisely and illegally endeavor to promote and advance. I say illegally advisedly. The Code makes it a criminal offence to influence a juror on a case, it is not less so, and a contempt of court to endeavor to do so with a judge, only it is, I trust, less rare generally."

The use of the word "illegally" in the above raises a question of such importance that the following communication was addressed to the Attorney-General:

To the Honorable J. J. Foy, Attorney-General, Toronto.

Dear Mr. Foy,—The question has arisen in the City of Peterborough as to whether a Police Commission, one member of which is the County Judge may properly be approached through petitions or otherwise on questions pertaining to police protection.

Does the presence of the judge on the Commission bring the Commission under the rule by which it is improper for an individual or for individuals to approach a Judge acting in the judicial capacity?

We are most anxious to have your decision in this matter for our guidance.

Yours faithfully,
J. N. CLARRY,
Sec. Ministerial Assn.

The following reply was received:

Dear Sir,—I have your letter of the 17th instant addressed to the Attorney-General, and in reply may say that I am not aware of any reason why the Police Commission should not be approached through petitions or otherwise on questions pertaining to police protection.

Yours truly,
J. R. WAINWRIGHT.

Thanking you for your valuable space.

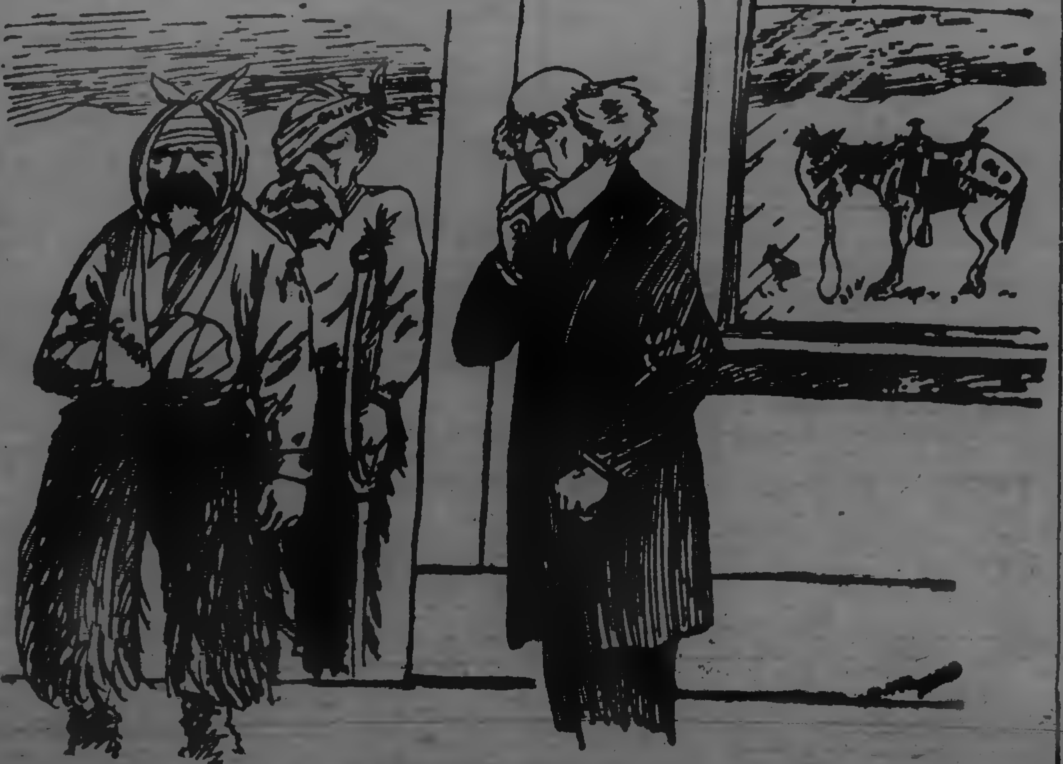
J. N. CLARRY,
Sec. Ministerial Assn.

BURGLARS SENT TO THE PENITENTIARY

Toronto, Mar. 25.—Geo. Powers and Charles Davies, who were arrested a week ago at Mimico when they broke into the post-office, were to-day sentenced to five years each in Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate Brunton, in the county police court.

SWEETHEART PROSTRATED

London, Ont., Mar. 25.—John Graham, who was killed in the Woodbine Hotel fire in Toronto recently, left his money and insurance, about ten thousand in all, to Miss Edna Burridge to whom he was to have been married in the spring. She has been completely prostrated ever since receiving word that his body had been identified.



Tried to break him again.

COL. JOHN SELLY, SECRETARY FOR WAR, RESIGNS IN DISGRACE HIS MAJESTY HAD NOT INTERFERED

At Protracted Meeting of Cabinet Conclusion is Reached That Minister Must Retire in View of Amazing Instructions to Officers

London, Mar. 25.—Premier Asquith refused to-day to accept Col. Seely's resignation. After the sympathetic reception by the House of Commons of the Secretary for War's explanation of his action regarding the army officers in Ireland, the Premier decided that he would not sacrifice his lieutenant.

London, Mar. 25.—The resignation of Col. John Seely, Secretary for War, followed quickly after the publication to-day of the white paper giving details of the crisis in the British army, whose officers refused to participate in active operations against the inhabitants of Ulster who had prepared to offer armed resistance to the introduction of home rule.

Col. Seely in his valedictory address to the House of Commons, denied that King George had taken any initiative of any kind in the army crisis. He said:

"The suggestion is absolutely without foundation in the broadest sense. His Majesty took no initiative of any kind."

IT MEANT HIS RESIGNATION.

The correspondence between Col. Seely and the officers in Ireland had astounded the country, and in the opinion of seasoned politicians, demanded one of two courses—the cashiering of the Secretary for War or the resignation of the entire Cabinet. The first course was decided upon at a protracted Cabinet council early this morning. Later in the day, in the House of Commons, Premier Asquith, in reply to a question, made it clear that the instructions given to General Sir Arthur Paget before his interview with the officers under him, had emanated directly from the War Office and were not submitted to the Prime Minister by the Secretary for War.

LORD BERESFORD OPENS

Col. Seely asked the indulgence of the House in view of a statement he would have to make before the close of the sitting.

The House of Commons buzzed with excitement and was crowded to its utmost capacity when Lord Charles Beresford opened the attack on the Government by demanding information as to the naval movements in connection with the situation in Ulster.

NARAL MOVES IN IRISH ROW.

"Was the battle squadron ordered to steam at full speed from Spanish waters to the Irish coast and ordered to embark field guns?" he asked.

Amid ministerial cheers and derisive laughter from the Unionists, Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, admitted that the battle squadron had been ordered to Lamlash, "so as to be in proximity to the coast of Ireland in case of serious disturbances, arising. When it was clear the military precautionary movements had been carried out without opposition, it was decided that this movement of the fleet could be delayed until the Easter leave period of the crews was over."

A PUBLIC SAFEGUARD

Particular people take every precaution in these days of keen competition and hustle, and recognizing this, Mr. A. A. Fowler, with the Nugent Drug Co., who is ever ready to meet the demands of his patrons, has added to his optical parlors, a Cabinet Sterilizer, by which every article used by Mr. Fowler is sterilized, and thereby rendered perfectly safe for the important use of which they are put in the delicate treatment of eyesight.

The superior Cabinet Sterilizer is a public safeguard. The possibility of the presence of germs is done away with by the treatment of every instrument with a formalde-hyde solution.

HOW TO SHED A ROUGH BLOTCHY, OR FADED SKIN

(From Beauty's Mirror.)

This is what you should do to shed a bad complexion: Spread evenly over the face, covering every inch of skin, a thin layer of ordinary mercolized wax. Let this stay on over night, washing it off next morning. Repeat daily until your complexion is as clear, soft and beautiful as a young girl's. This result is inevitable, no matter how soiled or withered the complexion. The wax literally absorbs the filmy surface skin, exposing the lovely young skin beneath. The process is entirely harmless, so little of the old skin coming off at a time. Mercolized wax is obtainable at any drug store; one ounce usually suffices. It's a veritable wonder-worker for rough, chapped, reddened, blotchy, pimpled, freckled or sallow skin.

Pure powdered saxolite is excellent for a wrinkled skin. An ounce of it dissolved in a half pint witch hazel makes a refreshing wash-lotion. This renders the skin quite firm and smooth; indeed, the very first application erases the finer lines; the deeper ones soon follow.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Colder, with northerly winds.

MURDER INDICTMENTS.

A Sample of the Idiotic Style in Which They Are Written.

Murder has been written of as a fine art, but it remained for the United States to treat it as a sport. In many of the states an indictment for murder contains nearly enough words to fill a column and sounds like the conversation of an idiot. Here is a sample:

"That the said J. F. G., a certain pistol then and there charged with gunpowder and leaden bullets, which said pistol he, the said J. F. G., then and there in his right hand had and held, then and there unlawfully, purposely and of deliberate and premeditated malice, did discharge and shoot off to, against and upon the said F. M., with the intent aforesaid, and that the said J. F. G., with the leaden bullets aforesaid, out of the pistol aforesaid, by the force of the gunpowder aforesaid, by the said J. F. G., then and there discharged and shot off as aforesaid, him, the said F. M., in and upon the upper right side of the back of him, the said F. M., then and there"—

This isn't as idiotic as it looks, however. It is part of our sporting theory of justice, which makes a murder trial a game of skill and finesse between opposing counsel. By the slightest deviation from statutory form one side may lose the game. Convictions for the most abhorrent crimes have repeatedly been set aside because of trivial verbal omissions in the indictment.

Had the murder referred to in the above quotation occurred in Canada the indictment would have read simply: "The jurors of our lord the king present that J. F. G. on the 6th day of August, one thousand nine hundred and eight, at the city of Winnipeg, in the province of Manitoba, murdered F. M." Canadian procedure concerns itself with the murder. Ours in many jurisdictions concerns itself with the legal sport, whether the murderer is punished or not being a secondary consideration.—Saturday Evening Post.

And All of Them Americans.

An English visitor has recently been expressing his wonderment at the facility with which America assimilates its stream of immigrants. A friend with whom he was talking on the subject remarked. "My housemaid is a Norwegian, my grocer a Scotchman, my butcher is a German, my druggist is a Finn, my barber an Italian, my newsman a Jew, my laundryman is Irish, my fishmonger English, my florist Greek and my tailor Russian." —American Hebrew.

If you want a hard case there is the case of a man who late at night bought a bottle of whisky at a public house—price, 3s. 6d.—says the London Globe. He handed over a five pound note, and the publican would not change it. "All right," said the customer. "Give me the whisky and 16s. 6d. and keep my five pound note." Next morning the customer came in, planked down four sovereigns and said, "Give me back my five pound note and we shall be straight." The publican and the sinner looked at each other. Can you tell at a glance which got the better of the bargain when the customer went away with his five pound note in his pocket?

The question puzzled a whole office full of literary, financial, sporting, philosophical and editorial men—until it reached a girl of eighteen who is engaged in dealing with cash. All the rest were calculating on paper and reaching the result by devious ways. The cash girl saw it in a flash of the eye. Do you? Shut your eyes and do it in five seconds if you wish to beat the cash girl.

His Own Joke.

"I admit I was found in the possession of firearms," said the prisoner, "but it's only a joke of mine, my lord."

"Explain yourself," said the magistrate.

"Why, I put two pistols in my pocket when I go out to a friendly gathering. Then I start talking of aeroplanes."

"Well?"

"Then I say my life was once saved by parachutes."

"Yes?"

"And I pull out the pistols and say, 'Pair o' shoots.' Ha! ha! See?"

"Yes, I see. Did you make up that joke yourself?"

"Yes, my lord."

"Two years' hard labor."—London Answers.

The Attorney In England.

The use of the word attorney denotes a belated mind. Since Nov. 1, 1875, attorneys have ceased to exist, their title merged by law into that of solicitor of the supreme court of judicature, says a writer in the London Mail. The name had long been used as a term of abuse. Johnson observed of an acquaintance that "he did not care to speak ill of any man behind his back, but he believed the gentleman was an attorney."

Archbishop Trench, in 1859, noted that the word attorney was going out of favor and that the lower branch of the legal profession preferred to be called solicitors. So when the judicature act of 1873 was before parliament a clause was inserted abolishing the obnoxious title. But with our delightful conservatism we still honor the "attorney general."

The Hudson Six-54, $2950
(f. o. b. Detroit, Mich.)
Duty Paid.

Cost of Running HUDSON Six is Less Than a Four

Prove it for yourself. Make the best record you can with your Four. Don't deceive yourself. Be fair about it. Then come to us and ask us to show you what we can do with the HUDSON Six of proportionately the same class and horse-power. We will show you that it will cost you less to own and run a HUDSON Six than to continue the use of your Four. This may surprise you, in view of the vehement assertions of dealers who want to sell Fours. Nevertheless it is a fact capable of easy demonstration.

Until you drive a HUDSON Six you cannot realize its great advantage. Its smoothness and flexibility are an insurance as well as a delight. HUDSON Sixes are preferred because of high quality combined with moderate price. The Six-54 has four forward speeds, 135-inch wheelbase, motor 4⅛ x 5¼, developing 55 horse power. Made in Phaeton at $2950 and Sedan at $4650. The Six-40 has 123-inch wheelbase, motor 3½x5, developing 47 horse power, gives 16 to 17 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and is, we think, the easiest riding car on the market. The Six-40 in Phaeton and Roadster at $2350, and in Cabriolet at $2575. All cars, of course, are electrically started and lighted left side drive, center control, gasoline tank in cowled dash. Catalog on request. Demonstrations as arranged. Prices f. o. b. Detroit, Mich. Duty paid.

A NEW EMPIRE

Undeveloped Tract of Land in Northwest Can Support Millions

In the vast basin of the Mackenzie River, the largest river in the world, there lie latent possibilities which may in the future aid in the formation of a new empire. In this immense territory, as yet uncultivated, there are no less than 404,840,000 acres of land which, according to Government reports, are suitable for the production of potatoes, and 308,250,000 acres of the finest wheat land, and these acres will shortly be added to the visible agricultural areas of Canada.

Nearly all minerals of economic value are to be found here, and also platinum, silver, iron, copper, mica, sulphur and saltpetre, while it has a timber area of 200,000 square miles, an illimitable fishing industry, and a fur trade the exact value of which has not been estimated, but which is known to run into millions.

There is also a pastoral area of 860,000 square miles, while its facilities for water transportation are unsurpassed. The Mackenzie River has a navigable mileage of 2,750 miles, and there are 4,000 miles of lake coast. There are, too, immense water powers awaiting development, among them the grand rapids of the Athabasca River, where it is estimated that a 50,000 horsepower can be harnessed.

If all under cultivation the basin of this giant river could produce 8 bushels of wheat, 6 bushels of barley and 60 bushels of potatoes for every man, woman and child on the globe, or in other words, sufficient wheat, barley and potatoes to feed five hundred millions of people.

How People Feel
When They Have
Tape Worm

Tape worm is bred from a parasite. This parasite is a creature male and female in one. It is a pear shape, having two, four and six suckers. It lays the eggs, which are only connected together with slime. They develop and form a body, which is the worm. Each joint is an individual, having a sucker or mouth. The worm grows to be much longer than the bowels where it is located, and sometimes a whole colony of them are found, enough to fill a quart of solid worm, and when put in a bucket of water would apparently fill it. It is the hardest task in the world to destroy this parasite without doing injury to the individual who may be so unfortunate as to have it, as the parasite clings to the bowels, freeing itself from the body of the worm, and remains there to breed another. It is an internal demon and causes its victims to suffer all the symptoms of disease imaginable. The cleverest physicians are led to believe the patient is suffering from some other disease, as nearly every person has different symptoms. Some have been treated for cancer of the bowels, consumption of the bowels, consumption of the lungs, chronic dyspepsia, nervous prostration, melancholia, hypochondria, hysteria, inflammation of the bowels, appendicitis and other complaints, when one or more of these internal demons were eating their lives away.

Prof. Mulvaney has made the discovery to free the victim of this monster without injury to the system, destroying the parasite as well as expelling the worm with one dose of medicine without any previous starvation. Visit his office, where he has in his possession the most wonderful collection of these death-dealing monsters in the world, which have been expelled from hundreds of people by his famous remedy, some bottles containing colonies of worms and anyone seeing them cannot imagine how a person could possibly live with them in his bowels. It is surprising the number of people that have them. Thousands have them and are not aware of the fact. The letters and testimonials the Professor has in his possession are enough to convince one of this alarming fact. Some of the most prominent symptoms are: ravenous appetite, dizzy spells, headaches, cramps in the bowels, a feeling of something moving in the bowels, loss a feeling as though something was crawling up the throat. The only certainty of having one in the system is when segments or joints are seen, which come away almost any time. They are flat and from ⅝ of an inch to 1 inch long, which have often been mistaken for pin worms by those who do not know the difference. There are many other feelings of distress which would take long to enumerate. Strange to say, some people of strong constitution, have very little distress.

Prof. Mulvaney's world-famous Tape Worm Exterminator is safe, sure and harmless. No starvation, no disgust, it is not disagreeable to take. One dose nearly always effects a cure. It is interesting to note, by the way that quite a number of members of European Royal Families bear tattooed designs. The Grand Duke Alexis of Russia, for instance, is most elaborately tattooed; likewise his cousin, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. The Queen of Greece and the King of Sweden are also tattooed. On his arm Prince George of Greece has a wonderful representation of a flying dragon in many colors. One of King George's arms bears a similar design, and Prince Francis of Teck has a curious picture of a frog leaping for a small beetle tattooed on his right forearm.

Put Wooden Leg on Cow

Dr. James M. I. Galloway, a young veterinary surgeon of Kirkintilloch, Scotland, performed a most remarkable operation recently. A Holstein cow belonging to a friend broke its leg while climbing a hill. Dr. Galloway gave the cow an anaesthetic, and then amputated the injured member. A wooden leg was then designed and fitted to the cow and she now is perfectly well and contented.

New Zealand's Glaciers.

The great size of the glaciers around Mount Cook, in New Zealand, has been often remarked. The Tasman is eighteen miles long, the Murchison ten miles, the Godley eight miles, the Mueller eight miles and the Hooker seven miles. Most of these glaciers have moraines of exceeding roughness, but the approaches to them are not steep, as is usually the case with European glaciers. The southern Alpine snow line is only a little over 7,000 feet. Glacially polished rocks are rare, and in many ways the [illegible] alpine are singularly different from [illegible]

IF ASQUITH STOPS

Neither those who hold a high opinion of Mr. Asquith as a statesman, nor those who hold an opposite opinion, believe that he is trying to give Home Rule to Ireland because he believes that Ireland is suffering for lack of Home Rule. Perhaps Mr. Asquith believes that Ireland ought to have Home Rule and would prefer that she be granted it; but his feelings on this point are hardly strong enough to have forced him to smash the House of Lords, imperil the monarchy, and run the risk of civil war to pass the Government of Ireland Bill. It is Mr. Redmond who was willing to render powerless the Lords, intimidate the King and even see Ulster in arms for the sake of Home Rule. There is no questioning the fanatical devotion of Mr. Redmond to the cause. In order to achieve this end he has held his little Nationalist group steadily at the orders of the British Government ever since Campbell-Bannerman attained office. There ures repugnant to the Nation- were many government meas- alists, but for the sake of Home Rule they voted for them one and all, having seen Mr. Asquith through most of his difficulties they have arrived within sight of their promised land. Mr. Asquith purchased the Nationalist support, without which he could not have carried on his Government, by pledging himself to Home Rule. Now the time has come to pay the debt, suppose Mr. Asquith, believing that to carry out terms of the compact would be to provoke civil war, were to refuse to proceed, and tell Mr. Redmond that he could not fulfill his part of the agreement? By voting with the Unionists on the first opportunity, the Nationalists might have the satisfaction of bringing about the downfall of the Asquith Government. But it would be no satisfaction to them, surely, to see a Government in power whose leaders were Bonar Law, Sir Edward Carson, and other strong partisans of Ulster. No doubt if Mr. Asquith showed signs of weakening Mr. Redmond could threaten him with the loss of office. But, on the other hand, Mr. Asquith might point out to Redmond that he could hope for nothing from the Unionist Government. He might go farther and say that rather than see Mr. Redmond and his Nationalists become the dictators of British Parliaments, holding the balance of power, obstructing legislation, and turning out Governments at their own whim, the Liberals and the Conservatives would form a temporary alliance for the sole and avowed purpose of destroying the Nationalist influence in Parliament. An alliance for this purpose between Liberals and Conservatives would be more natural than an alliance between the Nationalists and the Unionists. Redmond is master of the situation as long as he keeps Asquith on the run. If Asquith stops, what can Redmond do? — Mail and Empire.

SALT RHEUM FOR 6 YEARS

ZAM-BUK HAS CURED HIM.

For over six years Mr. William R. Birt, of Piequid, P.E.I., suffered from salt rheum. He says: "The disease attacked my arms and hands, and the forefinger of my right hand was the worst.

"I was engaged as a blacksmith by the Bruce Stewart Co., of Charlottetown, and sometimes every stroke of the hammer would cause the finger to bleed freely. I tried various ointments and salves, and then went to several doctors in an around Charlottetown.

"One medical man after treating me for some time said he did not think I could ever be cured. Another put my finger into some fluid, which seemed to burn it terribly, and then put 'a straight jacket'—as I called it—on the finger for two days. Trying one thing and another, I spent over $50.00, and all in vain.

"I saw an account of some of the great cures which Zam-Buk has worked and decided to try it. The first box did me a lot of good, and the finger showed traces of healing, so I kept up the Zam-Buk treatment and a few boxes worked a cure. There has been no return of any trace of the disease, so I know the cure is permanent and I am so thankful for my cure that you are at liberty to use these facts as you like."

Reader, if you have any skin disease cut, burn, cold sore or skin injury, try Zam-Buk. It is absolutely unique as a healer. Druggists and stores everywhere at 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto for price.

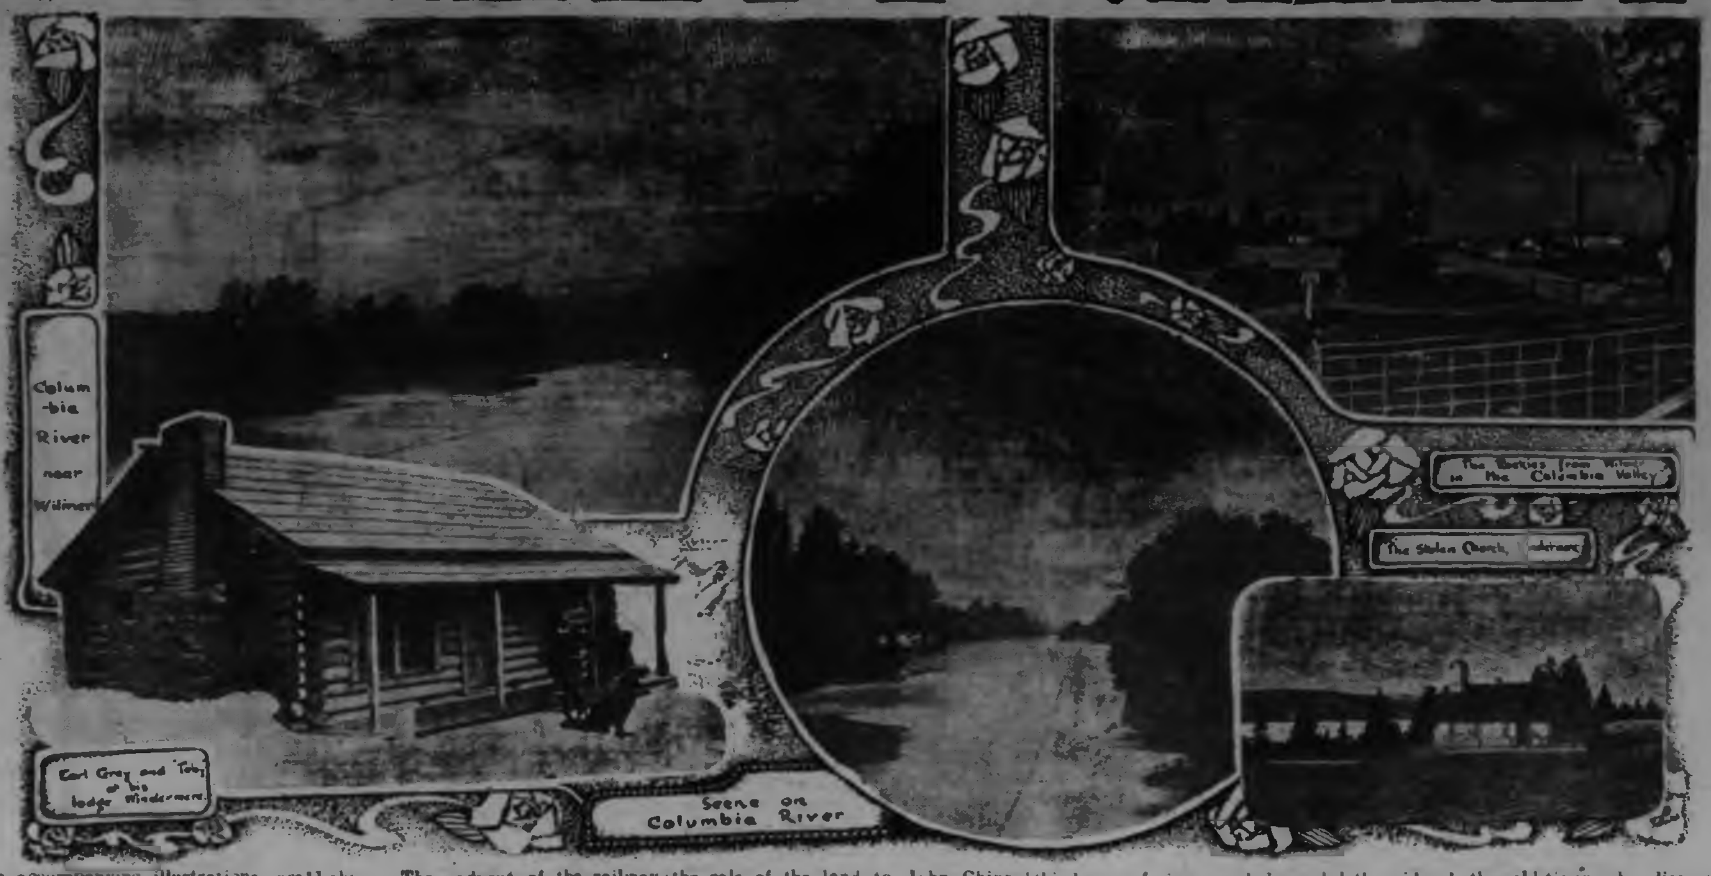
THE HAPPY VALLEY



Columbia River near Wilmer
Earl Grey and Toby at his lodge Windermere
Scene on Columbia River
The Rockies from Wilmer in the Columbia Valley
The Stolen Church, Windermere

The accompanying illustrations are excellent representations of what is known as the Happy Valley situate in the wonderland of the popular Windermere Valley, which derives its name from the well known Lake district in the North of England. Mr. R. Randolphe Bruce in an article says that it was away back in 1887 when he first saw the beauties of the Columbia Valley. Two years previous a mining boom had broken out to what afterwards became the Rossland Camp and the Slocan camp, and it spread north and south, the country was flooded with prospectors from the United States and the rumors of discoveries of gold and copper and silver mines kept the mining camps in a state of ferment. Numbers of prospectors took up little bits of land away down in the valley, built themselves a cabin, and after the boom had passed became farmers. Then the railway was talked of and ultimately became a reality through the operations of the Canadian Pacific. The valley became the home of the hunter and it is in this district that tracts of land are owned by the nobility. In one of the illustrations will be noticed the little hunting box of Earl Grey, at one time Governor-General of Canada. This delightful country is chock full of every species of game, both small and big, and it is a simple matter to replenish the larder with deer or bear in season, blue grouse or partridge, or get a boat and go up the lakes hunting wild duck and geese amongst the bulrushes at the southern end of the Windermere Lake. The advent of the railway light. Bruce to this day puts down made it possible for the farmers in the district to reach market for the disposal of their products, and during the last few years the district has prospered by leaps and bounds.

This particular locality is associated with many great men such as Earl Grey, once Governor-General of Canada, the late Duke of Sutherland and Lord Inlip, who have bought up great tracts of land right in the heart of the famous Happy Valley. It was Mr. Randolphe Bruce who persuaded the late Duke of Sutherland to invest in the Windermere district. The Duke had heard what a beautiful place it was from Earl Grey, and when out in Canada buying land went up there and was entertained by Randolphe Bruce in his bungalow. Although the Windermere district is known as a dry belt with only ten inches of rain in the year, and of which at least three inches is snow, it happened to rain the whole of the three days the Duke was paying his visit. Bruce was very much discouraged, as he thought he had lost a buyer. However, he happened to have a wonderful Chinese cook, who said nothing, but smiled; and on the last day before he went away the cook gave the Duke a dinner with some spring chicken so deliciously cooked that the Duke said he had never in his life, even at Stafford House, had tasted anything so delicious, and just before he went away he said, "Bruce, look here, I will have that land," much to that gentleman's de- the sale of the land to John Chinaman's dinner.

In one corner of the layout is a picture of a church which has an interesting history, and is commonly known as the stolen church in the west. When the Canadian Pacific began the construction of the railway through the Happy Valley, the engineer in charge of the gang at Donald was very religiously inclined, and he persuaded the Church of England to build a little church here depicted for the use of the men on construction work in that district, and the edifice was erected in the Kicking Horse Pass, where the railway crosses the Columbia Valley. When that section of the line was completed the gangs were moved to Revelstoke, and at the same time instructions were given to remove the church over to that camp. The engineer, however, had been out with several shooting parties throughout the valley and along Lake Windermere, and was so fascinated by the beauty of that district that he threw up his job and settled on the shores of Lake Windermere. Being a religious man he decided to take the church with him. This he did and shipped it up by boat to the place where it now stands. When the Lord Bishop of New Westminster heard of this he was furious, and demanded the church back again, but the engineer was too religious a man to part with it, and he retorted, "No, I have got my church and I mean to keep it." And he has kept his word.

The story of Earl Grey is another which is closely associated with the fascinations of this beautiful valley, and it is here that the Earl's dog, Toby, also enters. By the way, the dog is still alive and has the distinction of having had one of the most delightful bits of scenery called after him in the title of Toby Creek. When Earl Grey came over to Canada, he expressed a desire to cross the Selkirk mountains and get into the Columbia Valley. So he came up from the Kootenays over what was known as Wells Pass, named after an old timer who had discovered it. Earl Grey succeeded in his mission, and subsequently the name of the pass was changed to Earl Grey Pass in commemoration of his achievement by the powers that be in Ottawa. He was at the time Governor-General of Canada, and it was considered a sort of tribute to his enterprise. But when the story came to his ears he asked the chief geographer to change the name back to Wells Pass, as he considered the old-timer who discovered it, was a "much better man than he was."

There is another rather humorous incident which Earl Grey is fond of relating in connection with his journey over the Selkirks. The old timer who keeps the camp high up in the mountains is called Tom, his other name being unknown. When the party, including the Earl, had arrived there for the night, he had not been warned of their arrival and did not know who they were. Earl Grey always likes to do his own work when on a trip of this character, and so he started to unsaddle his horse just like the rest of the party. But his horse was rather restive, and the Earl was not very handy, so the old timer got annoyed and told him to get out and he would do it himself. At this moment one of the A.D.C's who overheard the conversation, considering it his duty to stand up for the Duke and the representative of the British Crown, went up to Tom and said, "Be more careful. This is Earl Grey, the Governor-General of Canada;" to which Tom replied in his characteristic tone, "How the hell was I to know? He does not wear a bloody halo around his head."

Hints on Home Management

New Tomato Delicacies to Be Prepared at Home

By Anne Marie Lloyd.

EAT tomatoes and be well," is the advice the doctors are now giving sufferers from rheumatism.

Tomatoes contain malic acid, which is a valuable remedial agent in all rheumatic ailments. If any excuse is needed to make use of this delicious vegetable the fact of its curative qualities should make it popular in every household.

It is one of the vegetables which is always obtainable, almost equally palatable, fresh from the vines or canned, and has the recommendation of being cheap. Besides there are countless ways of serving it so that it never has to appear on the menu in the same form often enough to become tiresome.

SCALLOPED TOMATOES is a dish which may form the chief article on the luncheon or supper table. It is sufficiently substantial to make the absence of meat unnoticed.

Use canned tomatoes of the quality which guarantees plenty of firm whole pulp. Dot the bottom of a porcelain baking dish with butter. Then have a layer of tomatoes. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and more dabs of butter. Have the next layer of cracker crumbs also sprinkled with seasoning. Alternate the layers of tomatoes and cracker crumbs topping the dish with the latter. Dot the top with more butter and pour the liquid over the whole. Bake in a medium oven till the liquor has been nearly all absorbed and the top cracker crumbs are nicely browned.

CUTLETS made of bits of left-over meats, finely minced and mixed with tomatoes, then formed into flat shaped portions, dipped in egg and crumbs and cooked in hot fat are delicious.

TOMATO JELLY is one of the most useful "backgrounds" a housekeeper can have, for it furnishes the basis for all manner of attractive dishes and besides, served with mayonnaise, is an attractive and piquant salad. It can be made in various forms and adds a bright bit of coloring to the table decorations.

To make the tomato jelly use gelatine and follow the rules for proportions which will be given on the package. The tomatoes should be strained and a bit of lemon juice added. Also it adds to the flavor to whip some cream into the dressing just before serving. Broken in cubes the jelly may be piled in quivering heaps at each end of the platter which contains cold meats.

When using the fresh tomatoes try dipping them in cracker crumbs and frying them. They should be sliced rather thick and dusted with salt and pepper before rolling them in the cracker.

STUFFED TOMATOES are always delicious. Celery, green pepper and sweet red peppers, or celery and apples, mixed with mayonnaise, are good filling combinations.

BAKED TOMATOES are such toothsome things they should be served oftener than they are in the average household. Cut off the blossom end of the "love apples," as they were called in olden times, and scoop out the centre portion of the pulp, enough to make room for the stuffing. Mix this pulp with seasoning, salt and pepper and a drop or two of onion juice if you like the flavor, and if you have a few scraps of cold meat it may be put through the grinder and added. Fill the cavities of the tomatoes, dab the tops with butter and bake in a moderate oven till they are done. Don't bake until they are a shapeless mass, but until you are sure they are done through. This is another dish substantial enough for the main dish of the menu.

SPANISH SALAD, which is so popular now in the fashionable restaurants, is made of sliced tomatoes, heart of lettuce, sweet red pepper, green peppers and thick mayonnaise with whipped cream added the last thing before serving.

A point to remember about tomatoes is never to let them stand in a metal dish or cook in metal.

Maggie Teyte's Advice to Beauty Seekers

Maggie Teyte, prima donna of the Chicago-Philadelphia Opera Company, whose articles on Beauty are written exclusively for this paper, receives many letters from readers. In the following she answers a few. Letters addressed to her in care of this office will be replied to as space permits.

F. A. W.—You might try a bunion remedy given me not long ago and which I cannot vouch for as a cure, but which I am told gives great relief. Take two drachms each of glycerine, carbolic acid and tincture of iodine. Mix thoroughly. Paint the bunion with the liquid two or three times a day and protect the joint with one of the felt rings which come for the purpose. I would simply have the druggist mix this for me. Then you will be sure to get the exact proportions. Be careful not to use it often enough to get the skin irritated.

A good powder for perspiring feet is made of one ounce of powdered alum, twice as much powdered orris root and five ounces of rice powder.

* * *

EVELYN HOLMES—One of the simplest and best eyebrow tonics is composed of red vaseline with a tiny pinch of boric acid mixed in it. Apply with the finger tip, rubbing gently, and brush the brows with a small brush which comes for the purpose. I am not in favor of clipping the eyelashes. It makes them stiff and coarse. Besides, it is not the work for an amateur. If you wish to use the same tonic for the lashes I have recommended for the brows, be very careful not to get it in the eyes.

Another pomade for the brows is made with two ounces of red vaseline and one drachm of tincture of cantharides, perfumed with oil of lavender and oil of rosemary, using but 15 drops of each.

MRS. K. L. M.—I am not an expert chiropodist and cannot tell exactly what is the cause of the foot trouble you describe. I fully agree with you that having constant pain in the feet is quite enough to "make one ill."

First see that you have comfortable and perfect fitting shoes. Then make sure you have not trouble with the arch. Often great pain may result from wearing stockings which are too short, or which do not fit. An excellent foot bath is made by adding two teaspoonfuls of this powder to an ordinary foot bath. Two ounces each of rock salt and borax and an ounce of alum. Mix and use when the feet are tired.

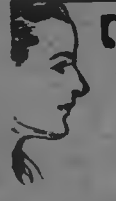
* * *

CAROLINE AUSTEN—Here is an excellent shampoo, if you have dandruff. Mix together two ounces of green soap and two ounces of cologne. Shake and let stand 24 hours, shaking occasionally. Then rub it thoroughly into the scalp and rinse with several waters till it has all been removed from the hair.

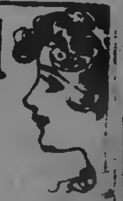
For a shampoo which has valuable tonic qualities I can recommend mixing an ounce of borax, half an ounce of bicarbonate of soda, the same quantity of glycerine, with one quart of rose water. Mix this with two ounces of alcohol in which a drachm of camphor gum has been dissolved.

* * *

MRS. KATE L.—You can make your own system of exercises for reducing that fatty lump on the back of the neck. Stand in front of the mirror and move the muscles of the back, arms and shoulders till you find just the muscles which seem to affect that portion of your neck. Then see that the exercises apparently do the work required. Keep at it till you can see the fat growing less. For the goitre, from which you tell me your friend suffers, I can only urge her to see the best physician she can and at once. It is far too serious a matter for any one to advise about except a skilled person.



The Kind of Girl a Man Likes



BY NORVELL ELLIOTT

The Patriotic Girl

IT was on some great man's birthday, when conversation naturally turns to things patriotic. Several girls had dropped in to spend the afternoon with me, and, toward twilight, the four of us were in the midst of a heated discussion when my bachelor friend stopped by on his way from a strenuous day at the office.

"What's all that talk about in there?" he asked me, nodding toward the living room as I shook hands with him in the hall.

"Just an argument," I replied, and explained to him that the object of the discussion was Betty Beaumont. As we entered the room the big man by my side called out:

"Don't you want me to be the judge of this argument, girls?"

"Sure! The very man! Great idea!" from the girls.

"As I understand it," said the self-constituted judge, establishing himself on the sofa by Marcia Clements, "some of you think Betty is foolhardy to insist that her father accept that dangerous commission from the government; others agree Betty is only proving her loyalty to the country. Am I right?"

"That's the thing in a nutshell," answered Marcia. "And we're not going to tell you which two of us are for Betty and which two are against her. You shall decide the issue from an unbiased standpoint."

"I am decided in my views; won't take me long to judge. Perhaps I'm not an altogether competent judge, for I know ONE girl here who agrees with me," and my bachelor friend grinned—at nobody in particular!

"I've always thought every game in [illegible] was better played if two worked together—a man and a woman. The woman upholds the man; she's something sure for him to count on; she gives him confidence. . . ."

"Hear! Hear! Ye cynical bachelor!" interrupted one of the girls between bites of hot fudge which I had just taken from the plate.

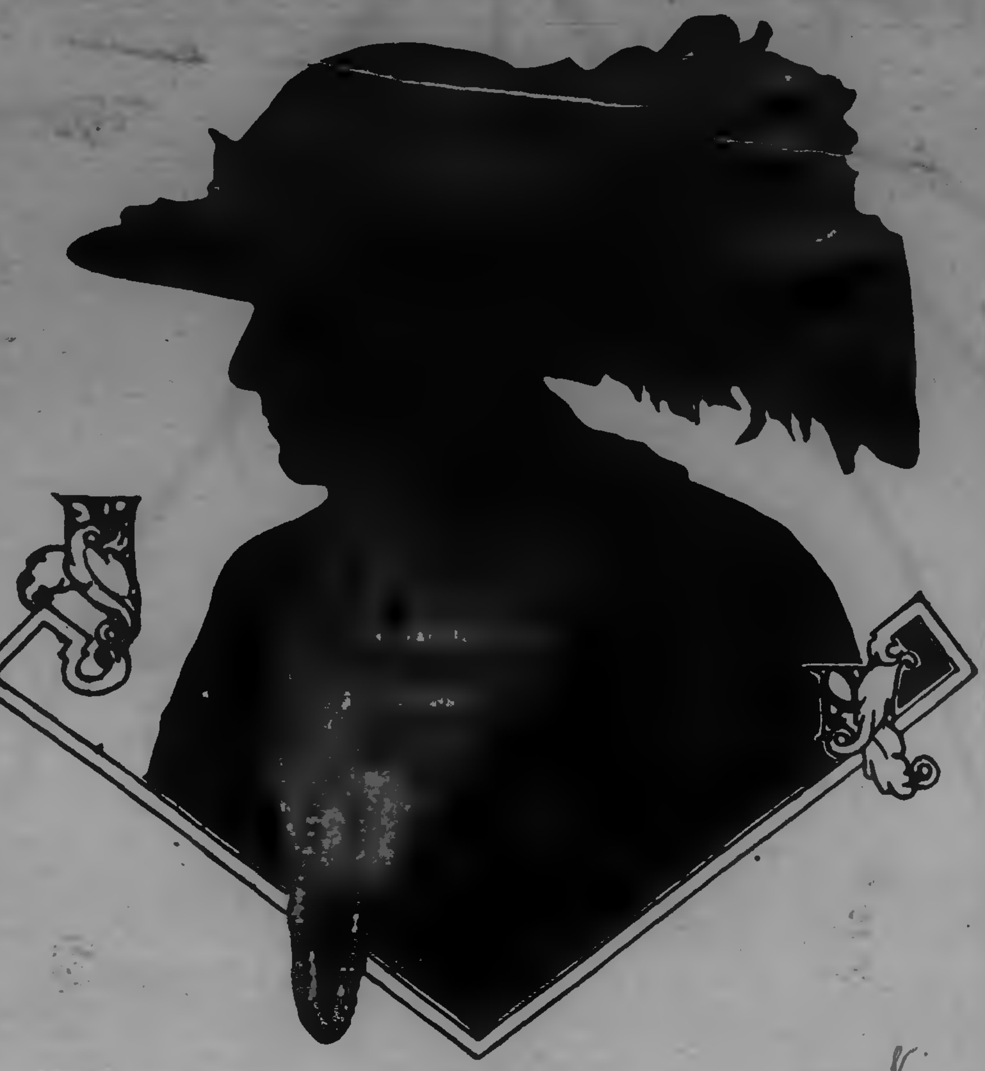
"I mean it, girls—even though I don't SEEM to," replied the man, and continued his subject.

"Betty's father idolizes her, she knows if she asked him to even his beloved government would be second. But Betty is a soldier's daughter, and from the time she has been able to lisp 'stars and stwipes' she has understood the meaning of deep and unbounded patriotism. When she was a tiny bit of a girl she learned the sad part of war, saw her uncle and father's best friend sacrificed in that little tiff with Spain. Even her mother's life paid the price after a long fever siege in the Philippines.

"I understand when her mother was dying she called the slip of a child to her and whispered 'country first, I' the daughter.' So you see, girls, Betty is not only a soldier's daughter, but a courageous woman's daughter, and, if she flinched now, when the need for her sacrifice has come, she would be unworthy of them both.

"I say Betty is patriotic—patriotic in the finest, biggest sense of the word. She doesn't go about with a red, white and blue flag pinned to her coat; she carries the love of that flag in her heart. It isn't foolhardy of her to want her father to accept his dangerous commission—it's brave of her. You were saying as I came in that she was 'positively cheerful about it,' as though her cheerfulness were a crime. But it seems to me that smile of hers in the face of a supreme sacrifice is the bravest, sweetest, most patriotic part of the whole thing."

KINDNESS WOMAN'S BEST ASSET



Mme. Olive Fremstad

Charm Magnifies Talent, Says Prima Donna

By Cecile Manning

A YOUNG singer asked Olive Fremstad of the Metropolitan the secret of charm.

"I know my voice is better than the average," said she, "and that belief is so well grounded by accomplishment that it is not conceit to express it. But I lack the ability to be pleasing. It is a detriment to me. I try, but I fail to beat down some of the barriers."

Mme. Fremstad answered her with a quotation.

"'The little art of being kind,'" said she. "It is the only secret. Never be unkind. Keep your mind so filled with charity and good wishes that there is no room for unhappiness, or suspicion, or plain grouchiness. Don't be specific. Forget personalities. Think kindness in the abstract, and act it in the concrete. And before you realise it people will call you 'charming.'

"Really, we talk about the illusive quality known as 'charm.' It isn't illusive. We just don't always know how to recognize it, and we call it by different names. It means being a natural, normal, true-hearted being with a friendship for all humanity and an absence of pettiness and meanness in one's make-up. It means the genuine willingness to live and let live, and help along the others who are trying to live. And it is the most valuable asset a woman in public life can possess.

"It will help a little talent to succeed where greater gifts without it will fail. It is what makes a woman 'lovely' in the eyes of the world when she hasn't a single mark of beauty. It is what makes a woman lovable. It is what wins friends and keeps them.

"Tenderness for the unfortunate and sympathy for all the world are attributes which the woman who would be charming must cultivate. But in the cultivation of charm don't strain yourself to the point of being unnatural.

"You know the story of the old lady who made up her mind she would become so good the neighbors would miss her dreadfully after she was dead and gone, and never cease to sing her praises. She set out to make herself more agreeable to every one. She took the burdens of the town on her poor old shoulders. She went around with eagle eyes looking for a chance to be friendly.

"One day she met the minister, a gentle soul with a sense of humor. She confessed she was sometimes discouraged. 'I am so anxious to be a good Christian,' she said, 'and it seems to me I don't always get all the chances I ought to.' The minister smiled and his eyes twinkled. 'You try too hard,' he told her. 'Just forget about opportunity and be good.'

"It applies to charm. Just be kind. And the opportunity will come to you for practice. Kind thoughts help as well as kind deeds. Make the effort result in naturalness, so there is no apparent hard work but the spontaneity which springs from a nature full of love.

"Plant the seed of kindness and good will and the crop of charm will be sure and generous."

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel, "Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

The truth about "the girl in the case" distinguishes this new series by Miss Dalrymple. Her character studies will not appear unfamiliar to the majority of readers, who will follow the fortunes of "Peter" with growing interest.

Are Women Snobs?

LEONA DALRYMPLE

PETER, what do you think!" exclaimed Mary, in scandalized tones. "Mrs. Jarvis is going to read a series of Shakespearian plays before our literary club for money!"

Now I gathered from Mary's tone that this was something altogether reprehensible, wherefore I laid aside my paper with considerable inquiry in my face.

"I don't quite get you," I suggested.

"Mrs. Jarvis," explained Mary, primly, "deliberately told one of the ladies that for $5 apiece from the club members she would give them a course of 10 dramatic readings."

"Most reasonable," I suggested. "Mrs. Jarvis is really clever at that sort of thing."

"That," went on Mary, "would aggregate nearly $200 in all, for there are 40 women in the club. Isn't it terrible, Peter?"

I was utterly confounded.

"What's terrible, Mary?" I demanded. "That Mrs. Jarvis is clever enough to read well, or that you have to pay $5 to hear her, or because it aggregates $200? You're a little obscure."

"I mean," said Mary decidedly, "that it's positively revolting for a married woman to earn money."

I stared. More and more I am learning that the more insular the prejudice in a woman the more deep-rooted and positive it can be.

"I don't agree with you," I said promptly. "Jarvis has had a streak of hard luck, and I think it's typical of Mrs. Jarvis's sweet, unaffected way that she doesn't make any bones about it, but just puts her shoulder to the wheel and helps. It's mighty decent of her, and for the life of me I can't see anything very terrible in it."

"Peter!" exclaimed Mary. "Do you honestly think it's proper and good taste for a married woman to earn money?"

"I think," said I a little heatedly, "that where a woman has spare time and talent, and her husband is struggling along with his nose to the grindstone, she can forget convention and help. She's selfish if she doesn't."

I could see that this was something of a shock to Mary. Mary was brought up with the fixed idea that a woman who earns money is not quite so good as the woman who doesn't. Also, that any married woman who becomes a wage-earner under stress of circumstances is eternally disgraced. Mary's cherished convictions, like those of many another sheltered woman, are appallingly narrow. They nettle me considerably.

For the life of me I cannot see why a woman who has no small children should not carry on her chosen profession, particularly when it does not take her outside her home. And there are many clever women in these feminist days who are putting their talents to use in spare moments. I know a clever little woman who tells the stories of the operas and sings delightfully the most famous selections for a club of girls. Incidentally she has sent her daughter through college that way, and fostered a fine musical sense in a band of heedless girls. I spoke of it to Mary.

Mary stiffened.

"I can't see your viewpoint," she declared stiffly. "I think it is very bad taste for a married woman to earn money no matter what her husband's circumstances are."

What snobs women are! Especially about work. How the woman who has a maid patronizes the woman who hasn't!

And the woman who has two maids patronizes the woman who has only one. The woman who had to work before she was married is subtly patronized by the woman who didn't, and the chain is endless.

Will the future see the man and woman working shoulder to shoulder when it is possible?

I hope so.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

Proper Food for Another May Be Poison for You.

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

Copyright, 1914, by L. K. Hirshberg.

DR. HIRSHBERG

DO you believe everything you are told? Do you believe nothing you hear? Modern science takes its cue from Galileo and Sir Francis Bacon.

Its dictum is: "Take nothing for granted. Try each thing for yourself." Then it rails at all cloistered philosophers and transcendental ascetics who sit in the third floor back, there to reason things out.

Suppose the whole sublunary population were to be dominated by dogmatic science. Then you would, perforce, be compelled to try each experiment and experience for yourself.

What, then, would happen? You would hear that true, microbic hydrophobia was always and absolutely fatal. "I must try to find out," say you. Then you would inoculate a dog with the spinal fluid of a victim just dead, and allow the rabid dog to bite you. You would die!

Then others would do the same and the race would be annihilated.

Or you would ignore the signs of cancer. Perhaps you and the rest of mankind would yourself test prussic acid, malignant diphtheria, pneumonia, carbolic acid, pistol wounds of the heart.

Yet this is what science, according to certain men, would have you do. "Take nothing for granted. Try everything yourself," say these clinical professors. Thus would the dogmatists defile the glory of life.

Even bees, the little alchemists of spring bowers,
Know there is richest juice in poison flowers.

Some Foods Poisonous.

But they are not so foolish as to exterminate their own little populations by trying each thing for themselves.

Even the ancient kings were wise in their generation. The cup-bearer was compelled to taste of the beverage first. The host needs must partake first of the viands to indicate the absence of deadly drugs.

The surest poison is time, but there are many more sudden ones. Anything which tends to interfere with health, or to destroy animated textures in plants or animals is a poison.

The food that is as luscious as locusts to you at one time may be as bitter as coloquintida at another. Mild, careful, discreet feeding may be fodder, yet the eager, overfull feeding of that same pabulum may choke and gorge you in truly poisonous manner.

A fat tripe finely boiled may be caviare to a German or a Russian, and a choleric toxin to an American or a Frenchman.

The foods of the mothers may be the poisons of the daughters; what is medicine to one is disease to others.

A philosopher may have many antidotes to what he calls the poison of the tango, but the poisons of pleasure or the strychnine, curari, or bufagin on Cupid's arrows are ambrosia and angels' food to vibrating youth.

A dish fit for the gods may be poison to the hounds, but just as brown bread is good fare, so bichloride of mercury, prussic acid, cyanide of potash, carbolic acid and the other "medicinal" (?) bacterial and animal poisons are tormentingly fatal to all living things.

Common Antidotes.

Limbus fatuorum—borderland of fools—is the name given by the schoolmen to that frontier and paradise where dwell lunatics, fanatics and idiots.

It is in such a place that all would-be poison-takers should be. There is no physiological or economic justice which can commend the ingredients of the poisoned chalice to the lips.

The poison of diphtheria, lockjaw and the venom of snakes is now combatted with anti-toxins. Whiskey augments the actions of all poisons but carbolic acid. It and alcohol are the antidotes of that drug. Never give whiskey for snake bites. It destroys what little chance there is for help.

Opium poisoning and mushroom—toadstool—poisoning is combatted by coffee or caffeine and belladonna or atropine.

Bichloride of mercury or strychnine poisoning makes the medieval inquisition tortures and burnings at the stake seem, in comparison, like peaches and cream. Why any one should try this long, lingering, painful death is beyond me.

Whites of eggs and milk, with something thereafter to induce at once vomiting, is to be given for these poisons. For arsenic poisoning a mixture made with ammonia and tincture of iron must be given while awaiting the doctor.

Answers to Health Questions

Mrs. G. N., Philadelphia—I'm short and stout and 43 years old. My ankles turn easily, too. I have three children and work hard. Am cross and nasty.

You have every right in the world to be cross and nasty. Anyone who works as you do with as large a family should be allowed to be irritable.

Stop eating cabbages, soups, milk, tea, coffee, bread, saurkraut, pork and sausage. Drink lots of buttermilk whenever you can get it. Avoid all sweet and starchy foods and do not eat at all after 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Make breakfast your one big meal.

Daddy's Good Night Story

By GEORGE HENRY SMITH

THE Bantam Rooster came out of the henhouse and looked all around. Seeing no one to talk to, he flew on top of the henhouse and from there he flew up in the cherry tree.

Robin Red Breast happened to be sitting on a limb of the same tree looking at the world about him.

"Good morning," said the Rooster to the bird. "What are you doing up here?"

"I might inquire the same of you," began Robin Red Breast. "I belong in the trees and you belong on the ground—why don't you stay there?"

"I like a change," said the Bantam Rooster. "I like to get up near the clouds once in a while."

"I don't blame you," replied the Robin. "It is great fun flying about in the air. I almost bumped into the Moon last night and I would have, only the Man-in-the-Moon shouted out to me just in time."

"What's that?" asked the Rooster, hopping nearer the Robin. "You mean to tell me that you can fly as far as the Moon?"

"Why not? I can fly as fast as a train and a train could reach the Moon in 300 days, if it went fast enough."

"Yes, but don't you get tired?"

"Sometimes I do, but then I rest on a cloud until I get to a star," said the Robin.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the Rooster. "You can't fool me. I know the Moon is nearer than any star."

"How do you know that?" asked the Robin.

"I know a lot about the Moon and the Stars. All Roosters know a lot about night time, because they wake up ever so often and crow."

"Why do roosters crow at night?" asked the Robin.

"I'll tell you," began the Rooster. "You see, we wake up, look at the Moon and if the Man-in-the-Moon smiles, then we crow to let him know all is well here below."

"That's poetry," said the Robin. "But the Man-in-the-Moon isn't out every night. Some nights the Moon doesn't shine at all."

"I know it, but a Rooster can make up just as good a story as a Robin," said the Bantam as he flew to the ground.

He Didn't Know Her.

The telephone call of a suit of apartments in a ladies' boarding house is 100.

One young lady, a recent comer, answered the call and was astonished to hear a man's voice inquire hurriedly, "Is this one nine o?"

When she could catch her breath the lady, who was a very proper young lady indeed, replied: "I think not. Were we ever introduced?"—Brooklyn Life.

Ancient Oath Taking.

A method of taking the oath far more hygienic than kissing the book was that observed at the Forest of Dean Mine court for about 500 years, beginning in the thirteenth century. It was not for any hygienic reasons, but to prevent soiling the book that the miners before giving evidence touched the four gospels with a stick of holly. The witnesses wore their hats to show that they were free miners.—London Chronicle.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties.—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

Honeyed Words.

"How are you getting along at home? The last time I called your wife was giving you the dickens."

"Quite true. I had been a bad boy. But she relaxed. Last night she came very near calling me honey."

"You don't mean it! How was that?"

"She called me old beeswax."

No Hurry.

"Of course, Tommy," said the Sunday school teacher, "you'd like to be an angel, wouldn't you?"

"Well—er—yes'm," replied Tommy, "but I'd like to wait till I can be a full grown angel with gray whiskers."

FOR THE COMMON GOOD

It is the aim of The Times:

To exploit and advance the best interests of the people of the fair and fertile land wherein it is published, and to which it steadily devotes its efforts;

To stand for liberty and law, equal rights and good government, the greatest boon to a free people;

To foster and encourage private and public enterprise, and hold up the hands of every honest toiler, either with brawn or brain, in every field of activity;

To stand independently for the true interests of the city, the Dominion and the Empire, and for those policies only which make for the common good;

It aims to be excellent and not cheap.

Pleasant For Shaw.

Ford Madox Hueffer, in his "Memories and Impressions," says that on his first coming to London Bernard Shaw wrote a pamphlet called "Why I Am an Anarchist," which was published at the Torch press. "Some time later," relates Mr. Hueffer, "when Mr. Shaw, having advanced a stage further toward his intellectual salvation, was addressing in the park a Socialist gathering on the tiresome text, 'The Foolishness of Anarchism,' the young proprietors of the Torch walked round and round in the outskirts of the crowd offering copies of Mr. Shaw's earlier pamphlet for sale and exclaiming at the top of their voices, 'Why I Am an Anarchist! By the Lecturer!'"

Atavistic.

Moralists sometimes insist that the Neolithic Age has not wholly disappeared. Writers, like Jack London, sometimes uncover it in modern civilization—and their fiction rings almost true.

Fort William, Ont., does not need any moralist or novelist to talk atavism to her.

Fort William has seen the real thing. Out of the depths of the Northern Ontario forests recently, a police officer of Fort William, after a gigantic struggle, brought a man called Beck to the insane asylum. He was garbed in skins of wild animals, fashioned with a most extraordinary disregard for symmetry. For four years this man had hunted the bush. With rude clubs and with stones he killed his subsistence. He slept under skins, rocks for his pillow, the stars above him. All this time he struck terror into the minds of construction navvies and lumber-jacks by his bellowings and bestial actions. Rub a little of the veneer off and what is man?

To Meet an Emergency.

"Madam, have you any old clothes to give away?"

"I have a suit belonging to my husband, but I fear it is too big for you."

"Oh, that will be all right. You just set me out a square meal and watch me eat enough so that I can fill it."—Washington Times.

A Protection.

"Any man looks stupid when he wears a monocle," said the critical girl.

"That's why so many of us fellows wear 'em," replied the candid youth. "If we happen to look stupid we blame the monocle."—Washington Star.

MILLIONS OF BEADS

"For what is form or what is face,
But the soul's index of its case?"

• • •

The bead craze in Paris and London is reaching a height never before heard of. Women, it is stated, are sometimes practically covered with beads from head to foot. Crystal beads are very much used, and some of the materials used in the making of the gorgeous mosaic and oriental beads are glass, china, wood, celluloid, rubber, metal, pearl, agate, galalith, porcelain, amber, amethyst, paste, jet, coral and Florentine mosaic, the galalith beads being the chief novelty. The composition of galalith is really milk, and the design was first discovered through the famous Greek milk-stone. The wooden beads are largely used in embroideries as they are light. The latest models in beads are fruits of various kinds, while there are also mushroom beads, egg-shapes, half pyramid models, bead cats and gems which look like lumps of sugar candy. Some of the bead necklaces are priced as high as two and three hundred dollars, and everyone who has old bead necklaces is hunting them up and restringing them with the addition of some of the new beads. Catgut is used for stringing the more valuable of these necklaces, while for the cheaper beads there is a bead-stringing thread and special needles which come in four sizes. The Venetian beads are among the least expensive and are extremely pretty being sold in every imaginable color, pink, green, mauve, and purple, blended with streaks of gold or silver, while the black Venetian beads streaked with gold make handsome necklaces if threaded alternately with small gold beads. Anyone who possesses an old coral necklace can make a most delightful novelty by restringing the coral with one-inch or two-inch rows of small gold beads between each coral bead, or if the necklace is a graduated one, the largest beads can be put aside to make a pendant which can be strung from the chain to form a four-sided ornament. Ear-rings may be made to match the necklaces, and for the woman who is artistic and fond of such work there is endless delight, and probably not a little money to be made, in composing and completing necklaces of beads the materials for which can be bought any time at a comparatively small cost.

SAD MOMENTS ON THE GREEN

Many of the saddest moments of the golfer's life, writes an enthusiast who signs himself "Straight Drive," are experienced upon the putting greens on those occasions when it seems impossible to get the ball to go toward the hole. I have seen players who have devoted years to practice at the game as helpless as a baby when it came to getting the ball close to the hole on the approach putt. Many writers have gone on record as of the opinion that putting is purely a matter of mental calculation and judgment, while others think that it is a matter of eyesight. So far as I have observed, after having seen nearly all the leading players of the country in action, it is a combination of both. Headwork, judgment, and nerve enter into the stroke in gauging the distance to be covered and calculating the line to the hole, while the matter of aiming so as to accurately catch the back of the cup is one where the man with the better eyesight must prevail.

The question of distance is nicely solved by many players, who carefully walk up to the hole apparently on the lookout for irregularities and the line, but who accurately pace off the exact distance to be made on the stroke and examine the texture of the turf. They have learned by hard practice how much force to apply for five yards, for ten yards, and further under various conditions, and can usually be depended on to get up to the hole, giving the ball a chance to go down if it reaches the lip of the cup.

WHEN LOVE IS DEEPEST

With Women It is Later on in Their Life

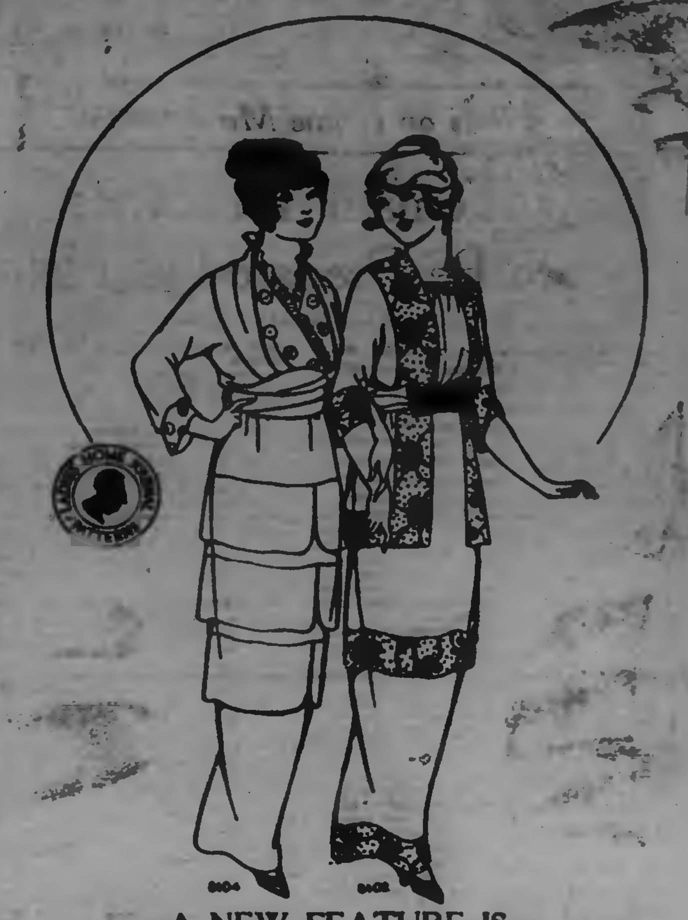
Psychological tests to determine at what particular age men and women love with deepest feeling, conducted at the University of California and at Hamburg University resulted in the graphic showing of the "curve of love" by German scientists, but with no results of scientific value at Berkeley.

Professor Jaekh, the eminent German scholar, based his theories and plotted his "curve of love" on the love affairs in the lives of four hundred famous men and women, and said, in a scientific bulletin, that these cases are typical of man and womankind the world over.

"There are no psychological proofs," said Professor Brown, "to show that man or woman may be capable of experiencing greater feeling, such as love, at any particular age, but observation would seem to establish the fact. The majority of men make better sweethearts between the ages of twenty-four and twenty-six, because at that age they are under the sway of romantic ideals. After this, he contends, and especially after they have arrived at thirty, they love but little.

"On the other hand, women are most susceptible to their deepest affection at thirty to thirty-four years long after man has ceased to be a love factor.

"With women, the age at which this highest capacity is revealed may be later—may even be after she has reached thirty, not because the romantic impulse comes to women so much later but because its first expression seeks a different outlet than that of man."



A NEW FEATURE IS THE SOFTLY DRAPED JAPANESE COLLAR

The demand for something new, something different, allows of few monotonous moments in the life of a designer of women's clothes. When drapery first came into vogue it was comparatively easy to evolve new designs, but again we are looking for something novel.

Premet is trying to rejuvenate the bustle. A frock of hers in blue silk poplin shows a bustle effect brought about by a clever cut and arrangement of drapery that is really quite attractive. It is a three piece suit, and an extremely smart little coat is another feature. Several other imported models give indications of the bustle, and several display draped collars after the Japanese style.

No. 8104 shows a draped collar and shaped trimming bands on the skirt that give the effect of a three tiered skirt. A soft green mohair is used, with the blouse of chiffon in the same shade of green. Each of the flounces is lined with chiffon, which softens the mohair considerably.

To copy this model in size 36 it requires 5¾ yards of 36 inch material with 1⅞ yards of contrasting material.

No. 8102 is a smart little frock, which is unusually effective developed in one of the bordered crepes.

The dress closes in the back, has a kimono blouse and a one-piece skirt with a double tunic.

This frock may be copied in size 36 with 6¾ yards of 36 inch material

THE CUT OF THE COLLAR MAKES THIS FROCK DIFFER FROM OTHERS OF ITS KIND

Crepe de Chine is being used extensively for young girls. This silk is one that may be used even for children's frocks without giving the overdressed appearance which displays lack of taste.

Silk poplin is another material which is supple and graceful for afternoon gowns and wears splendidly.

The effectiveness of the contrasting underblouse is well displayed in No. 7965. It is a frock for a girl of 16, developed in Nattier blue silk poplin. The underblouse is of cream colored net. The thin, light laces are very much favored for blouses, underblouses and guimpes. Shadow and oriental laces are much in evidence, and malines, chantilly and Russian designs are also favored. For trimming purposes the metal laces, gold and silver showing perhaps a brighter finish than those of last season, are very modish.

In this design the arrangement of the drapery on the skirt and the straps over the shoulders are distinguishing features.

To make this dress in size 16 it requires 2⅝ yards of material without up and down with 2⅝ yards of net or contrasting material for the underblouse.

No. 8051 is a one-piece frock showing unusually effective details. The collar is smart, and the surplice closing, drop shoulder and patch pockets are excellent features.

This design may be copied in size 36 with 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material and ½ yard of colored silk for the girdle.

No. 7965—sizes 16, 17 and 18.
No. 8051—sizes 34 to 42.
Each pattern 15 cents.

HAD LIVED BEFORE

Woman Possessed Knowledge of a Former Life

An extraordinary knowledge of a former life is claimed to have been possessed by Mme. Laure Raynaud, whose death has just occurred in Paris.

Mme. Raynaud, who was 45 years old, was a nurse in a private hospital in Passy. A few years ago she told a doctor that she knew she had died at the age of 19 many years before. She described the town and the house in which she had lived. It was a foreign town, although Mme. Raynaud had never been out of France.

The doctor thought the town might be Siena, in Italy, and from the mayor of that place procured a collection of photographs. In one of them he recognised a house and church exactly like those Mme. Raynaud described. She gave many details, among others that she died in 1840, and that her death was due to consumption.

Without telling her where she was going the doctor took her to Siena. The first day she arrived she walked straight to the house she had described, and from there to the church. There she went to the tombstone of a girl who died of consumption in 1840 at the age of 19, and fell on it in a fainting fit.

Mme. Raynaud refused to make any money out of her peculiar gift, and, though she had a strange magnetism which enabled her to effect cures of certain nervous maladies, she always refused payment. Her death was due to cancer.

Foggy Smoky London

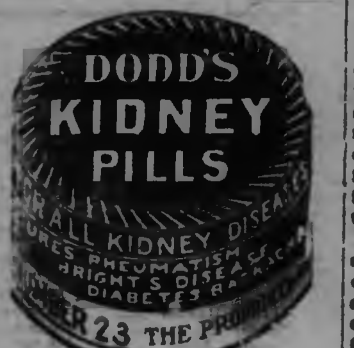
English scientists have found that more than half a million tons of sulphurous acid are discharged into London's atmosphere every year, mainly by the combustion of illuminating gas, to the injury of the city's stone buildings.

New Fog Penetrator

Great fog penetrating power is claimed for a new French incandescent light with a greenish-yellow glass screen in front and backed by a silvered reflector which reflects enough heat to prevent moisture collecting on the screen.

No More Punctures

What is claimed to be a puncture-proof automobile tire contains an air space within which is a Maltese cross shape core, interlocking with the outer casing.



Canada and Her Indians

A department report shows the Indians in Canada to be increasing at the rate of 2,000 a year. In 1912 there were 104,956; to-day there are 106,490. Nearly all of them live in good dwellings; they have 326 schools enrolling 11,144 pupils; while in spite of their supposed susceptibility to disease, the death-rate has been cut to 21 per thousand in the most populous communities. They earn wages amounting to $4,000,000 yearly, and cultivate 80,000 acres.

OPENING A SAFE

An Electric Expert Has Invented an Odd Device

A safe that can be opened by means of a musical tone, and in no other way, has been invented by a London electrical expert. The safe is made of chilled steel with the regulation knob on the door, but without combination or timelock. Attached to it on the inside are electro-magnets, connected by wires with a circuit of batteries. These are in turn connected with another sort of dry batteries, which are wired to a curious looking apparatus that looks like a carpenter's mitre-box, with a double row of numbers down the inside of the channel. Across this is a gage, attached to which is an ordinary violin bridge. Over this fret is stretched a music wire of metal, drawn taut [illegible] binding-post and passing through this to form a coil below it, and outside the tuning-box and thence down into the dry batteries.

The mitre box is really a musical scale, set by numbers so that the tone can be gaged up or down by twos as may be desired, to meet the needs of a new combination, or a new tuning-fork, if it is desired to thus change the combination or opening note. The music wire, which may be a guitar, banjo or violin string, is selected and gaged to synchronise with the tuning-fork used.

When the tuning-fork is struck and placed to the top of the safe the wire inside catches the vibration from the fork and vibrates in sympathy. This vibration passes through the binding-post into the outside coil and thence down into the small circuit of dry batteries, mechanically closing this circuit. An electric current is thus started which passes on and is made to close the larger circuit of dry batteries, which starts a stronger current moving. This stronger current acts through wires directly on the electro-magnets that throw the bolts of the concealed lock. Once these are thrown, the door may be pulled open.

After the tuning-fork and wire are set to the same gage, no other tuning-fork will have any effect whatever upon the lock. As no two tuning-forks are exactly alike in pitch, it is obvious that only one tuning-fork in the world could open the safe, once it is closed and locked, and only the person possessing the fork could have access to the safe. However, once it is opened, it can be reset to accord with another tuning-fork, whereupon the original one is useless.

Chester Bradford was freed from the State Insane Hospital in Kalamazoo after a transfusion of blood and restored his strength and returned him to a rational mental condition. The staff physicians quickly declared he was mentally weak, poorly nourished and ill, and told Mrs. Bradford they thought a transfusion of blood would hasten his recovery. She supplied the blood and recovery was speedy.

A BRONCHIAL COUGH, PERHAPS WEAK THROAT USE "CATARRHOZONE"—DEAD SURE CURE

Wonderful Success Reported in Thousands of Bad Cases.

How many thousands are there who would gladly pay any sum to be cured of bronchitis or catarrh. Many could be cured if they would just use common sense in selecting their remedy.

Bronchitis of course is an inflammation of the bronchial tubes which were made for the passage of air alone and neither the moisture of an atomizer, nor the liquid of a cough syrup can get where the trouble really is. The diseased parts can only be reached by a remedy that can force its way thru' all the breathing organs. Doctors who have used "Catarrhozone" says it is the only rational cure for bronchitis. It cures by inhalation.

You breathe in its healing balsams, in [illegible] hale its soothing antiseptic vapor and relief is immediate.

Simple to use, delightful and pleasant—nothing compares with Catarrhozone which is the cure of the day for all bronchial and throat troubles.

Mr. H. B. McLaughlan, the well-known representative of Parke and Blackwell, Toronto, says: "I have used Catarrhozone for years and can honestly say it is the only remedy that relieves me from a painful attack of Bronchial Catarrh. The inhaler for Catarrhozone is always in my pocket, and I simply couldn't get along without it. I firmly believe Catarrhozone is a wonderful remedy."

Large size, sufficient for two months use guaranteed $1.00; small size 50c, sample or trial size 25c. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Lindsay Man Committed.

Lester McGillivray of Lindsay has been committed for trial on a charge of putting a drug into the beer glass of a man in the Hotel Grand of that town. This comes under sections 276 and 278 of the Criminal Code. McGillivray claims it was jalap he poured into the beer.

A Correction.

Mr. Burnham, M.P., wishes it stated that the report that the coming political meeting was organized as a compliment to him, is a mistake. Hon. Robt. Rogers, Hon. A. Meighen and Mr. Burnham were invited by the Conservative Association to speak here, and accepted the invitation.

An Attractive Window.

Mr. J. R. Bell, in his new Hunter street grocery has one of the most attractively dressed windows in the city. The scheme is orange and red, consisting of piles of oranges and scores of jam jars filled with home made raspberry jam. Mr. Fred Walker was several times congratulated on his admirable work decorating this window.

Our Local Sewerage.

Mr. F. A. Dallyn, Sanitary Engineer of the Provincial Board of Health was in the city yesterday. In company with City Engineer Parsons, Mr. Dallyn looked over the proposed site for the sewage disposal system. The plans were submitted some days ago to the Provincial Board of Health, and approved of with one or two minor exceptions. The points noted will be changed to meet with the requirements of the Board.

Big New Local Hotel.

That fine property just west of the Bell Telephone Building, recently purchased by the Bradburn Estate, has changed hands through the medium of Messrs. J. C. Carroll & Co., and some thousand dollars. The purchaser is Mr. Fred Blastorah of the Palace Hotel. It is understood that a syndicate will erect thereon a four story fire proof hotel of most modern type, and that Mr. Blastorah will be manager thereof.

Threatener Leaves Town.

At yesterday's police court, Joseph York was charged with threatening to shoot his son-in-law, Mr. H. Stabler. Dire threats of shooting by the prisoner were aired. Mr. G. N. Gordon, for the defence, explained that the prisoner might not have clearer faculties than a good Providence distributes, and asked that York be let leave town. He was (not Mr. Gordon, but the prisoner) let leave the city.

MATURE PAIR OF LOVERS.

Yesterday morning an old lady and gentleman got off the west bound C.P.R. local and drove to the Oriental Hotel. Here, before registering, they asked to be shown to the parlor. The old gentleman who was apparently about three score and ten years of age, came down to the office and asked in a whisper where he could procure a marriage license and also the address of the nearest clergyman.

The young couple got their marriage license from Schneider's jewelry store, duly got married and returned to the hotel parlor. Here, after taking dinner, they spent an afternoon in bliss. It was rumored, but the rumor was not corroborated, that this marriage was the culmination of "love's young dream," of years ago when an awakening was caused by the bridegroom elect kicking the bride-to-be's maltese cat. This latter, however, is only a rumor.

Sciatica Vanishes Instantly If Nerviline is Used

CAN YOU BEAT THIS CASE?

No ordinary liniment will even relieve Sciatica. Nothing but the most powerful kind of a remedy can penetrate through the tissues and finally reach the Sciatic Nerve. You can always depend on the old-time "Nerviline." Nothing made to-day is as good for Sciatica as Nerviline was when first produced, about forty years ago. All this time the same old "Nerviline" has been curing Sciatica, Lumbago, Rheumatism, and is considered to be without an equal in relieving pain or soreness anywhere. "Nerviline" couldn't be made stronger or better," writes James E. Edwards. "The way it cures Sciatica is to me simply a miracle. For years I suffered frightfully. I ruined my stomach, with internal dosing. I rubbed in gallons of oils and liniments—none were strong enough. One good rubbing with Nerviline relieved. I kept on rubbing and shortly was cured. My father cured rheumatism in his right arm and shoulder with Nerviline, and my mother cured herself of chronic lumbago with Nerviline. Our family simply swears by Nerviline and we are never without a 50c family size bottle in our home. We find that for external pain, for coughs, colds, earache, such minor ills it is a veritable family physician."

A HAPPY CHILD IN JUST A FEW HOURS

When cross, constipated or if feverish give "California Syrup of Figs" then don't worry

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it cannot cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

The Motto of Every Canadian Should be "What We Have, We INTEND to Hold"

In so far as it applies to Canada's national wealth, our forests, and more particularly the protection of our fur-bearing animals, which, however, would soon become but evidence of a great past unless husbanded by the foresight of man.

To the foresight of Prince Edward Island's practical men two of the most famous of Canada's fur-bearing animals, the Black and Silver Fox, have been saved to future generations—and as a consequence Canada will unquestionably furnish the world's great demand in future, for this princely fur exceeds its weight in gold!

Concerted action by shrewd Canadians now engaged in this industry in Prince Edward Island will shortly control all the available Black and Silver Foxes wherever found on this continent, a fact generally conceded by persons in authority—consequently this announcement is of great interest to the careful investor and believer in Canada's vast Fur Wealth.

Some Important Facts about the Silver Black Fox Industry

The first island ranch was started with two pairs of Anticosti Silvers, bought from a trapper for experimental purposes solely, and same proved so successful that the fox industry started to be developed.

In the year 1910 a pair of breeders could be bought for $4,000.00; in 1911 the price went to $6,000, a pair, during 1912 a pair at $10,000.00 was considered high but not unusual and at the time of writing (January 26, 1914) live breeders can bring any price from $15,000.00 to $35,000.00, according to fecundity, and options on the unborn of next year are selling for $12,000.00 a pair.

About $10,000.00 is said to be invested in the fox industry on Prince Edward Island, showing a gain of over $3,000,000 inside a year.

Official returns for the present year show that the 277 fox ranches on the Island contain 899 silver breeding foxes (441 males and 458 females). The total number of silver offspring for 1913 was 703, and the average assessed value was $4,892.52 per fox.

The total valuation of the young silver black foxes for the current year is $3,349.449. The total number of silver foxes in the ranches for 1913 is 1,602.

Pelts from ranch-bred Prince Edward Island silver black foxes have sold at the London auction sales as high as $2,628.00.

ASSETS OF THE COMPANY

The Company has TEN PAIRS of high-grade PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND silver black foxes, EIGHT PAIRS are now on the ranch and two pairs of breeders under option all are eligible for registration under the select class "A" of the FOX BREEDERS' ASSOCIATION. These foxes have been selected with special regard to parentage, and consist of the following well known strains:

Gordon, Dalton, Tuplin, Oulton, Raynor and Champion. These names are conspicuously prominent in the Fox Industry ranches which in 1913 paid from 45 per cent to 900 per cent.

THE INDUSTRY

No industry in recent years has made such wonderful strides as the Black-Silver Fox Industry, and the reason is that it offers larger financial returns than any other business in the Dominion. Moreover, its future possesses unlimited opportunities, as the demand is constantly increasing, while the supply has reached almost a minimum until a few companies undertook the breeding and rearing of these valuable animals. Everyone who is alive to the opportunities of enormous profits without risk will readily appreciate the advantages of investing in the R. J. McNeill Black and Silver Fox Company, Limited. It is a fact that every bona fide fox company organized within the Province of Prince Edward Island has paid dividends of from 45 per cent to 300 per cent and some companies have even done better than this.

ONLY ONE CLASS OF STOCK

There is only one class of stock fully paid and non-assessable. Every shareholder participates pro rata in all dividends paid by the Company, and the latter has no authority to issue either Preferred Stock or Bonds.

FUTURE POLICY

The Company expects to earn large profits from the sale of these rare black and silver foxes for breeding purposes, while each year a percentage of the production will be retained, placing the company in a position to pay large dividends from the sale of furs alone. The object of this policy is to place the fur farming industry on a substantial commercial basis.

THE COMPANY'S RANCH

The Company owns outright a fine 211-acre farm with complete farm buildings—one of the most up-to-date ranches on the Island. It has an experienced and highly skilled keeper whose services have largely contributed to the present satisfactory condition of the business.

Clerks in the employ of Sinclair and Stewart, a big dry goods house at Summerside, formed a silver fox company in 1912. This company is popularly referred to as the "Widows" Fox Company, as nearly all the stockholders are women, a dividend of 900 per cent was their reward.

Three sisters of Alberton, P.E.I. who were employed in the United States, sent their spare earnings home two years ago to be invested in the fur farming business and their profits have averaged $15,000 yearly since.

A bookkeeper in the employ of Mr. Fred L. Rogers, the Governor's son, of Alberton, invested $300 three years ago, and is now worth $45,000 directly from this source.

Mr. Frank Hall, clerk at Holman's, Limited, received $25,000 from an investment of $300 made in this business three years ago.

The Rossmount Live Stock Co., Limited, of Alberton, P. W. Turner, treasurer, has paid a dividend of 1,000 per cent this year.

Seven clerks and managers in Summerside pooled $500 each in 1910 and purchased a pair of silver foxes for $3,500. The seller, feeling that he had driven a splendid bargain, cared for the pair for a year. The first litter consisted of seven pups. The seven owners have received [illegible] each dividends since and the pair bought for $3,500 could be sold for $35,000 to-day. Mr. Austin [illegible], of St. Eleanors, is a member of this Association.

From the above it will surely be seen that the R. J. McNEILL BLACK AND SILVER FOX COMPANY, LIMITED, are engaged in business at a most opportune time and under most favorable circumstances. Take into serious consideration that our company is established, and that we have the FOXES AND THE RANCH, and not prospective. YOU ARE ENTITLED TO SEPTEMBER, 1914, DIVIDENDS; you don't have to wait for your dividends until 1915. In 1915 another dividend will be awaiting you.

REMEMBER, the average cash dividend of the above companies is 175 per cent., and there is absolutely no excuse why we cannot repeat the same.

We offered for public subscription the remaining allotment of $70,000, $30,000 has already been subscribed, $40,000 remains to be sold.

VOL. XLI, NO. 72 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, MARCH 27, 1914 PRICE TWO CENTS

SIR JOHN FRENCH, ARMY CHIEF RESIGNS OVER SEELY INCIDENT

Chief of Imperial General Staff and Greatest Cavalry Leader in Boer War

London, Mar. 26.—Premier Asquith was brought face to face to-day with a new crisis by the resignation of Field-Marshal Sir John French, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, and virtual head of the British army. Other leading officers of the army were also expected to hand in their papers as a direct outcome of the repudiation of the guarantees given to army officers in Ireland by Sir John French, Adjutant-General Ewart and Col. Seely, Secretary for War. The Premier had yesterday declared that these guarantees were not sanctioned by the Cabinet. Col. Seely subsequently resigned from the Cabinet, but the Premier refused to accept his action.

Break Up of Army?

The result of the meeting at the War Office of the principal commanding generals of the British army was awaited with anxiety by the general public and political circles to-day, as it was thought they might take some step which would virtually disrupt the army administration.

In the north of Ireland itself, where the controversy between Nationalists and Unionists had been the cause of so much difficulty to the British Government, there was no disturbance of the peace. The two parties were seemingly content to await events in London.

London, Mar. 26.—The opinion prevailed in military circles to-day that the resignations were imminent of Field Marshal Sir John French, and Lieut.-Gen. Sir John Spencer Ewart, Adjutant-General to the Forces. This was regarded as likely to be the consequence of the repudiation by the Government of the memorandum to General Hubert Gough, commander of the Third Cavalry Brigade in Ireland, which the two Generals had been led to believe was approved by the Cabinet.

They Signed Seely Papers.

Field Marshal French and Gen. Ewart were joint signatories with Col. Seely, Secretary for War, of the two repudiated paragraphs that brought about the resignation yesterday of Col. Seely, which was declined by Premier Asquith.

Much comment was aroused to-day by a conference at the War Office, of all the principal commanding generals of the British army including Field Marshal French and Gen. Ewart.

ONTARIO FISHERIES JURISDICTION

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., for East Peterborough, made the following timely enquiries in the House of Commons:

1. When is a game or sporting fish a commercial fish?

2. In the district of Northern Central Ontario, including Peterborough, Haliburton, etc. counties and the district of Muskoka, comprising at least 10,000 square miles of territory and 1500 lakes and rivers which provide fish for food for 10,000 people, within the jurisdiction of the Department of Marine and Fisheries as to hatcheries, restocking, supervision, etc.?

Mr. Hazen replied as follows:

1. It is not easy to give a definition in each case, as there may in certain cases be an overlapping. Speaking generally, however, commercial fish are those that are caught by regular fishermen as a means of livelihood, while sporting fish are those that are caught by sportsmen for pastime or pleasure. The principal sporting fish of Ontario are speckled trout and black bass.

2. Since the 1898 Privy Council decision in the Fisheries Reference, the fisheries of Ontario have been supervised by the Provincial Government. Last year an arrangement was made with the Provincial Department of Fisheries—which received the revenues from the fisheries—whereby the Department of Marine and Fisheries will confine its fish breeding operations to the stocking of waters resorted to by regular fishermen to earn their livelihood, while the provincial department will attend to the stocking of the sport fishing waters of the province.

HYDRO DELEGATION AT OTTAWA THRONG PARLIAMENT BUILDIMGS

Since Coon-coated Brigade Occupied it, Town Has Seen Nothing Like it

Ottawa, Mar. 26.—The biggest deputation which Ottawa has seen since the famous Coon-coated brigade of Grain Growers, invaded the capital this morning and over-ran the Parliament Buildings. The deputation, which was 1500 strong, came to Ottawa on two big special trains.

They represented the Western Ontario municipalities and made the following demands on the Government:

1.—The development of an ocean waterway from Montreal to the Upper Lakes via the St. Lawrence-Welland route.

2.—The appointment of a commission to develop, operate and control our waterway facilities and allied interests.

Control of Niagara Power.

3.—The concession to the Ontario Hydro Commission of all water not actually leased and still available or obtainable in the Niagara district or on the St. Lawrence River in connection with the development for navigation or other purposes.

4.—The granting of a subsidy of $6,400 a mile to projected municipal radial railroads.

The deputation met the Government at twelve in the legislation chamber, and crowded the members' seats and filled up the galleries, nearly all the members of the Government were present.

Berlin is Honored.

The deputation was introduced by Mr. W. Weichel, member for North Waterloo, owing to the fact that Berlin first turned on the Hydro Power and Berlin has particularly interested itself in the development of Hydro power. Mr. Weichel entered the chamber accompanied by Premier Borden, and they were given a most enthusiastic reception.

A memorial was presented to the Premier signed by D. B. Detweiler, Berlin, president of the Great Waterways Union of Canada, and executive urging the development of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence water route. The memorial depreciated the Georgian Bay Canal scheme as thoroughly impractical and presented reasons to show why it was not a sound commercial scheme.

NO MORE TROUBLESOME SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS
(The Modern Beauty)
Nothing is quite so annoying to a woman as ugly fuzzy growths on the face, and while the electric needle brings relief, it is no more effective than a simple paste made with powdered delatone and water. This paste is spread on the objectionable hairs for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off. After this treatment the skin should be washed to free it from the remaining delatone and it will be soft, clear and hairless. Be sure, however, that you get the real delatone.

TWO CADET TEAMS WILL GO TO ENGLAND

Canadian Corps Will Be Represented at Imperial Rifle Meet in July

Toronto, Mar. 26.—Two cadet teams, a senior and a junior, will leave Canada on May 7 to compete in the Imperial Cadet Rifle meeting to be held in London in July. Col. the Hon. Sam. Hughes, Minister of Militia, has authorized the sending over of the cadets who will be afforded a week's rifle practice at Quebec before sailing for the Old Land. Transportation and subsistence will be provided from the Boys' Homes and back so that the individual members of the detachments will incur little personal expense.

The teams will be drawn from the whole of Canada and will be selected according to their standing in the preliminary test, conditions of which are as follows:

Senior team—Five cadets not over 18 years on July 1, 1914. Junior team—Five cadets not over 16 years on July 1, 1914.

Rifles—Any .22 calibre rifle with open V or U sights, or Ross cadet rifle with aperture sight. These rifles must be used as issued.

Targets—Canadian Rifle League target No. 1, separate target for each test, with decimal scoring, distance 25 yards.

TATES LAST LOOK AT FRIEDMANN PATIENTS

United States Public Health Surgeon Will Report Observations.

New York, Mar. 26.—Dr. A. M. Stimson, passed Assistant Surgeon of the United States Public Health Service, has just made a final examination of patients who took the Friedmann "tuberculosis cure."

A preliminary report has been made and the result published of the Friedmann investigations.
